VILLANOVA CAMPUS WITNESSES SEVERAL NEW IMPROVEMENTS

Simpson Hall, Infirmary, Pie Shop, Dining Hall, Stokers Among Major Items

The development of Simpson Hall to provide living quarters for fifteen students and a prefect was chief among the major improvements made to campus property during the summer vacation period.

Each room has its own distinctive color scheme, the walls being painted green, gray, blue, or buff, with rugs and furnishings to harmonize. The suites are furnished with a bath, two desks, and easy chairs, as well as four straight back chairs, and two beds. Contributing to the cozy atmosphere of the rooms are pictures depicting pastoral and hunting scenes, and modernistic lamps that afford indirect lighting.

The kitchen has been painted a pleasant cream color and facilities are now afforded for the preparation of food for small banquets and teas for seminars.

In the basement a recreation room has been built and equipped with ping pong and card tables.

Infirmary Expanded

The infimary has been completely renovated. The walls have been painted a cheerful cream color and the floors a navy grey. New regulation hospital beds have been installed and equipped with a special reading lamp attached to each bed. A doctor's private office has been equipped, and among the usual furnishings contains a porcelain instrument closet and an examination table and chair. A receiving room is now available and is completely furnished. Two rooms have been added to the infirmary and a large storeroom for medical supplies has been installed. Venetian blinds grace all the windows. Although the infirmary can comfortably accomodate nine

Emphasis on Neediness; School's Allotment Shows Increase

With a record application list of 380, W. G. Slaughter, NYA officer, has been extremely busy during the past two weeks selecting the ninety-two students who most needed the financial aid offered by the National Youth Administration.

Villanova's allotment of $12,000 shows a substantial increase over the allotment for last year, which is due, according to Mr. Slaughter, present administrator, to the efficient administration of the Villanova branch of the NYA in former years and to the aid and interest of the Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the college.

Although stressing need as a requirement, Mr. Slaughter declared that even though the students needed the aid they would have to maintain an average of at least C in their grades besides being prompt and satisfactory in their work to keep their positions.

Students receiving this aid do work that is practical and useful, conducted in accordance with safe working conditions. Emphasis is placed on work that fits in with the abilities and major interests of the students.

NYA recipients at Villanova are engaged in various types of work, such as construction, repair, and remodeling of buildings, apparatus, models, equipment and other facilities; improvement and maintenance of grounds, building maintenance, clerical assistance, library assistance and book repair, reproduction work, classroom assistance, laboratory assistance, recreational leadership and assistance, and the making of school posters, models, patterns, costumes and stage equipment.

Returning Students Relate Tales Of Excitement In Foreign Lands

By ROBERT J. McINTYRE

Through war-torn Europe to torrid South America and further points west, many and varied were the wanderings and experiences of Villanova men this past summer.

Among those who journeyed to the old world were Peter Hanlon, President of the Senior Class, who as they say," got out from under" just in time. 'Pete' sailed home to the good old United States on the 15th of August from Liverpool with a tale of air-raid-conscious London.

Adventures In France

Jack Grabosky, sophomore in the Commerce and Finance School, was in Beauville. France, when the hostilities commenced. He with his mother and step-father hired an automobile and rode 365 mi. over mined roads to Amsterdam, Holland. Arriving in Amsterdam early in the morning Jack tells us that the only way they could get anything to eat was to go to a 'food-bootlegger' and at that all they received were raw hamburgers (and the complaints we've heard from some people!) Sailing on the crowded S. S. Statendam they picked up 36 survivors from a torpedoed British freighter and were stopped and questioned by a submarine themselves.

And In Sunny Italy

Another 'Villanovagee' who was glad to see the Statue of Liberty was Armand Calio, senior in the Science School, who left on Aug. 23rd with a Junior Olympic group of 15 to compete with squads of other nations in track, swimming and gym work.

Calio left on the Vulcania which, although supposed to stop at seven other ports went directly to Naples, under orders. Although most of the passengers were frightened en voyage they saw no other boats in the Mediterranean. They were in Naples on Sept. 3rd when war broke out, and, according to Armand, excitement ran high in Italy. The games which were to be held Sept. 23-28 were called off, and they were told to sail as soon as possible.

Traveling to another corner of the world was Bob O'Brien, who brings us back from Buenos Aires in South America many a tale of dark-eyed senoritas and beautiful tropical nights

While O'Brien labored in South America, Beatty Schermerhorn followed the trade winds as far as Bermuda. Beatty brings us a tale of dances and 'teas' among a friendly group of passengers aboard the boat, and lazy days on the beach and nights on taking in the sights of Bermuda. We wonder if he found any "Bermuda Onions."

Charlie Timmins, famous for his driving ability believes in that old adage, 'See America First.' Timmins en route to the Golden Gate Exposition stopped at Father Flannigan's world famous 'Boys Town', in Nebraska.

FACULTY PRIEST WRITES TREATISE

A clear cut and well defined expose of the basic principles underlying the doctrine of Communism is contained in a book entitled, 'The Philosophy of Communism," written by Rev. Charles T. McFadden, O. S. A., Ph. D., of the Villanova College faculty.

Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen has said of it:

"One cannot understand the system of Communism without understanding its basic philosophy, such as is outlined in this book, which is without a doubt the best treatment of the philosophy of Communism in any language. No one has adequately touched on the philosophy of Communism with an equal thoroughness until this work appeared."

Belle Air Merits All - American And All - Catholic Rating

VILLANOVAN Wins All-Catholic Diploma and First Class Honors

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., moderator of the "Belle Air," recently announced that last year's publication under the editorship of Bernard J. McHenry had been awarded All-American recognition in a contest conducted by the National Scholastic Press Association.

The college year book was also the recipient of All Catholic honors. Special attention must be called to the fact that of all year books submitted by men's institutions only Villanova's and Notre Dame's received All-Catholic certificates.

Last years editions of the VILLANOVAN were awarded First Class Honor Rating in a similar contest supervised by the same association. The college paper also secured All Catholic honors. This marks the second consecutive year that the newspaper has been so rewarded.

Six New Teachers Among Those Feted at Annual Dinner

Following the opening of the school year, the V. Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., president of the college, feted the members of the faculty on Thursday evening, September 21, in the Monastery Dining Hall.

After the dinner, the lay members and their wives retreated to Simpson Hall where the remainder of the evening was spent.

Six new members have been added to the faculty at Villanova this year.

In the department of physics two new professors will assume positions. Reverend John H. Crawford, O. S. A., M. A., returns to Villanova after a four-year lapse.

In the same department may be found Rudolph Drenick, who earned his Ph. D. at the University of Vienna in 1939.

The Reverend John J. Gavigan, O. S. A., M. A., is teaching the classics after having gained his master's degree at Catholic University in 1939. He was a member of the Summer school teaching staff.

In the Commerce and Finance School Mr. Henry S. McCaffrey, B. S., C. P. A., will assist in the accounting department. A well-

BELLE MASQUE NAMES OFFICERS

With the appointment of Joseph McNamara, senior artsman, to the position of assistant director, Anthony T. Frayne, coach of the Belle Masque dramatic society, expects the coming year to be the greatest since the rebirth of campus productions in 1936. Newly elected officers are Bradley McManus, business manager, and Jack Gallagher, stage manager.

Since the production of "Winterset" in 1937, scenery construction has become an important part of the Belle Masque. During the past few years additions have been made to the construction shop to such an extent that it is now fully equipped for any type property that might be necessary. Rev. Robert Sullivan, O. S. A. moderator, is confident that the organization is capable of the undertaking of any type of dramatic activity.

ANNUAL RETREAT TO COMMENCE WED. EVENING

Devotion to Blessed Virgin to be Theme of Talk by Father Deacy

The V. Rev. William J. Deacy, O. S. A., newly appointed Prior of St. Mary's Hall, will conduct the annual one-day retreat for Villanova students. As it is traditional to hold the retreat on the Thursday preceding the first Friday of October, the retreat will be held this year on Thursday, October 5.

Resident students will begin their retreat at a conference held in the College Chapel on Wednesday evening, October 4, at 8:30 P. M. The initial service for nonresident students will be the 8 o'clock Mass on Thursday morning. The retreat will close on Friday morning with Mass, Communion and the bestowing of the Papal Benediction.

Spoken Here Before

While Fr. Deacy's recent appointment as Prior is his first official position as a member of the Villanova faculty, he has given retreats here before, having been active in mission work in the past. As far as it is known, the theme of Fr. Deacy's talk will be, "Man's Devotion to the Blessed Virgin."

Fr. Boyle, Chaplain, wishes to stress the fact that the importance of this retreat cannot possibly be over-emphasized. He urges that the students give the Retreat Master their whole-heartel cooperation in order that it might be successful and spiritually beneficial to all. To quote him: "The time of the retreat is of great moment to the Villanova student because it brings to his attention, at the very beginning of the school year, the very important value of Catholic education—which is the developing of the whole spiritual man. The retreat helps to bring to our attention the importance of drawing

Democracy Active at Home

IN the closing issue of the VILLANOVAN last year we offered a prayer that the new scholastic year would find the international situation at least hopeful, but it seems that such hopes have been crushed by the recent events which plunged the Old World into a second catastrophe.

This time the cry of the propagandist reverberates about an appeal to "save civilization from the hordes of Nazism." Toward this end the so-called democracies of Europe are pledged. It is also evident that they will try their utmost to enlist the aid of the U. S.

For the moment let us forget the reports of censored news coming to us and concentrate on the topic that is most important to us. Not wishing to see democracy annihiliated and having profited from experience, we know quite well that it will not be saved by our entering into any war; rather will fighting strengthen the enemies of democracy.

Hence, it is obvious that the only way to save democracy is to make America a citadel of freedom, where it can be defended against all alien attempts to undermine it. Each and every American must be taught to realize the sacredness of those principles and institutions which safeguard his "inalienable rights," and to cherish them in his heart.

As future citizens, we college students, who have been given a greater opportunity, should study our government, its functions and privileges, realize its shortcomings, and appreciate its innumerable advantages so that we may arrive at a fuller understanding of its value, thus making ourselves invulnerable against the inception of subversive ideas which seek to remedy by destruction.

—A. J. D'A.

Home Comforts

ATTENION of the student body and friends of the college is called to the numerous physical improvements which took place at Villanova during the summer. They were chiefly concerned with the dining, living, recreational, and medical facilities and bear testimony to the fact that Villanova is definately expanding and improving with each succeeding year. All persons who enjoy the use of these facilities should lend their co-operation in using them in the proper manner and thereby show their appreciation to the college authorities.

—T. S. M.

Hello! Hello! Hello!

WELCOME frosh!
Villanova greets you.

Make the most of these four years before you. They are the most important in your life. Acclimate yourselves quickly to these new surroundings, in all your duties be sincere and co-operative, grasp the school spirit—in general, be Villanovan.

Get the hello habit; employ it, cultivate it. There has been a serious laxity; in fact, a downright neglect in regard to this custom. By your failure to comply with fellow-students subsequent friendships which this habit fosters will never materialize if you forsake this practice.

Address the upper classmen — and speak first. Do not be shy—it costs too much. Remember that the preservation of the democratic environment at Villanova depends largely upon you.

H. A. McC.

Visitors Welcomed

BETWEEN four and five hundred athletes, perhaps half as many members of other college organizations, and innumerable other persons visit Villanova in the course of a year, but no specific provisions are made to entertain them or to show them around while they are on the campus. We can't expect the managers and secretaries of the local organizations to do more than care for their visitors' immediate needs, so the social side of their visit can only be cared for by some other agency.

What is called for is a student organization which will act as host to visiting individuals, teams, or groups of any kind. Its members would meet the visitors immediately upon their arrival, show them around the school, and introduce them to the members of the Villanova team or club with which they are going to compete.

Membership of the group would be limited to upperclassmen in good standing selected by the Student Council with the approval of the Board of Discipline. Membership would be small enough to insure co-operation, but not so small that all the work would be done by a few.

We would like to hear from the student body, their opinion of this idea. Whether it will be carried out or not depends on the sort of response this receives. Let's hear, then, on what you think of the idea, the specific suggestions you may have for choosing the group, what the number of its membership, and to what its functions should be limited.

—T. A. S.

Regardless of what methods poultry growers use to hasten their flocks for an early Thanksgiving, President Roosevelt will be more than satisfied if his table is graced with a turkey nicely fattened on straddle-bugs.

About the only thing Hitler isn't blamed for is the partitioning of the VILLANOVAN office.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Memory Addicts Fail To Retain Knowledge

Purely Factual Information Worthless Unless Understood and Used

By WILLIAM H. McHugh, Ph. D.
Professor of Education

SCHOOL and jail are very much alike in that both demand compulsory attendance; but they differ in that jail permits a prisoner to do a good turn for a pal when the occasion arises, while the school prohibits any such performance when the need is most urgent. Hence, the hapless student who, because of slip-shod teaching during his secondary school days, has depended entirely upon his rote memory to "just get by" is left to the mercy (if any) of his wolfish professors. I once had a splendid student who had diligently practiced until he had mastered the fine art of wiggling his ears. When examination time came he sat in the very center of the first row, where the entire class had an ample view of his Gablian ears. Suspicious as I was at the discovery that nearly all turned in perfect papers, it was only years later that he told me the code—one wiggle, 'true'—two wiggles, 'false'.

The devices to which a memory addict will resort lest his crutch fail him are, to say the least, ingenious. Ticker tape with miscroscopic writing, ingeniously rolled like a scroll and cleverly exposed in the palm of the hand; formulae written in the cuff of a white shirt, so that when the weary student rests his throbbing head on the alm of his hand, he can look up his sleeve; an innocent-looking Camel lying on the desk containing the important dates of world history; all are tricks as old as the school itself. And they are the result of the school's stupid emphasis on information and lesson "learning."

There is a vast difference between the acquisition of experiences and the accumulation of verbatim statement of facts. A common fault of the old time school was its stress on routine statement to be memorized by heart. Fully as bad, if not much worse is the practice of memorizing a whole selection of poetry for exercise in training the memory. What a familiar ring these words have: "A powerful and retentive memory"! I can almost hear the old-fashioned school master gleefully telling his trusting little victims that "Just as the blacksmith develops a powerful muscle in his arm by lifting a hammer, so you can develop a powerful and retentive memory by practicing on something or other." Many years ago as a ten-year-old child I was compelled to memorize the whole of Gray's "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard." It was six years later when I discovered that it had something to do with corpses and graveyards. Now some selected portions of Gray's "Elegy" are worth memorizing because of the quotability of some of the gems. But, despite the exercise, (if any) acquired in memorizing the whole business, I still can't remember the names of Sisters who have been in my graduate courses for the last four years.

Factual information is taught because it is presumed that the student has intelligence enough to understand it and sense enough to use it. If knowledge does not change your habits, attitudes, appreciations or ideals—it is not worth knowing; and if you cannot use it to modify your own behavior you'd probably be better off without it.

Much informational teaching is worthless because students are not ready to receive it; and to them it has no relation to everyday problems. Too many facts are taught now to be used ten or fifteen years from now. One reason why such cold storage education doesn't work is because it isn't even good storage in the first place. By the time the students gets around to using it years later, intellectual putrefaction has set in and he has to unlearn it all. And I am convinced that the lecture method must shoulder a great part of the blame for this presence of this evil in secondary schools and colleges.

The lecture method has been described as a process of transferring statements from the professor's notebook to the student's notebook without its going through the heads of either. Many persistent lecturers in secondary school, college and the graduate school are either too lazy or too incompetent to indicate the function of the information they are discussing. And when many of them do condescend to do so their application is so far-fetched and improbable that even the dullest student can see through it. Some teachers of foreign languages, for example, sometimes bolster up their structure by solemnly telling students that their particular language will help them with their English. That's like going from Philadelphia to New York by way of Australia. If a course can't carry its own weight it shouldn't be in the curriculum. It shouldn't have to use any other course as a crutch to carry it. On second thought, I suppose, if your house is falling down it's better to prop it up somehow, than to let it collapse altogether and be compelled to sleep in the snow. Yet there is no knowledge that does not have its functional values. Even languages, supposedly dead these many years, have the vitality and the power to make us thrill at the "glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome" if they are but properly and effectively taught.

Most lectures are too long anyway. One should talk to an audience only so long as he can hold their interest. When the audience goes to sleep the lecturer should shut up. If they're asleep they won't hear the rest of it anyway. An old professor once awakened a student and demanded to know why he was asleep and why he wasn't taking notes. And the student replied, "My grandfather once took your course—and I have his notebook."

When you listen to a lecture or study your text-book, think and apply the materials to your own personal and environmental problems. Spend fifteen minutes a day in meditation digesting the knowledge you have tasted. Let that knowledge be your servant always, rather tahn your master ,that your mind may ever "know the truth and the truth shall make you free!"

LIBRARY RECEIVES MEDIEVAL SCRIPT DONATED BY PRIEST

15th Century Manuscript and 250 Books Among Gifts to Library

By FRANK FITZPATRICK

Reverend Daniel F. Falvey, O. S. A., acting librarian, in a recent statement said that the library had received a valuable old manuscript printed approximately at the close of the middle ages. It was donated by Reverend Patrick O'Shea, O. S. A., of St. Mary's Church, Lawrence, Mass.

Father O'Shea discovered that this manuscript was an Antiphonary which contained Antiphones from the proper of the feast of St. Augustine. He received it in return for services rendered a student who possessed several other medieval manuscripts.

In a recent letter to Father Falvey, Father O'Shea said: "It was my first attempt to use the knowledge of manuscript that our late lamented and learned Father Beckerman gave us in class. It used punctuation marks and therefore came later than the third century. It used small letters and therefore was writted after the ninth century. The feast of Corpus Christi and also (traditionally believed) the feast of St. Augustine were written by St. Thomas and therefore this manuscript was written after the thirteenth century.

It was written while paper was still very expensive and hard to get, hence the use of sheep skin. It was written before the art of making ink was lost, and when books were still so expensive that a monastery preferred to make a palimsest out of one of its duplicates rather than buy or make another entire volume. Therefore, it was written either immediately before the printing press (1450) or very shortly after, and before printing was common and cheap. On the principal that "I would rather be right than president" it was with feelings of chestiness that I heard the Harvard professor set the date 1475 to 1525.". (Editor's note: Professor referred to is the librarian at the Widener Memorial Library of Harvard who is recognized as an authority on such manuscripts.)

Among other outstanding gifts is one made by the Very Reverend William Cotler, O. S. A., of St. Patrick's Church, Greenwich, New York, who donated approximately 250 books dealing with Catholic sociology and history.

OBITUARY

James V. Moran, Jr., after days of suffering in the Cooper Hospital, Camden, N. J., and the Philadelphia Graduate Hospital, died September 21, 1939. This term he would have entered his junior year at Villanova.

A day after he had gone swimming he was admitted to the Cooper Hospital with a sinus ailment. He had probably caught an infection while swimming. Moran lapsed into unconsciousness as complications set in and never knew he was transferred to the Philadelphia hospital. After a series of operations and blood transfusions he succumbed.

His home was at Haddon Heights, New Jersey.

Mother Mary Ignatius, S. H. C. J., Rosemont College president, died July 30, 1939 aboard the liner Laconia as it neared New York harbor. She was returning from a visit to Rome, England and Ireland.

A native of Limerick, Ireland, she came to this country in 1907, studied at Creighton University, Omaha, and became president of Rosemont College in 1924.

William J. Gilligan, Jr., 23, a junior at Villanova College, drowned July 28, 1939, at Beach Haven, N. J. He died less than a year after his younger brother was drowned.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Gilligan of 422 Browning Rd., Collingswood, N. J.

On September 23, 1938, Gilligan's brother, Francis Carroll Gilligan, 16, died after diving and striking his head in the pool at St. Joseph's College High School in Philadelphia.

Dr. Ruggerio Flocco, swimming coach at Villanova, died suddenly at his home, 5310 Spruce St., Philadelphia, in June, 1939. Dr. Flocco was a graduate of Philadelphia College of Osteopathy and had been connected with Villanova for two years.

Saved! One Duck That Didn't Duck

Dog catchers and butterfly hazers have nothing on Tom (ducky) Moore, Jack Regan and company. A male mallard duck was observed flying about the campus the other day and acting in a way that would have surprised any sincere ornithologist. After circling the band, which was practicing in front of the college (probably wondering what kind of birds were making such queer noises) he landed in the parking lot (perhaps he thought it was a miniature black sea) and wandered under a parked car.

After several attempted escapes he was finally captured when he collided with the fence. These humane students gently placed him in their car and saw to it that he was united with some fellow ducks on a pond near Conshocken where he lost no time making himself comfortable and everything was just . . . ducky.

ENGINEER ADVISERS TO CALL FRESHMEN

Guidance Program Plans Conferences for Those Encountering Difficulties

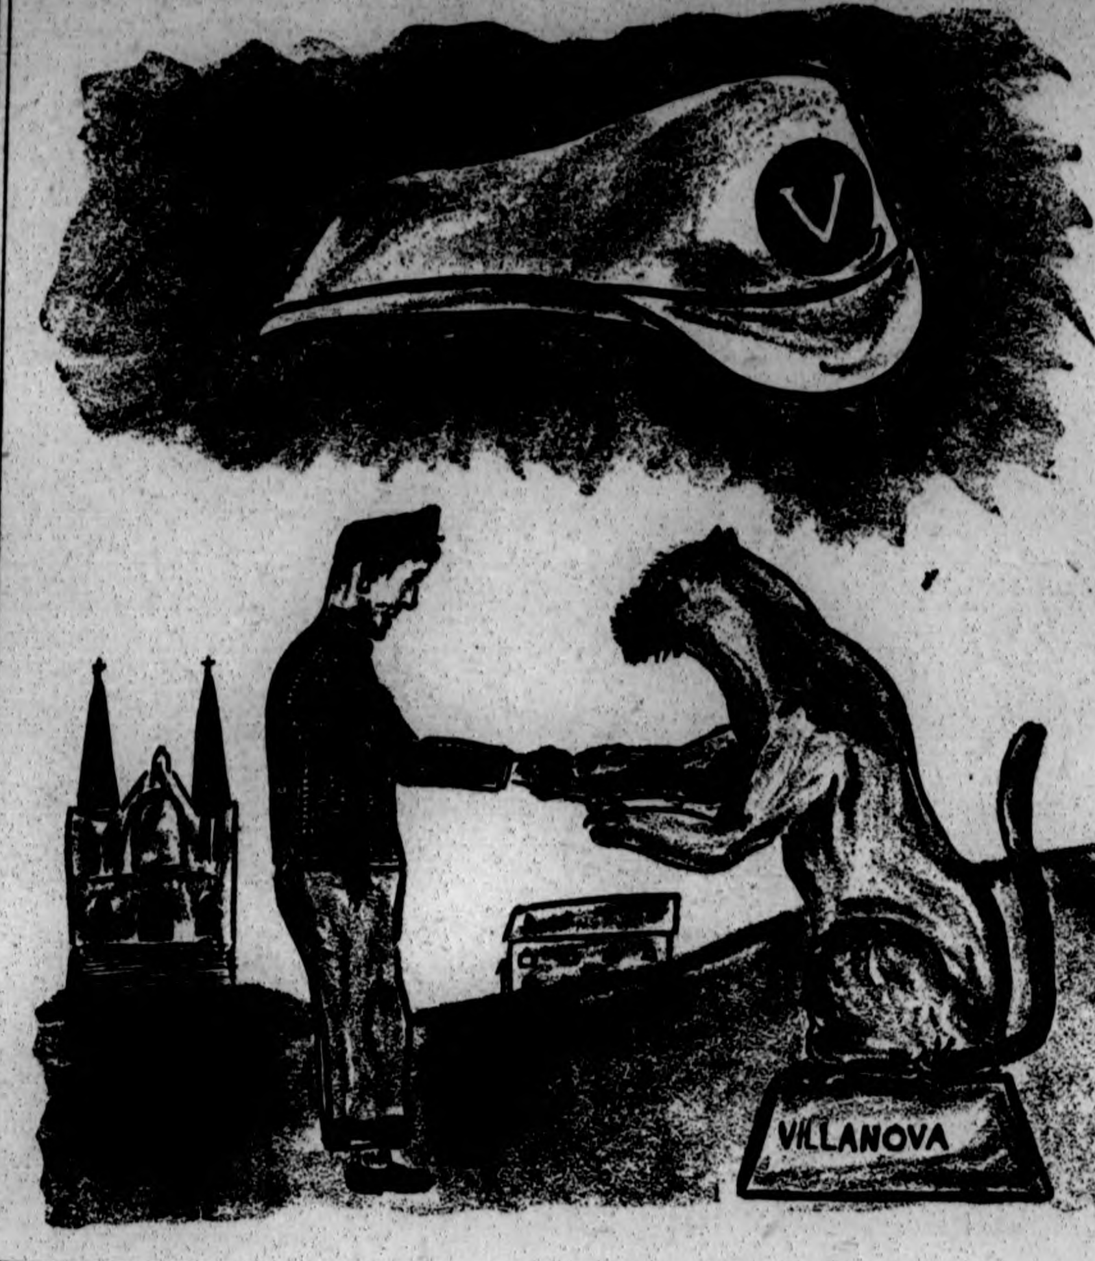
Under a new system instituted this year, freshman engineering students will not have to decide until the beginning of their sophomore year what field of engineering they will specialize in.

Last year the freshmen had to make the important decision at the beginning of the year, conferring immediately upon registration with the advisor for their particular course. This year it has been decided to give the freshman a year in which to find his particular interests, inasmuch as all freshman engineering students take the same subjects.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., Dr. Edward L. Haenisch and Emil Amelotti will each advise one-third of the freshman engineering class under the new system. They will keep a check on the freshmen, and will attempt to help them find and overcome their difficulties. Aptitude tests have already been taken and in a few weeks those freshmen who are having trouble with their courses will be called in to the offices of respective advisors for guidance.

No change has been made in the advisory system used for upperclassmen, however, and they will continue to confer with the advisors in their particular fields.

Just Say Hello, Son . . . . by BELZ



Villanova College Military Center During Preparation For World War

By ANTHONY R. LISCIO

Preparedness in its sweep across the country found a ready response in Villanova; the biggest evidence of this fact is seen in the military training course, the Student Army Training Corps, which was installed in the curriculum of the college. The college authorities had been planning the addition of this course for some time and immediately after the declaration of war their plans were put into effect. The first drill was held on Friday, April 27, 1917, and continued regularly every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday until November 26 1918, at which time the S. A. T. C. was disbanded. The instruction was in charge of Sergeant-Major Hamilton, U .S. A.

The S. A. T. C. drills were postponed for a time during which a majority of the students were stricken with flu. This epidemic completely upset the school program and resulted in the death of four students.

Over $16,500 Raised

Villanova went over the top with the Fourth Liberty Loan. The students of the S. A. T. C. demonstrated by their subscriptions that they were willing to cooperate in every possible way with the Government in its efforts to bring about a victorious peace. Over $16,500 in subscriptions was received.

At the termination of the war there were approximately one hundred and twenty-five Villanova men who had enlisted in different branches of the regular service besides three who were studying at West Point. There were also eleven of our good Fathers acting as chaplains.

Cardinal Mercier, the great Belgian philosopher, visited Villanova College on a mission of peace during the days of the great strife. He was graciously welcomed by the entire student body at a flag raising ceremony at the site of the present flag pole. We were also honored by a visit from Acting Chaplain General Msgr. Wearing.

Was It In Vain?

Will all their courage have gone in vain? Will they be chilled by our forgetfulness? They expect and have every right to expect something more. They are ours, they fought for us, suffered for us, were willing to die for us. Let us not be indifferent to their sacrifices.

Pimpinella Well Qualified As Orientation Chairman Through Collegiate And Worldly Experience

Activities Range From Skilled Laboring to Politics to Law

By THOMAS McKIMMEY

AS chairman of the Orientation Committee he is usually asking the questions, but the tables have turned and now he is answering them. Frank A. Pimpinella, better known to his classmates as "Doc," was born in Stamford, Conn., on May 15, 1915. He attended the Stevens Grammar School where he was usually extricating himself from various mischievous situations, and upon reaching the age of adolescense he entered Rice Junior High.

Then came Stamford High School, and for three years he participated in almost every activity which he thought would be beneficial to his education. Among these were the debating teams, social committees and class offices. It was during these years that he aspired to further his education in college, but his hopes were frustrated at first by his responsibility to his family, and he went to work.

Jack-of-All-Trades

For four long years he remained out of school working in various capacities. He was in turn a carpenter, plumber, painter, draftsman, printer, tutor, clerk, and salesman. He was on the business staff of the Connecticut American for eight months and at the same time he wrote numerous columns for that paper. To conclude these varied performances he wound up as a tax assessor. Meanwhile he occupied his leisure time with the study of human nature and psychology, and in order to become more proficient along these lines he spent many hours in the Stamford library reading and writing about these two subjects.

FRANK A. PIMPINELLA

In 1936 he enlisted in the Connecticult National Guard, with an appointment to West Point as his goal. After having won the Connecticut award which allowed him to take the required examinations, he passed both the physical and mental tests; but he was unsuccessful in his attempt to secure the political appointment, and in bitter disappointment he began to look elsewhere. At this time the Villanova Alumni group in Stamford recommended Villanova College, and in September, 1936, he enrolled as a freshman in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Engages in Activities

His freshman year found him making many new friends and engaged in all the frosh activities. He was in the debating society, in the Glee Club and was chosen secretary of the Connesticut Club. He won his first merit awards and led his class in scholarship. The latter accomplishment has been true for his three years in school, a remarkable achievement.

The sophomore year found Frank on the Cotillion Committee and in the Student Council. He served on the Orientation Committee that year, too, and continued to be a member of that select group in his junior year. Also in this year he was chairman of that very successful Ring Committee, at the same time fulfilling his duties as the College Infirmarian.

This year Frank is Vice Chairman of the Student Council, a member of the Belle Air business staff and chairman of the Orientation Committee. When asked concerning his opinion of Orientation, he replied, "that it was a very important factor in the moulding of a freshman's attitude towards his Alma Mater and his schoolmates."

To Be Lawyer

His ambition is to become a successful lawyer, and he intends to enroll in some eastern law school next year. Judging from the facts here presented, it is needless to say that he will be a very good one. From the panorama of life that he has seen, fate has done much to enrich his experience.

QUARTER CENTURY AGAIN SEES SCHOOL UNDER WAR CLOUDS

Students Hear Rev. Stanford Formally Open School

"Twenty-five years ago students of Villanova met under the shadow of war in the same manner as you are assembled here today. Pray that, like them, we shall not be in uniform before our college days are completed."

With these words the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, welcomed old and new students following a solemn high Mass in the college chapel on Friday, Sept. 27 which formally inaugurated the ninety-seventh year of the college.

Fr. Stanford, celebrated the Mass and was assisted by the Revs. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A. and Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., deacon, and sub deacon respectively.

The theme of Fr. Stanford's discourse was as follows: "Students must understand what is transpiring abroad, accustom themselves with the policies of the various 'isms' which have persecuted religion, and study the tactics of the dictators who have subjugated the people to the state, if we are to fully appreciate the privileges with which we are endowed. It is our duty to preserve the freedom which we have inherited by being intellectual and God-fearing citizens."

Father Stanford concluded his sermon by urging the students to pray for a hasty and permanent peace and imparted his best wishes to all for a happy spiritual and intellectual college year.

HISTORY SEMINARS SHIFT TO FRIDAY

War causes and world politics are among the subjects scheduled for discussion during the various history seminars which, this year, are scheduled for 4:00 o'clock every Friday afternoon in Simpson Hall, according to Dr. H. F. Hartman, Assistant Professor of Social Sciences, director of the seminars.

The program outlined for these assemblies will be vitally concerned with a study of the fundamental causes responsible for the present war in Europe. The motives which incited this immediate conflict will in turn be contrasted with the causes which led to the World War of 1914. It is the aim of the seminar by this method to instill in the minds of the students a better understanding of the basic and ultimate causes responsible for both of these calamities.

The seminar will also consider the principles contained in the philosophies and policies of the European governments and how they affect the social, economic, and military policies of today. It is hoped that by comparing the political policies of the European governments with the principles underlying our American government we may more fully appreciate democratic institutions.

FOUR FRESHMEN VICTORS IN COMPETITIVE EXAMS

Representatives of Six States, Cuba compete; Two Tie for Third

Four freshmen are bearers of scholarships based upon the results of written examinations given at Villanova on May 27, 1939.

The winners of the seventh annual awards were Loring A. Jones of Regis High School, New York City; J. A. McNeill of Roman Catholic High School, Philadelphia; Samuel J. Burruano of Norristown High School, Norristown; and Thomas F. Devine of West Catholic High School in Philadelphia. The latter two winners were tied for the third scholarship and will divide it.

One hundred twelve young men, representing forty-six high schools from six states and Cuba took the examinations. It was the largest number ever to compete since 1933, when the competitive scholarships were first awarded.

Democracy Active at Home

IN the closing issue of the VILLANOVAN last year we offered a prayer that the new scholastic year would find the international situation at least hopeful, but it seems that such hopes have been crushed by the recent events which plunged the Old World into a second catastrophe.

This time the cry of the propagandist reverberates about an appeal to "save civilization from the hordes of Nazism." Toward this end the so-called democracies of Europe are pledged. It is also evident that they will try their utmost to enlist the aid of the U. S.

For the moment let us forget the reports of censored news coming to us and concentrate on the topic that is most important to us. Not wishing to see democracy annihiliated and having profited from experience, we know quite well that it will not be saved by our entering into any war; rather will fighting strengthen the enemies of democracy.

Hence, it is obvious that the only way to save democracy is to make America a citadel of freedom, where it can be defended against all alien attempts to undermine it. Each and every American must be taught to realize the sacredness of those principles and institutions which safeguard his "inalienable rights," and to cherish them in his heart.

As future citizens, we college students, who have been given a greater opportunity, should study our government, its functions and privileges, realize its shortcomings, and appreciate its innumerable advantages so that we may arrive at a fuller understanding of its value, thus making ourselves invulnerable against the inception of subversive ideas which seek to remedy by destruction.

—A. J. D'A.

Home Comforts

ATTENION of the student body and friends of the college is called to the numerous physical improvements which took place at Villanova during the summer. They were chiefly concerned with the dining, living, recreational, and medical facilities and bear testimony to the fact that Villanova is definately expanding and improving with each succeeding year. All persons who enjoy the use of these facilities should lend their co-operation in using them in the proper manner and thereby show their appreciation to the college authorities.

—T. S. M.

Hello! Hello! Hello!

WELCOME frosh!
Villanova greets you.

Make the most of these four years before you. They are the most important in your life. Acclimate yourselves quickly to these new surroundings, in all your duties be sincere and co-operative, grasp the school spirit—in general, be Villanovan.

Get the hello habit; employ it, cultivate it. There has been a serious laxity; in fact, a downright neglect in regard to this custom. By your failure to comply with fellow-students subsequent friendships which this habit fosters will never materialize if you forsake this practice.

Address the upper classmen — and speak first. Do not be shy—it costs too much. Remember that the preservation of the democratic environment at Villanova depends largely upon you.

H. A. McC.

Visitors Welcomed

BETWEEN four and five hundred athletes, perhaps half as many members of other college organizations, and innumerable other persons visit Villanova in the course of a year, but no specific provisions are made to entertain them or to show them around while they are on the campus. We can't expect the managers and secretaries of the local organizations to do more than care for their visitors' immediate needs, so the social side of their visit can only be cared for by some other agency.

What is called for is a student organization which will act as host to visiting individuals, teams, or groups of any kind. Its members would meet the visitors immediately upon their arrival, show them around the school, and introduce them to the members of the Villanova team or club with which they are going to compete.

Membership of the group would be limited to upperclassmen in good standing selected by the Student Council with the approval of the Board of Discipline. Membership would be small enough to insure co-operation, but not so small that all the work would be done by a few.

We would like to hear from the student body, their opinion of this idea. Whether it will be carried out or not depends on the sort of response this receives. Let's hear, then, on what you think of the idea, the specific suggestions you may have for choosing the group, what the number of its membership, and to what its functions should be limited.

—T. A. S.

Regardless of what methods poultry growers use to hasten their flocks for an early Thanksgiving, President Roosevelt will be more than satisfied if his table is graced with a turkey nicely fattened on straddle-bugs.

About the only thing Hitler isn't blamed for is the partitioning of the VILLANOVAN office.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Memory Addicts Fail To Retain Knowledge

Purely Factual Information Worthless Unless Understood and Used

By WILLIAM H. McHugh, Ph. D.
Professor of Education

SCHOOL and jail are very much alike in that both demand compulsory attendance; but they differ in that jail permits a prisoner to do a good turn for a pal when the occasion arises, while the school prohibits any such performance when the need is most urgent. Hence, the hapless student who, because of slip-shod teaching during his secondary school days, has depended entirely upon his rote memory to "just get by" is left to the mercy (if any) of his wolfish professors. I once had a splendid student who had diligently practiced until he had mastered the fine art of wiggling his ears. When examination time came he sat in the very center of the first row, where the entire class had an ample view of his Gablian ears. Suspicious as I was at the discovery that nearly all turned in perfect papers, it was only years later that he told me the code—one wiggle, 'true'—two wiggles, 'false'.

The devices to which a memory addict will resort lest his crutch fail him are, to say the least, ingenious. Ticker tape with miscroscopic writing, ingeniously rolled like a scroll and cleverly exposed in the palm of the hand; formulae written in the cuff of a white shirt, so that when the weary student rests his throbbing head on the palm of his hand, he can look up his sleeve; an innocent-looking Camel lying on the desk containing the important dates of world history; all are tricks as old as the school itself. And they are the result of the school's stupid emphasis on information and lesson "learning."

There is a vast difference between the acquisition of experiences and the accumulation of verbatim statement of facts. A common fault of the old time school was its stress on routine statement to be memorized by heart. Fully as bad, if not much worse is the practice of memorizing a whole selection of poetry for exercise in training the memory. What a familiar ring these words have: "A powerful and retentive memory"! I can almost hear the old-fashioned school master gleefully telling his trusting little victims that "Just as the blacksmith develops a powerful muscle in his arm by lifting a hammer, so you can develop a powerful and retentive memory by practicing on something or other." Many years ago as a ten-year-old child I was compelled to memorize the whole of Gray's "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard." It was six years later when I discovered that it had something to do with corpses and graveyards. Now some selected portions of Gray's "Elegy" are worth memorizing because of the quotability of some of the gems. But, despite the exercise, (if any) acquired in memorizing the whole business, I still can't remember the names of Sisters who have been in my graduate courses for the last four years.

Factual information is taught because it is presumed that the student has intelligence enough to understand it and sense enough to use it. If knowledge does not change your habits, attitudes, appreciations or ideals—it is not worth knowing; and if you cannot use it to modify your own behavior you'd probably be better off without it.

Much informational teaching is worthless because students are not ready to receive it; and to them it has no relation to everyday problems. Too many facts are taught now to be used ten or fifteen years from now. One reason why such cold storage education doesn't work is because it isn't even good storage in the first place. By the time the students gets around to using it years later, intellectual putrefaction has set in and he has to unlearn it all. And I am convinced that the lecture method must shoulder a great part of the blame for this presence of this evil in secondary schools and colleges.

The lecture method has been described as a process of transferring statements from the professor's notebook to the student's notebook without its going through the heads of either. Many persistent lecturers in secondary school, college and the graduate school are either too lazy or too incompetent to indicate the function of the information they are discussing. And when many of them do condescend to do so their application is so far-fetched and improbable that even the dullest student can see through it. Some teachers of foreign languages, for example, sometimes bolster up their structure by solemnly telling students that their particular language will help them with their English. That's like going from Philadelphia to New York by way of Australia. If a course can't carry its own weight it shouldn't be in the curriculum. It shouldn't have to use any other course as a crutch to carry it. On second thought, I suppose, if your house is falling down it's better to prop it up somehow, than to let it collapse altogether and be compelled to sleep in the snow. Yet there is no knowledge that does not have its functional values. Even languages, supposedly dead these many years, have the vitality and the power to make us thrill at the "glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome" if they are but properly and effectively taught.

Most lectures are too long anyway. One should talk to an audience only so long as he can hold their interest. When the audience goes to sleep the lecturer should shut up. If they're asleep they won't hear the rest of it anyway. An old professor once awakened a student and demanded to know why he was asleep and why he wasn't taking notes. And the student replied, "My grandfather once took your course—and I have his notebook."

When you listen to a lecture or study your text-book, think and apply the materials to your own personal and environmental problems. Spend fifteen minutes a day in meditation digesting the knowledge you have tasted. Let that knowledge be your servant always, rather tahn your master ,that your mind may ever "know the truth and the truth shall make you free!"

LIBRARY RECEIVES MEDIEVAL SCRIPT DONATED BY PRIEST

15th Century Manuscript and 250 Books Among Gifts to Library

By FRANK FITZPATRICK

Reverend Daniel F. Falvey, O. S. A., acting librarian, in a recent statement said that the library had received a valuable old manuscript printed approximately at the close of the middle ages. It was donated by Reverend Patrick O'Shea, O. S. A., of St. Mary's Church, Lawrence, Mass.

Father O'Shea discovered that this manuscript was an Antiphonary which contained Antiphones from the proper of the feast of St. Augustine. He received it in return for services rendered a student who possessed several other medieval manuscripts.

In a recent letter to Father Falvey, Father O'Shea said: "It was my first attempt to use the knowledge of manuscript that our late lamented and learned Father Beckerman gave us in class. It used punctuation marks and therefore came later than the third century. It used small letters and therefore was writted after the ninth century. The feast of Corpus Christi and also (traditionally believed) the feast of St. Augustine were written by St. Thomas and therefore this manuscript was written after the thirteenth century.

It was written before the art of making ink was lost, and when books were still so expensive that a monastery preferred to make a palimsest out of one of its duplicates rather than buy or make another entire volume. Therefore, it was written either immediately before the printing press (1450) or very shortly after, and before printing was common and cheap. On the principal that "I would rather be right than president" it was with feelings of chestiness that I heard the Harvard professor set the date 1475 to 1525.". Among other outstanding gifts is one made by the Very Reverend William Cotler, O. S. A., of St. Patrick's Church, Greenwich, New York, who donated approximately 250 books dealing with Catholic sociology and history.

OBITUARY

James V. Moran, Jr., after days of suffering in the Cooper Hospital, Camden, N. J., and the Philadelphia Graduate Hospital, died September 21, 1939. This term he would have entered his junior year at Villanova.

A day after he had gone swimming he was admitted to the Cooper Hospital with a sinus ailment. He had probably caught an infection while swimming. Moran lapsed into unconsciousness as complications set in and never knew he was transferred to the Philadelphia hospital. After a series of operations and blood transfusions he succumbed.

His home was at Haddon Heights, New Jersey.

Mother Mary Ignatius, S. H. C. J., Rosemont College president, died July 30, 1939 aboard the liner Laconia as it neared New York harbor. She was returning from a visit to Rome, England and Ireland.

A native of Limerick, Ireland, she came to this country in 1907, studied at Creighton University, Omaha, and became president of Rosemont College in 1924.

William J. Gilligan, Jr., 23, a junior at Villanova College, drowned July 28, 1939, at Beach Haven, N. J. He died less than a year after his younger brother was drowned.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Gilligan of 422 Browning Rd., Collingswood, N. J.

On September 23, 1938, Gilligan's brother, Francis Carroll Gilligan, 16, died after diving and striking his head in the pool at St. Joseph's College High School in Philadelphia.

Dr. Ruggerio Flocco, swimming coach at Villanova, died suddenly at his home, 5310 Spruce St., Philadelphia, in June, 1939. Dr. Flocco was a graduate of Philadelphia College of Osteopathy and had been connected with Villanova for two years.

Saved! One Duck That Didn't Duck

Dog catchers and butterfly hazers have nothing on Tom (ducky) Moore, Jack Regan and company. A male mallard duck was observed flying about the campus the other day and acting in a way that would have surprised any sincere ornithologist. After circling the band, which was practicing in front of the college (probably wondering what kind of birds were making such queer noises) he landed in the parking lot (perhaps he thought it was a miniature black sea) and wandered under a parked car.

After several attempted escapes he was finally captured when he collided with the fence. These humane students gently placed him in their car and saw to it that he was united with some fellow ducks on a pond near Conshocken where he lost no time making himself comfortable and everything was just . . . ducky.

ENGINEER ADVISERS TO CALL FRESHMEN

Guidance Program Plans Conferences for Those Encountering Difficulties

Under a new system instituted this year, freshman engineering students will not have to decide until the beginning of their sophomore year what field of engineering they will specialize in.

Last year the freshmen had to make the important decision at the beginning of the year, conferring immediately upon registration with the advisor for their particular course. This year it has been decided to give the freshman a year in which to find his particular interests, inasmuch as all freshman engineering students take the same subjects.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., Dr. Edward L. Haenisch and Emil Amelotti will each advise one-third of the freshman engineering class under the new system. They will keep a check on the freshmen, and will attempt to help them find and overcome their difficulties. Aptitude tests have already been taken and in a few weeks those freshmen who are having trouble with their courses will be called in to the offices of respective advisors for guidance.

No change has been made in the advisory system used for upperclassmen, however, and they will continue to confer with the advisors in their particular fields.

Villanova College Military Center During Preparation For World War

By ANTHONY R. LISCIO

Preparedness in its sweep across the country found a ready response in Villanova; the biggest evidence of this fact is seen in the military training course, the Student Army Training Corps, which was installed in the curriculum of the college. The college authorities had been planning the addition of this course for some time and immediately after the declaration of war their plans were put into effect. The first drill was held on Friday, April 27, 1917, and continued regularly every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday until November 26 1918, at which time the S. A. T. C. was disbanded. The instruction was in charge of Sergeant-Major Hamilton, U .S. A.

The S. A. T. C. drills were postponed for a time during which a majority of the students were stricken with flu. This epidemic completely upset the school program and resulted in the death of four students.

Villanova went over the top with the Fourth Liberty Loan. The students of the S. A. T. C. demonstrated by their subscriptions that they were willing to cooperate in every possible way with the Government in its efforts to bring about a victorious peace. Over $16,500 in subscriptions was received.

At the termination of the war there were approximately one hundred and twenty-five Villanova men who had enlisted in different branches of the regular service besides three who were studying at West Point. There were also eleven of our good Fathers acting as chaplains.

Cardinal Mercier, the great Belgian philosopher, visited Villanova College on a mission of peace during the days of the great strife. He was graciously welcomed by the entire student body at a flag raising ceremony at the site of the present flag pole. We were also honored by a visit from Acting Chaplain General Msgr. Wearing.

Was It In Vain?

Will all their courage have gone in vain? Will they be chilled by our forgetfulness? They expect and have every right to expect something more. They are ours, they fought for us, suffered for us, were willing to die for us. Let us not be indifferent to their sacrifices.

Pimpinella Well Qualified As Orientation Chairman Through Collegiate And Worldly Experience

Activities Range From Skilled Laboring to Politics to Law

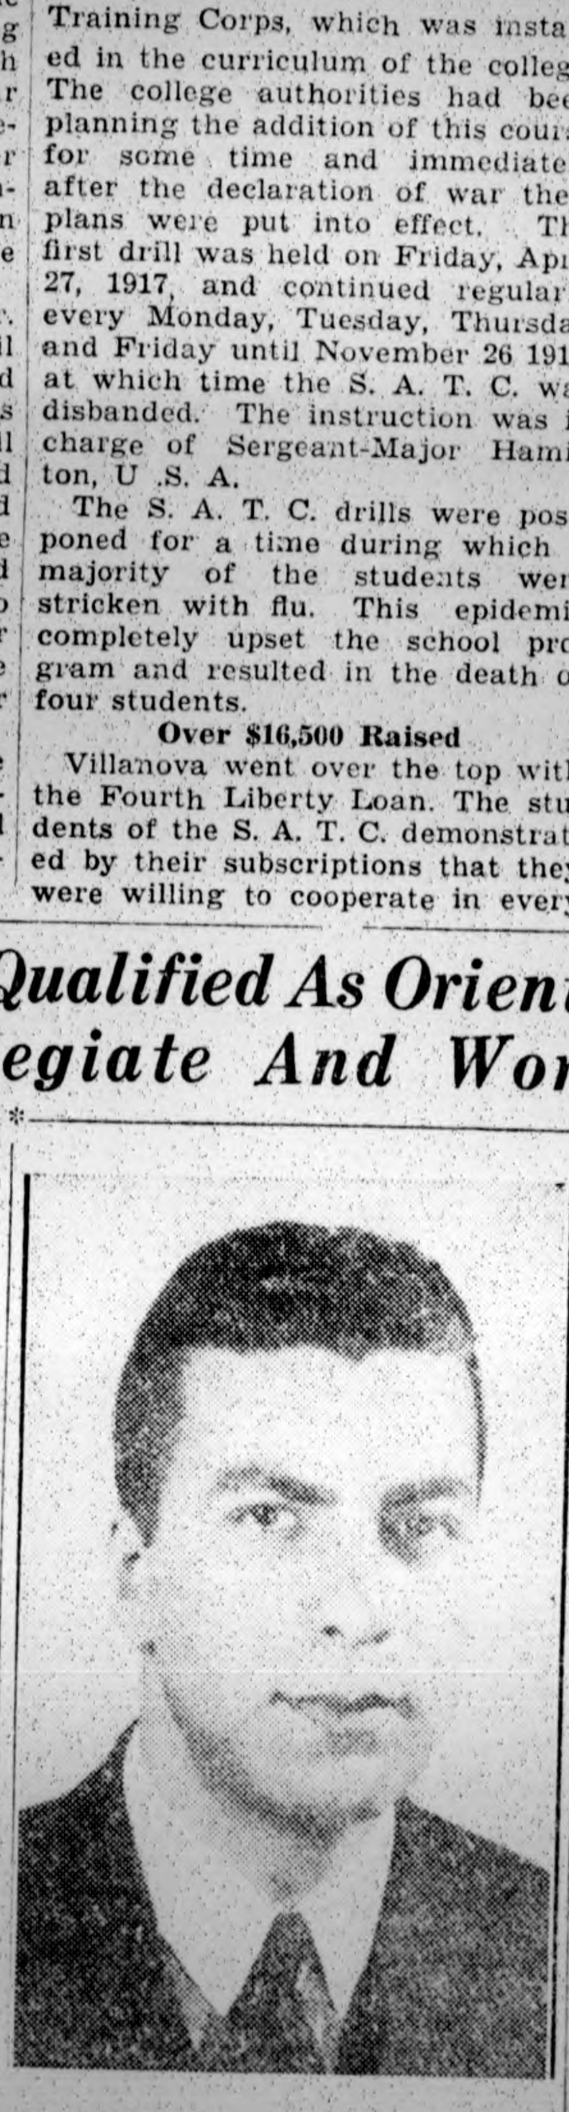
By THOMAS McKIMMEY

AS chairman of the Orientation Committee he is usually asking the questions, but the tables have turned and now he is answering them. Frank A. Pimpinella, better known to his classmates as "Doc," was born in Stamford, Conn., on May 15, 1915. He attended the Stevens Grammar School where he was usually extricating himself from various mischievous situations, and upon reaching the age of adolescense he entered Rice Junior High.

Then came Stamford High School, and for three years he participated in almost every activity which he thought would be beneficial to his education. Among these were the debating teams, social committees and class offices. It was during these years that he aspired to further his education in college, but his hopes were frustrated at first by his responsibility to his family, and he went to work.

Jack-of-All-Trades

For four long years he remained out of school working in various capacities. He was in turn a carpenter, plumber, painter, draftsman, printer, tutor, clerk, and salesman. He was on the business staff of the Connecticut American for eight months and at the same time he wrote numerous columns for that paper. To conclude these varied performances he wound up as a tax assessor. Meanwhile he occupied his leisure time with the study of human nature and psychology, and in order to become more proficient along these lines he spent many hours in the Stamford library reading and writing about these two subjects.



FRANK A. PIMPINELLA

In 1936 he enlisted in the Connecticut National Guard, with an appointment to West Point as his goal. After having won the Connecticut award which allowed him to take the required examinations, he passed both the physical and mental tests; but he was unsuccessful in his attempt to secure the political appointment and in bitter disappointment he began to look elsewhere. At this time the Villanova Alumni group in Stamford recommended Villanova College, and in September, 1936, he enrolled as a freshman in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Engages in Activities

His freshman year found him making many new friends and engaged in all the frosh activities. He was in the debating society, in the Glee Club and was chosen secretary of the Connesticut Club. He won his first merit awards and led his class in scholarship. The latter accomplishment has been true for his three years in school, a remarkable achievement.

The sophomore year found Frank on the Cotillion Committee and in the Student Council. He served on the Orientation Committee that year, too, and continued to be a member of that select group in his junior year. Also in this year he was chairman of that very successful Ring Committee, at the same time fulfilling his duties as the College Infirmarian.

This year Frank is Vice Chairman of the Student Council, a member of the Belle Air business staff and chairman of the Orientation Committee. When asked concerning his opinion of Orientation, he replied, "that it was a very important factor in the moulding of a freshman's attitude towards his Alma Mater and his schoolmates."

To Be Lawyer

His ambition is to become a successful lawyer, and he intends to enroll in some eastern law school next year. Judging from the facts here presented, it is needless to say that he will be a very good one. From the panorama of life that he has seen, fate has done much to enrich his experience.

QUARTER CENTURY AGAIN SEES SCHOOL UNDER WAR CLOUDS

Students Hear Rev. Stanford Formally Open School

"Twenty-five years ago students of Villanova met under the shadow of war in the same manner as you are assembled here today. Pray that, like them, we shall not be in uniform before our college days are completed."

With these words the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, welcomed old and new students following a solemn high Mass in the college chapel on Friday, Sept. 27 which formally inaugurated the ninety-seventh year of the college.

Fr. Stanford, celebrated the Mass and was assisted by the Revs. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A. and Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., deacon, and sub deacon respectively.

The theme of Fr. Stanford's discourse was as follows: "Students must understand what is transpiring abroad, accustom themselves with the policies of the various 'isms' which have persecuted religion, and study the tactics of the dictators who have subjugated the people to the state, if we are to fully appreciate the privileges with which we are endowed. It is our duty to preserve the freedom which we have inherited by being intellectual and God-fearing citizens."

Father Stanford concluded his sermon by urging the students to pray for a hasty and permanent peace and imparted his best wishes to all for a happy spiritual and intellectual college year.

HISTORY SEMINARS SHIFT TO FRIDAY

War causes and world politics are among the subjects scheduled for discussion during the various history seminars which, this year, are scheduled for 4:00 o'clock every Friday afternoon in Simpson Hall, according to Dr. H. F. Hartman, Assistant Professor of Social Sciences, director of the seminars.

The program outlined for these assemblies will be vitally concerned with a study of the fundamental causes responsible for the present war in Europe. The motives which incited this immediate conflict will in turn be contrasted with the causes which led to the World War of 1914. It is the aim of the seminar by this method to instill in the minds of the students a better understanding of the basic and ultimate causes responsible for both of these calamities.

The seminar will also consider the principles contained in the philosophies and policies of the European governments and how they affect the social, economic, and military policies of today. It is hoped that by comparing the political policies of the European governments with the principles underlying our American government we may more fully appreciate democratic institutions.

FOUR FRESHMEN VICTORS IN COMPETITIVE EXAMS

Representatives of Six States, Cuba compete; Two Tie for Third

Four freshmen are bearers of scholarships based upon the results of written examinations given at Villanova on May 27, 1939.

The winners of the seventh annual awards were Loring A. Jones of Regis High School, New York City; J. A. McNe[illegible] of Roman Catholic High School, Philadelphia; Samuel J. Burrua[illegible]o of Norristown High School, Norristown; and Thomas F. Devine of West Catholic High School in Philadelphia. The latter two winners were tied for the third scholarship and will divide it.

One hundred twelve young men, representing forty-six high schools from six states and Cuba took the examinations. It was the largest number ever to compete since 1933, when the competitive scholarships were first awarded.

TAYLOR PREPARING LKD ANNUAL DANCE FOR OCTOBER 20TH

Villanovans to Furnish Music for Informal Affair at Field House

Harry Taylor, science senior and a member of the orientation committee, will supervise the presentation of the Lamba Kappa Delta Annual Fall Dance, to be held at the Villanova Fieldhouse on Friday, October 20.

The Villanovans will furnish the music for this informal affair.

Collaborating with Taylor are Richard Martin, John Macek, Andrew McKane, Joseph Clarken, Joseph Camarda, J. Nelson, K. Dugan, J. Arnold, J. Donnelly and T. Orloff. This committee was appointed by Charles Martin, the new president.

Several new plans of decoration, ticket distribution, and the newer popular tunes are points under consideration at the moment.

As usual with informal dances at Villanova the subscription fee is $1.50 per couple and the dancing hours are from 9.00 P. M. to 1.00 A. M.

VILLANOVA'S BAND MAKES APPEARANCE

Muhlenberg Game Marks Debut of Fifty-Piece Musical Organization

Villanova's fifty-piece band made its inaugural appearance of the year at the Villanova-Muhlenberg football game on Saturday, September 30.

The fifty members who now comprise the band were selected from a group of 75 candidates, 25 of whom were freshmen. The comparatively large number of applicants has made it possible to choose only the more capable musicians.

Several new numbers have been added to the band's repertoire. Among these are: The Concert in the Park, NC-4 March, God Bless America, and the Gloria March.

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., is faculty moderator of the band and Mr. Paul Teel again acts as conductor. The position of drum major is filled by Jack Eldracher, junior science student, who last year vied with Horace Heidt for baton twirling honors on the stage of the Earle Theatre in Philadelphia.

The band practices every week on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

A.S.C.E. TO MEET MONDAY

The American Society of Civil Engineers will hold its first meeting of the year on October 9 when plans for the coming year will be discussed.

The group is expected to number about 15 this year, and is headed by Melchior Gaston, with Mr. Oakey as moderator. Although it is, as yet, too early to announce a definite program, the society will probably take several trips to various points of interest—construction projects, etc.

Mendel Editor

ALFRED M. BONGIOVANNI

AL BONGIOVANNI EDITS BULLETIN

Other Positions Yet To Be Filled But Policy Set Already

Editorship of the Mendel Bulletin, School of Science quarterly publication, has been conferred upon Alfred M. Bongiovanni.

The new editor has announced his intention of presenting scientific articles of general interest, and readily understood by the average college student. Traditional sections, such as the regular review of new scientific books, will be continued.

The board of editors has not as yet been released, but it is expected that the names will be revealed in the near future.

A new cover, designed by John J. Gray, sophomore of the School of Science, will be adopted this year. In the center is portrayed a plaque of Gregor Mendel, O. S. A., the father of genetics, while the twin steeples of the Villanova College chapel arise in the background.

The board of editors has not as yet been released, but it is expected that the names will be revealed in the near future.

Remodeled Dining Hall Brings Forth Student Comment

Better Surroundings Held More Conducive to Proper Digestion — Bochetto

A dining hall, remodeled both as regards physical appearance and change in policy, greeted the resident students on their return to college two weeks ago. Venetian blinds decorating the tall windows and the new steam tables were features of the renovated dining hall.

Regarding these improvements, Joseph Bochetto, senior science student remarked: "From a psychological point of view, the more pleasing surrounding are better conducive to proper digestion."

Concerning the wider variety of foods, John Macek, Science student said: "The vast variety of foods affords a more balanced diet for the fellows."

With the view of serving the students more rapidly and with less confusion, the distance between the rail and the steam tables has been icreased. In this regard, Joseph Cirelli, Commerce and Finance student says: "The greater distance between rail and steam cabinet is more convenient in that the students may select their food and pass on."

Phil Dunn, Senior of the Commerce and Finance School summarizes his enthusiasm over the improved conditions in a brief statement: "I am sorry that I have but one year to give to the new dining hall.

Said James B. Scott, senior artsman, "There is only one thing wrong: the sign excluding non-residents."

Football players were of an opinion that working men required more than the usual amount. Some were even in favor of post-season games to extend the training table season.

The average man, however, saw in it a chance to get credit for weekends and so on when he was not at school.

Annual Cotillion Inaugurates Social Calendar For Year

"Villanovans" Featured Orchestra; Personnel Improved Under Rozum, Kull

The opening of the new social season last Friday at the Sophomore Cotillion in the Villanova Field House the "Villanovans," under the leadership of Joseph Rozum, initiated another year as swingsters for collegiate dances.

Building a new band around a nucleus of five members remaining from last years crop of dancemakers, Rozum, a sophomore science student, has begun polishing his organization. With only two weeks preparation, the orchestra appeared in high form. Several novelty arrangements were featured, as well as popular rhythmations. Meriting performances were given by Frederick Kull and Joseph York, vocalists of the band.

According to Kull, manager of the orchestra, several high schools, colleges and clubs have been contacted and the band may be seen playing about Philadelphia in the near future. The next "home" engagement will be the L. K. D. dance to be held at the Field House on Oct. 20, followed by the Phi Kappa Pi's Owl Hop on November 10.

JONIK, BELLE AIR EDITOR, SEEKS FROSH FOR STAFF

Urges Them to Get Experience for '43 Centennial Issue

Edward Jonik, Editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, is anxious that freshmen having experience or interest in year book work apply for positions on the staff. This is very important because, as he said, "The centennial celebration will involve a much larger issue of the Belle Air. Therefore, it would be well for them to start getting experience now."

Attention of staff members is called to the regular weekly meetings of the various departments to be held at one o'clock each day in the Belle Air office, room 51 Mendel Hall. The respective groups will meet at the following days; Monday—Sports; Tuesday—College; Wednesday—Photography and Friday—Business.

A. S. M. E. DISCUSS PLANS FOR YEAR

Include Smoker, Movies and Six Trips to Industrial Plant

It was revealed at the meeting of the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers that six trips to various industrial plants were being planned. Moreover moving pictures of pertinent interest to the M. E.'s would be shown and also a smoker for the entertainment of active members would be held.

This was announced at the meeting which was held last Wednesday, September 27, 1939 and was presided over by Mr. Wm. J. Barber, the faculty moderater of the society, the new president and chairman, John A. Heck Me '40, and the secretary and treasurer Casmir J. Kurek, Me '40.

Dues for the Society are $3.00 per year. The benefits to be derived from payment of this small sum are many including a membership pin or watch charm, an eight month subscription to the "Mechanical Engineer" and participation in all the social activities of the society.

Meetings are held every other Monday afternoon at 1 P. M. in Mendel Hall, Room 207.

ENGINEERING FRATERNITY DELAYS ANNUAL SMOKER

George Bourus Heads Committee Arranging P. K. P. Affair

The fifth annual Smoker of Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova engineering fraternity, has been postponed until further notice, according to Harold F. Murphy, president. The Smoker was originally scheduled to take place last night, but must be called off temporarily due to inadequate time for preparation.

A committee headed by George Bourus has been selected to arrange for the Smoker. Other members of the committee are E. Cierkowski, V. Baum, A. Brown, J. Heck, C. Kurek, H. Malkin, N. Smith, Schnieder, G. Coughlin, J. Dorsey, T. Hushen, and M. Healy.

Phi Kappa Pi held its first meeting of the year yesterday and was addressed by Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., moderator.

Placement Director

WILLIAM G. SLAUGHTER

CLASS LEARNS ANSWER

How to impress your best girl some night when the moon and stars are the chief subject of conversation is a question often asked; but now the junior civil engineers know the answer.

A class held last night, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Oakey, Assistant Professor in Engineering, learned how to find the true North by means of the North Star.

This assembly was an integral part of the newly-formed class in the study of astronomy. Regular sessions will be held in the future with able faculty management.

SLAUGHTER HEADS PLACEMENT BUREAU

All Graduates to Benefit Through Work of Extended Employment Organization

William S. Slaughter, B. S. in Economics, has been named director of the new general placement bureau which this year begins functioning in the interest of all Villanova graduates.

During its period of trial last year this organization was limited to the aid of graduates of the engineering school and operated with such marked success that the widening of its scope was a logical step. With the aid of this trial bureau nearly all the engineering graduates of last year have been placed in industry.

All personnel representatives of companies desiring to employ Villanova graduates contact Slaughter for recommendations of men in their particular fields. All of this data is checked and filed for further conferences with the graduates. Slaughter has already begun the compilation of such data in his office at 118 Mendel Hall.

A graduate of the Commerce and Finance School of Villanova with the class of 1938. Slaughter has been elected secretary-treasurer of the alumni organization. Since his graduation he has been actively engaged in sundry work in behalf of the college.

TRADITIONALLY a column of greeting to the freshmen is the first of the season, but precedents were set to be broken; and so, with a short "Hello and good luck to all the frosh," we'll get down to the business at hand.

—V—

To begin the aforementioned business, we have an anecdote about friend Mazzei and his antics a few evenings ago. It seems that Harry was catching "40 winks" in the lower bunk of 202 Fedigan—of which room Dick Monsaert and Gordon Brosmer are the inhabitants—when a phone call for him came through. Bill Howlett shouted for our hero and through a thick fog Harry heard the call. Quick as a flash, but still asleep, the "half-pint" made for what he thought was the door. Opening it he called, "What?" and stood awaiting a reply. For fully five seconds he waited. Then he awoke to find himself surrounded by Brosmer's clothes. He had his head in the closet. Tsk! Tsk!

From the looks of things the past Saturday, Villanova's football team should be in shape for the Arkansas tilt. They looked as though they need another month's practice.

But don't sell those Mules short! Like their cognomen they are a stubborn lot. They're the type of team that is most difficult to play against.

So Mazzei won't be too anry with us for the joke on him, we'll openly praise him for the smartest defensive play of the game—stopping Franklin when the latter had broken into the clear with a blocker in

BASCA LEADS BLUE TO 14-0 CONQUEST IN OPENING FRACAS

Mules Offer Stubborn Opposition Before Succumbing to Cats' Passing Attack

By SAUL WALLACH

Villanova continued to march toward a third undefeated season and national recognition by bowling over a stubborn and durable Muhlenberg College eleven from Allentown, Pa., on Saturday.

An opening day crowd of 8000 saw Nick Basca toss touchdown passes to Harry Mazzei and Joe Behot and then calmly add two more points by kicking the extra points, to give the Wildcats a 14-0 win.

If Basca was magnificent on the offense with his passing, running, and kicking he was no less great on the defensive. Four times the "mighty mite" broke the hearts of the Muhlenberg fans as he snatched passes intended for the losers' wingmen.

Passes Score

A 40-yard pitch to "Buzz" Howlett in the second period placed the ball on the Mules 14-yard stripe. A line play with Shader carrying the ball and gaining a scant half yard followed. Then Basca spotted Harry Mazzei on the five and promptly shot the ball to him for the tally.

Sophomore Joe Behot, who looks like the real thing, took Basca's toss from the 35-yard line and crossed standing up for the second score. Behot played a bang up ball game subbing for "Buzz" Howlett, who left the ball game in the waning minutes of the first half. Howlett was considerably weakened by a cold which kept him in the infirmary most of the week.

In the third period a play, the likes of which has never before

"Fireman" Rozum Snares Mural Golf As Austin Hall Hops To Dorm Lead

Maher, Klappenback, Mones Follow Victor in Opener of Intramural Athletic Card; Day-hops Take Second Place

Joe Rozum, sophomore, a representative of Austin Hall, won the intramural golf tournament held on Friday, September 22, at the Main Line Open Golf Club.

The sun shone brightly for Rozum as he came in with his winning 84. Two strokes behind him came Jack Maher, also of Austin Hall. This dorm seemed to hold full sway over the tournament when Art Klappenback came in with an 87. But he was shortly tied by Marvin Mones.

Schwartz, representing as did Mones the Mendel Day-hops, followed with an 88. Jim Brown, a promising young freshman from Alumni Hall, posted an 89.

Final standings gave first place and ten points in the intramural contest to Austin Hall. The Mendel Day-Hops were in second place with seven points and Alumni was third with five points.

Jack Dunigan came through to give Fedigan three points for fourth place. Mendel residents and the C. and F. Day-hops were tied for fifth and sixth places with one and a half points.

Thirty golfers were entered in the annual tourney, which is part of the college's extensive intramural program. The tournament also served the purpose of giving varsity golf captain Cliff Randolf a chance to look over some promising prospects for the Villanova links team.

GAMECOCKS READY; VENGEANCE SOUGHT BY BLUE AND WHITE

First Night Game in School's History Played This Week at Shibe Park

By BILL CAREY

With revenge in their hearts and danger on their claws, the Wildcats are set to tear into the team that deprived them of a perfect season in '38.

This Friday night at Shibe Park in Philadelphia the Smithmen meet the University of South Carolina in the first arc-light contest in the history of Villanova.

Too well does everyone remember that startling upset last fall when the Gamecocks held the Wildcats to a 6-6 tie. It should also be remembered that the Blue and White played practically all the game in Carolina territory. They ran through the Gamecocks, passed them dizzy, and kept them forever on the defense, but the stubborn Southerners would not give in.

To say it in a few words, the Wildcats are sore, plenty sore; and they aim to do something about it. But according to reports this won't be an easy task. It seems that Rex Enright, South Carolina mentor, has something to say about the matter. With two games already behind them, he feels that the team is in the proper spirit and in the best of physical shape. Leading the attack for the Dixie-landers will be left end Alexander, quarterback Elston and halfback Blouin. These boys went hot in pre-season workouts and proved themselves in the games with Wake Forest and Catholic U.

Coach's Second Year

Enright, who is only in his second year as the Gamecock mentor, is of course anxious for a victory over the charges of "Clipper" Smith. A win over the Wildcats would boost his stock plenty high, so he is ready to give both barrels.

In his first season, Enright piloted the Carolinamen to six victories, fourf defeats, and two ties. Out of this team come 16 lettermen to bolster the attack, which will be definitely offensive.

Hospitality Absent

What really hurts, this record, while somewhat impressive, cannot begin to compare with the two consecutive undefeated seasons enjoyed by the Villanova gridmen. The Wildcats bowled over the opposition

Harvey Buek Named Coach As 150's Begin Practice

Losses Through Graduation Hurt Team, But Many Newcomers Make Veterans Work Hard to Retain Posts

Harvey Buek, member of the Villanova varsity football teams of 1936, '37, and '38 has received an appointment to this school's coaching staff. He will coach the 150-pounders in the manly art of pigskinning.

Buek, who was an excelelnt back while matriculating here, took over his duties on Thursday last week. About fifty candidates for his team presented themselves and began workouts.

Play Cornell Next Week

With the shifting of coaches and the loss of some valuable material, however, the lightweights will have to work hard and travel fast if they want to come out on top in this season's grid battles. Buek will have to mold his men into a fine enough shape to meet Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y., in just two weeks.

With graduation came the loss of Gerry Holland, a stellar tackle, and several other veterans. The 150's line will be a trifle weak at center position due to the loss of Charlie Timmins. However there will be Bill Nihil and Joe McMahon to replace him. At guards there will be a plentiful supply of veterans in Sachetti, Widman, Rappleyea and several ex-Malvernites.

Veterans Pushed

Tackles this year will see Woods and Philip struggling to hold down their berths against a group of youngsters. Filling in the end positions will be reliable Vic Dominic and "All-American" McGurk with Coupe as an alternate.

The backfield will find itself very strong with the return of such men as Murphy, Brown, Lombardo, Cusky, McManus and a host of others. These men are hard put to keep a flock of eager newcomers from taking over their places.

Last year's squad, it may be remembered, compiled the best record of any Villanova lightweight team to date. It is the aim of this season's club to better that record, if possible, against such opposition as Cornell, Princeton, Penn, Rutgers, Lafayette, and Yale.

KYW, WIP FEATURE GRIDIRON CONTESTS

Each of Club's Eight Games to be Broadcast Over Two Philly Stations

For the third successive season, Villanova will broadcast its contests to its rooters, both far and near. All games, starting with Muhlenberg on Sept. 30, and ending with Manhattan on Nov. 25 will be broadcast.

Sponsored by Oil Co.

Once again these airings will be made possible by the Atlantic Refining Co., which, in conjunction with their annual football contest, is sponsoring their play by play description of 191 important college games throughout the country.

The broadcasting will be evenly divided by two Philadelphia stations. KYW will carry the Detroit, Auburn and Manhattan games at 1060 kilocycles. It has already aired the Villanova-Muhlenberg tilt. KYW is affiliated with the National Broadcasting Company carrying Red Network programs from New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Los Angeles and Washington as well as originating its own presentations for the air lanes.

Saam Announces

The other four games, the South Carolina, Arkansas, Temple and Texas A. M. tilts, will be broadcast by station WIP of Philadelphia whose dialing is 610 kiolcycles. Byrum Saam, broadcaster of Philadelphia major league baseball games, will be on hand for the play by play accounts.

OPTIMIST

An optimistic gent is Homer Norton, head mentor of the Texas A. & M. team which meets Villanova at Tyler, Texas, on October 14th. Unlike the great majority of grid coaches Norton fails to "sing the blues." Instead he says that his Maroon team "has the best and most material in the southwest." Norton is also claiming the Conference title even at this early date!

NOTE

Sports staff members, both old and new, are urged to attend the VILLANOVAN meeting this afernoon at 1 P. M. in Room 119, Mendel.

TAYLOR PREPARING LKD ANNUAL DANCE FOR OCTOBER 20TH

Villanovans to Furnish Music for Informal Affair at Field House

Harry Taylor, science senior and a member of the orientation committee, will supervise the presentation of the Lamba Kappa Delta Annual Fall Dance, to be held at the Villanova Fieldhouse on Friday, October 20.

The Villanovans will furnish the music for this informal affair.

Collaborating with Taylor are Richard Martin, John Macek, Andrew McKane, Joseph Clarken, Joseph Camarda, J. Nelson, K. Dugan, J. Arnold, J. Donnelly and T. Orloff. This committee was appointed by Charles Martin, the new president.

Several new plans of decoration, ticket distribution, and the newer popular tunes are points under consideration at the moment.

As usual with informal dances at Villanova the subscription fee is $1.50 per couple and the dancing hours are from 9.00 P. M. to 1.00 A. M.

VILLANOVA'S BAND MAKES APPEARANCE

Muhlenberg Game Marks Debut of Fifty-Piece Musical Organization

Villanova's fifty-piece band made its inaugural appearance of the year at the Villanova-Muhlenberg football game on Saturday, September 30.

The fifty members who now comprise the band were selected from a group of 75 candidates, 25 of whom were freshmen. The comparatively large number of applicants has made it possible to choose only the more capable musicians.

Several new numbers have been added to the band's repertoire. Among these are: The Concert in the Park, NC-4 March, God Bless America, and the Gloria March.

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., is faculty moderator of the band and Mr. Paul Teel again acts as conductor. The position of drum major is filled by Jack Eldracher, junior science student, who last year vied with Horace Heidt for baton twirling honors on the stage of the Earle Theatre in Philadelphia.

The band practices every week on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

A.S.C.E. TO MEET MONDAY

The American Society of Civil Engineers will hold its first meeting of the year on October 9 when plans for the coming year will be discussed.

The group is expected to number about 15 this year, and is headed by Melchior Gaston, with Mr. Oakey as moderator. Although it is, as yet, too early to announce a definite program, the society will probably take several trips to various points of interest—construction projects, etc.

Mendel Editor

ALFRED M. BONGIOVANNI

AL BONGIOVANNI EDITS BULLETIN

Other Positions Yet To Be Filled But Policy Set Already

Editorship of the Mendel Bulletin, School of Science quarterly publication, has been conferred upon Alfred M. Bongiovanni.

The new editor has announced his intention of presenting scientific articles of general interest, and readily understood by the average college student. Traditional sections, such as the regular review of new scientific books, will be continued.

The board of editors has not as yet been released, but it is expected that the names will be revealed in the near future.

A new cover, designed by John J. Gray, sophomore of the School of Science, will be adopted this year. In the center is portrayed a plaque of Gregor Mendel, O. S. A., the father of genetics, while the twin steeples of the Villanova College chapel arise in the background.

The board of editors has not as yet been released, but it is expected that the names will be revealed in the near future.

Remodeled Dining Hall Brings Forth Student Comment

Better Surroundings Held More Conducive to Proper Digestion — Bochetto

A dining hall, remodeled both as regards physical appearance and change in policy, greeted the resident students on their return to college two weeks ago. Venetian blinds lecorating the tall windows and the new steam tables were features of the renovated dining hall.

Regarding these improvements, Joseph Bochetto, senior science student remarked: "From a psychological point of view, the more pleasing surrounding are better conducive to proper digestion."

Concerning the wider variety of foods, John Macek, Science student said: "The vast variety of foods affords a more balanced diet for the fellows."

With the view of serving the students more rapidly and with less confusion, the distance between the rail and the steam tables has been icreased. In this regard, Joseph Cirelli, Commerce and Finance student says: "The greater distance between rail and steam cabinet is more convenient in that the students may select their food and pass on."

Phil Dunn, Senior of the Commerce and Finance School summarizes his enthusiasm over the improved conditions in a brief statement: "I am sorry that I have but one year to give to the new dining hall.

Said James B. Scott, senior artsman, "There is only one thing wrong: the sign excluding non-residents."

Football players were of an opinion that working men required more than the usual amount. Some were even in favor of post-season games to extend the training table season.

The average man, however, saw in it a chance to get credit for weekends and so on when he was not at school.

Annual Cotillion Inaugurates Social Calendar For Year

"Villanovans" Featured Orchestra; Personnel Improved Under Rozum, Kull

The opening of the new social season last Friday at the Sophomore Cotillion in the Villanova Field House the "Villanovans," under the leadership of Joseph Rozum, initiated another year as swingsters for collegiate dances.

Building a new band around a nucleus of five members remaining from last years crop of dancemakers, Rozum, a sophomore science student, has begun polishing his organization. With only two weeks preparation, the orchestra appeared in high form. Several novelty arrangements were featured, as well as popular rhythmations. Meriting performances were given by Frederick Kull and Joseph York, vocalists of the band.

According to Kull, manager of the orchestra, several high schools, colleges and clubs have been contacted and the band may be seen playing about Philadelphia in the near future. The next "home" engagement will be the L. K. D. dance to be held at the Field House on Oct. 20, followed by the Phi Kappa Pi's Owl Hop on November 10.

JONIK, BELLE AIR EDITOR, SEEKS FROSH FOR STAFF

Edward Jonik, Editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, is anxious that freshmen having experience or interest in year book work apply for positions on the staff. This is very important because, as he said, "The centennial celebration will involve a much larger issue of the Belle Air. Therefore, it would be well for them to start getting experience now."

Attention of staff members is called to the regular weekly meetings of the various departments to be held at one o'clock each day in the Belle Air office, room 51 Mendel Hall. The respective groups will meet at the following days; Monday—Sports; Tuesday—College; Wednesday—Photography and Friday—Business.

A. S. M. E. DISCUSS PLANS FOR YEAR

Include Smoker, Movies and Six Trips to Industrial Plant

It was revealed at the meeting of the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers that six trips to various industrial plants were being planned. Moreover moving pictures of pertinent interest to the M. E.'s would be shown and also a smoker for the entertainment of active members would be held.

This was announced at the meeting which was held last Wednesday, September 27, 1939 and was presided over by Mr. Wm. J. Barber, the faculty moderater of the society, the new president and chairman, John A. Heck Me '40, and the secretary and treasurer Casmir J. Kurek, Me '40.

Dues for the Society are $3.00 per year. The benefits to be derived from payment of this small sum are many including a membership pin or watch charm, an eight month subscription to the "Mechanical Engineer" and participation in all the social activities of the society.

Meetings are held every other Monday afternoon at 1 P. M. in Mendel Hall, Room 207.

ENGINEERING FRATERNITY DELAYS ANNUAL SMOKER

George Bourus Heads Committee Arranging P. K. P. Affair

The fifth annual Smoker of Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova engineering fraternity, has been postponed until further notice, according to Harold F. Murphy, president. The Smoker was originally scheduled to take place last night, but must be called off temporarily due to inadequate time for preparation.

A committee headed by George Bourus has been selected to arrange for the Smoker. Other members of the committee are E. Cierkowski, V. Baum, A. Brown, J. Heck, C. Kurek, H. Malkin, N. Smith, Schnieder, G. Coughlin, J. Dorsey, T. Hushen, and M. Healy.

Phi Kappa Pi held its first meeting of the year yesterday and was addressed by Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., moderator.

Placement Director

WILLIAM G. SLAUGHTER

CLASS LEARNS ANSWER

How to impress your best girl some night when the moon and stars are the chief subject of conversation is a question often asked; but now the junior civil engineers know the answer.

A class held last night, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Oakey, Assistant Professor in Engineering, learned how to find the true North by means of the North Star.

This assembly was an integral part of the newly-formed class in the study of astronomy. Regular sessions will be held in the future with able faculty management.

SLAUGHTER HEADS PLACEMENT BUREAU

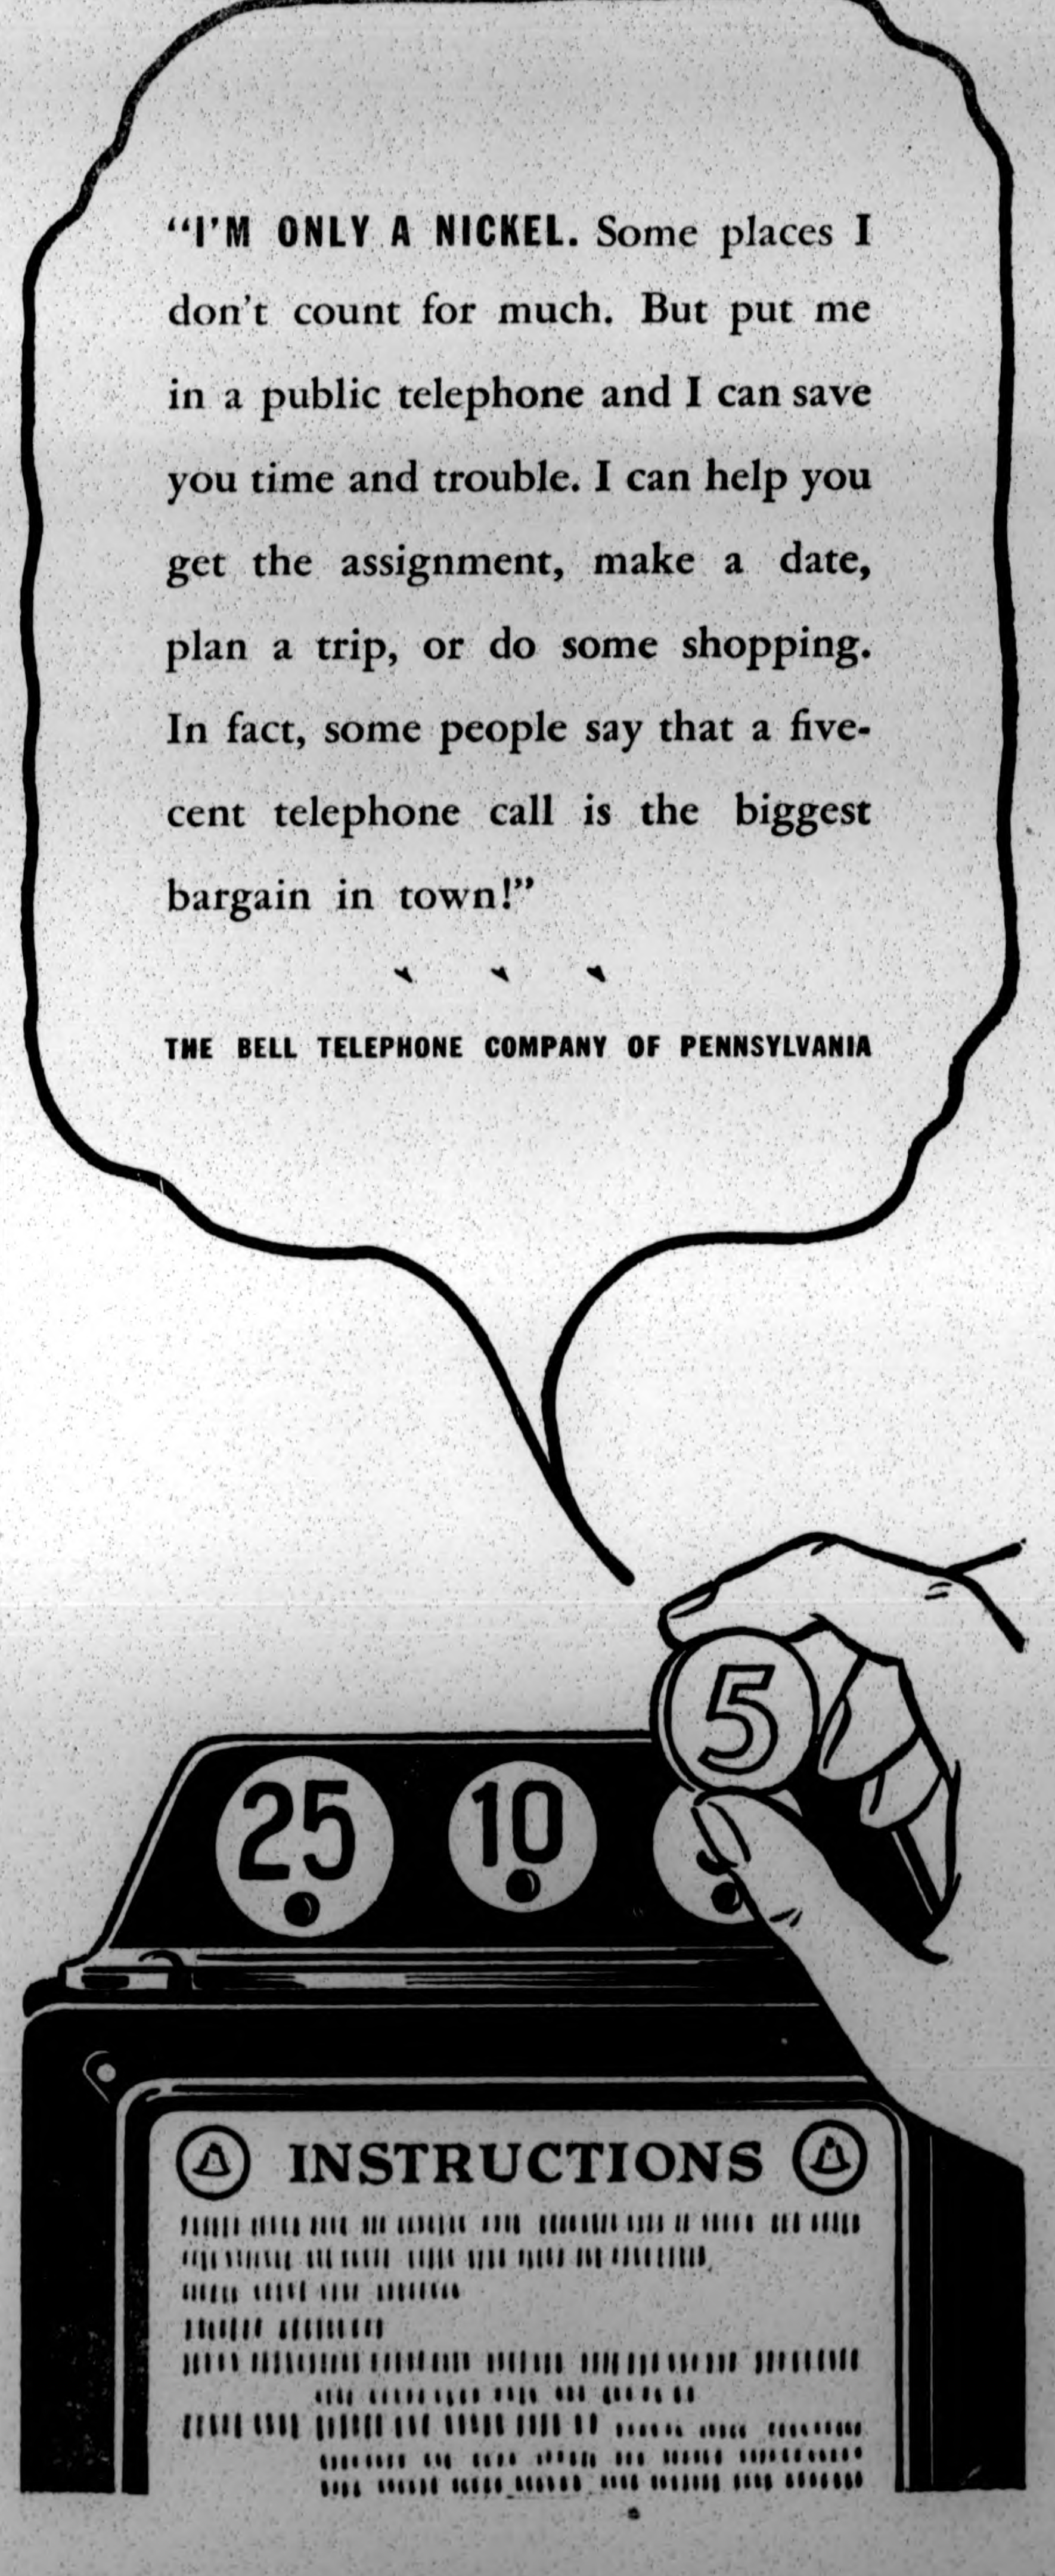
William S. Slaughter, B. S. in Economics, has been named director of the new general placement bureau which this year begins functioning in the interest of all Villanova graduates.

During its period of trial last year this organization was limited to the aid of graduates of the engineering school and operated with such marked success that the widening of its scope was a logical step. With the aid of this trial bureau nearly all the engineering graduates of last year have been placed in industry.

All personnel representatives of companies desiring to employ Villanova graduates contact Slaughter for recommendations of men in their particular fields. All of this data is checked and filed for further conferences with the graduates. Slaughter has already begun the compilation of such data in his office at 118 Mendel Hall.

A graduate of the Commerce and Finance School of Villanova with the class of 1938, Slaughter has been elected secretary-treasurer of the alumni organization. Since his graduation he has been actively engaged in sundry work in behalf of the college.



"I'M ONLY A NICKEL. Some places I don't count for much. But put me in a public telephone and I can save you time and trouble. I can help you get the assignment, make a date, plan a trip, or do some shopping. In fact, some people say that a five-cent telephone call is the biggest bargain in town!"

Wildcats Set For Friday Tilt

Sportorial

By Phil Dunn

Sports Editor

TRADITIONALLY a column of greeting to the freshmen is the first of the season, but precedents were set to be broken; and so, with a short "Hello and good luck to all the frosh," we'll get down to the business at hand.

—V—

To begin the aforementioned business, we have an anecdote about friend Mazzei and his antics a few evenings ago. It seems that Harry was catching "40 winks" in the lower bunk of 202 Fedigan—of which room Dick Monsaert and Gordon Brosmer are the inhabitants — when a phone call for him came through.

Phil Dunn

Bill Howlett shouted for our hero and through a thick fog Harry heard the call. Quick as a flash, but still asleep the "half-pint" made for what he thought was the door. Opening it he called, "What?" and stood awaiting a reply. For fully five seconds he waited. Then he awoke to find himself surrounded by Brosmer's clothes. He had his head in the closet. Tsk! Tsk!

—V—

From the looks of things the past Saturday, Villanova's football team should be in shape for the Arkansas tilt. They looked as though they need another month's practice.

—V—

But don't sell those Mules short! Like their cognomen they are a stubborn lot. They're the type of team that is most difficult to play against.

—V—

So Mazzei won't be too anry with us for the joke on him, we'll openly praise him for the smartest defensive play of the game—stopping Franklin when the latter had broken into the clear with a blocker in

BASCA LEADS BLUE TO 14-0 CONQUEST IN OPENING FRACAS

Mules Offer Stubborn Opposition Before Succumbing to Cats' Passing Attack

By SAUL WALLACH

Villanova continued to march toward a third undefeated season and national recognition by bowling over a stubborn and durable Muhlenberg College eleven from Allentown, Pa., on Saturday.

An opening day crowd of 8000 saw Nick Basca toss touchdown passes to Harry Mazzei and Joe Behot and then calmly add two more points by kicking the extra points, to give the Wildcats a 14-0 win.

If Basca was magnificent on the offense with his passing, running, and kicking he was no less great on the defensive. Four times the "mighty mite" broke the hearts of the Muhlenberg fans as he snatched passes intended for the losers' wingmen.

Passes Score

A 40-yard pitch to "Buzz" Howlett in the second period placed the ball on the Mules 14-yard stripe. A line play with Shader carrying the ball and gaining a scant half yard followed. Then Basca spotted Harry Mazzei on the five and promptly shot the ball to him for the tally.

Sophomore Joe Behot, who looks like the real thing, took Basca's toss from the 35-yard line and crossed standing up for the second score. Behot played a bang up ball game subbing for "Buzz" Howlett, who left the ball game in the waning minutes of the first half. Howlett was considerably weakened by a cold which kept him in the infirmary most of the week.

In the third period a play, the likes of which has never before

"Fireman" Rozum Snares Mural Golf As Austin Hall Hops To Dorm Lead

Joe Rozum, sophomore, a representative of Austin Hall, won the intramural golf tournament held on Friday, September 22, at the Main Line Open Golf Club.

The sun shone brightly for Rozum as he came in with his winning 84. Two strokes behind him came Jack Maher, also of Austin Hall. This dorm seemed to hold full sway over the tournament when Art Klappenback came in with an 87. But he was shortly tied by Marvin Mones.

Schwartz, representing as did Mones the Mendel Day-hops, followed with an 88. Jim Brown, a promising young freshman from Alumni Hall, posted an 89.

Final standings gave first place and ten points in the intramural contest to Austin Hall. The Mendel Day-Hops were in second place with seven points and Alumni was third with five points.

Jack Dunigan came through to give Fedigan three points for fourth place. Mendel residents and the C. and F. Day-hops were tied for fifth and sixth places with one and a half points.

Thirty golfers were entered in the annual tourney, which is part of the college's extensive intramural program. The tournament also served the purpose of giving varsity golf captain Cliff Randolf a chance to look over some promising prospects for the Villanova links team.

Harvey Buek Named Coach As 150's Begin Practice

Losses Through Graduation Hurt Team, But Many Newcomers Make Veterans Work Hard to Retain Posts

Harvey Buek, member of the Villanova varsity football teams of 1936, '37, and '38 has received an appointment to this school's coaching staff. He will coach the 150-pounders in the manly art of pigskinning.

Buek, who was an excelelnt back while matriculating here, took over his duties on Thursday last week. About fifty candidates for his team presented themselves and began workouts.

Play Cornell Next Week

With the shifting of coaches and the loss of some valuable material, however, the lightweights will have to work hard and travel fast if they want to come out on top in this season's grid battles. Buek will have to mold his men into a fine enough shape to meet Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y., in just two weeks.

With graduation came the loss of Gerry Holland, a stellar tackle, and several other veterans. The 150's line will be a trifle weak at center position due to the loss of Charlie Timmins. However there will be Bill Nihil and Joe McMahon to replace him. At guards there will be a plentiful supply of veterans in Sachetti, Widman, Rappleyea and several ex-Malvernites.

Veterans Pushed

Tackles this year will see Woods and Philip struggling to hold down their berths against a group of youngsters. Filling in the end positions will be reliable Vic Dominic and "All-American" McGurk with Coupe as an alternate.

The backfield will find itself very strong with the return of such men as Murphy, Brown, Lombardo, Cusky, McManus and a host of others. These men are hard put to keep a flock of eager newcomers from taking over their places.

Last year's squad, it may be remembered, compiled the best record of any Villanova lightweight team to date. It is the aim of this season's club to better that record, if possible, against such opposition as Cornell, Princeton, Penn, Rutgers, Lafayette, and Yale.

NOTE

Sports staff members, both old and new, are urged to attend the VILLANOVAN meeting this afernoon at 1 P. M. in Room 119, Mendel.

KYW, WIP FEATURE GRIDIRON CONTESTS

Each of Club's Eight Games to be Broadcast Over Two Philly Stations

For the third successive season, Villanova will broadcast its contests to its rooters, both far and near. All games, starting with Muhlenberg on Sept. 30, and ending with Manhattan on Nov. 25 will be broadcast.

Sponsored by Oil Co.

Once again these airings will be made possible by the Atlantic Refining Co., which, in conjunction with their annual football contest, is sponsoring their play by play description of 191 important college games throughout the country.

The broadcasting will be evenly divided by two Philadelphia stations. KYW will carry the Detroit, Auburn and Manhattan games at 1060 kilocycles. It has already aired the Villanova-Muhlenberg tilt. KYW is affiliated with the National Broadcasting Company carrying Red Network programs from New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Los Angeles and Washington as well as originating its own presentations for the air lanes.

Saam Announces

The other four games, the South Carolina, Arkansas, Temple and Texas A. M. tilts, will be broadcast by station WIP of Philadelphia whose dialing is 610 kiolcycles. Byrum Saam, broadcaster of Philadelphia major league baseball games, will be on hand for the play by play accounts.

OPTIMIST

An optimistic gent is Homer Norton, head mentor of the Texas A. & M. team which meets Villanova at Tyler, Texas, on October 14th. Unlike the great majority of grid coaches Norton fails to "sing the blues." Instead he says that his Maroon team "has the best and most material in the southwest." Norton is also claiming the Conference title even at this early date!

GAMECOCKS READY; VENGEANCE SOUGHT BY BLUE AND WHITE

First Night Game in School's History Played This Week at Shibe Park

By BILL CAREY

With revenge in their hearts and danger on their claws, the Wildcats are set to tear into the team that deprived them of a perfect season in '38.

This Friday night at Shibe Park in Philadelphia the Smithmen meet the University of South Carolina in the first arc-light contest in the history of Villanova.

Too well does everyone remember that startling upset last fall when the Gamecocks held the Wildcats to a 6-6 tie. It should also be remembered that the Blue and White played practically all the game in Carolina territory. They ran through the Gamecocks, passed them dizzy, and kept them forever on the defense, but the stubborn Southerners would not give in.

To say it in a few words, the Wildcats are sore, plenty sore; and they aim to do something about it. But according to reports this won't be an easy task. It seems that Rex Enright, South Carolina mentor, has something to say about the matter. With two games already behind them, he feels that the team is in the proper spirit and in the best of physical shape. Leading the attack for the Dixie-landers will be left end Alexander, quarterback Elston and halfback Blouin. These boys went hot in pre-season workouts and proved themselves in the games with Wake Forest and Catholic U.

Coach's Second Year

Enright, who is only in his second year as the Gamecock mentor, is of course anxious for a victory over the charges of "Clipper" Smith. A win over the Wildcats would boost his stock plenty high, so he is ready to give both barrels.

In his first season, Enright piloted the Carolinamen to six victories, fourf defeats, and two ties. Out of this team come 16 lettermen to bolster the attack, which will be definitely offensive.

Hospitality Absent

What really hurts, this record, while somewhat impressive, cannot begin to compare with the two consecutive undefeated seasons enjoyed by the Villanova gridmen. The Wildcats bowled over the opposition

Seventh Year Of Contests Duplicates Past Programs

Moderator and Student Director Expect Another Great Year of Sports; Tennis Tourney Now in Progress

By BOB FUNABASHI

Villanova's seventh year of its extensive and well balanced intramural program is under way again with a keen note of interest and the usual hard-fought rivalry among the different dormitories in evidence. Under the guidance of Fr. McKee and Student Director Clem Lavin the intramural program of the past will be duplicated this year.

Tennis Tourney On

In progress now is the celebrated tennis tournament which will determine the No. 1 ranking man of the school, excluding the varsity tennis team. Inclement weather has delayed the completion of the quarter-finals in most of the dormitories, but by next week, the champion will be crowned.

October 17 will mark the advent of the basketball season and the first half of this will last until the Christmas holidays. The victors will meet the top team of the second half, which starts January 4 and ends on the first day of March. In past seasons, basketball has attracted more enthusiasts than any other sport and rivalry is keen.

Tradition plays a major part in these court battles and the players are out to uphold this strong sentiment. C&F has lost its towering strength through graduation and will be hard pressed to keep its grasp on first place. Strong contenders of the year should be Austin and Fedigan halls.

Swimming in December

Next in the line of the indoor sports are the swimming championships which will be held in the gymnasium pool. Varsity swimmers will instruct the tankmen and aid in running off the meet, which will take place on December 6.

One week later the tragedians and comedians of the campus will step upon the lighted stage and demonstrate their talents to a large audience and a group of distinguished judges, whose opinion will certify the winner of the creative "Amateur Night."

The battle of "grunts and groans" will firmly establish itself on the night of January 15 when the boxing and wrestling championships are presented in the college gym.

Spring Sports

Reverting back to the outdoors, the softball games and the Sunday baseball games bring the intramural program to a swift climax. Both sports are alternated between the periods of April 1 to May 20.

Clem Lavin, student director, and Fr. McKee have encouraging reports for the year and hope for the co-operation of the students in producing another great year of intramural athletics.

Gamecocks

free and easy both before and after the South Carolina conflict, but their fortunes went into reverse against the Gamecocks. Without using a crying towel it can be said that this draw was in no great part due to the opposition offered by the eleven players, but more or less due to the unsportsmanlike tactics of the southern fans. That famous Southern hospitality must have taken a day off when the Wildcats came to town.

In the midst of jeers and pop bottles did the men of Villanova cavort on the field of battle. Adding everything up we realize the mental hazards were a bit of a handicap to overcome. Whatever brought on such a demonstration, the Wildcats will probably never know, but one thing is certain, they won't have any such thing to reckon with at Shibe Park.

Smith Stressed This Game

Last year in Spring practice the "Clipper" stressed the importance of the South Carolina game. With this game approxmiately 173 days away "Clipper" gave the boys a daily remembrance of the approaching conflict, each day removing a unit from the number of days. Interest like this should not go without sufficient warning to our friends from way down in Dixie. Each man on the Wildcat squad carries in his heart his own feelings of that game, and each and every one wants to convert those feelings to words spelling success, and revenge.

Judging from pre-game reports from both sides, this should be a hard fought battle. The psychology of the "Clipper" will have to be in top form on Friday evening to match wits with a young and ambitious coach. This game means more than just revenge to the Wildcats, it is another step to national recognition, so roll out the barrel and get set for some red hot football.

FUTURE FOES FIND OPPOSITION TOUGH IN GRID OPENERS

Texas A. & M. Shows Power; Arkansas Surprised; Temple Holds Georgetown

By JOE BARNES

While Villanova's "swingtime" Wildcats were waltzing to their opening win of the current campaign her future opponents were busy on many gridiron fronts.

Providing new wrinkles for "Clipper" Smith's already furrowed brow Texas A. & M.'s great Maroon aggregation smashed its way to a 14-0 victory over Centenary on Saturday. The latter is one of the better southwestern teams. On the previous Saturday the Aggie club rolled to a crushing 32-0 win over Oklahoma A. & M. These wins, coupled with the Texans preseason showing, indicate that they are "the" team in the Southwestern Conference this year.

Arkansas University, the remaining southwestern opponent for the Villanovans, opened their season with a 32-6 attack on Central Oklahoma University but struck trouble last Saturday and dropped a surprising 19-0 decision to Mississippi State. Experts expect the Razorbacks to rebound with a bang from this loss and become a powerful factor in their conference.

The Gamecocks of South Carolina University are still looking for their first entry on the win side of their ledger as the result of two successive losses in their opening encounters. The first was a 19-7 loss to Wake Forest and the second a 12-0 defeat by Catholic University.

Detroit University's Titans, November 4 opponents for the 'Cats, were forced to postpone their opener with Kalamazoo State due to a severe rainstorm. Manhattan, opponent for the 'Cats in the 1939 finale, also met a rainstorm in the form of the powerful Holy Cross

Notes:

By JIM HAUGHTON

From up in the Lehigh Valley came the Mules with their heavy guns aimed for the locals. A member of their staff was on the sending end of a telephone to the bench, and enabled "Doggie" Julian to know better the whys and wherefores of his lads.

Walt Nowak, the Camden Express, brought forth all sorts of commentaries with his excellent blocking. As one gentleman said when he hit Walters of Muhlenberg, "Why he almost cut the poor fellow in half."

"Cowboy" Ben Franklin from out Oklahoma way was, in the fans' opinion, but not "Clipper's," the outstanding man on the Allentown squad with his slashing end play and coffin corner booting. And the blocking he received on those kicks won't be seen soon, either.

Byrum Saam, who handles the games via the airlanes, remarked while catching his breath at half time, "Football would be a great game if they could only do away with the officials." Temple feels the same way, Byrum.

Also from the ether fraternity, but merely as a spectator, was the former local praise agent, Kerby Cushing, who's a campus favorite with his sportstuff via KYW. And he always has a nice word for the ol' stampin' grounds.

The press box ensconced such Fourth Estaters as "Red" Smith, Ross Kaufmann, Perry Lewis, and Tommy Lovett. These same writers also covered 'Cat actions last year.

From up Allentown way came several writers and the Muhlenberg paper also had two men on the job.

"Whitey" Kurowski, who last year made the Mules' only score on a 98-yard run, seemed to be stymied this year.

front of him to take out the "little one." Nicely done, Harry.

Here's hoping S. C doesn't repeat last year's performance—or do worse—in the game this Friday night.

Jimmy Powers' recent suggestion of a Villanova - Fordham game was inspired by a letter to the Daily News sports editor by Joe Rinaldi, a Villanova alumnus, class of 1930. Joe, who lives in Stamford, Conn., is very active in affairs of his alma mater. He received a personal reply, a note of thanks from the New York columnist for his suggestion.

—V—

IN CASE YOU DIDN'T KNOW:

Bill Guiteras, varsity runner, dethroned his teammate of eight years, Barney Bellew, as Middle Atlantic A. A. U. quarter-mile champion during the summer. Both boys were entered in the meet which was held this year in New Jersey.

—V—

Still on the subject of track, we note that several outstanding high and prep school runners have entered this institution. No wonder Jim "Jumbo" Elliot is all smiles these days. He'll have the best athletic schedule in the school one of these years, and it looks as though he'll be able to face the tough opposition that that implies.

—V—

Incidentally, things will be getting underway for the trackmen this week. Cross-country candidates have been called for a meeting at the gym today. Veterans have already been working out.

It won't be too long until the indoor season is in full swing. We'd like to see the boys do even better this year than last, which was very good—as most of you will remember.

In the Sportlight

By WALTER BROWN

WITH the coming of Fall (which means football to all loyal sport fans) it is only natural that one of the first "Sportlights" would include Harry Mazzei, Villanova's midget quarterback and safety man—one of the most talked of players on the team.

Harry attended Union High School where he played football on the same team as Gordon Shader and against teams on which Sam Monoco and Bill Cochran played. In high school he did not confine himself to football but also played basketball and baseball, the latter of which he captained in his senior year.

At first his parents objected to his playing football, but his brother, who played for Rutgers at the time, urged him on. After Harry made good in high school and again in Villanova, his parents became interested in football and are now ardent lovers of the game.

Position Changed

Entering Villanova as a fullback, Mazzei was shifted to quarterback by "Clipper" Smith, who was quick to realize his ability in this position.

Last year in the South Carolina game, which supplied him with both his greatest thrill and biggest disappointment, Harry proved himself to be an outstanding safety man.

Taking a punt on his own twenty yard line, he raced fifty-five yards while being hit by every man except the field judge, only to have the ball knocked from his hands by the last player, who recovered it on the South Carolina twenty yard line.

During the summer Harry spends his time playing the sport of his second choice, baseball. He plays in a league in North Bergen, his home town, and intends to try for our college team this spring.

Wants Coaching Job

Harry is majoring in English and wishes to continue studies after graduation, through which he hopes to become an English teacher and football coach.

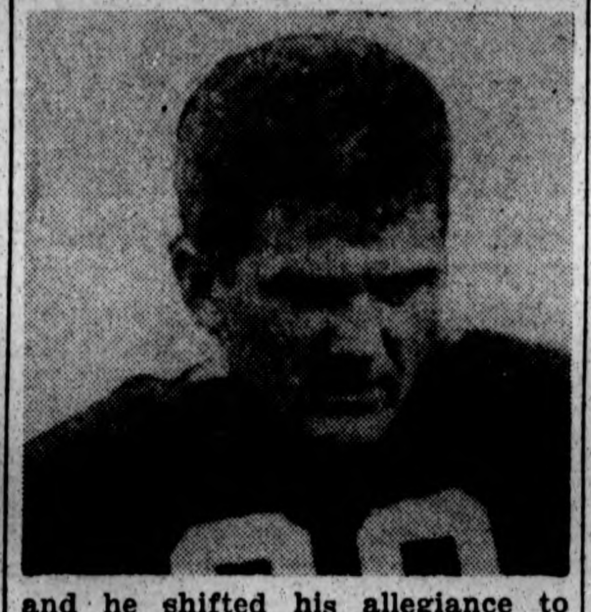
Football keeps Harry busy in the fall, but after the season is over, he turns his ability to other activities. Last year he was a member of the Junior Prom committee and wrote the "Here and There" column for the VILLANOVAN.

By FRED RAPPLEYEA

IN the region where many a fine footballer is born a young man named Andrew Chisick started his life. It was in Sagamore, Pennsylvania, that Andy was born on June 10, 1917.

This town was Andy's residence for only 12 years, after which his folks decided to move to Newark, New Jersey. At the age of 14 Andy entered Central High and stayed there for three years playing football, baseball and basketball, becoming captain of the football and basketball teams.

At this stage of life Andy's wandering spirit began to take control and he shifted his allegiance to Good Counsel High where he augmented his three sports of Central High with that of track. Here, too, he acquired the title of captain of the football and basketball teams.



After his career in these places, Andy was approached by a Villanova alumnus and persuadel to come to this college. In his freshman year he made a change in his position, being shifted by "Clipper" Smith from fullback to center.

In the winter of that first year here he put in some time on the freshman basketball team, showing lots of ability. However, he dropped that in his succeeding years and devoted all his time to football. In his two years of varsity Andy has hung up a record of having played in every one of the two season's games. This year the papers of the country have marked him as one to watch in the forthcoming grid warfare, since last year he received several honorable mention notices on the various All-American teams.

Likes Los Angeles

In his career at Villanova the incident that most impressed Andy was the trip out to Los Angeles in his sophomore year. In fact Andy was so pleased with that part of the country that he has expressed a desire to settle out there after he graduates.

INSURANCE SCHOOL STARTS 1ST YEAR

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 18. — The Hartford College of Insurance, a graduate school established in this city last May by the Hartford College of Law and a group of insurance company executives, opened today for its first academic year, Director Edward G. Baird announced.

About 30 students of an application list of 75 were admitted to the freshman class, he said. Of those enrolled, approximately 83 pecent were graduates of approved college or universities and the other 17 percent were non-college graduates empolyed by insurance companies who came to the college highly recommended by the executives of their respctive companies.

Director Baird said the Hartford College of Insurance plans to award the degree master of science in insurance and, in conjunction with the Hartford College of Law, the degree of bachelor of laws—Advertisement.

club. The Jaspers were submerged under a 28-0 Crusader onslaught.

Auburn University opened with Birmingham-Southern and eased to a 7-0 win without extending the varsity.

Most surprising of the weekend's games was the Temple-Georgetown affair in which Temple, traditional foe of the Blue, held the supposedly powerful Georgetown club to a 3-2 victory, eked out late in the game after the Owls had held a 2-0 lead and threw terror into the Hoya's hearts. It seemed that the Owls packed plenty of power, especially in the line, but were not yet ready for an opponent as tough as the Georgetown outfit. Look for a topnotch Temple team, probably the best in years, when November rolls around. The days of Villanova picnics on Temple's turf seem to be at end. Few teams, if any, will tear up that Owl forward wall.

This week will see all but one Villanova opponent in action. Detroit is not scheduled to play but it is possible that last Saturday's deferred Kalamazoo game may be played this week.

been seen or is likely to be seen again for many days to come, sent the stands in to delerium. Mike Sabrinski standing somewhere in the vicinity of the 30-yard line threw a pass to Walt Nowak, who lateralled the ball to big Andy Chisick. The ball seemed to be charged with electricity for the big boy immediately handed the ball to Gordon Shader, who basketballed it to Paul Stenn. Stenn ran about five more yards and then lateralled it to Mike Sabrinski who had started the play a minute before. Along the Muhlenberg 28-yard line officials claimed Harry Mazzei clipped an opponent and the score was nullified.

In the second period Gerry Neri had a touchdown taken away from him after he had gone wide around the end into pay-land from the four, because of an infraction of the holding rule by a teammate.

For Muhlenbergers it was Burin and Franklin who were thorns in the sides of the Villanovans. Burin hurled passes all over the lot completing seven out of 20. Franklin saved Muhlenberg many embarrassing moments with his high booming punts that kept Villanova deep in Blue territory on several occasions.

HERE and THERE

By BILL SINNOTT

RECENTLY a New York columnist taking notice of open dates on both Fordham and Villanova's schedules advocated a contest between the famous Bronx' "Blocks of Granite" and the Wildcat Feather Footers.

If the two did lock horns, it would be interesting to watch the outcome of a clash between a club fundamentally defensive and one fundamentally offensive. Every year "Sleepy Jim" Crowley comes up with a line that resembles the Maginot or the Seigfried. And every year "Clipper" Smith fashions a line that clicks with its backfield in "Rockette" like precision.

Bill Sinnott

From a member of the V. C. coaching staff who saw it, we learn the play that cost Temple the Georgetown game was not interference. The consensus of opinion in Temple Stadium was that there was no interference on the pass.

South Carolina comes to Quakertown this Friday night and the Warsaw situation will probably be child's play in comparison with the explosions in Shibe Park.

The Gamecock's roster won't contain the name of Larry Craig who spent so much time in Villanova's backfield last year. He was as co-operative with the Wildcats last year as that little German guy with the moustache is with the rest of the world. Craig, by the way, is with the Green Bay Packers in the National Pro Football League. He is rated the greatest end South Carolina has produced.

The Smiths seem to predominate in the coaching ranks. There's the "Clipper" of Villanova, the "Clipper" of Duquesne, and the Gamecocks bring with them a slight variation. This one is varsity end coach and he is blessed with the cognomen "Catfish."

A football magazine committed the greatest sacrilege the Main Liners have been subjected to in quite a while. They tagged us with the sweet sounding "Owl."

Speaking of Owls, the Templars are eschewing our basketeers this year. Villanova's rejection of basketball centers might possibly be offered as a reason, but . . .

Philadelphia's stolid gentry will be denied that rare treat of seeing the North Broad Streeters and the Wildcats tangle in their annual orgy. And this year the boys would have to arrange it home-and-home. Imagine that, Temple at Villanova and Villanova at Temple.

Harry Mazzie has quite a few professional offers tucked away in his little strong box. But, like Wysocki, the miniature Alp leans toward the comparative peace and quiet of teaching-coaching. Little man, haven't you ever heard the yowling or seen the knife-brandishing when disgruntled fandom starts its pursuit of a coach's scalp? That's not peace and quiet. And fandom sits in judgment.

MUSIC GROUPS ADD A STRING ENSEMBLE TO GLEE CLUB, BAND

Glee Club Turnout Sets Record; Rosemont-Villanova Concert to Repeat

The adding of a string ensemble to the list of musical groups at Villanova and an extended Glee Club schedule highlight plans of the Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., for an active musical season.

Two engagements have been determined already. The Glee Club will present a program No. 4 at Snellenburg's Department Store in Philadelphia. Several other recitals have yet to be defined.

Success of the combined Rosemont-Villanova concert last year has given rise to another such musicale to take place on or before December 1.

Student interest in the Glee Club is greater than ever before, as manifested by the great response to the call for the initial meeting. Fr. Handran said that the quota of 40 voices will be easily met and that the selection of candidates will take place at the first rehearsal.

The string ensemble being organized on the campus is to include violins, 'cellos, clarinets, and flutes. Fr. Handran, who will conduct the musicians, intends to make it the basis for the development of a symphony orchestra.

Gerard Belz, sophomore artsman, and Hyman Malkin, senior engineer, managers, are at present working out a schedule of rehearsals to avoid conflicts with classes.

There wil be a meeting of all former members and new candidates in the C. & F. Auditorium tonight at seven o'clock.

ONE - ACT PLAYS TO OPEN SEASON

Three of Eugene O'Neill's one-act plays are to be presented by the Belle Masque players on Nov. 21, the night before the Thanksgiving holidays begin. The same program was followed at the beginning of last year.

Mr. Joseph McNamara, Jr., assistant director of the organization, had this to say about the affair: "The program will preserve the same unique flavor that was injected into the performances last year, namely, having veteran members direct these plays."

"Also, it is to give new members of the club a chance to exhibit their talents and thereby be in a line for a place in the big production next spring. Not only does it provide an opportunity to develop playing talent, but fellows interested in the mechanical part of putting on a play will be welcomed by the stage hand staff."

Picture Dates Set

Any senior who wishes to make a change in the arrangements for taking his photograph for the Belle Air must confer with photography editor Robert G. Wilderotter today, between 1 and 1:30 P. M., at the Belle Air office, room 51, Mendel Hall.

Those who do not make arrangements at this time must have their pictures taken on their own responsibility, making their own arrangements with the photographer and being liable to payment for the same.

The dates and times for each individual's sitting have been posted on the bulletin boards; all photographs will be taken during the week of October 16.

RETREAT OUTLINES MORAL OBLIGATIONS

Fr. W. J. Deacy, O. S. A., Emphasizes Need of Constant Prayer, Sacraments

"Frequent reception of the Sacraments, instituted for our spiritual benefit, must be adhered to if we are to advance further in the pursuit of sanctity." So said the Very Rev. William J. Deacy, O .S. A., in introducing the theme of the annual Autumn Retreat, last Thursday.

The period of religious meditation began for the resident students on Wednesday evening with a short talk, while the non-resident students formally opened the retreat at Mass on Thursday morning at 8 o'clock.

The retreat master, a new addition to the Villanova faculty, delivered his first address at a conference after the Mass on Thursday. His sermon, "The Proper Appreciation of the Sacraments," stressed the benefits to be derived from a clear understanding of the power and purpose of the Sacraments. Students, he said, should grasp the best thing that Villanova offers, that is "the opportunity to become real Catholic gentlemen."

Fr. Deacy's second address, "Christ's Passion and Death," was a vivid portrayal of the excruciating sufferings that Christ underwent in order to expiate the sins of mankind. He related that in the garden of Gethsemane Christ sweat drops of blood when the sight of what He would have to undergo in order to atone for the sins of man was revealed to Him.

The keynote of the address at the third conference was "Love for the Blessed Virgin Mary." True devotion to Mary is one of the most powerful means by which we can remain faithful to the teachings of her Divine Son, the retreat master said. Another point revealed in the address was that it was

During the Freshman guidance program which followed registration, members of the class of '43 were requested to fill out a questionaire, the purpose of which was to determine what extra-curricular activities each freshman had participated in during high school and which ones he might be interested in here.

This freshman survey was exceeding valuable in helping the incoming class to orient themselves and it also was of use to the faculty moderators of the various extra-curricular activities because it gave them an inkling of the talent to be found among the freshmen.

Typical Typists

Questions dealt with every phase of school activity, aside from regular class work, and interesting results were obtained. A typical question was "Are you a typist? If so, what is your speed?"

Some of the interesting statistics contained in the survey are the following; 250 of the incoming class are able to swim; 71 can read music; there is 1 cornet player, 1 flute player, 1 viola player and a banjo player among the frosh. The greatest number to play any one instrument was 24 and the instrument the piano with the violin a runner-up with 14.

Addition to Glee Club

In addition to this it was found that included among the singers in the freshman class was one alto.

Probably the most interesting part of the questionaire was the part seeking to determine the reason why each student decided to come to Villanova. One hundred and thirty-one answered that they did so on the advice of their parents. Fifty-eight took the advice of a priest. Members of the Alumni were responsible for sending 96 frosh here.

Scholastic Reputation

A total of 189 replied that they chose Villanova because of its scholastic reputation and 183 preferred the Catholic environment.

Open house seems to attract a goodly number as evidenced by the fact that 65 students said that they were attracted by their visit to this exposition.

It was also found that 64 of the class of '43 have had relatives attending Villanova. Of these 28 were brothers, 25 cousins, 7 uncles and 4 fathers.

Seminar Discusses Right of Congress To Repeal Embargo

Wisdom and Practicability the Important Questions, Declares Dr. Hartman

"Congress is not so much concerned with the power to repeal the arms embargo as it is concerned with the wisdom and practicability of it," Dr. Harold Hartman told the History Seminar at its weekly Friday meeting in Simpson Hall.

"For no one has challenged its right to change the neutrality laws because it is implied from Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution which gives Congress the power to regulate and control interstate and foreign trade," he said.

With this settled the history group continued on with its discussion of the neutrality problem. Several students proffered a plan to aid France and England because they are democracies. Intervention of the U. S. they held, would stifle any further expansion by Stalin and Hitler.

Still other members insisted that the U. S. should remain neutral and that if supplies to help the Allied forces were offered, we might as well aid them with our men because Germany and Russia would now consider us as an enemy."

But the isolationist group advocated that we should remain, as Senator Borah proposes, completely neutral, not shipping anything to Europe.

LIBRARY OBTAINS ALBUM CREATED BY MISS QUINN

Among the most recent contributions to the library are included a chronological scrapbook by Miss Quinn, who has take care of the dormitory rooms on the campus and who is remembered for her kindly attention toward the occupants. This book, dating from 1930 to the present, was compiled from newspaper clippings and from programs issued from the college.

Also, through the generosity of Rev. Kennedy, St. Joseph's Academy, Hartford, Conn., the library is receiving the current issues of the Hartford "Transcript." This is a weekly newspaper issued by the diocese of Hartford. It contains information of interest to students of that locality as well as to all who are concerned with Catholic action.

Wilderotter, York To Lead Senior Prom, Dinner Dance

President Hanlon Makes Early Appointments of Chairmen For Belle Air Week Activities; Committees Yet To Be Chosen

By FRANCIS M. FITZPATRICK

Recognizing the importance of securing competent leadership for a successful senior week-end, Peter E. Hanlon, president of the Senior Class, today announced the appointment of Robert G. Wilderotter and Joseph J. York, as the chairmen of the Belle Air Ball and the Senior Dinner Dance, respectively.

Committees to assist the chairmen in carrying out the duties are now in the process of formation. A representative group from all schools will aid Wilderotter, member of the arts school, in making complete arrangements for the Belle Air Ball which will be held January 12.

Dinner January 13

York, student in the commerce and finance school, will head a committee of approximately ten members. They will aid him in making all preparations for the Dinner Dance held this year on January 13.

As the first general formal dance of the college social calendar, the Belle Air Ball has always held general student interest. And as the last such affair sponsored by the seniors, it receives their utmost attention in order to provide a criterion for memory's sake. "Name" bands, novel decorations, and senior tradition have made it an affair to be long remembered.

Active Students

Both chairmen have participated actively in extra-carricular groups. Joseph York has been an active member in the Glee Club for four years and is rated as a fine first tenor singing in this organization's quartette. As a member of the Orientation committee, Sophomore Cotillion, and Junior Prom committee, he proved himself to be a valuable aid to the success of these functions. Likewise, he is the pianist in the Villanovan orchestra and finds enough time to exercise his journalistic ability in writing for the Belle Air.

Wilderotterhas turned his talents into slightly different fields. Possessing a fine speaking voice he is a member of both the Belle Masque and Beta Gamma Debating Societies, being president of the latter group in his freshman year. Last year he competed in the finals of the oratorical contest, after several preliminary eliminations. He has been an active members of the Belle Air staff and this year has been named as Photography Editor. He also served on the Sophomore Cotillion committee.

F. ABBOTT RECEIVES RING CHAIRMANSHIP

Appel, D'Angelo, Eichman, Mahan, Lombardo, Steinhardt Also Named

Frank H. Abbott, a member of the Junior Class in the engineering school, has been named by Class President Daniel J. Keating to head the Ring committee.

At the same time as the appointment of Abbott, President Keating also named the members of the committee as follows: William Appel of the engineering department; Eugene Eichman, Edward Steinhardt, and Samuel Mahan of the science shool; Andrea J. D'Angelo of the education department, and Frank Lombardo of the commerce and finance school.

This year's Ring committee has been released much earlier than is the usual proceedure and a promise of further appointments in the near future has been announced by the class president. He expects that all the various chairmen and committees will be named within a month.

A member of the Junior Class studying electrical engineering, Abbott has been prominent in Villanova circles since his entrance. Last year he was named a member of the Orientation committee. This year he was elected treasurer of the Phi Kappa Pi.

When asked for a statement about his attitude to the new position, Abbottrepl ied, "I am pleased to receive the honor conferred by this position and realize its impor-

Mendel Bulletin Announces Editors

Board of Quarterly Publication Selected From Various Classes by Editor

Appointments to the board of editors of the Mendel Bulletin, School of Science quarterly publication, have been announced by Alfred M. Bongiovanni, editor-in-chief.

Edward E. Steinhardt, has been selected from the Junior Class, while Armand Ciatteo and John J. Grey are sophomores.

Edmund A. Malcolm and Armand Ciatteo will be in charge of photography. oJhn Grey, designer of the new cover for the Mendel Bulletin, will be responsible for sketches and cartoons.

Articles of general interest and within the scope of general understanding will be featured in the quarterly throughout the year.

ASKS STUDENTS TO COME

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party. Students of Villanova College from all classes have been invited to attend by Miss Mary A. Ferguson, President of the Sophomore Class.

The success of the Open House conducted last spring by the juniors of Immaculata College as part of their Junior Week has led the Class of '42 to sponsor a similar event on October 15 from 8 to 12.

Although it is an event in honor of the freshman, all classes will participate.

FR. DWYER ACCEPTS E. P. T. DIRECTORATE

When the Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Philosophy, announced that he would accept a position as moderator for Epsilon Phi. The plans for the reorganization of that group were considered well under way.

Fr. Dwyer said: "It gives me great pleasure to be moderator of the revived arts fraternity.

"In view of the fact that I have been associated with the arts students in class I have the fond conviction that our group will be representative of the institution."

Epsilon Phi Theta is the oldest fraternity of the campus. However in recent years it has been inactive.

The present reorganization is occasioned by student agitation. A committee headed by M. Joseph McNamara, Jr., took the initiative. They approached Fr. Dwyer and secured the approval of the administration for the project.

James Collins and Thomas Moore working separately have been investigating the activities of the group in past years. They are trying to find the constitution of the fraternity. There is a possibility that it was destroyed in the great Villanova fire that destroyed Mendel Hall in 1928.

MUSIC GROUPS ADD A STRING ENSEMBLE TO GLEE CLUB, BAND

Glee Club Turnout Sets Record; Rosemont-Villanova Concert to Repeat

The adding of a string ensemble to the list of musical groups at Villanova and an extended Glee Club schedule highlight plans of the Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., for an active musical season.

Two engagements have been determined already. The Glee Club will present a program No. 4 at Snellenburg's Department Store in Philadelphia. Several other recitals have yet to be defined.

Success of the combined Rosemont-Villanova concert last year has given rise to another such musicale to take place on or before December 1.

Student interest in the Glee Club is greater than ever before, as manifested by the great response to the call for the initial meeting. Fr. Handran said that the quota of 40 voices will be easily met and that the selection of candidates will take place at the first rehearsal.

The string ensemble being organized on the campus is to include violins, 'cellos, clarinets, and flutes. Fr. Handran, who will conduct the musicians, intends to make it the basis for the development of a symphony orchestra.

Gerard Belz, sophomore artsman, and Hyman Malkin, senior engineer, managers, are at present working out a schedule of rehearsals to avoid conflicts with classes.

There wil be a meeting of all former members and new candidates in the C. & F. Auditorium tonight at seven o'clock.

ONE - ACT PLAYS TO OPEN SEASON

Three of Eugene O'Neill's one-act plays are to be presented by the Belle Masque players on Nov. 21, the night before the Thanksgiving holidays begin. The same program was followed at the beginning of last year.

Mr. Joseph McNamara, Jr., assistant director of the organization, had this to say about the affair: "The program will preserve the same unique flavor that was injected into the performances last year, namely, having veteran members direct these plays."

"Also, it is to give new members of the club a chance to exhibit their talents and thereby be in a line for a place in the big production next spring. Not only does it provide an opportunity to develop playing talent, but fellows interested in the mechanical part of putting on a play will be welcomed by the stage hand staff."

Picture Dates Set

Any senior who wishes to make a change in the arrangements for taking his photograph for the Belle Air must confer with photography editor Robert G. Wilderotter today, between 1 and 1:30 P. M., at the Belle Air office, room 51, Mendel Hall.

Those who do not make arrangements at this time must have their pictures taken on their own responsibility, making their own arrangements with the photographer and being liable to payment for the same.

The dates and times for each individual's sitting have been posted on the bulletin boards; all photographs will be taken during the week of October 16.

RETREAT OUTLINES MORAL OBLIGATIONS

Fr. W. J. Deacy, O. S. A., Emphasizes Need of Constant Prayer, Sacraments

"Frequent reception of the Sacraments, instituted for our spiritual benefit, must be adhered to if we are to advance further in the pursuit of sanctity." So said the Very Rev. William J. Deacy, O. S. A., in introducing the theme of the annual Autumn Retreat, last Thursday.

The period of religious meditation began for the resident students on Wednesday evening with a short talk, while the non-resident students formally opened the retreat at Mass on Thursday morning at 8 o'clock.

The retreat master, a new addition to the Villanova faculty, delivered his first address at a conference after the Mass on Thursday. His sermon, "The Proper Appreciation of the Sacraments," stressed the benefits to be derived from a clear understanding of the power and purpose of the Sacraments. Students, he said, should grasp the best thing that Villanova offers, that is "the opportunity to become real Catholic gentlemen."

Fr. Deacy's second address, "Christ's Passion and Death," was a vivid portrayal of the excruciating sufferings that Christ underwent in order to expiate the sins of mankind. He related that in the garden of Gethsemane Christ sweat drops of blood when the sight of what He would have to undergo in order to atone for the sins of man was revealed to Him.

The keynote of the address at the third conference was "Love for the Blessed Virgin Mary." True devotion to Mary is one of the most powerful means by which we can remain faithful to the teachings of her Divine Son, the retreat master said. Another point revealed in the address was that it was

During the Freshman guidance program which followed registration, members of the class of '43 were requested to fill out a questionaire, the purpose of which was to determine what extra-curricular activities each freshman had participated in during high school and which ones he might be interested in here.

This freshman survey was exceeding valuable in helping the incoming class to orient themselves and it also was of use to the faculty moderators of the various extra-curricular activities because it gave them an inkling of the talent to be found among the freshmen.

Typical Typists

Questions dealt with every phase of school activity, aside from regular class work, and interesting results were obtained. A typical question was "Are you a typist? If so, what is your speed?"

Some of the interesting statistics contained in the survey are the following; 250 of the incoming class are able to swim; 71 can read music; there is 1 cornet player, 1 flute player, 1 viola player and a banjo player among the frosh. The greatest number to play any one instrument was 24 and the instrument the piano with the violin a runner-up with 14.

Addition to Glee Club

In addition to this it was found that included among the singers in the freshman class was one alto.

Probably the most interesting part of the questionaire was the part seeking to determine the reason why each student decided to come to Villanova. One hundred and thirty-one answered that they did so on the advice of their parents. Fifty-eight took the advice of a priest. Members of the Alumni were responsible for sending 96 frosh here.

Scholastic Reputation

A total of 189 replied that they chose Villanova because of its scholastic reputation and 183 preferred the Catholic environment.

Open house seems to attract a goodly number as evidenced by the fact that 65 students said that they were attracted by their visit to this exposition.

It was also found that 64 of the class of '43 have had relatives attending Villanova. Of these 28 were brothers, 25 cousins, 7 uncles and 4 fathers.

Seminar Discusses Right of Congress To Repeal Embargo

Wisdom and Practicability the Important Questions, Declares Dr. Hartman

"Congress is not so much concerned with the power to repeal the arms embargo as it is concerned with the wisdom and practicability of it," Dr. Harold Hartman told the History Seminar at its weekly Friday meeting in Simpson Hall.

"For no one has challenged its right to change the neutrality laws because it is implied from Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution which gives Congress the power to regulate and control interstate and foreign trade," he said.

With this settled the history group continued on with its discussion of the neutrality problem. Several students proffered a plan to aid France and England because they are democracies. Intervention of the U. S. they held, would stifle any further expansion by Stalin and Hitler.

Still other members insisted that the U. S. should remain neutral and that if supplies to help the Allied forces were offered, we might as well aid them with our men because Germany and Russia would now consider us as an enemy."

But the isolationist group advocated that we should remain, as Senator Borah proposes, completely neutral, not shipping anything to Europe.

LIBRARY OBTAINS ALBUM CREATED BY MISS QUINN

Among the most recent contributions to the library are included a chronological scrapbook by Miss Quinn, who has take care of the dormitory rooms on the campus and who is remembered for her kindly attention toward the occupants. This book, dating from 1930 to the present, was compiled from newspaper clippings and from programs issued from the college.

Also, through the generosity of Rev. Kennedy, St. Joseph's Academy, Hartford, Conn., the library is receiving the current issues of the Hartford "Transcript." This is a weekly newspaper issued by the diocese of Hartford. It contains information of interest to students of that locality as well as to all who are concerned with Catholic action.

Wilderotter, York To Lead Senior Prom, Dinner Dance

By FRANCIS M. FITZPATRICK

Recognizing the importance of securing competent leadership for a successful senior week-end, Peter E. Hanlon, president of the Senior Class, today announced the appointment of Robert G. Wilderotter and Joseph J. York, as the chairmen of the Belle Air Ball and the Senior Dinner Dance, respectively.

Committees to assist the chairmen in carrying out the duties are now in the process of formation. A representative group from all schools will aid Wilderotter, member of the arts school, in making complete arrangements for the Belle Air Ball which will be held January 12.

Dinner January 13

York, student in the commerce and finance school, will head a committee of approximately ten members. They will aid him in making all preparations for the Dinner Dance held this year on January 13.

As the first general formal dance of the college social calendar, the Belle Air Ball has always held general student interest. And as the last such affair sponsored by the seniors, it receives their utmost attention in order to provide a criterion for memory's sake. "Name" bands, novel decorations, and senior tradition have made it an affair to be long remembered.

Active Students

Both chairmen have participated actively in extra-carricular groups. Joseph York has been an active member in the Glee Club for four years and is rated as a fine first tenor singing in this organization's quartette. As a member of the Orientation committee, Sophomore Cotillion, and Junior Prom committee, he proved himself to be a valuable aid to the success of these functions. Likewise, he is the pianist in the Villanovan orchestra and finds enough time to exercise his journalistic ability in writing for the Belle Air.

Wilderotterhas turned his talents into slightly different fields. Possessing a fine speaking voice he is a member of both the Belle Masque and Beta Gamma Debating Societies, being president of the latter group in his freshman year. Last year he competed in the finals of the oratorical contest, after several preliminary eliminations. He has been an active members of the Belle Air staff and this year has been named as Photography Editor. He also served on the Sophomore Cotillion committee.

F. ABBOTT RECEIVES RING CHAIRMANSHIP

Appel, D'Angelo, Eichman, Mahan, Lombardo, Steinhardt Also Named

Frank H. Abbott, a member of the Junior Class in the engineering school, has been named by Class President Daniel J. Keating to head the Ring committee.

At the same time as the appointment of Abbott, President Keating also named the members of the committee as follows: William Appel of the engineering department; Eugene Eichman, Edward Steinhardt, and Samuel Mahan of the science shool; Andrea J. D'Angelo of the education department, and Frank Lombardo of the commerce and finance school.

This year's Ring committee has been released much earlier than is the usual proceedure and a promise of further appointments in the near future has been announced by the class president. He expects that all the various chairmen and committees will be named within a month.

A member of the Junior Class studying electrical engineering, Abbott has been prominent in Villanova circles since his entrance. Last year he was named a member of the Orientation committee. This year he was elected treasurer of the Phi Kappa Pi.

When asked for a statement about his attitude to the new position, Abbottrepl ied, "I am pleased to receive the honor conferred by this position and realize its impor-

Mendel Bulletin Announces Editors

Board of Quarterly Publication Selected From Various Classes by Editor

Appointments to the board of editors of the Mendel Bulletin, School of Science quarterly publication, have been announced by Alfred M. Bongiovanni, editor-in-chief.

Edward E. Steinhardt, has been selected from the Junior Class, while Armand Ciatteo and John J. Grey are sophomores.

Edmund A. Malcolm and Armand Ciatteo will be in charge of photography. oJhn Grey, designer of the new cover for the Mendel Bulletin, will be responsible for sketches and cartoons.

Articles of general interest and within the scope of general understanding will be featured in the quarterly throughout the year.

ASKS STUDENTS TO COME

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party. Students of Villanova College from all classes have been invited to attend by Miss Mary A. Ferguson, President of the Sophomore Class.

The success of the Open House conducted last spring by the juniors of Immaculata College as part of their Junior Week has led the Class of '42 to sponsor a similar event on October 15 from 8 to 12.

Although it is an event in honor of the freshman, all classes will participate.

FR. DWYER ACCEPTS E. P. T. DIRECTORATE

When the Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Philosophy, announced that he would accept a position as moderator for Epsilon Phi. The plans for the reorganization of that group were considered well under way.

Fr. Dwyer said: "It gives me great pleasure to be moderator of the revived arts fraternity.

"In view of the fact that I have been associated with the arts students in class I have the fond conviction that our group will be representative of the institution."

Epsilon Phi Theta is the oldest fraternity of the campus. However in recent years it has been inactive.

The present reorganization is occasioned by student agitation. A committee headed by M. Joseph McNamara, Jr., took the initiative. They approached Fr. Dwyer and secured the approval of the administration for the project.

James Collins and Thomas Moore working separately have been investigating the activities of the group in past years. They are trying to find the constitution of the fraternity. There is a possibility that it was destroyed in the great Villanova fire that destroyed Mendel Hall in 1928.

266 Blind Mice

VILLANOVA is gradually losing her freshmen class. The first year men are becoming entities, lacking title and right, to be called Freshmen of the Class of 1943. They are forfeiting these privileges with their removal of regs, the lackadasical attitude to the freshman regulations that are enumerated in the hand book.

With this the freshmen are losing their right to be classified as "frosh" and without such right, it would be better that they had never entered college. Without the preliminary orientation, a student is unmolded, built without a foundation, a building that may topple over with the slighest ill wind.

You men who are now in the first year of your college career, remember that you entered as freshmen, and that status is rightfully yours with all the honor that it entails. Do not cast it aside as a yoke about your neck. The means that have been instituted, the regs which you are supposed to wear, are your only means of passing that information along to your fellow students. It is in this means alone that you will become part of this great institution, a part of the campus, and primarily a part of the college life that exists about you.

Unless these measures are followed, and the first year men attempt to regain the status of Freshmen in the Class of 1943, there will be necessitated a means of enforcing these regulations. Freshmen at Villanova are expected to have the ability to fortify themselves against the temptations to act upon their own iniative, and to accept the guiding hands of those who have experienced the same sensations. There are many means which can be employed to enforce the wearing of the regs, but it is the hope of the Student Council that such means are not needed to be employed. You, the Freshmen of the Class of 1943, can assist yourself in regaining your legal and righteous standing by donning once again the ensignia of Villanova men, the cap, the button, and the tie.

Live His Truth

TO a sincere but critical non-Catholic, the dogmas of our Catholic Church may hold only negative and neglible interest while they remain stagnant "theories" in black and white. But Christ did not intend the teachings of His and our Church to be merely memorized, admired and forgotten. Indeed no. In all justice He demands we live His truth every second of our lives, for our's is not a "Sunday Religion" to be discarded the remaining six week days. This constant practice of faith not only can but is being observed by multitudes of Catholics. We want even more to follow suit. It is a matter of obligation, not of choice.

Of the early Christians the pagans marvelled, "See how they love one another!" So can it be with those outside the Faith today, but the responsibility is ours. The superficially-interested non-Catholic generally looks for results and measures the Catholic Ideal in terms of everyday reality. Thus is the spread of our Faith by incessant good example, one of the two objects in this drive for materialization of the Catholic Ideal.

As students of a progressive Catholic college we certainly recognize the essence of our moral ideal as love of God and neighbor. Our four-year religion course with the aid of Father John M. Cooper's text books admirably supplies the theory of the Catholic Ideal, and our Augustinian Fathers the theory in practice. But are we doing anything about it? Are we gaining yardage, outrunning our foul opponents of indifference, sensual and wordly joys in life's game for the eternal championship? Are we exerting a maximum effort to score in the real practice of the Catholic Ideal?

—J. P. C.

EPT Awakens

THE draft has started. Every senior, junior, sophomore, and freshman in the School of Arts is to enroll immediately.

The goal of the drive is the revival of the School of Arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta. Incite an interest in this endeavor. Speak to the alumni: question them on the policies underlying the fraternity's government and the laws contained in its constitution. Investigate the history of this organization, the oldest on the campus.

Poor and Weary

THE policy of the local electric railway regarding the new forty-six-ride monthly ticket has aroused much comment. Most day-hops employ the facilities of this railway, attending classes on week days only. Several rides remain unused at the end of the 30-day period. At this rate, the fare per single ride is considerably higher than last year.

The new system presents another problem: holidays are frequently within the 30-day period. It is hardly economical to purchase tickets until the end of the particular vacation.

Villanova Boasts Age PLUS Unbroken Policy

Educational Traditon Relates Itself to Great Teachers of Old

By REV. THOMAS F. GILLIGAN, O. S.A., M. A.
Professor of Modern Languages

SHANE LESLIE tells a rather neat little story, which seems to illustrate the fact that the best answer to snobbery is a snub. This story is about the justly famous English public school named Eton College. Everyone knows that Eton has earned for itself an enviable reputation for scholarship, sportsmanship, and good breeding. Everyone has heard that England's battles are won on the playing fields of this same school, and that a list of its graduates is like a roll call of the great names of English history. What most people — including the students at Eton — seem to ignore, is the fact that it owes its foundation to the Catholic, Henry VI., who called it "The College of the Blessed Virgin Mary Beside Windsor." When, therefore, a young Eton snob tried to lord it over the captain of Beaumont's football team, he got the answer he so richly deserved. Beaumont is the English Jesuit school, just as proud of its honorable traditions as Eton is. After a successful football season Beaumont challenged the Etonians. They received the crushing reply: "What is Beaumont?" To which the inspired Beaumont captain answered, "Beaumont is what Eton was—a school for Catholic gentlemen."

Though Villanova is one of the oldest of American Catholic colleges, it can not claim the antiquity of such institutions as Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and others of the so-called Ivy Colleges. To them we must pay the respect due to their venerable old age. But, even while doing so, we must remember that we too can point with pride. What Villanova can boast of, but rarely does, is the fact that, not only has the College been in existence since 1843, but during all that time she taught according to the same principles of religions, culture, and morals that her founding fathers knew. The tradesman who boasts of the age of his firm is justified in so doing only if during all that time the original principles and pride of craftsmanship have continued with unbroken tradition of quality. How ridiculous to boast of the age of an institution which has changed direction with every passing wind of educational change. Who could say that the venerable old colleges of America are the same colleges as intended and envisaged by their founders. Most of them were founded by ministers, but they have long since divorced themselves from the religious purposes of their pioneers. With Villanova, however, as with all Catholic Colleges, no change has ever been made that would change it from the original intent of its founders. The Fathers who came from St. Augustine's in Philadelphia to found a college at Belle Air, could teach at Villanova today. They would, of course, find that the school had progressed, had grown bigger, offered more courses, had better buildings and equipment. But they would find at Villanova the same fundamentals, the same guiding principles, the same religion, the same cultural ideals which they themselves had inculcated, and which they had inherited from the perennial Catholic tradition before them. Essentially, Villanova is as old in its educational tradition as Christianity. It is heir to the same tradition as Paris, Bologna, Salmanca, Oxford, Cambridge and Mexico. Its Augustinian teachers are brothers of the great teachers of another time and another land. They can hail as brothers in Augustine Aegidius Romanus of the University of Paris, Fra Luis de Leon of the University of Salamanca, the Austin masters of Oxford and Cambridge, and Fra Vera Cruz, the first Rector of the oldest college in North America at Mexico City.

From Peter to Pius, there has never existed a Cahtolic college which has not been guided by the same cardinal principles. From Anselm to Gilson our educators have maintained that our purpose is, first, to teach man to live as a creature of God, sub specie aeternitatis; secondly, to teach man as a unit and to regard nothing human as alien to man; thirdly, to train man's character by a training in practical Christianity, in the Sacramental life of the Church. So thought Mendel and Carr and Fedigan; these are the convictions which made Villanova, or any Catholic College, old with the ivy grown traditions of twenty centuries of Christianity.

It's about time college lads got together and put an end to that social scourge "PINK HANDKERCHIEF." This affliction strikes every fellow of age but localizes mainly on schoolboys. It has been a constant problem for years and has not yet, to my knowledge, been solved.

"Pink Handkerchief" may be defined as "a rougish residue remaining on one's kerchief (or the bathroom towel) the morning after the nite before." It is caused mainly by nonkissproof lip rouge or an excess of some of the other paints girls use, frinstance: sun tan powder, cheek rouge.

It seems futile wasting four lives on a mountain side.

Graduates of '39 Enter Various Fields of Endeavor Survey Shows Students Held Interesting Summer Jobs

Law School, Medical School and Industry Entered

By THOMAS J. MOORE and JUSTIN RUBIN

"Thirty-five graduates of the School of Science, class of 1939, have matriculated at 14 different professional schools and universities," according to the Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the Science School.

Philadelphia led, as usual, with the number of colleges and universities. They were Temple University, University of Pennsylvania, Hahnemann Medical College, and Jefferson Medical College.

Southern schools to which Villanova graduates were admitted are Georgetown University, University of Maryland, and Johns Hopkins University.

To the north, Harvard University and Tufts Medical College opened their doors, while in the west, Loyola University, Western Reserve University, Marquette University, Creighton and St. Louis Universities also received Villanova graduates.

During the summer and early fall, many of the successful graduates of the School of Science, returned to visit Fr. Dougherty. Among them was Dr. Edward Duschock, a recent graduate of the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. Also paying a visit to the dean were Drs. John Delahanty, Nicholas Colosi, James Luci, William Decherney, John Ford, and Edward Ocelus.

Many fields of activity are represented by the positions obtained by the Villanova class of '39.

In the field of business, graduates have obtained work with some of the outstanding business concerns in the country as for example, Harold Hart is employed by the World's Fair Corporation, N. Y.; John Krutulis works for the Prudential Insurance Co., at Reading, Pa.; William Bailey is on the payroll of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., N. Y.; Francis Cadran is in the legal department of Sears and Roebucks Corp., Phila.; James Dwyer works at the Trenton National Bank, Trenton, N. Undergraduate Employment Varies—"Hopping to Concrete Mixing

By FRANK FITZPATRICK

Students of Villanova College engaged in extensive fields of summer employment.

In the survey, which is representative of the area from the Field House to Fedigan Hall and from the Field Hall to Mendel, a fair idea may be gathered as to just how a college man who is not vacationing or engaged in summer school work, labors during summer recess period. It seems that students will accept anything that resembles a position from a vice presidency to a Fuller Brush man, the former being preferred by a popular majority. Here are some of the answers received.

BOB MENTZINGER, C&F—"I was employed as a regular usher at the Erlen Theater, 19 and City Line." (What's the idea, Bob, did they need a bouncer?)

DAVE MORSE, Science—House to house canvasser. Sort of a Fuller Brush man but employed by the Watkins Household Supply Company. Dave says that the toughest part of the sale is to talk your way into the house.

ELK MURRAY, C&F—This football player hung suits on racks instead of blocks on halfbacks for dear old Jacob Reed & Sons. Likewise Elk says he is the campus agent. (Advertisement.)

DAVE REARDON, C&F — The "Hot Shoppe" Hamlet. Dave says that plenty of change can be picked up "hoppin'" as a curbstone cutey.

WALT KELLY, Engineer—Optimist—holding two jobs simultaneously at Ocean City, N. J. Experienced iceman and likewise a soda artiste.

ODDS and ENDS

By Barney Bellew

EVEN though the first edition of this noble paper has probably gone the way of all old newspapers, and everyone has said hello to the Frosh, I'd like to add my belated hello to them and the rest of the student body and faculty.

Concerning the present war in Europe, a very clever remark was overheard during the past summer. The conversation went like this: First Speaker: "What are your feelings toward the present war in Europe?" Second speaker: "I'm neutral. I don't care who shoots Hitler."

Bob O'Brien and Pete Hanlon came back from their respective world cruises looking like a pair of hot feet with skin on them. They both went for education and to work, so maybe that accounts for everything.

"Elk" Murray is looking like a cut from a fashion page of Esquire. When you get close to him be sure to shield your eyes as the glare is terrific.

Congratulations Sophs on your very entertaining Cotillion. The crowd was the best ever and the Villanovans were better than I've ever heard them. The fellow playing the bass fiddle resembled the "oomph" boy in an old lady's home.

Johnny Lind is back on the campus once more after a tough battle with appendicitis. John claims that the doctors told him he had the greatest pain known to medical science.

The English version of the well known shore letter home from college boy to Dad when strongly desiring money is: "S.O.S., L.S.D., R.S.V.P."

Memoirs of Doctor Hartman's first class of the year down in the C. & F. school. "Yes, I'd go to war with a crowd. Me and eight guys carrying me." This seems to be the general attitude mainly because it is too soon after the last war and many of us still see what happened to some of the boys who fought to save Democracy.

Grover Whalen's extravaganza resting on the filled-in Flushing Meadows afforded many Villanovan's a source of entertainment during the past summer. Bob Wilderotter made no less than eight trips from his native Newark. The man at the main entrance was calling him "B.A." on his last trip and I'm wondering how he learned his nick-name.

Ed Jonik, Editor of Belle Air, Observes Birthday; Has Achieved Success Through Varied Activities

By JOHN P. FULLAM

The day after tomorrow, Edward L. Jonik, our beloved Belle Air editor, celebrates his 26th birthday.

Circumstances surrounding his birth have been lost in the beard of Father Time, but we may safely say that "there was a hot time in North Philadelphia that night."

We next catch up to our hero in Saint Hedwig's grammar school, where, like all good little boys and girls, he studied hard. So diligent was his application to his studies that he was deemed worthy to enter Roman Catholic High School, from which institution he was graduated in 1932.

In Schuylkill Navy

Philosophers of all ages have warned: "All work and no play makes even Ed a dull boy." Hence it was that he became a member of the crew, gambolling over the briny (well, dirty, anyway) waves for two years. In his senior year, he assisted the team to a championship.

So great was Ed's interest in the manly art of back-bending that he joined the Fairmount Rowing Association. As a member of that group he has traveled to Baltimore, Washington, Redbank, and many other cities to take part in regattas. While thus keeping himself in good physical trim, he decided that some additional exercise wouldn't harm his faithful cerebrum, cerebellum, and medulla oblongata. Hence he organized the "Fairmount Log," which publication he has edited for the past two and one-half years.

Work, Work, Work

Upon graduation from high school, he accepted the position of guiding the destinies of a contractors' truck.

In 1933, he entered ye Alma Mater, where he enrolled in the Commerce and Finance school. After one year, he left school temporarily, to become a shipper for the Freihofer Baking Company. Ed held this post for three years, and then re-entered Villanova without severing his relations with Freihofer's; i. e.—he studied in the daytime and worked at night. As a result of this Jekyll and Hyde existence, he was unable to favor extra-curricular activities with his services until last January, when he quit his job. At that time he became the assistant of Bernard McHenry, last year's Belle Air editor, and was also appointed to the Mother's Day committee.

He has several more or less lucrative "sidelines," one of which is a house organ, which has aroused the interest of a large Philadelphia concern.

When asked his stand on the girl question, Ed mused, "Let's see now . . .there used to be a gag line . . ." When cornered, he finally admitted that he had no time for girls—except one!

As far as the future goes, (which is, after all, a good ways) he has a yen for some sort of social work. A tireless worker, he devoted a good part of his summer vacation to his brain child, the 1940 Belle Air. If there's anything in heredity, there won't be much wrong with the coming year-book!

Rug-Cutter Kiley Swings Into Action By Dating Up Early For L. K. D. Hop

By ROBERT KILEY

Bryn Mawr 709, please. Yes, that's right.

Hello! Bette? This is Bob. How are you this fair evening? Your father is still sore . . . well, how was I to know the old gent would wake up when I leaned on the horn. O. K., O. K., don't get cross. Yes, dear. Yes, dear.

The reason I called was to see if a popular girl like you still has an open evening on Friday, October 20. You do? Good! How about hustling out to the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity informal with me? Fine!

Sure. You'll know most of the gang. As a matter of fact, that chubby boy, Harry Taylor, whom we met at the Greek's on Saturday night is the chairman of the dance committee and he promises it will be a sellout. Yes, Harry and that crowd will probably bring dates. They have to in order to be admitted.

The band? Why your old favorites, the "Villanovans." You sure seemed to like them at the Soph Hop, and they should be even smoother at the L. K. D. affair.

Uh-huh! The dancing starts at 9 P. M. and continues till one o'clock in the morning. They are serving refreshments, as usual, so there will be no chance of getting thirsty after hustling a few sharp numbers.

Yes, Cookie, I'll pick you up about 9:30 and . . . O. K. operator, here's another nickel, don't be so mercenary.

Well, Sweets, don't forget we have a date this Saturday night, too, and we can finish planning for the gala pre-med affair then. Uh-huh, well, so long, Dewdrop.

'OWL' SCHEDULES FEATURE

A story on caissons, chambers used for working underwater, by Patrick J. Kenny will be featured in the October issue of the "Villanova Engineer."

Other scheduled articles include a description by James Early of the Percipitron Process, a system used extensively in smoky regions to purify the atmosphere, and a story by Walter N. LaPorte on the semi-micro analysis course in chemistry which is making its first appearance in the school this year.

According to Clement Dinon, Co-Editor, the October issue of the "Engineer" will appear with the same cover design as previous issues.

Billy, The Jitterbug, Sells Sodas; Gets Worm's Eye View of Soph Hop

By WILLIAM SCHUBERT

The Soph Cotillion, social debut for the class of '42, was "but definitely" successful . . . 315 couples do a lot of dancing . . . Friday afternoon—70 frosh seen leaving the campus in the direction of Montgomery Pike where an informal dance is being held at a prominent girls' college . . . Friday night — large delegation from Rosemont on the Villanova dance floor . . . observation — two plus two equals four . . . notice Joe McCabe's haggard expression? . . . chairmaning a dance, with less than two weeks' time for preparation develops a good subject for a "get-a-lift-with-a-Camel" ad. . .Congrats Joe for nice job . . . Chairman McCabe's unofficial aide-de-camp was C. & F.'s debonair Andy Melton . . . John Kirchner was the lad behind the 315-sale ticket drive . . . in answer to many requests we publish the name of the gentleman seen dashing around during the dance with a terrified expression on his face — John Burke was the guilty party . . . Johnny had borrowed practically all the lamps, rugs, etc. in Austin and Fedigan Halls, the lenders holding a suspended sentence over his head, pending the safe return of said furniture . . . the frosh had a private dance at 11:00 o'clock and the sophs had one at 12:00 . . . the reason the boys of '43 were allowed to precede those of '42 was that the Rosemont freshmen were due back in bed at 12:30 o'clock . . . tsk, tsk, youth must have its rest . . . the man behind the scenes was the faculty moderator of the class, Father Sullivan . . . a pat on the back to the unwritten heroes, the unknowns whose work helped to put the cotillion across.

FR. O'LEARY ADVISES PKP

That the first impression made on someone will always stand out vividly in his mind, whether it be favorable or not, was a keynote of a talk at the last meeting of the Phi Kappa Pi by Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A.

Applying for positions, speaking at meetings and conventions, explaining plans, inspiring one's dependents, all demand "selling" at its keenest level. These situations, the fraternity moderator emphasized, must be met by everyone.

The priest tried to plant in his listeners' minds an appreciation of the importance of always making a good impression, since one never knows to what opportunities it may lead or, on the other hand, to what disadvantage.

266 Blind Mice

VILLANOVA is gradually losing her freshmen class. The first year men are becoming entities, lacking title and right, to be called Freshmen of the Class of 1943. They are forfeiting these privileges with their removal of regs, the lackadasical attitude to the freshman regulations that are enumerated in the hand book.

With this the freshmen are losing their right to be classified as "frosh" and without such right, it would be better that they had never entered college. Without the preliminary orientation, a student is unmolded, built without a foundation, a building that may topple over with the slighest ill wind.

You men who are now in the first year of your college career, remember that you entered as freshmen, and that status is rightfully yours with all the honor that it entails. Do not cast it aside as a yoke about your neck. The means that have been instituted, the regs which you are supposed to wear, are your only means of passing that information along to your fellow students. It is in this means alone that you will become part of this great institution, a part of the campus, and primarily a part of the college life that exists about you.

Unless these measures are followed, and the first year men attempt to regain the status of Freshmen in the Class of 1943, there will be necessitated a means of enforcing these regulations. Freshmen at Villanova are expected to have the ability to fortify themselves against the temptations to act upon their own iniative, and to accept the guiding hands of those who have experienced the same sensations. There are many means which can be employed to enforce the wearing of the regs, but it is the hope of the Student Council that such means are not needed to be employed. You, the Freshmen of the Class of 1943, can assist yourself in regaining your legal and righteous standing by donning once again the ensignia of Villanova men, the cap, the button, and the tie.

Live His Truth

TO a sincere but critical non-Catholic, the dogmas of our Catholic Church may hold only negative and neglible interest while they remain stagnant "theories" in black and white. But Christ did not intend the teachings of His and our Church to be merely memorized, admired and forgotten. Indeed no. In all justice He demands we live His truth every second of our lives, for our's is not a "Sunday Religion" to be discarded the remaining six week days. This constant practice of faith not only can but is being observed by multitudes of Catholics. We want even more to follow suit. It is a matter of obligation, not of choice.

Of the early Christians the pagans marvelled, "See how they love one another!" So can it be with those outside the Faith today, but the responsibility is ours. The superficially-interested non-Catholic generally looks for results and measures the Catholic Ideal in terms of everyday reality. Thus is the spread of our Faith by incessant good example, one of the two objects in this drive for materialization of the Catholic Ideal.

As students of a progressive Catholic college we certainly recognize the essence of our moral ideal as love of God and neighbor. Our four-year religion course with the aid of Father John M. Cooper's text books admirably supplies the theory of the Catholic Ideal, and our Augustinian Fathers the theory in practice. But are we doing anything about it? Are we gaining yardage, outrunning our foul opponents of indifference, sensual and wordly joys in life's game for the eternal championship? Are we exerting a maximum effort to score in the real practice of the Catholic Ideal?

THE draft has started. Every senior, junior, sophomore, and freshman in the School of Arts is to enroll immediately.

The goal of the drive is the revival of the School of Arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta. Incite an interest in this endeavor. Speak to the alumni: question them on the policies underlying the fraternity's government and the laws contained in its constitution. Investigate the history of this organization, the oldest on the campus.

Poor and Weary

THE policy of the local electric railway regarding the new forty-six-ride monthly ticket has aroused much comment. Most day-hops employ the facilities of this railway, attending classes on week days only. Several rides remain unused at the end of the 30-day period. At this rate, the fare per single ride is considerably higher than last year.

The new system presents another problem: holidays are frequently within the 30-day period. It is hardly economical to purchase tickets until the end of the particular vacation.

Villanova Boasts Age PLUS Unbroken Policy

Educational Traditon Relates Itself to Great Teachers of Old

By REV. THOMAS F. GILLIGAN, O.S.A., M.A.
Professor of Modern Languages

SHANE LESLIE tells a rather neat little story, which seems to illustrate the fact that the best answer to snobbery is a snub. This story is about the justly famous English public school named Eton College. Everyone knows that Eton has earned for itself an enviable reputation for scholarship, sportsmanship, and good breeding. Everyone has heard that England's battles are won on the playing fields of this same school, and that a list of its graduates is like a roll call of the great names of English history. What most people — including the students at Eton — seem to ignore, is the fact that it owes its foundation to the Catholic, Henry VI., who called it "The College of the Blessed Virgin Mary Beside Windsor." When, therefore, a young Eton snob tried to lord it over the captain of Beaumont's football team, he got the answer he so richly deserved. Beaumont is the English Jesuit school, just as proud of its honorable traditions as Eton is. After a successful football season Beaumont challenged the Etonians. They received the crushing reply: "What is Beaumont?" To which the inspired Beaumont captain answered, "Beaumont is what Eton was—a school for Catholic gentlemen."

Though Villanova is one of the oldest of American Catholic colleges, it can not claim the antiquity of such institutions as Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and others of the so-called Ivy Colleges. To them we must pay the respect due to their venerable old age. But, even while doing so, we must remember that we too can point with pride. What Villanova can boast of, but rarely does, is the fact that, not only has the College been in existence since 1843, but during all that time she taught according to the same principles of religions, culture, and morals that her founding fathers knew. The tradesman who boasts of the age of his firm is justified in so doing only if during all that time the original principles and pride of craftsmanship have continued with unbroken tradition of quality. How ridiculous to boast of the age of an institution which has changed direction with every passing wind of educational change. Who could say that the venerable old colleges of America are the same colleges as intended and envisaged by their founders. Most of them were founded by ministers, but they have long since divorced themselves from the religious purposes of their pioneers. With Villanova, however, as with all Catholic Colleges, no change has ever been made that would change it from the original intent of its founders. The Fathers who came from St. Augustine's in Philadelphia to found a college at Belle Air, could teach at Villanova today. They would, of course, find that the school had progressed, had grown bigger, offered more courses, had better buildings and equipment. But they would find at Villanova the same fundamentals, the same guiding principles, the same religion, the same cultural ideals which they themselves had inculcated, and which they had inherited from the perennial Catholic tradition before them. Essentially, Villanova is as old in its educational tradition as Christiarity. It is heir to the same tradition as Paris, Bologna, Salmanca, Oxford, Cambridge and Mexico. Its Augustinian teachers are brothers of the great teachers of another time and another land. They can hail as brothers in Augustine Aegidius Romanus of the University of Paris, Fra Luis de Leon of the University of Salamanca, the Austin masters of Oxford and Cambridge, and Fra Vera Cruz, the first Rector of the oldest college in North America at Mexico City.

He is now Regent of Studies at St. Mary's Hall. Teaches French. Chief hobby—reading (Chesterton and Wodehouse). Graduate of Villanova in '26

From Peter to Pius, there has never existed a Cahtolic college which has not been guided by the same cardinal principle. From Anselm to Gilson our educators have maintained that our purpose is, first, to teach man to live as a creature of God, sub specie aeternitatis; secondly, to teach man as a unit and to regard nothing human as alien to man; thirdly, to train man's character by a training in practical Christianity, in the Sacramental life of the Church. So thought Mendel and Carr and Fedigan; these are the convictions which made Villanova, or any Catholic College, old with the ivy grown traditions of twenty centuries of Christianity.

BOY! DID I SEE RED!
It's about time college lads got together and put an end to that social scourge "PINK HANDKERCHIEF." This affliction strikes every fellow of age but localizes mainly on schoolboys. It has been a constant problem for years and has not yet, to my knowledge, been solved.

"Pink Handkerchief" may be defined as "a rougish residue remaining on one's kerchief (or the bathroom towel) the morning after the nite before." It is caused mainly by nonkissproof lip rouge or an excess of some of the other paints girls use, frinstance: sun tan powder, cheek rouge.

Accidental Suicide:
Three Dartmouth undergrads, George Sheldon '40, Chap Cranmer '40, Jack Dunnance '38, returned from a mountain climbing trip recently. They were in a party that attempted to scale the Himalayan Peak K-2 (sounds like secret service). K-2, the highest peak in the whole range, mounts 28,200 feet into the clouds, and has never been scaled. Altogether, four men have been killed during the ascent. It seems futile wasting four lives on a mountain side.

Graduates of '39 Enter Various Fields of Endeavor Survey Shows Students Held Interesting Summer Jobs

Law School, Medical School and Industry Entered

By THOMAS J. MOORE and JUSTIN RUBIN

"Thirty-five graduates of the School of Science, class of 1939, have matriculated at 14 different professional schools and universities," according to the Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the Science School.

Philadelphia led, as usual, with the number of colleges and universities. They were Temple University, University of Pennsylvania, Hahnemann Medical College, and Jefferson Medical College.

Southern schools to which Villanova graduates were admitted are Georgetown University, University of Maryland, and Johns Hopkins University.

To the north, Harvard University and Tufts Medical College opened their doors, while in the west, Loyola University, Western Reserve University, Marquette University, Creighton and St. Louis Universities also received Villanova graduates.

During the summer and early fall, many of the successful graduates of the School of Science returned to visit Fr. Dougherty. Among them was Dr. Edward Duschock, a recent graduate of the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. Also paying a visit to the dean were Drs. John Delahanty, Nicholas Colosi, James Luci, William Decherney, John Ford, and Edward Ocelus.

Many fields of activity are represented by the positions obtained by the Villanova class of '39.

In the field of business, graduates have obtained work with some of the outstanding business concerns in the country as for example, Harold Hart is employed by the World's Fair Corporation, N. Y.; John Krutulis works for the Prudential Insurance Co., at Reading, Pa.; William Bailey is on the payroll of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., N. Y.; Francis Cadran is in the legal department of Sears and Roebucks Corp., Phila.; James Dwyer works at the Trenton National Bank, Trenton, N. J.; Joseph Higgins secured employment with the Jay Hislock Inc., Realtors in Jersey City; Norman Kline is working for his father in the grocery business in N. Undergraduate Employment Varies—"Hopping to Concrete Mixing

By FRANK FITZPATRICK

Students of Villanova College engaged in extensive fields of summer employment.

In the survey, which is representative of the area from the Field House to Fedigan Hall and from the Field Hall to Mendel, a fair idea may be gathered as to just how a college man who is not vacationing or engaged in summer school work, labors during summer recess period. It seems that students will accept anything that resembles a position from a vice presidency to a Fuller Brush man, the former being preferred by a popular majority. Here are some of the answers received.

BOB MENTZINGER, C&F—"I was employed as a regular usher at the Erlen Theater, 19 and City Line." (What's the idea, Bob, did they need a bouncer?)

DAVE MORSE, Science—House to house canvasser. Sort of a Fuller Brush man but employed by the Watkins Household Supply Company. Dave says that the toughest part of the sale is to talk your way into the house.

ELK MURRAY, C&F—This football player hung suits on racks instead of blocks on halfbacks for dear old Jacob Reed & Sons. Likewise Elk says he is the campus agent. (Advertisement.)

Ed Jonik, Editor of Belle Air, Observes Birthday; Has Achieved Success Through Varied Activities

Ed held this post for three years, and then re-entered Villanova without severing his relations with Freihofer's; i. e.—he studied in the daytime and worked at night. As a result of this Jekyll and Hyde existence, he was unable to favor extra-curricular activities with his services until last January, when he quit his job. At that time he became the assistant of Bernard McHenry, last year's Belle Air editor, and was also appointed to the Mother's Day committee.

He has several more or less lucrative "sidelines," one of which is a house organ, which has aroused the interest of a large Philadelphia concern.

When asked his stand on the girl question, Ed mused, "Let's see now . . . there used to be a gag line . . ." When cornered, he finally admitted that he had no time for girls—except one!

As far as the future goes, (which is, after all, a good ways) he has a yen for some sort of social work. A tireless worker, he devoted a good part of his summer vacation to his brain child, the 1940 Belle Air. If there's anything in heredity, there won't be much wrong with the coming year-book!

Rug-Cutter Kiley Swings Into Action By Dating Up Early For L. K. D. Hop

By ROBERT KILEY

Bryn Mawr 709, please. Yes, that's right.

Hello! Bette? This is Bob. How are you this fair evening? Your father is still sore . . . well, how was I to know the old gent would wake up when I leaned on the horn. O. K., O. K., don't get cross. Yes, dear. Yes, dear.

The reason I called was to see if a popular girl like you still has an open evening on Friday, October 20. You do? Good! How about hustling out to the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity informal with me? Fine!

Sure. You'll know most of the gang. As a matter of fact, that chubby boy, Harry Taylor, whom we met at the Greek's on Saturday night is the chairman of the dance committee and he promises it will be a sellout. Yes, Harry and that crowd will probably bring dates. They have to in order to be admitted.

The band? Why your old favorites, the "Villanovans." You sure seemed to like them at the Soph Hop, and they should be even smoother at the L. K. D. affair.

Uh-huh! The dancing starts at 9 P. M. and continues till one o'clock in the morning. They are serving refreshments, as usual, so there will be no chance of getting thirsty after hustling a few sharp numbers.

Yes, Cookie, I'll pick you up about 9:30 and . . . O. K. operator, here's another nickel, don't be so mercenary.

Well, Sweets, don't forget we have a date this Saturday night, too, and we can finish planning for the gala pre-med affair then. Uh-huh, well, so long, Dewdrop.

'OWL' SCHEDULES FEATURE

A story on caissons, chambers used for working underwater, by Patrick J. Kenny will be featured in the October issue of the "Villanova Engineer."

Other scheduled articles include a description by James Early of the Percipitron Process, a system used extensively in smoky regions to purify the atmosphere, and a story by Walter N. LaPorte on the semi-micro analysis course in chemistry which is making its first appearance in the school this year.

According to Clement Dimon, Co-Editor, the October issue of the "Engineer" will appear with the same cover design as previous issues.

FR. O'LEARY ADVISES PKP

That the first impression made on someone will always stand out vividly in his mind, whether it be favorable or not, was a keynote of a talk at the last meeting of the Phi Kappa Pi by Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A.

Applying for positions, speaking at meetings and conventions, explaining plans, inspiring one's dependents, all demand "selling" at its keenest level. These situations, the fraternity moderator emphasized, must be met by everyone.

The priest tried to plant in his listeners' minds an appreciation of the importance of always making a good impression, since one never knows to what opportunities it may lead or, on the other hand, to what disadvantage.

Students Express Opinion Favoring Visitor Committee

General Belief Holds Guests Would Feel More Welcome

By THOMAS A. SHALLOW

A canvass of student opinion found it unanimous in favor of an organization to act as host to visiting teams, clubs, and individuals, which was suggested in a VILLANOVAN editorial last week.

Charles Martin, science senior, expressed what seemed to be the general sentiment, saying, "It seems to me like a good idea. Visitors would feel more welcome and would really see what Villanova is like."

Opinion is that there is a real need for the organization on the campus. "It would take up the slack caused by the lack of fraternities to act as hosts," is the belief of Dan Crossmire, C. and F. senior.

An example of what comes of neglecting visitors was offered by Bill Devers, science senior and drummer in the band. It seems the Villanova band arrived late for the Manhattan game last year because there was no one to guide them to the field. Inconveniences just as annoying could happen to Villanova visitors.

Most students believe the managers have too much to do now. They would be able to look after their own teams better if relieved of the care of visitors, is the belief of Bob Griffin, science senior. Others thought the managers and committee should work together; "Managers of our teams and clubs should have some part in entertaining their own guests," held Gordon Brosmer, C. and F. junior.

There was a variety of suggestions concerning the make-up of the organization. Since freshmen are in most activities, they should be included in the group, is the opinion of frosh engineer James Bigley.

As to how its members should be selected, Fred Clark, C. and F. sophomore believes, "Membership should be awarded only to really qualified men. Student Council should select these from those who volunteer to serve."

Jim Jernee, C. and F. junior said there should be enough in it so a group of at least one from each school could meet each visiting team, but Robert O'Brien, C. and F. senior didn't believe many would be willing to work on it.

Many believe some place should be available where the visitors could relax. "The committee should receive their guests at Simpson Hall. Now there isn't any special place where they can just rest up and feel at home," said Walter Filpef, senior pre-med. Bernard Martin, C. and F. senior, added that these facilities should also be open to individual students when relatives or friends visit them.

Jim McBrady, C. and F. junior, thought the guests should be made to feel completely at home. "If the committee should show visitors around school it would be very nice," he said. "But if they were given an expense account to really entertain them it would be wonderful."

MUSIC SEMINAR TO BEGIN OCT. 11

The Fall cycle of musical programs sponsored by the Music Seminar wil lcommence on Wednesday evening, Oct. 11. As was the custom inaugurated last year, the seminars will be held in the homelike surroundings of the reception rooms in Simpson Hall.

The opening program will be made up of the following selections: Poet and Peasant Overture by Von Suppe, followed by a short biography of Shubert. After this history of the great composer the audience will listen to Symphony No. 8 in B Minor, better known as Shubert's Unfinished Symphony. Following a short intermission Selections from the music of Victor Herbert will be heard and the concluding number will be The Overture from The Barber of Seville by Rossini.

It should be noted that all the selections will be High Fidelity Recordings and the presence of a portable moving picture screen will greatly aid in adding instructive interest to the programs.

Drenich Finds Refuge At Villanova After Seeing Austrian Anschluss

By FRANCIS J. MAMBRETTI

Midst the tramping of marching feet and the sound of resounding "Heil's," Rudolph Drenich, Ph. D., newest addition to the teaching staff of Villanova College, viewed the anschluss between Austria and Nazi Germany.

A native of Vienna, he had been a district leader of the Catholic Youth Party, in charge of approximately 1600 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20. But with the advent of the Nazi regime, this organization was disbanded. Mr. Drenich was forced to flee the country when the underground movement of which he was a member came under the investigation of the Nazi police.

Concerning the life at Villanova, Dr. Drenich declares that in America there seems to be more of a comradely relationship between the students and the teachers than there is in Europe. In Europe the relationship is on a strictly formal scale while here in America there exists not only the formal relationship of the classroom but also a friendship which carries outside of the school into the students' private life.

In regard to the political situation, which seems to be the topic most under discussion these days, Mr. Drenich declares that he only knows of the situation in Vienna but that there the people seemed to want Hitler for the first few months but after that they were disappointed because he did not produce the results which they expected.

Gordon Elected Pres. Of Mathematics Club

Nicholas Aceto, Bernard Clark and Thomas Junker Also in Positions

Vincent J. A. Gordon, sophomore mechanical engineer was elected president of the Mathematics Club at its meeting in 210 Mendel, Monday, October 2. Other new officers, all sophomore engineers, are: Bernard Clark, vice-president; Nicholac Aceto, secretary, and Thomas Junker, treasurer.

Two meetings a month, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, are planned for the coming year. At the former, club members will lead the discussion, while the evening gatherings will feature guest speakers.

Mr. Emil Amelotti, M. S., Assistant Professor of Mathematics, the moderator of the club, has in addition planned to have two banquets during the year. The first will be held around the middle of December, and the speaker will be some outstanding mathematician from the East.

Freshmen at present will be accepted only as associate members. Those finally elected to the club will be inducted at a dinner in the spring, and until then candidates are invited to attend the meetings.

A. I. E. E. TO MAKE JOURNEY TO SCRANTON CONVENTION

Fifteen members of the Villanova student chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers are leaving for Scranton tomorrow noon to attend the district convention of the society.

Professional and student groups from all over the East will attend the meeting, which is to honor Dr. F. Scott, Professor of Electrical Engineering at Yale University, who first organized student chapters.

John Rainey, senior electrical, is chairman of the trip committee, and he has arranged for the local delegates to get back Thursday night, after visiting an industrial plant on the way.

Jonik Names York, Scott, Wilderotter For Editorships

Belle Air Takes Shape With Only Two Positions To Be Filled

With four of the six editorial posts of the Belle Air already filled, the yearbook staff is rapidly making its 1940 edition take shape.

Editor-in-Chief Edward L. Jonik, who has been working on the publication during the past summer, announced that the positions of sports editor and copy editor have not yet been filled.

Both Robert G. Wilderotter, photography editor, and Joseph J. York, college editor, are laboring on the senior section of the book.

Wilderotter, whose duty it is to supervise the taking of all pictures for the Belle Air, is now engaged in arrangements for sittings of the graduating class.

York, who has charge of the entire college section of the yearbook, is supervising the biographies which accompany each senior portrait.

James B. Scott, who has been appointed business manager, has charge of the financial end of the publication's work, and is now busy obtaining advertisements.

NEW CHEMISTRY COURSE UNDERGOES EXPERIMENT

Twelve selected sophomores in the chemistry and chemical engineering courses are taking a semimicro qualitative analysis course as an experiment to determine if the course can satisfactorily replace the macro-qualitative analysis now taken by freshman engineers, chemists, and science men in Chemistry 102 and second year chemists, chemical engineers and pre-meds.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Associate Professor of Chemistry, and Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O. S. A., Ph. D., are teaching the course. If they find it successful, this procedure will be used by the freshmen when they study qualitative analysis in the second semester, and by sophomores from now on.

Interclass Debates Will Inaugurate Speech Arts Season

Various Schools to Have Teams; Positions Are Open to All

Beta Gamma, Villanova's debating society under the direction of Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., will inaugurate the speech-arts season with interclass debates to be held on or about November 1. The various schools are expected to organize their own teams for the contest.

"Should President Roosevelt's Neutrality Proposals Be Adopted" will be the topic for discussion not only for this debate but for succeeding ones. From these campus hostilities will be picked the team which will represent Villanova in the coming debating wars.

Although there are a few returning veterans, Mr. Frayne insists that the positions are wide open. Senior holdovers include: Bradley McManus and Robert O'Brien of the Commerce and Finance School; Joseph McNamara, Robert Wilderotter and John Harrington, all Artsmen.

Those interested in participating in the class debates should contact Murray Zealor, manager.

To further the interests of the society, Mr. Frayne will attend a convention at the Penn-Harris Hotel in Harrisburg of the Pennsylvania Collegiate Debating Association on Saturday, October 7.

CEM HOLDS BANQUET FOR NEW MEMBERS

Chi Epsilon Mu, honorary fraternity of the engineering school held its first meeting of the year in 213 Mendel yesterday afternoon with John Seelaus, its president, a senior mechanical, presiding.

Daniel Troy, senior chemical, the secretary-treasurer, read the financial report and recorded the minutes of the meeting.

Senior engineers with outstanding scholastic records and approved by the faculty will be received into the fraternity at a banquet late this month. Candidates from the junior class will not be elected until spring.

Cat Undefeated Streak Faces Crucial Test

BLUE LIGHTWEIGHTS OPEN SEASON WITH CORNELL SATURDAY

Harvey Buek Makes Debut as Coach of Wildcats at Ithaca, N. Y.

With only a week left in which to practice the 150 squad has been cut twice by its mentor, Harvey Buek, to reduce its number of 70 to that of 35. Harvey has worked his men hard the past week in anticipation of the game with Cornell at Ithaca this coming Saturday.

The first part of practice last week was mostly a weeding out process with skull sessions and dummy scrimmages being the key notes. However after the two cuts the squad got down to business and on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday had some tough scrimmages. These scrimmages were noted for their hard blocking and fine defensive work.

Backfield

Although there has been no definite assigning of positions by Harvey Buek the backfield seems to have settled down to Lombardo at full; Red Brown at quarterback; and Murphy, Brown, and Lattanza fighting hard to secure the starting half back posts. Nihil is hard pressed at center by several newcomers. Material at the guard position is plentiful with Sachetti, Rappleyea and McMahon leading the parade. Al Wood and Philips are busy fighting off a flock of candidates for the tackle jobs. At ends Dominick and McGurk have practically cinched the starting positions but they are ably backed by O'Brien, Liscio and Gaelisch.

Ready for Cornell

By the middle of this week Buek should have his charges well drilled in the fundamental plays of the Notre Dame system and should be ready for the Cornell combat. If the practice sessions are any indication of what is to come Villanova will not have to fear for the future standing of their lightweight football team in the 150 league.

The "Big Red" is reputedly strong this year. It is their second session in the Eastern Intercollegiate league and they seem ripe to become a threat to other members. Last year their first representative had one of the largest squad turnouts in the history of the league.

From available reports it seems that the Ithacans depend largely on a bruising ground attack with just enough aerials to keep opponents on their toes.

Courtmen Hold Informal Drills at Field House

For several days Al Severance's Blue basketball squad has been holding informal drills at the Field House. Formal practice will start in November.

Replacing such stalwarts as "Jungle Jim" Montgomery, Art Vigilante, Johnny Krutulis, and Lou Dubino is Severance's main task this year. Remaining from the '38-'39 outfit are Paul Nugent, Ernie Robinson, Chuck Yund, Bill Sinnott, and last, but by no means least, the "Dazzling Duke" of Intercollegiate basketball, George Duzminski.

Several of last year's great freshman club are also striving for varsity spots. Severance refuses to comment at the present time, so it looks as if all varsity posts are wide open. The opening game is scheduled for early in December.

Cats In "Crisis Clash" Saturday; Powerful Aggies Confident Of Win

Aggies Conquests of Centenary and Santa Clara Warning to Blue

By SAUL WALLACH

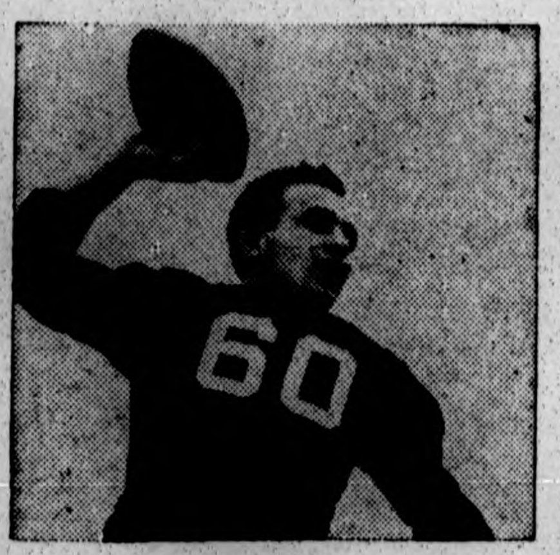
Found! One football coach who isn't singing the blues or calling for the old towel to wipe away those tears. That erstwhile gentleman is non other than Homer Norton coach of the Texas A. and M. who play host to the Wildcats way down deep in Tyler, Texas, on Saturday afternoon.

Norton predicts that the Aggies will turn out that powerhouse the Southwest Conference has been dreading since he came to the Aggies in 1934. Says Mr. Norton: "If I don't have the best material in the conference, I'll eat my team's uniforms with salt and pepper."

The Texans must have plenty of material in order to make their coach so optimistic. After losing a crop of 13 stars via graduation, including in the array such stars as Dick Todd, all-conference back; Owens Rogers, three-year letterman; Bill Minnock and Karl Stevens, regular guards; Zed Coston, varsity center; and both starting ends in Britt and Schroeder. Yet he shouts for joy.

No folks this guy isn't crazy. Just see what the Aggies have done this early in the campaign. Norton's youngsters pounded Oklahoma A. and M. for a 32-0 count and then bowled over Centenary 14-0. Santa Clara, always a national standout taem, gave the Texans the toughest battle despite the score. After four hard periods of football the score read 7-3.

Cat Hope



NICK BASCA

Although he lost 13 true and tried veterans, Coach Norton can place on the field two teams with enough experience to make it tough for anybody. By the looks of those results they have been doing just that.

Behind a line that holds romps Johnny Kimbrough, 210 pound fullback who has torn conference lines to shreds for two years. Matching Nick Bisca Saturday afternoon will be Walemon Price who has flipped two touchdown passes against both Centenary and Oklahoma. Derace Moser has the other conference coaches worried with his broken field running. Moser, only a Sophomore, has apparently clinched a starting post for his all-around play. The fourth member of the quartet is Jim Thomason, a triple-threat halfback.

Norton wasn't sure what his starting array would be Saturday afternoon against Villanova, but he is certain to have a veteran at every position.

Texas A. and M. with the largest enrollment of any all men school in the country has been just another ball club as far as things football go. An irate alumni is wondering why a school with more than 6000 males can do no better than schools with less than one-fourth of that enrollment. So Mr. Homer Norton finds himself with his back towards the door which keeps him from the alumni wolves howling for his scalp. A victory over the Wildcats will help him and Texas A. and M. in more ways than one.

Climatic conditions will favor the Norton men immeasurably. How the Wildcats do in tropic weather can be understood by looking back to the Orangeburg, South Carolina game where the Wildcats barely eked out a 6-6 tie. It was festival time down in Dixie and Saturday finds Villanova and the Aggies playing before the visitors to the Tyler Rose Festival.

The team will leave Villanova on Wednesday night.

TRACKMEN IN LIGHT PRACTICE SESSIONS

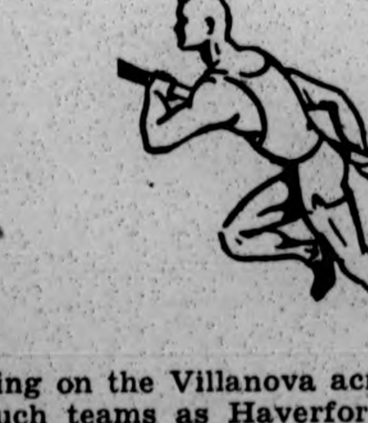
Call Issued for New Candidates; Practice Meets Scheduled

With light scheduled workouts scheduled for the next few weeks, the cindermen of Villanova answered the call of their high-geared coach, Jumbo Elliot.

Jumbo is again putting his ever-active brain to work, by sending his runners out into the field of cross-country. This move of course is not to organize a team that would be representative of harrier competition, but will be very wisely used as a conditioner for the men who will carry the burden of indoor running.

Informal Meets

However, the Wildcats will engage in a bit of informal trespassing on the Villanova acres against such teams as Haverford, Swarthmore, and Maybe St. Joseph's. Usually there is no score kept in these meets, but it certainly is an indication of the team's condition.



This Fall, metor Elliot plans to stage a 'Fall handicap for both Cross-country, and Track and Field. Both are open to the entire student body, and 'there will be medals issued for placers in the latter. An undertaking like this has always been the ambition of Elliot

NOT quite a year ago Villanova College's great boxing team was extended an invitation to participate in Wisconsin University's National Intercollegiates — the "Rose Bowl" of college boxing. Sophomore Bob Mentzinger, Junior Bill Duffy, Mike Ariano and others were considered to be the "cream of the Eastern college ring crop." Villanova mittmen were acknowledged to be of the best. Future prospects were brilliant as the team was not weakened at all by graduation, the usual bugaboo of great athletic aggregations. Instead it was expected to be strengthened by incoming frosh.

Now, less than a year later, let's look at the picture. Villanova, an ancient power in intercollegiate boxing, is not even represented by a team! The sport, for reasons unknown to us, was abolished with a fine team still enrolled in school. Why? That is a question we can't answer, although we are intensely interested. It seems to us that a mistake was made when the ring sport was abandoned. Let's get it back soon. The athletic program should be enlarged, not cut.

Passes were prolific Friday night in the South Carolina game. Although a great deal of them fell short of their mark they served notice of what to expect this week when the 'Cats trek down to Texas. Texan teams brag of their wide-open play. There is nothing like beating a team at its own game and that seems to be exactly what the Villanovans intend to do.

When, and if, the team returns from the southwest still undefeated we suggest that all Villanova turn out en masse to greet the return of what we

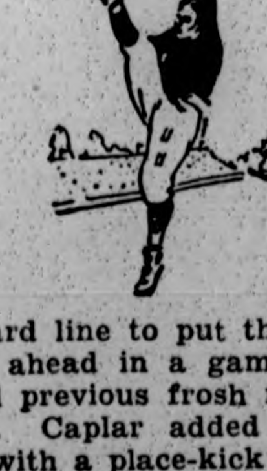
FRESHMEN PASS TO 7-0 WIN IN OPENER

St. Benedict's Prep Falls Before Kittens' Aerial Attack; Biekewitz Scores

A long pass, coupled with a beautiful run, near the end of the third quarter made possible a fourth period score and a 7-0 victory for Villanova's freshman football team in a game against St. Benedict's Prep played in Newark on Friday night. The game was marred, however, by a serious leg injury to one of the prepsters' starting linemen, which incident seemed to have a demoralizing effect upon his teammates.

Caplar Adds Point

Immediately after the teams changed goals to begin the final 15 minutes of play, Biekewitz, Kitten fullback, plunged over from the two yard line to put the Blue and White ahead in a game that saw several previous frosh marches repulsed. Caplar added the extra point with a place-kick to give the contest its final coloring.



Outstanding for the Kittens was the work of Eusco, who did most of the punting, Prysicki, Kupecki, and Christman. Villanova's frosh showed an exceptionally strong defense and a brilliant passing attack. Unable to gain at all through the line, the Saints were forced to take to the air for the yardage that they did get.

CHISICK HEADS FOR 'ALL - AMERICAN' AS S. CAROLINA FALLS

Center's Defensive Play and Mazzei's Punt-Returns Feature Romp

Revenge is sweet—so they say—and Villanova's "sweet tooth" was well satisfied last Friday night at Shibe Park, when "Clipper" Smith's little boys in Blue crushed South Carolina, 40-0.

Memories of a certain day last Fall, when a South Carolina team put a blot on Villanova's perfect record and recollections of the Orangeburg, S. C., fans "reception" to the 1938 Wildcats were foremost in the Cats' minds when they took the field. Those memories can be transferred to the credit side of the Villanova ledger now; the debit is washed out!

Chisick Superb

In a game where each and every man on the squad performs in "All-American" style it is hard to single out any one great performance. Such a game was last Friday's. Yet, in this reporter's opinion one performance does stand out above all. All the Wildcats were in fine form, but big, powerful Andy Chisick was superb.

This typewriter can't deliver enough adjectives to describe Andy's play while he was in the ball game. Defensively he played as great a game as any center in history. Offensively he was the nth degree of perfection. Sixty percent or more of the tackles made while Chisick was in the game saw Andy as a direct factor. In most of the others he paved the way for the tackler by breaking up the interference. Truly a great performance.

Mazzei Paves Way

Harry Mazzei, Villanova quarterback, also showed himself greater than ever. His first-half punt-returns paved the way for Villanova touchdowns and demoralized the Southerners.

Performances of such sophomores as Ad Worthington, Joe Behot, and others served advance notice of future Villanova prowess. South Carolina was the first major foe for these newcomers and they handled themselves with the cool, calm, opportunist tactics of experienced Smith products.

Every man on the Villanova squad except two hampered by injuries took part in the game as Smith used numerous substitutions in a vain effort to stop the slaughter of the Gamecocks. This was impossible.

Tennis Tourney Slowed By Inclement Weather

Another temporary halt in the progress of the annual Fall intramural tennis tournament was brought about last week when heavy rains and foggy weather forced the amateur raqueteers to withhold from the clay courts.

Reach Quarter-Finals

The round - robin tournament, sponsored by each hall, has only gone as far as the quarter-finals, but with the weather man's prophecy for a clear week, the tournament should reach its climax this week-end. Fr. McKee, director of the Intramural athletics, has formulated plans for the finalists of each dormitory to compete to prove which is the supreme player of the campus.

Austin Hall leads the list of entries with 24, while Fedigan follows with 20 entries. Mendel and Alumni have contributed 30 participants and the day-hop men are rather few.

The Fall cycle of musical programs sponsored by the Music Seminar will commence on Wednesday evening, Oct. 11. As was the custom inaugurated last year, the seminars will be held in the homelike surroundings of the reception rooms in Simpson Hall.

The opening program will be made up of the following selections: Poet and Peasant Overture by Von Suppe, followed by a short biography of Shubert. After this history of the great composer the audience will listen to Symphony No. 8 in B Minor, better known as Shubert's Unfinished Symphony. Following a short intermission Selections from the music of Victor Herbert will be heard and the concluding number will be The Overture from The Barber of Seville by Rossini.

It should be noted that all the selections will be High Fidelity Recordings and the presence of a portable moving picture screen will greatly aid in adding instructive interest to the programs.

Drenich Finds Refuge At Villanova After Seeing Austrian Anschluss

By FRANCIS J. MAMBRETTI

Midst the tramping of marching feet and the sound of resounding "Heil's," Rudolph Drenich, Ph. D., newest addition to the teaching staff of Villanova College, viewed the anschluss between Austria and Nazi Germany.

A native of Vienna, he had been a district leader of the Catholic Youth Party, in charge of approximately 1600 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20. But with the advent of the Nazi regime, this organization was disbanded. Mr. Drenich was forced to flee the country when the underground movement of which he was a member came under the investigation of the Nazi police.

Concerning the life at Villanova, Dr. Drenich declares that in America there seems to be more of a comradely relationship between the students and the teachers than there is in Europe. In Europe the relationship is on a strictly formal scale while here in America there exists not only the formal relationship of the classroom but also a friendship which carries outside of the school into the students' private life.

In regard to the political situation, which seems to be the topic most under discussion these days, Mr. Drenich declares that he only knows of the situation in Vienna but that there the people seemed to want Hitler for the first few months but after that they were disappointed because he did not produce the results which they expected.

Gordon Elected Pres. Of Mathematics Club

Vincent J. A. Gordon, sophomore mechanical engineer was elected president of the Mathematics Club at its meeting in 210 Mendel, Monday, October 2. Other new officers, all sophomore engineers, are: Bernard Clark, vice-president; Nicholac Aceto, secretary, and Thomas Junker, treasurer.

Two meetings a month, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, are planned for the coming year. At the former, club members will lead the discussion, while the evening gatherings will feature guest speakers.

Mr. Emil Amelotti, M. S., Assistant Professor of Mathematics, the moderator of the club, has in addition planned to have two banquets during the year. The first will be held around the middle of December, and the speaker will be some outstanding mathematician from the East.

Freshmen at present will be accepted only as associate members. Those finally elected to the club will be inducted at a dinner in the spring, and until then candidates are invited to attend the meetings.

A. I. E. E. TO MAKE JOURNEY TO SCRANTON CONVENTION

Fifteen members of the Villanova student chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers are leaving for Scranton tomorrow noon to attend the district convention of the society.

Professional and student groups from all over the East will attend the meeting, which is to honor Dr. F. Scott, Professor of Electrical Engineering at Yale University, who first organized student chapters.

John Rainey, senior electrical, is chairman of the trip committee, and he has arranged for the local delegates to get back Thursday night, after visiting an industrial plant on the way.

Jonik Names York, Scott, Wilderotter For Editorships

Belle Air Takes Shape With Only Two Positions To Be Filled

With four of the six editorial posts of the Belle Air already filled, the yearbook staff is rapidly making its 1940 edition take shape.

Editor-in-Chief Edward L. Jonik, who has been working on the publication during the past summer, announced that the positions of sports editor and copy editor have not yet been filled.

Both Robert G. Wilderotter, photography editor, and Joseph J. York, college editor, are laboring on the senior section of the book.

Wilderotter, whose duty it is to supervise the taking of all pictures for the Belle Air, is now engaged in arrangements for sittings of the graduating class.

York, who has charge of the entire college section of the yearbook, is supervising the biographies which accompany each senior portrait.

James B. Scott, who has been appointed business manager, has charge of the financial end of the publication's work, and is now busy obtaining advertisements.

NEW CHEMISTRY COURSE UNDERGOES EXPERIMENT

Twelve selected sophomores in the chemistry and chemical engineering courses are taking a semimicro qualitative analysis course as an experiment to determine if the course can satisfactorily replace the macro-qualitative analysis now taken by freshman engineers, chemists, and science men in Chemistry 102 and second year chemists, chemical engineers and pre-meds.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Associate Professor of Chemistry, and Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O. S. A., Ph. D., are teaching the course. If they find it successful, this procedure will be used by the freshmen when they study qualitative analysis in the second semester, and by sophomores from now on.

Interclass Debates Will Inaugurate Speech Arts Season

Various Schools to Have Teams; Positions Are Open to All

Beta Gamma, Villanova's debating society under the direction of Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., will inaugurate the speech-arts season with interclass debates to be held on or about November 1. The various schools are expected to organize their own teams for the contest.

"Should President Roosevelt's Neutrality Proposals Be Adopted" will be the topic for discussion not only for this debate but for succeeding ones. From these campus hostilities will be picked the team which will represent Villanova in the coming debating wars.

Although there are a few returning veterans, Mr. Frayne insists that the positions are wide open. Senior holdovers include: Bradley McManus and Robert O'Brien of the Commerce and Finance School; Joseph McNamara, Robert Wilderotter and John Harrington, all Artsmen.

Those interested in participating in the class debates should contact Murray Zealor, manager.

To further the interests of the society, Mr. Frayne will attend a convention at the Penn-Harris Hotel in Harrisburg of the Pennsylvania Collegiate Debating Association on Saturday, October 7.

CEM HOLDS BANQUET FOR NEW MEMBERS

Chi Epsilon Mu, honorary fraternity of the engineering school held its first meeting of the year in 213 Mendel yesterday afternoon with John Seelaus, its president, a senior mechanical, presiding.

Daniel Troy, senior chemical, the secretary-treasurer, read the financial report and recorded the minutes of the meeting.

Senior engineers with outstanding scholastic records and approved by the faculty will be received into the fraternity at a banquet late this month. Candidates from the junior class will not be elected until spring.

Cat Undefeated Streak Faces Crucial Test

Cats In "Crisis Clash" Saturday; Powerful Aggies Confident Of Win

Aggies Conquests of Centenary and Santa Clara Warning to Blue

By SAUL WALLACH

Found! One football coach who isn't singing the blues or calling for the old towel to wipe away those tears. That erstwhile gentleman is non other than Homer Norton coach of the Texas A. and M. who play host to the Wildcats way down deep in Tyler, Texas, on Saturday afternoon.

Norton predicts that the Aggies will turn out that powerhouse the Southwest Conference has been dreading since he came to the Aggies in 1934. Says Mr. Norton: "If I don't have the best material in the conference, I'll eat my team's uniforms with salt and pepper."

The Texans must have plenty of material in order to make their coach so optimistic. After losing a crop of 13 stars via graduation, including in the array such stars as Dick Todd, all-conference back; Owens Rogers, three-year letterman; Bill Minnock and Karl Stevens, regular guards; Zed Coston, varsity center; and both starting ends in Britt and Schroeder. Yet he shouts for joy.

No folks this guy isn't crazy. Just see what the Aggies have done this early in the campaign. Norton's youngsters pounded Oklahoma A. and M. for a 32-0 count and then bowled over Centenary 14-0. Santa Clara, always a national standout taem, gave the Texans the toughest battle despite the score. After four hard periods of football the score read 7-3.

Although he lost 13 true and tried veterans, Coach Norton can place on the field two teams with enough experience to make it tough for anybody. By the looks of those results they have been doing just that.

Behind a line that holds romps Johnny Kimbrough, 210 pound fullback who has torn conference lines to shreds for two years. Matching Nick Bisca Saturday afternoon will be Walemon Price who has flipped two touchdown passes against both Centenary and Oklahoma. Derace Moser has the other conference coaches worried with his broken field running. Moser, only a Sophomore, has apparently clinched a starting post for his all-around play. The fourth member of the quartet is Jim Thomason, a triple-threat halfback.

Norton wasn't sure what his starting array would be Saturday afternoon against Villanova, but he is certain to have a veteran at every position.

Texas A. and M. with the largest enrollment of any all men school in the country has been just another ball club as far as things football go. An irate alumni is wondering why a school with more than 6000 males can do no better than schools with less than one-fourth of that enrollment. So Mr. Homer Norton finds himself with his back towards the door which keeps him from the alumni wolves howling for his scalp. A victory over the Wildcats will help him and Texas A. and M. in more ways than one.

Climatic conditions will favor the Norton men immeasurably. How the Wildcats do in tropic weather can be understood by looking back to the Orangeburg, South Carolina game where the Wildcats barely eked out a 6-6 tie. It was festival time down in Dixie and Saturday finds Villanova and the Aggies playing before the visitors to the Tyler Rose Festival.

The team will leave Villanova on Wednesday night.

BLUE LIGHTWEIGHTS OPEN SEASON WITH CORNELL SATURDAY

With only a week left in which to practice the 150 squad has been cut twice by its mentor, Harvey Buek, to reduce its number of 70 to that of 35. Harvey has worked his men hard the past week in anticipation of the game with Cornell at Ithaca this coming Saturday.

The first part of practice last week was mostly a weeding out process with skull sessions and dummy scrimmages being the key notes. However after the two cuts the squad got down to business and on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday had some tough scrimmages. These scrimmages were noted for their hard blocking and fine defensive work.

Backfield

Although there has been no definite assigning of positions by Harvey Buek the backfield seems to have settled down to Lombardo at full; Red Brown at quarterback; and Murphy, Brown, and Lattanza fighting hard to secure the starting half back posts. Nihil is hard pressed at center by several newcomers. Material at the guard position is plentiful with Sachetti, Rappleyea and McMahon leading the parade. Al Wood and Philips are busy fighting off a flock of candidates for the tackle jobs. At ends Dominick and McGurk have practically cinched the starting positions but they are ably backed by O'Brien, Liscio and Gaelisch.

Ready for Cornell

By the middle of this week Buek should have his charges well drilled in the fundamental plays of the Notre Dame system and should be ready for the Cornell combat. If the practice sessions are any indication of what is to come Villanova will not have to fear for the future standing of their lightweight football team in the 150 league.

The "Big Red" is reputedly strong this year. It is their second session in the Eastern Intercollegiate league and they seem ripe to become a threat to other members. Last year their first representative had one of the largest squad turnouts in the history of the league.

From available reports it seems that the Ithacans depend largely on a bruising ground attack with just enough aerials to keep opponents on their toes.

Courtmen Hold Informal Drills at Field House

For several days Al Severance's Blue basketball squad has been holding informal drills at the Field House. Formal practice will start in November.

Replacing such stalwarts as "Jungle Jim" Montgomery, Art Vigilante, Johnny Krutulis, and Lou Dubino is Severance's main task this year. Remaining from the '38-'39 outfit are Paul Nugent, Ernie Robinson, Chuck Yund, Bill Sinnott, and last, but by no means least, the "Dazzling Duke" of Intercollegiate basketball, George Duzminski.

Several of last year's great freshman club are also striving for varsity spots. Severance refuses to comment at the present time, so it looks as if all varsity posts are wide open. The opening game is scheduled for early in December.

TRACKMEN IN LIGHT PRACTICE SESSIONS

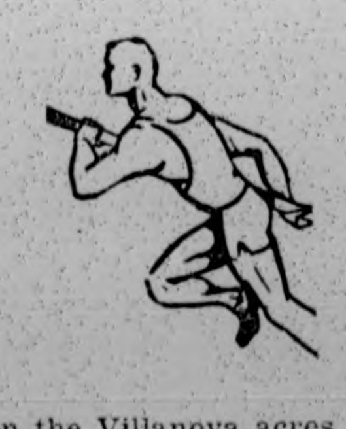
With light scheduled workouts scheduled for the next few weeks, the cindermen of Villanova answered the call of their high-geared coach, Jumbo Elliot.

Jumbo is again putting his ever-active brain to work, by sending his runners out into the field of cross-country. This move of course is not to organize a team that would be representative of harrier competition, but will be very wisely used as a conditioner for the men who will carry the burden of indoor running.

Informal Meets

However, the Wildcats will engage in a bit of informal trespassing on the Villanova acres against such teams as Haverford, Swarthmore, and Maybe St. Joseph's. Usually there is no score kept in these meets, but it certainly is an indication of the team's condition.



This Fall, metor Elliot plans to stage a 'Fall handicap for both Cross-country, and Track and Field. Both are open to the entire student body, and 'there will be medals issued for placers in the latter. An undertaking like this has always been the ambition of Elliot

NOT quite a year ago Villanova College's great boxing team was extended an invitation to participate in Wisconsin University's National Intercollegiates—the "Rose Bowl" of college boxing. Sophomore Bob Mentzinger, Junior Bill Duffy, Mike Ariano and others were considered to be the "cream of the Eastern college ring crop." Villanova mittmen were acknowledged to be of the best. Future prospects were brilliant as the team was not weakened at all by graduation, the usual bugaboo of great athletic aggregations. Instead it was expected to be strengthened by incoming frosh.

Now, less than a year later, let's look at the picture. Villanova, an ancient power in intercollegiate boxing, is not even represented by a team! The sport, for reasons unknown to us, was abolished with a fine team still enrolled in school. Why? That is a question we can't answer, although we are intensely interested. It seems to us that a mistake was made when the ring sport was abandoned. Let's get it back soon. The athletic program should be enlarged, not cut.

Passes were prolific Friday night in the South Carolina game. Although a great deal of them fell short of their mark they served notice of what to expect this week when the 'Cats trek down to Texas. Texan teams brag of their wide-open play. There is nothing like beating a team at its own game and that seems to be exactly what the Villanovans intend to do.

When, and if, the team returns from the southwest still undefeated we suggest that all Villanova turn out en masse to greet the return of what we

FRESHMEN PASS TO 7-0 WIN IN OPENER

St. Benedict's Prep Falls Before Kittens' Aerial Attack; Biekewitz Scores

A long pass, coupled with a beautiful run, near the end of the third quarter made possible a fourth period score and a 7-0 victory for Villanova's freshman football team in a game against St. Benedict's Prep played in Newark on Friday night. The game was marred, however, by a serious leg injury to one of the prepsters' starting linemen, which incident seemed to have a demoralizing effect upon his teammates.

Caplar Adds Point

Immediately after the teams changed goals to begin the final 15 minutes of play, Biekewitz, Kitten fullback, plunged over from the two yard line to put the Blue and White ahead in a game that saw several previous frosh marches repulsed. Caplar added the extra point with a place-kick to give the contest its final coloring.

Outstanding for the Kittens was the work of Eusco, who did most of the punting, Prysicki, Kupecki, and Christman. Villanova's frosh showed an exceptionally strong defense and a brilliant passing attack. Unable to gain at all through the line, the Saints were forced to take to the air for the yardage that they did get.

CHISICK HEADS FOR 'ALL - AMERICAN' AS S. CAROLINA FALLS

Revenge is sweet—so they say—and Villanova's "sweet tooth" was well satisfied last Friday night at Shibe Park, when "Clipper" Smith's little boys in Blue crushed South Carolina, 40-0.

Memories of a certain day last Fall, when a South Carolina team put a blot on Villanova's perfect record and recollections of the Orangeburg, S. C., fans "reception" to the 1938 Wildcats were foremost in the Cats' minds when they took the field. Those memories can be transferred to the credit side of the Villanova ledger now; the debit is washed out!

Chisick Superb

In a game where each and every man on the squad performs in "All-American" style it is hard to single out any one great performance. Such a game was last Friday's. Yet, in this reporter's opinion one performance does stand out above all. All the Wildcats were in fine form, but big, powerful Andy Chisick was superb.

This typewriter can't deliver enough adjectives to describe Andy's play while he was in the ball game. Defensively he played as great a game as any center in history. Offensively he was the nth degree of perfection. Sixty percent or more of the tackles made while Chisick was in the game saw Andy as a direct factor. In most of the others he paved the way for the tackler by breaking up the interference. Truly a great performance.

Mazzei Paves Way

Harry Mazzei, Villanova quarterback, also showed himself greater than ever. His first-half punt-returns paved the way for Villanova touchdowns and demoralized the Southerners.

Performances of such sophomores as Ad Worthington, Joe Behot, and others served advance notice of future Villanova prowess. South Carolina was the first major foe for these newcomers and they handled themselves with the cool, calm, opportunist tactics of experienced Smith products.

Every man on the Villanova squad except two hampered by injuries took part in the game as Smith used numerous substitutions in a vain effort to stop the slaughter of the Gamecocks. This was impossible.

Tennis Tourney Slowed By Inclement Weather

Another temporary halt in the progress of the annual Fall intramural tennis tournament was brought about last week when heavy rains and foggy weather forced the amateur raqueteers to withhold from the clay courts.

Reach Quarter-Finals

The round-robin tournament, sponsored by each hall, has only gone as far as the quarter-finals, but with the weather man's prophecy for a clear week, the tournament should reach its climax this week-end. Fr. McKee, director of the Intramural athletics, has formulated plans for the finalists of each dormitory to compete to prove which is the supreme player of the campus.

Austin Hall leads the list of entries with 24, while Fedigan follows with 20 entries. Mendel and Alumni have contributed 30 participants and the day-hop men are rather few.

NOWAK EMERGES FROM SHADOWS TO STAR

DAVE DIFILLIPO A "ROME O" IN TIME OFF

By BILL EPIFANIO

GOING into the third game of his last season Villanova right end Walt Nowak, is at last coming into his own as a reciepient of well-deserved publicity. For two years he plugged along in the shadow of opportunist John Wysocki, failing to get the credit due him. Now that the "Socker" is gone the "experts" are beginning to notice Walt. It might be mentioned here that one of Manhattan College's mentors considered Nowak a better end than Wysocki last year.

Walt comes from Camden, New Jersey, where he received his early education up to high school. After a year at Wilmington High School, Walt decided that he wanted to donate his athletic ability to his home town high school, Camden High, where he earned three letters in football, and four in baseball.

Finishing his education at Camden High School, Walt intended to enter Temple. Upon making an appearance at Temple he came in contact with Fred Swan, assistant coach then and now head coach. Mr. Swan was under the impression that Walt, only five feet nine inches tall and weighing only 165 at that time, was too small and refused him admission. He implied that Walt should go home and grow up, but little did he know, how someday he would regret it.

Later he came in contact with Bill Grimberg, former Villanova player, who influenced Walt to attend his old stamping grounds. This he did in September, 1936.

While at Villanova he has devoted most of his athletic ability to his first love football. During his sophomore year he attempted to play baseball, but his troublesome right shoulder would not permit it.

Walt has appeared in every starting lineup since the Bucknell game in his sophomore year. Out of all those games his greatest thrill was in the Temple game last year when he scored two memorable touch-

By DAVE MORSE

DAVE DE FILLIPPO is a well-dressed man, usually very busy socially in his time off from the football field. He is a jitterbug and a campus romeo. His travels could fill a book.

About his football playing—he was picked on the All-State team last year by the Associated Press. Quite an accomplishment and an honor when last year's Pitt's players are considered.

Two Letters

He has won two letters in football and won't have any trouble winning his third. Dave has made all the trips with the team from his sophomore year on up to the present. Those trips include the one to Los Angeles in '37 when the 'Cats went out to the coast to meet Loyola of Los Angeles.

A muscle pulled away from his hip in practice about a week before the Muhlenberg game. He recovered to suffer in the heat of that game as did most of the other players.

As was said before—Dave is—a jitterbug. Besides winning many trophies and prizes around Philadelphia, Dave and his partner walked (or jittered) away with first prize in a contest at Hamid's Million Dollar Pier (no adv't.) last summer.

W. Catholic Grad

For his background—he celebrated his twenty-thrid birthday yesterday. Born in West Philly, went to Mother of Sorrows Parochial Schoo land West Catholic High. Working for a B.S. in Education. Will accept Pro offers. Won't know about that until the National League draft next winter.

According to him, one his most pleasant (?) experiences was getting penalized half the distance to the goal line for "puting the slug" on Buzz Howlett when they were in high school—Buzz at North Catholic and Dave at West Catholic.

Comes Back

JOHNNY GOGOLINSKI, Wildcat fullback in his sophomore year, "Gogo" was kept out of his moleskins all last season due to a severe injury incurred in practice. He's back in the line-up now—better than ever.

OPPONENTS WIN

Villanova's future opponents of the current season enjoyed a very successful week-end this past week. Auburn met misfortune in losing to Tulane, but Manhattan, Arkansas, and Texas A. & M. met with great success in beating St. Bonaventure, Texas Christian and Santa Clara respectively. Detroit, the remaining opponent, did not play.

MEETING

There will be a meeting of the VILLANOVAN sports staff this afternoon at 1:00 P. M. in Room 119 Mendel. Assignments will be given at this time.

"Clipper" Comments

On South Carolina

Despite the fact that we rolled up forty points against a spirited South Carolina eleven, we will have to show improvement in many important departments if we hope to be successful the remaining part of the season. Although we have improved considerably, we still lack the polish which makes a great team. Our pass defense, protection of the passer, end play, and inside line blocking were sloppy against South Carolina and will have to be greatly improved.

Last Friday night the team, as well as the spectators, was extremely pass conscious and too many passes were thrown away. We will have to cut down on the number of passes before we meet a team which will use them to advantage. Our pass defense also is spotty and shows up badly against long passes. However, the entire team played well Friday, and obtained some much-needed confidence after its indefinite performance the previous week against Muhlenberg.

The entire backfield played an improved game both in ball carrying and blocking, but Mazzei and Basca stood out. I was much pleased with Harry's punt returns and the help given him by the team in the way of downfield blocking. Basca's ball carrying and passing was clever, but he threw too many passes when he could have made a substantial gain by running, whereas we gained nothing on the incompleted pa[illegible]

In the second team backfield [illegible] spec[illegible]. Be[illegible]ot appears to have the intuitive knowledge which every good player has to have; that is to say, he is alert and fast thinking. Both Sabrinski and Bill Howlett show promise of becoming good backfield men if they keep improving as they have. However, for precision and for working as a unit, I believe the second string backfield, consisting of Gogolinski, Neil, Romanowski, and Morkum showed up better than the first team.

The line play was consistent enough but the inside blocking will have to improve. Casper stood out for his general all-around play as did Kamen and Stenn. However, Chisick was the star of the line the first half because of his unbridled enthusiasm. Lou Young, head linesman, remarked of this to me after the game.

Collins, Monaco, Kasky, and Korisky appear to be good line replacements. But we still have a big concern with the left end

Here and There

WITH BILL SINNOTT

Like Lochinvar, he came out of the West.

His interests have never touched on legerdemain, but he works with mirrors; he's never been interested in ballet, but his players dance through formations; he's never studied art, but his "coloring" has painted Villanova from the Atlantic to the Pacific and between both borders. His name, of course, is Clipper Smith.

Bill Sinnott

His applied psychology, the Rockne type, ranges from pain inflicting acerbity to soft, butter-like kindness. His vision is far reaching. He impresses with his prognostications — that is, in private. Publicly, he exudes pessimism. He called a 6-0 win over over Muhlenburg. . . .and wasn't far wrong.

To impress his players he releases a veritable avalanche of signs, words, and pictures. His record shows how successful his methods are. His football knowledge amazes the men who play under him.

While the "Clipper" is doing his pacing, you'll notice another coach sitting quietly on the bench watching the play intently. He's as cool as ice. That's Vince McNally. And temperamentally he's an opposite of the "Clipper.". He, too, came out of the West.

Behind the scenes another integral part of the football set-up functions. And very importantly, too. They call him the best scout in the country. He never uses a piece of paper. His observations are all mental. Yet, when he returns from scouting an opponent he knows where every player on the scouted team is and when he's there. He's "Doc" Jacobs and the best dresser here-a-bouts.

Conversation Piece. (The dining hall. He must have been an engineer for he carried a book on Metallurgy.) Friday, Noontime, by the way.

"When does the football team play again?"

Frank Pimpinella offers the following suggestion as an item of entertainment during the half at the Temple game. Select 15 Villanova Frosh. Have Temple select 15 frosh and let the 30 chase a greased pig. The winners win the "regs" of the others and they'd make a nice memento. What do you think?

To Teach Fistic Rudiments

Students wishing to learn the rudiments of boxing will be given an opportunity to do so this year through the Intramural set-up. Last year's Villanova mittmen will act as instructors for those who wish to learn. The instructors will include Bob Mentzinger, junior in the commerce school; Bill Duffy, ex-captain and senior in education; and Eddie Kirk, senior engineer.

The Mural Boxing and Wrestling Championships are listed for January 15th. Instruction will begin as soon as possible.

"Buzz" Takes A Jaunt For Six More Points

Above action in Friday night's Villanova-South Carolina game shows "Buzz" Howlett, Wildcat senior halfback, scoring for Villanova on a wide end sweep. This was the second of Villanova's many scores. Final count stood at 40-0 for the Cats.

The Arkansas defeat of Texas Christian wasn't exactly unexpected by many. The Razorbacks pack plenty of what it takes to make champions. We wouldn't be surprised to see them march right on through the remainder of their schedule undefeated, although we pray that they get laced in a certain one of their battles!

—V—

Villanova track seems to be taking the same upward swing that football and basketball took here the last few years. With the Wildcats always powerful in baseball it begins to look as if Villanova will be in the top rung of the four major-sport ladders.

Jim Elliot, former middle-distance star and now coach of the Cat cindermen, is anxious to present a great squad. He has the nucleus in such men as Johnny Maher, Bill Guiteras, Eddie Morgan, John DiCarlo and others. These men can be depended upon for the first-places, but Elliot is anxious to see many more turn out for other positions. This is an invitation to all you who aspire for athletic glory. Jim Elliot will welcome any and all who ask for a spot on his team.

EX - GRIDMEN STILL ACTIVE IN SPORTS

Several former Villanova football men are still keeping an active hand in the game, despite the fact that their college careers are closed.

From last year's undefeated team several are active nearby the Villanova campus. Johnny Wysocki, two-year All- American end, is coaching at Clifton Heights High School and playing professional ball on the side, although he spurned many offers from National Professional League teams. "Too insecure", says wise John.

Matt Kuber also plays pro ball in his spare moments, as does Frank Bukofski, ex-'40, and Harvey Buek. Buek, of course, is also coaching the Villanova 150 pound team. He succeeded Ray Stoviak, Villanova halfback in '37. Ray is now head coach at an exclusive upper New York State academy.

Most prominent of recent Villanova football grads is Johnny Mellus, tackle in 1937, who is performing in the varsity tackle slot for the World Champion New York Giants.

EX-COURTMAN

Don McGurk, Villanova's 150-pound All-American end, did not play football while in high school. Don, known to some as "Duck," confined his athletic activity to basketball while he was at St. Joseph's Prep. It was his second season of football when he made the "All-American" grade.

problem. I may move Worthington to that position very soon because of his ability and stature, and I like to have him in there when there is kicking to be done.

South Carolina was by no means a poor team. They were big and highly spirited, as was shown in the first quarter when they stopped our first two threats dead, But the power of our drive soon tired them and we went on to win (not easily, because South Carolina fought all the way). Kruga stood out for his kicking, as did Hensen for his passing and his pass defense work which hampered us time and again. But I heard many comments from men well up on their football that Weir was the best guard they had seen in years, which is also my opinion of him. He was a thorn in our side all night breaking up play after play.

I think night football should be considered seriously at Villanova because it was gratifying to see the number that turned out Friday night and the lights certainly did not hurt our game any.

Our showing against South Carolina will mean nothing Saturday when we play the crucial game of the season against Texas A. & M., one of the high ranking teams in the country this year. We are not only playing a bigger and better team than we have played so far this season but we will be handicapped by the warm weather and the strange field.

Call for Candidates

One thing that Coach Elliot would like to have stressed, and that is the fact that there is plenty of berths open, and he would like to see a lot of new faces. He figures these handicap meets should attract the student body and bring new interest in Track. Remember you don't have to be a star to be a candidate, if you have anything in you at all Jumbo will bring it out.

NOWAK EMERGES FROM SHADOWS TO STAR
DAVE DIFILLIPO A "ROME O" IN TIME OFF

By BILL EPIFANIO

GOING into the third game of his last season Villanova right end Walt Nowak, is at last coming into his own as a receipient of well-deserved publicity. For two years he plugged along in the show of opportunist John Wysocki, failing to get the credit due him. Now that the "Socker" is gone the "experts" are beginning to notice Walt. It might be mentioned here that one of Manhattan College's mentors considered Nowak a better end than Wysocki last year.

Walt comes from Camden, New Jersey, where he received his early education up to high school. After a year at Wilmington High School, Walt decided that he wanted to donate his athletic ability to his home town high school, Camden High, where he earned three letters in football, and four in baseball.

Finishing his education at Camden High School, Walt intended to enter Temple. Upon making an appearance at Temple he came in contact with Fred Swan, assistant coach then and now head coach. Mr. Swan was under the impression that Walt, only five feet nine inches tall and weighing only 165 at that time, was too small and refused him admission. He implied that Walt should go home and grow up, but little did he know, how someday he would regret it.

Later he came in contact with Bill Grimberg, former Villanova player, who influenced Walt to attend his old stamping grounds. This he did in September, 1936.

While at Villanova he has devoted most of his athletic ability to his first love football. During his sophomore year he attempted to play baseball, but his troublesome right shoulder would not permit it.

Walt has appeared in every starting lineup since the Bucknell game in his sophomore year. Out of all those games his greatest thrill was in the Temple game last year when he scored two memorable touch-

By DAVE MORSE

DAVE DE FILLIPPO is a well-dressed man, usually very busy socially in his time off from the football field. He is a jitterbug and a campus romeo. His travels could fill a book.

About his football playing—he was picked on the All-State team last year by the Associated Press. Quite an accomplishment and an honor when last year's Pitt's players are considered.

Two Letters

He has won two letters in football and won't have any trouble winning his third. Dave has made all the trips with the team from his sophomore year on up to the present. Those trips include the one to Los Angeles in '37 when the 'Cats went out to the coast to meet Loyola of Los Angeles.

A muscle pulled away from his hip in practice about a week before the Muhlenberg game. He recovered to suffer in the heat of that game as did most of the other players.

As was said before—Dave is—a jitterbug. Besides winning many trophies and prizes around Philadelphia, Dave and his partner walked (or jittered) away with first prize in a contest at Hamid's Million Dollar Pier (no adv't.) last summer.

W. Catholic Grad

For his background—he celebrated his twenty-thrid birthday yesterday. Born in West Philly, went to Mother of Sorrows Parochial Schoo land West Catholic High. Working for a B.S. in Education. Will accept Pro offers. Won't know about that until the National League draft next winter.

According to him, one his most pleasant (?) experiences was getting penalized half the distance to the goal line for "puting the slug" on Buzz Howlett when they were in high school—Buzz at North Catholic and Dave at West Catholic.

Comes Back

JOHNNY GOGOLINSKI, Wildcat fullback in his sophomore year, "Gogo" was kept out of his moleskins all last season due to a severe injury incurred in practice. He's back in the line-up now—better than ever.

OPPONENTS WIN

Villanova's future opponents of the current season enjoyed a very successful week-end this past week. Auburn met misfortune in losing to Tulane, but Manhattan, Arkansas, and Texas A. & M. met with great success in beating St. Bonaventure, Texas Christian and Santa Clara respectively. Detroit, the remaining opponent, did not play.

MEETING

There will be a meeting of the VILLANOVAN sports staff this afternoon at 1:00 P. M. in Room 119 Mendel. Assignments will be given at this time.

"Clipper" Comments
On South Carolina

Despite the fact that we rolled up forty points against a spirited South Carolina eleven, we will have to show improvement in many important departments if we hope to be successful the remaining part of the season. Although we have improved considerably, we still lack the polish which makes a great team. Our pass defense, protection of the passer, end play, and inside line blocking were sloppy against South Carolina and will have to be greatly improved.

Last Friday night the team, as well as the spectators, was extremely pass conscious and too many passes were thrown away. We will have to cut down on the number of passes before we meet a team which will use them to advantage. Our pass defense also is spotty and shows up badly against long passes. However, the entire team played well Friday, and obtained some much-needed confidence after its indefinite performance the previous week against Muhlenberg.

The entire backfield played an improved game both in ball carrying and blocking, but Mazzei and Basca stood out. I was much pleased with Harry's punt returns and the help given him by the team in the way of downfield blocking. Basca's ball carrying and passing was clever, but he threw too many passes when he could have made a substantial gain by running, whereas we gained nothing on the incompleted pa[illegible]

In the second team backfield I[illegible] spe[illegible] [illegible] appears to have the intuitive knowledge which every good player has to have; that is to say, he is alert and fast thinking. Both Sabrinski and Bill Howlett show promise of becoming good backfield men if they keep improving as they have. However, for precision and for working as a unit, I believe the second string backfield, consisting of Gogolinski, Neri, Romanowski, and Morkum showed up better than the first team.

The line play was consistent enough but the inside blocking will have to improve. Casper stood out for his general all-around play as did Kamen and Stenn. However, Chisick was the star of the line the first half because of his unbridled enthusiasm. Lou Young, head linesman, remarked of this to me after the game.

Collins, Monaco, Kasky, and Korisky appear to be good line replacements. But we still have a big concern with the left end

Here and There
WITH
BILL SINNOTT

Like Lochinvar, he came out of the West.

His interests have never touched on legerdermain, but he works with mirrors; he's never been interested in ballet, but his players dance through formations; he's never studied art, but his "coloring" has painted Villanova from the Atlantic to the Pacific and between both borders. His name, of course, is Clipper Smith.

Bill Sinnott

His applied psychology, the Rockne type, ranges from pain inflicting acerbity to soft, butter-like kindness. His vision is far reaching. He impresses with his prognostications — that is, in private. Publicly, he exudes pessimism. He called a 6-0 win over over Muhlenburg. . . .and wasn't far wrong.

To impress his players he releases a veritable avalanche of signs, words, and pictures. His record shows how successful his methods are. His football knowledge amazes the men who play under him.

While the "Clipper" is doing his pacing, you'll notice another coach sitting quietly on the bench watching the play intently. He's as cool as ice. That's Vince McNally. And temperamentally he's an opposite of the "Clipper.". He, too, came out of the West.

Behind the scenes another integral part of the football set-up functions. And very importantly, too. They call him the best scout in the country. He never uses a piece of paper. His observations are all mental. Yet, when he returns from scouting an opponent he knows where every player on the scouted team is and when he's there. He's "Doc" Jacobs and the best dresser here-a-bouts.

Last year's Villanova mittmen will act as instructors for those who wish to learn. The instructors will include Bob Mentzinger, junior in the commerce school; Bill Duffy, co-captain and senior in education; and Eddie Kirk, senior engineer.

The Mural Boxing and Wrestling Championships are listed for January 15th. Instruction will begin as soon as possible.

Villanova track seems to be taking the same upward swing that football and basketball took here the last few years. With the Wildcats always powerful in baseball it begins to look as if Villanova will be in the top rung of the four major-sport ladders.

Jim Elliot, former middle-distance star and now coach of the Cat cindermen, is anxious to present a great squad. He has the nucleus in such men as Johnny Maher, Bill Guiteras, Eddie Morgan, John DiCarlo and others. These men can be depended upon for the first-places, but Elliot is anxious to see many more turn out for other positions. This is an invitation to all you who aspire for athletic glory. Jim Elliot will welcome any and all who ask for a spot on his team.

EX - GRIDMEN STILL ACTIVE IN SPORTS

Several former Villanova football men are still keeping an active hand in the game, despite the fact that their college careers are closed.

From last year's undefeated team several are active nearby the Villanova campus. Johnny Wysocki, two-year All- American end, is coaching at Clifton Heights High School and playing professional ball on the side, although he spurned many offers from National Professional League teams. "Too insecure", says wise John.

Matt Kuber also plays pro ball in his spare moments, as does Frank Bukofski, ex-'40, and Harvey Buek. Buek, of course, is also coaching the Villanova 150 pound team. He succeeded Ray Stoviak, Villanova halfback in '37. Ray is now head coach at an exclusive upper New York State academy.

Most prominent of recent Villanova football grads is Johnny Mellus, tackle in 1937, who is performing in the varsity tackle slot for the World Champion New York Giants.

EX-COURTMAN

Don McGurk, Villanova's 150-pound All-American end, did not play football while in high school. Don, known to some as "Duck," confined his athletic activity to basketball while he was at St. Joseph's Prep. It was his second season of football when he made the "All-American" grade.

I think night football should be considered seriously at Villanova because it was gratifying to see the number that turned out Friday night and the lights certainly did not hurt our game any.

Our showing against South Carolina will mean nothing Saturday when we play the crucial game of the season against Texas A. & M., one of the high ranking teams in the country this year. One thing that Coach Elliot would like to have stressed, and that is the fact that there is plenty of berths open, and he would like to see a lot of new faces. RESEARCH GROUP BEGINS MEETINGS

Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D., will discuss the work he is doing on the blood of marine animals at tomorrow's meeting of the Research Seminar.

Fr. Donnellon, moderator of the group, hopes to have several members of the seminar assist him in conducting these experiments.

According to Justin Rubin, co-chairman of the Research Seminar, the aim of the group is to interest Villanova science students in research work.

Meetings of the group this year are to be held in Simpson Hall on Wednesday afternoons at four o'clock.

The members of the seminar will cooperate closely with the Mendel Bulletin, keeping all articles on permanent record and publishing those deemed of exceptional merit.

VARSITY WILDCATS TO BE LKD GUESTS AT ANNUAL DANCE

John Wysocki Among Former Stars Tendered Invitations; Football Theme Dominates

Lambda Kappa Delta, pre-medical fraternity, will hold its Annual Dance at the Villanova Field House under the guidance of Harry Taylor, dance chairman, this Friday night.

The Villanovans will supply the music for the informal dancing which will start at 9 P. M. and end at 1 A. M.

Charles Martin, fraternity president, has made several important announcements, the most important being that the L. K. D. will be host to the Villanova football stars of yesterday and today.

Johnny Wysocki and "Clipper" Smith's varsity Wildcats have been invited as guests to the annual fall dance. The dance will celebrate for the Wildcats their victories over opponents.

The dance scheme will be entirely in line with the football season.

Taylor has announced that there will be a new and better system of decoration. The Villanovans will be stationed on a decorated platform. This position of the orchestra is used for better amplification. The college orchestra will feature several vocalists. The dance floor will be lined at various points with palms and reclining chairs.

The committee has so far been satisfied with the ticket sales, but nevertheless, they still urge more sales in order to make it a real success. Taylor expects over 200 couples to be present. He and Martin ask all students for cooperation to make it a successful and colorful affair. Martin states: "I am well pleased with the response we are receiving from the student body and I hope it will continue."

JUNIOR CLASS TO NAME DANCE HEAD

The selection of the most suitable candidate for the office of Junior Prom Chairman has been the chief topic of recent discussions held by the Junior Class officers.

Daniel J. Keating, president, announces "that the prom chairman will be chosen within the next two weeks, but the committee will not be chosen until later. By selecting a prom chairman at this early date the Junior Class will establish a new precedent. The Prom chairman will thus have more time to make necessary arrangements."

Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., M. A., class moderator, and the class officers conducted an informal poll of the student body, especially the juniors, to determine the most popular orchestra. The results have not as yet been announced. Another poll will be taken later in the year.

James Forkin, class treasurer, appeals to all juniors to pay their assessment as soon as possible. The earlier the assessments are paid, the sooner negotiations with agents will be started. The condition of the class treasury at the time negotiations are being carried out

SPONSORS PEACE PANEL

A peace panel will be held in the amphitheatre of Mendel Hall November 9, at 3:15. This panel is sponsored by Beta Gamma in commemorating the signing of the Armistice.

A committee was appointed by Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of speech arts, to arrange the program which will present speakers from every school on the campus. This committee is composed of Joseph McNamara, Chairman, Robert G. Wilderotter, and John J. Harrington, all senior arts students.

All students are invited to attend; those wishing to speak should see Joseph McNamara.

AIR CORPS TO CONDUCT CADET TRAINING INTERVIEW

The War Department has announced that with the cooperation of V. Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., an interview has been arranged for all those those interested in becoming flying cadets.

This interview conducted by a board of Air Corps Officers will take place about the first of November.

The purpose of the board's visit is to present to the students information on flying cadets training, and to acquaint them with the opportunities offered after graduation.

All those interested in attending this interview are advised to contact the Placement Director, room 120 Mendel hall, as soon as possible.

ASSISTANTS NAMED FOR SENIOR DANCE

Wilderotter Appoints Five Sub-Chairmen to Belle Air Ball Committee

Robert G. Wilderotter, in a special announcement made today, named five sub-chairmen who will aid him in presenting the Belle Air Ball January 12.

Harold Schwartz, science school, has been appointed chairman of the Orchestra Committee. It is his hope that preliminary details will have been completed by Thanksgiving, and that it will be possible to announce the name of the selected band at that time. Likewise, Schwartz will conduct a popularity poll for the favorite orchestras of the senior class.

Heading the Refreshment, Decorations, and Program and Tickets Committees, will be William F. Duffy, education, M. Joseph McNamara, arts, and Robert E. O'Brien, commerce and finance student, respectively. Wilderotter selected these men on the basis of ability shown in previous class functions. "These three men, I know, are capable of handling their respective assignments, having evidenced their competency on former occasions." Publicity will be directed by William F. Garrity, Jr., artsman, who will be represented in the VILLANOVAN by your correspondent.

"The most important thing at present is to impress the necessity of every senior paying his assessment at the earliest possible moment. Nothing can be accomplished until it has been paid, as a large sum of money is a requisite before opening negotiations for a band.

"Several cynical members of the class will say, 'I'm not going to pay my assessment until I hear who you have signed.' It is this type of fellow who is the slacker and has a tendency to influence other members of the class. If you will cooperate with me I am sure that we will go over the top with a bang,

COMBINED CHOIRS TO GIVE CONCERT

Rosemont and Villanova Choruses in Annual Affair at Field House

Thursday, November 30, has been selected as the date of the annual Rosemont-Villanova Glee Club Concert to be held at the Field House.

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus., faculty moderator and director of the glee clubs of both colleges, made known his plans last week at the first meeting of the Villanova glee club. He placed a committee in charge of advertising and suggested various arrangements for accommodating a large crowd.

At first it was decided to hold the concert in the Rosemont Gymnasium as last year, but due to the increased membership of both glee clubs, Villanova's Field House was finally selected.

The event will be held on Thursday, November 30, so as not to interfere with the Thanksgiving vacations of the students which takes place from Nov. 22 to 26.

An extensive program is being arranged for the singers by Father Handran. He plans to combine the seventy-six female voices of the Rosemont Glee Club with the fifty male voices of Villanova's organization. Practice has already begun at Rosemont and there will be practice at the Commerce and Finance auditorium next Tuesday and every Tuesday thereafter. Anyone interested in joining the Villanova Glee Club is asked to appear October 17, at 7 P. M. in the auditorium.

SOPHOMORES ASK STERN TREATMENT FOR UNRULY FROSH

Class Votes Soph Hop Profits of $325 Into Scholarship Fund

Stricter treatment of freshmen who don't abide by their class regulations was demanded by the Class of '42 at a meeting in the Mendel amphitheater last Friday afternoon.

It was suggested that Student Council hold regular meetings at which hearings for refractory frosh will be held and that repeated offenders should be declared ineligible for any class office during their four years.

A motion was carried that the council representatives of the class, Thomas Sheehy and President Thomas McKimmey, should present the demands of the class to the student government organization.

It was decided unanimously that $325, the bulk of the profits from the Sophomore Cotillion, should be put into the Class Scholarship Fund. This is the largest sum any class ever put into their fund in their second year.

Joseph V. McCabe, chairman of the dance, made the report on it, announcing that it set a record for the annual affair both financially and in attendance.

The financial report was read by Andrew Melton, treasurer, who announced that the class assessment of a dollar and a quarter is now due. Those who did not pay their freshman assessment of a quarter will now pay a dollar and a half, and these amounts will be deducted from the usual ten dollar fee in the junior year.

A suggestion was made by Robert T. Funabashi that the class send a telegram to the team wishing them success Saturday, and the motion was carried by acclamation.

FR. STANFORD VISITS LOCAL ALUMNI CLUB

Visits to Villanova alumni groups in various Eastern cities are on the program of Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., president of the college, during the months of October and November.

So far, Fr. Stanford has spoken before the alumni clubs of Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, and Springfield, Mass.

At these dinners, held in one of the hotels of the city he is visiting, Fr. Stanford talks informally on the courses now being offered at Villanova, college improvements, the faculty, and sundry other matters.

When his talk has been concluded, the president is open to any questions his listeners wish to have answered. These queries usually concern the enrollment at the college and whether or not certain professors still teach at their alma mater.

The purpose of Father Stanford's visits is to encourage the alumni groups to keep together; it is associated closely with the well-being of Villanova.

CHEM CURTSIES TO FRI. 13

The lesson was given in the Freshman Chemistry lecture of Friday, October 13. Dr. Haenisch was demonstrating some of the properties of oxygen. To climax the lesson he, forgetting the water faucet was pointing towards Senor Martinez, opened the faucet to quench a flame of the phosphorous. The result was that Martinez received a bath, and Dr. Haenisch was slightly embarrassed.

There's one thing about a double feature: You can't come in at the middle of both of them, no matter how hard you try.

Rapid-Fire Socials

APPOINTMENT of senior social chairmen focuses attention on the campus social calendar, which schedules between the dates of January 9 and 13, three major events, two of which are formal dinner-dances.

From May 6 to 12, specifically designated as Junior Week, there are Mother's Day, Open House, Blazer Ball, Junior Prom, and Junior Dinner-Dance. The rapid succession with which these affairs follow upon one another spoils the full enjoyment of each event. So intensive a program indeed becomes an ordeal.

Furthermore, an atmosphere of frivolity persists during the intensive week of celebration which disrupts attention to class and study, bankrupts the students, and dissipates his strength.

On the other hand, were the various socials dispersed throughout the year, they would be better appreciated as a relaxation.

Although it may be impossible to alter the calendar for this school year, it is the hope of the experienced upperclassmen that this objection will be fruitful in bringing about changes for succeeding years.

Welcome Back

THOSE aspiring to higher, broader, and more liberal types of knowledge will welcome the revival of Greek in the curriculum of the School of Arts.

One of the surest instruments employed in training the mind is the study of languages. What is of more value than a language which necessitates reasoning power, concentration, observance, and strict attention to detail—all real and genuine instruments of mental training?

Classes commence next week. Enroll now for advancement in the pursuit of knowledge.

Should WE Stop Hitler?

IN 1917 we ventured forth to beat up the Kaiser, make the world safe for democracy, and stop war for all times. This is identical with the problem that is facing us once again at the present time. The Kaiser is still living, in Holland, presumably with financial security, and his physical person unscathed after the ordeal of a terrible war.

But today in America presents a different picture. Our hospitals are filled with mentally deranged, blinded, and maimed men who were the paws in the foreign embroilment of ours. Our economy has suffered the greatest depression the world has ever witnessed.

And what of the democracy we were to perpetuate? What of the madness of war we were to end? YOU KNOW THE ANSWER.

Why should we stop Hitler? We stopped the Kaiser — For war? Let them stop Hitler, let the wily and suave diplomats of the Old World stop Hitler — they made him. Their greed is responsible for his rise. The national and international selfishness of the Versailles Treaty kindled the fire which has forged and tempered this modern madman. Hitler, nor any other dictator in Germany could never had developed if 60,000,000 people had not been made paupers by the greedy and avaricious territory grabbers of the Old World. Those who divided the swag must now accept the consequences. WE ASKED FOR NOTHING — ASK FOR NOTHING NOW.

—M. P. Z.

Unshackle Our Tradition

HOW much do we, the present student body, appreciate the tradition in which the campus is so deeply steeped? Yes, there is tradition here—great tradition—left behind by 24 preceding generations. But it lies dormant in a thousand nooks and crannies where it can't be seen and felt.

There must be hundreds of stories linking the past to the present. They're waiting to be told. They're in the monastery in the minds of the Fathers; they're in trunks, drawers, and other hiding places. Letters, newspaper clippings, momentoes, and a million other tokens—they must be here.

What greater gift could there be for the centennial celebration than the presentation to every Villanova man of a compact compilation.

Even the sun can't be seen when the fog obscures it.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Language, Love Both Unite For Brotherhood

Synonomous Meaning Applicable to Understanding Among Nations

By WILLIAM J. LUNNEY, M. A., O. S. A.
Assistant Professor, Modern Languages

ALL modern educational arguments to the contrary notwithstanding (and I know of one, more or less weighty,) there seem to be fairly good grounds for believing that no American who claims English as his native tongue really appreciates that language unless he has more than a superficial acquaintance with some other language, preferably French, Latin, or German.

To avoid any misunderstanding, permit me to say that I am here not at all concerned with drumming up trade for every or any modern language. Important as these might be considered, what I hope to clarify by this linguistic example is, I feel, much more so.

And, to continue, should one know all three of these languages, his understanding and enjoyment of the mother tongue, to say nothing of the increased practical value, would be greatly enhanced. This is not to cast aspersions on either Italian or Spanish, or for that matter, on any other language including the Scandinavian. It is a simple statement of fact to repeat that the trinity of French, Latin, and German elements makes up the overwhelming portion of our modern English.

Fr. Lunney

Four years study in Europe proved to him that "foreigners" were most likeable and hospitable. Connected with the International Relations Club, the Interracial Justice Group. Graduate of Villanova in '28.

The merchantman who sails the seven seas has had his language enriched, as well as his coffers, by this intercourse with men of every color and clime. And the scholar has sorted this linguistic wealth and has discovered that even the ancient languages of far-off India and of such a remote place as the mountains of Tien Shan in Central Asia show an undeniable relationship with much of our everyday speech. Possibly we shall some day learn all of man's expression of his thoughts are traceable to a single common tongue, and it is even now clear that our language is connected with all the languages of Europe both ancient and modern, as well with those of large sections of Asia.

This indicator, as it were, points to a truth which is, or should be definitely clear to all Catholic college men, namely, that all men are related, that regardless of race or color or creed all men are brothers. And even though there were no arguments of scientific investigation to support it, every Catholic and American would adhere to it: the Catholic, because of the Divine Authority which established and sustains the Brotherhood of Man in the Fatherhood of God; the American, because of his Constitution which regards men of all nations as citizens of equal standing, regardless of race or color.

In a very true sense we Americans form the most cosmopolitan nation under the sun. Daily our country is referred to as the "melting pot," and the figure is not inappropriate. Let us not imagine, however, that the smelting process is over and done, and that only the embers of the furnace remain. We can still hope that these fires burn brightly, for there are still many "burning" questions and "boiling" issues which are not processed sufficiently, and only the fire of divine charity glowing in rational debate can successfully conclude it.

And here is where you fit in, you men of Villanova. It's true, you are in the "pot" with the rest of your neighbors, but you have two properties, as Catholic men, which may not be found, at least not in equal measure, in others: the pure gold of your Catholic Faith; and the catalytic agent of your Catholic outlook on life and your charity towards all men, even towards those who might in blindness hate you. These two are evidently interdependant, and should the one be dissipated, the other would surely lose its effectiveness. But together, they can only assist and hasten the desired result: that purified of all dross, the golden alloy will finally be dipped from the cauldron by the Master Craftsman and stamped with His seal, which reads: "In the likeness of Christ!"

Then, though we never study German, or Latin, or French, or any other tongue, our language will still be the language of Catholic gentlemen for Christian Charity is their language in any country.

EVIDENCE, NOT SOFT SOAP

Soap sculpture addicts may enjoy a night of congenial entertainment by attending the opening of an exhibition of small sculptures in white soap at the Franklin Institure, Philadelphia, this Thursday.

To the student or students who present sufficient evidence of interest in this hobby the VILLANOVAN will give a card of admission. The supply is limited.

ANTI - CATHOLIC ARTICLES TO BE SOUGHT, EXPOSED

United Catholic Organizations Launch Drive to Rid Periodicals of Bias

Catholic action against activities of biased anti-Catholic articles in periodicals, newspapers and magazines, either intentional or otherwise, is to be evidenced by Villanova students. This new movement is being launched by the United Catholic Organizations, Press Relations Committee, Philadelphia Division.

This new combat inaugurated by the above group, will have its inception in a campus drive conducted under the auspices of this newspaper. Notices will appear on the Religion Bulletin Board requesting any students who have observed such literature to turn the same into the office of the VILLANOVAN. This material will be submitted to the Committee which will take it into consideration and may such steps as it deems necessary.

Although the organization is a comparatively new one, being founded by Fr. Toomey, S. J., in New York two years ago it already has a national aspect. Fr. Toomey organized this group to consult with publishers of sources of such reading materials.

VILLANOVAN Survey of War Sentiment Today Reveals Rise of Hitler Caused Student Opinion to Change

February 15, 1938
By MURRAY P. ZEALOR

It is interesting to show the comparisons of our students' opinions with those of the University of Texas. That university held a similar poll based on the question, "Would you, if the United States becomes entangled with foreign wars in Europe, go over there and fight?" The results were that 67.5 percent were not in favor of our entrance in fighting in Europe.

In our poll Villanova is 80 percent in favor of remaining out of foreign entanglements. This figure is a little higher than usual but it reaffirms the view of most college students in the nation. They hate war and will not go over to Europe to fight, if they have their way.

The quotations received by the VILLANOVAN reporter represent the views of Villanovans.

Stanley Stress, freshman, Commerce and Finance. "No sir. I don't like war."

Fred Kull, sophomore, Pre-med. "Not me. Let the suckers go. I want to be any place but in Europe.

Peter Makin, junior, Commerce and Finance. "No, we have enough to take care of ourselves without bothering about Europe."

Arthur Fanning, education junior. "Sure, I'll go. If my country goes, I will go."

Daniel Dalesio, sophomore, School of Science. "I'd go if I had to, but I'm not anxious to go over there and fight.

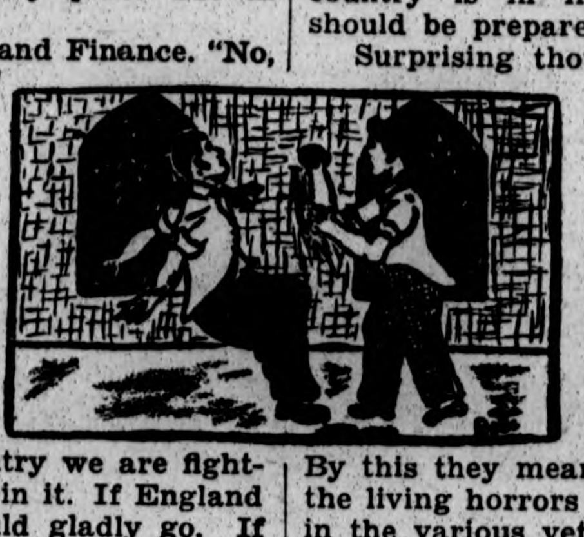
Thomas Delate, sophomore, Arts School. "It all depends on the country we are fighting, and whether or not England is in it. If England or France are being fought, I would gladly go. If it was any other nation, no."

October 17, 1939
By WILLIAM F. CARRITY

If England and France were in immediate danger of defeat, a majority of men at Villanova would be willing to go to war against Germany.

This fact was discovered from a survey taken by the VILLANOVAN of the men who would more than likely be taken in the first draft if the United States should be involved in the present European war. Their reason for making this statement was mainly that they did not want such a man as Adolf Hitler to gain control of two leading countries of the Eastern Hemisphere.

However, these men, who for personal reasons don't want their names revealed, were entirely against the United States' entering the war in Europe as an active fighting agent. They thought that the United States should entirely avoid such things as selling munitions to belligerents under any conditions and without showing favoritism to anyone of the belligerents. But increased armaments in the United States itself was strongly favored. If the country is in imminent danger of war then it should be prepared to meet that danger.



Surprising though it may seem, the majority of men didn't believe in war even if United States possessions, countries in this hesisphere, or United States maritime rights were violated. If there is to be an involving of the United States in war, then at least wait until this country proper is attacked. Nothing else but Hitler's domination of the entire continent of Europe should involve us.

By this they meant that everyone is still witnessing the living horrors of the first World War who reside in the various veteran's hospitals. No greater argument against war can be found anywhere.

Saga of a Man Who's Two Presidents and One Treasurer; He's Charlie Martin of the Senior Class and L. K. D.

By ALFRED BONGIOVANNI

BUSY booming the LKD dance to be held Friday night is one Charles G. Martin. It is not strange that he works up enthusiasm for the affair for he is the president of Lambda Kappa Delta.

His birth on August 19, 1918 in Lansford, Pa., marks the beginning of an itinerary including four years residence at Glassboro, N. J., four years in Wildwood, four in Dover and finally the establishment of his domicile in Asbury Park where he resides at present.

This unsettlement during his early years involved the necessity of his attending several grammar schools. These were Glassboro Grade School, State Normal Elementary, St. Ann's and St. Mary's in Dover from whence he graduated.

He continued his studies at Asbury Park High School during which time he was conspicuous in various sports including fencing, football, and basketball. He was also a member of the student council. During his attendance here, he distinguished himself by meriting an Honorable Mention in the State Oratorical Contest.

Post Card Life Guard

From a perspective glance at the various types of work to which he applied himself, one would at once conclude that he was both dexterous and industrious. As a youngster he delivered newspapers over a regular route and worked in a grocery store.

Later on he was a film deliverer for the Hunt Motion Picture Syndicate in Wildwood; he drove a bus between Asbury Park and Sea Girt and more recently was a life guard on the beach at Asbury Park, in regard to which he takes great pride in the fact that there have been no fatalities for a number of years.

...both dexterous and industrious

Stamp collecting is his hobby, and he is particularly interested in United States specimens.

Villanova College first saw Charles in September, 1936, at which time he matriculated as a freshman in the School of Science.

In his first year he applied for admission to the Lambda Kappa Delta, honorary science fraternity, and was immediately accepted. He was also a member of the Sanctuary Society and the Spanish Club. His activities during his freshman year presaged the success he was to enjoy as an upperclassman.

As Labor Speaker

In his sophomore year, he satisfied his athletic tendencies by playing for the 150 lb. football team. As a Junior, he was elected to the office of vice-president of the L. K. D. fraternity. In the same year he joined the Sociology Seminar and spoke at the labor symposium sponsored by that organization. He served the Junior Class in the capacity of a Ring committeeman.

As a senior he holds several prominent offices. In addition to being president of the premedical fraternity, he is president of the Sanctuary Society and treasurer of the Senior class. He was recently appointed Publicity Agent for the Catholic Action Interracial Guild.

He aspires to the same noble profession as his elder brother who preceded him here several years ago and now practices medicine. He desires admission into one of the eastern professional schools.

The members of the various organizations over which he presides in official capacity, have much confidence in him, and it is his most sincere desire to live up to expectations and by his fervent leadership he hopes to be an asset to these societies.

Voyage of Iroquois Fraught With Peril, Adventure Filled

Fr. Grimes, O. S. A., Describes Oceanic Nightmare

By JAMES P. COLLINS

"A never-to-be-forgotten experience," Rev. Edward Grimes, O. S. A., labeled his recent trans-Atlantic crossing on the "Iroquois."

After setting out from Cobh, Ireland, the "Iroquois" proceeded as routinely.

But King Neptune decided to stage a show of his might with hurricanic winds and waves. These left a great number of the passengers groaning in the throes of seasickness, among whom was our Fr. Grimes, who was hurriedly returning from Oxford, England, where he has yet a year to study before obtaining his M. A. Oxon, to escape the gloomy eventualities of war.

When not very far at sea, the first tidings of somber news were received in a wireless from the United States Government warning the ship of a possible attack. Contrary to the reports of the daily press, this bit of demoralizing news was relayed to the passengers and not withheld from them. With the wireless also came a command in the form of an urgent recommendation to rechart the course of the ship. This was immediately done by the captain, and the route to the Azores was taken. As far as Fr. Grimes could ascertain from the very warm weather, which incidentally necessitated the removal of suit coats for comfort, the Gulf Stream was also entered upon by the "Iroquois."

More bad weather then aggrieved the already anxious passengers. The "Iroquois" is not a transoceanic vessel but one originally employed in coast-wise trips to Texas. Its flat-bottomed construction is such that every time it fell in a trough of a receding wave the propeller blades would be churning the air until an even keel was again found.

To the already worried and wearied people on the ship's list another shock was still due. From the British Government came a warning that someone had unwittingly been given a package of explosives,

the 'CATS' MEOW!

I READ an article in The Daily Texan, and it struck me as very good reading for a certain class of people that you are apt to find in any college. It went something like this:

I am a cut up.
I'm a smart kid.
I go with the best fellows in school.
Other fellows try to get in with us,
But we wouldn't even look at them,
We certainly know all the dirt.
One of our fellows made up a swell story
About some girl he couldn't steady,
He made her feel bad all right,
Ruined her name, but whats' the difference.
We make all the dances, big shots you know—
Also all the good shows in town.
We're never missed from lab,
Besides what's a cut.
I sure am lucky to know this gang;
I wouldn't be anybody if I didn't.
It sure is tough for the stooges trying to break in on us—
But we'll freeze them as usual.

To Music

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

WHEN in the dark of night my heart despairs
And seems to find no solace on this earth,
While my mind is racked with earthly cares
That pierce my brain with howls of fiendish mirth,
Or when all friends forsake me in my gloom
And know me not unless they seek my gold,
While bitter thoughts and visions of a doom
To this distorted soul seem to enfold,
I yearn for lovely music soft and low,
Which wafts through balmy air in faint refrain
To leave a spark, a breath of warming glow,
Which fans itself into a flame again,
Consumes my woes, and dies, to leave behind
A crisped, ashed peace in a harrowed mind.

PROFESSORS TEACH, ADD TO KNOWLEDGE IN SUMMER SEASON

Individual Faculty Members Reserve Little Time for Vacation Pleasures

The majority of the members of Villanova's faculty passed the summer months either by teaching school or by augmenting their knowledge of the subjects that they teach during the school year.

Emil Amelotti, M. S., who teaches mathematics to the future engineers during the winter months, spent the summer working on his doctorate at the University of Chicago.

Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., who guides the destinies of the chemical engineering students, spent most of the summer teaching, although he did find time to visit his home in the midwest.

Harry S. Bueche, M. S., E. E. journeyed to Schenectady, N. Y., where he took an advanced course in engineering, offered by General Electric.

John A. Oakey, M. S., Civil engineering advisor, taught summer school and visited Virginia and the midwest.

Gilbert MacBeth, Ph. D., who teaches English composition and literature, took care of graduate work in connection with candidates for master's degrees during the summer months. Dr. MacBeth also visited his family in Ohio.

William C. A. Henry, B. S., L. L. D., was kept busy in Philadelphia with his law practice, which aids him in teaching law subjects during the school year. Mr. Henry did find time to visit the N. Y. World's Fair, however.

Leo H. Schaefer, M. B. A., who watches over the accounting students in the Commerce and Finance school, also taught in the summer school. Mr. Schaefer made a motor trip through the New England states when his summer school duties were completed.

William A. Slavin, B. S., assistant engineering professor, visited his home in Waterbury, Conn., while Wm. J. Barber, M. S., journeyed to North Carolina to visit his home.

J. Stanley Morehouse, M. E., who directs the mechanical engineers during the regular school year, helped supervise summer school work, and also spent several weeks at the seashore.

VILLANOVAN Asks For Local Papers

What do YOU do with the newspapers received from home after you have completed reading them? No doubt following the persual of local high lights and sporting events it finds its way to the nearest wastebasket. Why not employ them to better advantage by letting the staff of the VILLANOVAN enjoy the benefits of various styles, make-ups, and features incorporated in the local newspapers? The editor would appreciate receiving any such copies regularly after the addressee has finished with it. In this manner you would not only be instrumental in making your college weekly a better all-around paper, but likewise would provide a means of advertising the merits of "back home."

Neutrality Subject Of Seminar Debate

Frank Quarato to Present Paper Summarizing Debate at Next Meeting

Neutrality was the subject of discussion at the meeting of the history seminar conducted last Friday afternoon in Simpson Hall by Dr. Hartman and the Rev. John R. Dunne.

But though the meeting commenced with a discussion of the Toby Resolution—recently defeated in the Senate—which proposed separating the neutrality issue from the cash and carry question, it progressed to a mild debate among the members as to Herr Hitler's real aims and purposes.

An attempt was also made to discover just how the present war in Europe would affect the people of the United States both economically and physically.

As a result of this debate, Frank A. Quarato, sophomore in the C&F school, was delegated to read a paper on the various gains and losses to be received by preserving stricter neutrality, by keeping it the same as it is today, or lifting the arms embargo and having a cash and carry basis.

Villanova Enrollment Increase of 1%, .06% Higher Than Country's Average

By MURRAY ZEALOR

With an increase in the enrollment at Villanova College of about 1%, a reason was sought for this slight increase over the previous year.

For the past few years the number of students in grammar schools has been decreasing at an alarming rate, and only in the last year or so has it been felt in the colleges. The children of the pre-war era are now drifting out of colleges, and soon the number will fall off to a new low.

The total increase over the entire nation is approximately 0.94% (figures from the New York Times educational section of October 8, 1939). The leading schools of the East present some startling figures as to their averages. Columbia has suffered a set-back of 5-3 percent; Cornell and Penn State have the largest enrollments in history and advances of 1.2, 1.3 percent, respectively; the Ivy League schools of Harvard and Yale each suffered a loss of 1.8 and 1.9; Syracuse had the greatest loss with a 7.8 average under the previous year.

The total average of the East has an increase of 0.28, one-fith less than the average upheld by Villanova. The West however, showed an increase of 1.2 and the South presented the largest gain anywhere with an increase average of 2.8. This large average is a valuable factor in raising the total national average to 0.94, not quite one percent. Villanova is on an even keel with the average college in the country.

GAMBESCIA TO SPEAK ON ACTIVE PLANT PRINCIPLES

A paper entitled "Alkaloids and Glucosides" written by Joseph M. Gambescia, Sophomore premed, will be presented at the meeting of the Research Seminar tomorrow.

The paper will include a discussion of the alkaloids of opium — principally morphine, the alkaloids of nux vomica — strychnine, quinine and quinidine from cinchona and atropine from belladonna.

Digitalis will constitute the greater portion of the discussion on glucosides. Its action on the heart and its uses should prove of great interest to all pre-meds.

Gambescia is a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. Due to his inability to be present the paper will be read by Alfred Bongiovanni, senior science man.

HERE COMES THE "BIRDIE"

All difficulties regarding the photographing of the senior class have been straightened out, Robert G. Wilderotter, Photography Editor of the Belle Air announced.

Definite sittings for each senior have been arranged and are posted on the bulletin boards in the various schools.

Mendel Hall's reception room will be the scene of the photographic activity during the entire week of October 16th.

For the sum of one dollar, each student will be entitled to six proofs of three different poses, one of which will be personally selected for publication. Two poses in a cap and gown, two forma' and two informal sittings will be taken.

timed to destroy the "Iroquois" while in mid voyage. Later events happily proved the explosion theory was only a rumor.

The following day was Sunday. In the early morning mist sailed a protective convoy of two destroyers and six seaplanes as sent by the United States Government.

The destination of the ship was kept secret from the passengers when its course was re-mapped after the first warning of impending danger, and guesses were rampant as to just where this would be. Many hazarded the opinions that Boston, Charlestown, and coastal cities other than New York, its final harbor, would be the destination of the buffetted "Iroquois."

That seas did not abate on the final leg of the journey as evidenced by Fr. Grimes' description of the Mass said on the Sunday of the appearance of the convoy. According to him even though Mass was Low, it required six additional priests to assist the celebrant in completing the Sacrifice.

To Fr. Grimes we extend our thanks for so kindly obliging us with this interview and information so soon after his ordeal.

P. K. P. Smoker Date Set As October 30

Refreshments and Complimentary Ticket to Owl Hop To Be Given

Monday evening, October 30, has been set as the date for the Annual Phi Kappa Pi "Smoker," it was announced yesterday by the Chairman of the Committee, George Borus. All Engineering students are urged to attend.

In the past years the "Smoker" was highlighted by the appearance of such men as "Clipper" Smith, P. F. Banmiller, Reverend J. S. O'Leary, and outstanding members of the engineering faculty.

A complimentary ticket to the Owl Hop will be given away and sandwiches and coffee will be served afterwards.

Plans are being formulated for the coming Owl Hop, which is to be held November 10. The committee for this dance will be announced Thursday on the school bulletin boards.

AMELOTTI TO ADDRESS MATH CLUB ON FRIDAY

Emil Amelotti, M. S., Assistant Professor of Mathematics and moderator of the Mathematics Club will speak at the first evening meeting Friday, October 20. His topic will be "Solution of Cubic Equations by Means of Radicals — Reductible Case."

Bernard Clark, sophomore chemical engineer, is arranging a schedule for future evening meetings. At present meeting are held at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and it has been found that they are too short to fully discuss the topics selected for discussion.

Present plans include a banquet early in December. Mr. Amelotti is trying to secure one of the outstanding mathematicians in the East as speaker, and he expects to have an announcement about this in the near future.

GREEK CLASS BEGUN

Under the tutelage of Rev. Jeremiah Kiley a First Year College Greek Course will be given every Wednesday afternoon at 2:25 in Mendel 110. The credit for the course will be one semester hour. Consent of the dean of the respective school must be obtained before admission can be made in the class.

Duffy's Thumb Gets Plenty Of Exercise With Journey To L. A.

By JAMES F. HAUGHTON

"My class ring was my passport. It brought me many contacts and opportunities. People knew I wasn't just a regular 'man of the road,' but a college man. And everybody knew about Villanova and its football team."

That is what Bill Duffy, Villanova varsity boxing captain, told this writer as we sat in his photo bedecked Austin Hall room discussing the recent 8500-mile hitch-hike tour that took him into 20 states and Mexico.

"You know, every Summer I make some sort of a trip with a friend of mine, Bill McKeon, of Trinity. This year we set Los Angeles as our goal. We started July 20, and we didn't land back until two months later—just in time for classes.

"Our first point was Chicago via Pittsburgh and Cleveland. In Cleveland George Mawby, '40, staked us to a swell dinner at his famous Mawby's Restaurant. And as dessert we had Jim Montgomery and Hugh Reilly to aid in a regular Austin Hall 'bull session.' Then on to Chicago.

"Coming into Chicago we ran into Mike Cuskey, '40, who was heading east for his Lancaster home. From there we followed the northern route through the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming and on up into Seattle.

"You know Montana is the copper mining center and also the 'home of the Irish.' That town sure is wide open, just like the Nevada towns. Gambling is run openly, but if you are caught jaywalking they'll put a five-dollar fine on you. All the workers here are paid in silver dollars and if you show them a bill they look at you suspiciously"

"But," we interrupted, "how did you fellows manage to eat? Who fed you?"

'Oh, that was easy. We always visited relatives living out there. Or, if we were hungry, we'd just ramble up to a roadside stand, offering our services as lawn cutters, window washers, etc., in return for a bowl of soup. It always ended up with us eating a full course meal.

Uses Boxcars for Sleeping Quarters

"For sleeping quarters we used car lots, boxcars, railroad stations and just the wide open spaces.

Arriving in Seattle late in August, time was growing short, so we headed on to the Golden Gate at San Francisco.

"Talk about your 'hello' habit around Villanova. Why those people in the Northwest just about incorporate it. They are really friendly and can't do too much for you.

"Down in San Francisco we took in the Exposition, Alcatraz, Chinatown and even the Barbary Coast. That 'Frisco fair is much smaller than the Gotham show, but it's a bit more picturesque."

Turns Down Movie Offer

"Say, what happened to this Los Angeles destination of yours?"

"We finally did get to Los Angeles. And what experiences. Do I have a movie profile? Well, we almost did land in the movies. A movie director picked us up and offered us jobs in a mob scene. It wasn't coming off for a week an we didn't have the time. However, we got introductions to Myrna Loy, Joan Blondell, John Garfield, and also Jack Roper, the pug.

"Funny thing, though, we were riding on a street car when the conductor, on seeing our sweaters, asked whether we played football. We said 'Yeah, at Villanova.' He turned out to be Bill Dowd, All-American at Santa Clara who played under our own 'Clipper' Smith.

Time was getting short and both Bill and McKeon, who is a heavy-

150-Pounders Show Fight But Strength Fails; Dominic, Lombardo, Brown and Latanza Stand Out For Losing Blue Eleven

By FRED RAPPLEYEA

Although emerging on the short end of a 33-7 score, Villanova showed a fine looking team against the Red of Cornell. Playing in Schoellkopf Stadium at Ithaca, the blue and white clad gridders won the toss and selected the goal with the strong wind at their backs.

After the kickoff and a quick exchange of punts the Red of Cornell were shoved back to their five-yard line from which spot a poor kick gave Villanova possession of the ball on Cornell's 20. However, Cornell checked the advance of the ball when it had reached their five-yard line. On their first play, Cornell fumbled and Dominic recovered for a touchdown, Lombardo place-kicking the extra point.

Taking the ball on their 40 when Cornell was forced to kick, Villanova marched 58 yards on a varied attack only to be stopped on the two-yard line by a stubborn defense put up by Cornell.

9-7 at Halftime

This ended Villanova's scoring threats for the day as the Red took advantage of a fumble by Lombardo in the end zone to score a safety. Just before the half ended Cornell scored again via the airlane. Ashury caught a long pass in the end zone. He did this flat on his back and made a spectacular catch. Twenty seconds later the half ended with the score reading Cornell, 9; Villanova, 7.

Frosh Face N. Y. U. On Local Ground

By virtue of their 7-0 victory over St. Benedict's a week ago, Villanova's freshmen eleven continued a long string of victories and ties and enter into the coming week's game with 24 defeatless encounters behind them. Last year they added four names to this string when they beat Carney Point and Temple Frosh, then tied St. Francis College and Franklin and Marshall Freshmen.

Doc Jacobs, coach of Villanova freshman football teams for the past years, says that although there are only three games scheduled for this season, they are all very hard. This was true of the first game, and can certainly be expected in the future when it is realized that N. Y. U. and Temple freshman teams are the other clubs to be met by the Kittens this year.

Play Thursday

N. Y. U. brings its frosh here to Villanova to meet the Kittens in mortal combat on the coming Thursday, Oct. 19. Thursday, Oct. 26 will see the young 'Cats journeying to Temple Stadium, where they will meet the freshmen who represent that institution.

According to Coach Jacobs, the starting line-up for the N. Y. U. game will be as follows:

Center	Brazinsky
Right guard	Siniosew
Right tackle	King
Right end	Pritko
Quarterback	Chaplar
Right halfback	Smith
Fullback	Rosalto

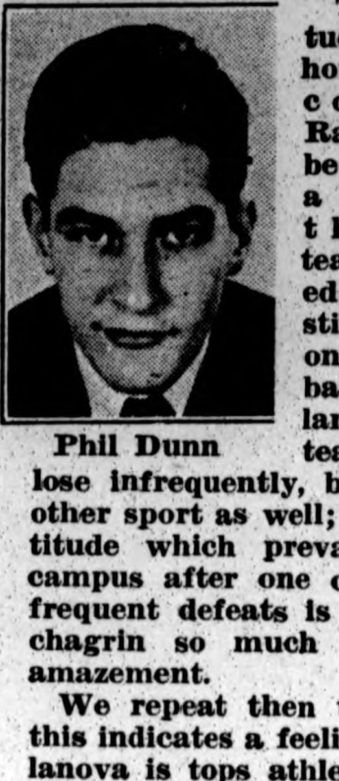
AT A TIME like this it is extremely difficult to put into words one's feelings. In fact it is quite difficult to determine the exact status of one's sentiment.

At any other school in the country a team which wins all but one or two of its games is hailed as great, or — in some instances — remarkable. But at Villanova winning is such a strong habit that to be defeated, even once, is nothing short of ruination.



Phil Dunn

This attitude is not, however, to be condemned. Rather it is to be considered a tribute to the athletic teams produced by this institution. Not only in football does Villanova put out teams which lose infrequently, but in every other sport as well; and the attitude which prevails on the campus after one of these infrequent defeats is not one of chagrin so much as one of amazement.

We repeat then that, to us, this indicates a feeling that Villanova is tops athletically, and students should not be ashamed of a public display of their sentiments after a loss — as they do not have a chance to show these feelings very often!

—V—

To the men returning today from Texas, we just say what they already know. The feeling that accompanies the strain of maintaining a continuous record, such as that of being undefeated in 22 starts, is gone. You can go out now, and play the remainder of your games free from a burden that certainly weighed you down, mentally if not physically.

Also keep in mind that a successful season is one in which victories outnumber losses and in the course of which you beat Temple.

Aggies Amass 33 Points In Crushing Blue Team

Fumbles, Passes, Punts and Runs Set Up Texans' Scoring Opportunities as Wildcats Suffer First Defeat in 23 Tilts

Homer Norton, the gridiron master of Aggieland, turned loose a Texas hurricane today that flattened the forces of Villanova like pancakes, burying the hitherto unbeaten Wildcats under a 33 to 7 score.

A crowd of 15,000 witnessed the game, played as a climaxing feature of the annual Tyler rose festival.

The Aggies scored early in the first quarter with big John Kimbrough, who played less than a third of the game, smashing over from the two-yard line. Bill Dawson missed the try for extra point.

Pass Play Clicks

The Texans made another touchdown within two minutes, Marion Pugh pitching a 31-yard pass to Derace Moser, who ran 18 yards untouched for the counter. Marshall Robnett missed the try for point.

A sensational punt return by Moser that carried to the Villanova 26 set the stage for the next Aggie score. Pugh passed to Herbert Smith for ten yards, Moser circled end for seven and Kimbrough started over tackle, then cut out around end for the touchdown. Robnett kicked goal.

The next two A. & M. touchdowns were made in rapid order. After a 15-yard penalty had nullified a 35-yard touchdown pass from Marland Jeffrey to James Thomason, Bill Conatser took a punt on the A. & M. 30 and raced through the Villanova team for the

Dear "Clipper":

Your Villanova Wildcats lost a ball game Saturday, the first in 23 and the third in 31. The "wiseacres," the "experts" and the whatnots are circulating around now making sly remarks about Villanova "going back to the small-time class." One defeat and these pseudo fans want all that you built up to be torn down.

We at Villanova think, and know, differently, "Clipper." One defeat or one hundred defeats could never change our attitude towards you and the great football machine you have built from nothing. We know that you and your club will come back, stronger than ever, to make the "experts" crawl back into hiding.

The "Clipper"

One game can never make us forget the others played in your three years here on the Main Line. Two crushing victories over Temple (the third will be coming up soon!), conquests of teams like Auburn, Marquette, Penn State, Boston U., etc. can't be forgotten when the Wildcats lose a game.

The games you won aren't the only reason we stand behind you, "Clipper." There are other reasons. You have put a team on the field that Villanova can be proud of in victory or defeat. Your pupils are opportunists, men who win by the brain and not with mere brawn. With less than a thousand students to get your team from you have produced better teams than Pennsylvania, with a student body well over 10,000. Temple, also with a huge student body, has also had to look up to your Wildcats. If there is such a thing as a miracle-man, you are it.

The "experts" that are razzing the Wildcats now, are the same who ignored them during the 22 game winning stretch. Like the cat in wait for the canary they have lurked back for three years in readiness for the first Villanova defeat. When it came they were already to pounce upon us with degradatory remarks. You can rest assured, "Clipper," that we can ignore them for the fools that they are, unworthy of listeners.

Every Villanova student, worthy of the name was prepared to take defeat when it came. True, it was a shock at first but we recovered quickly to take defeat as we took victory — gloriously and honorably. We were with you and your team 100 percent in victory, and now we are with you even more in defeat. LET THE WILDCATS MARCH ON ONCE MORE!

Sincerely,
Villanova Students.

Foes Win, Lose Saturday Tilts

Villanova's opponents, both past and present, managed to win four out of seven games over the weekend as South Carolina, Muhlenberg, Temple, and Auburn came through with victories while Manhattan, Detroit, and Arkansas were dropping tough battles to rugged foes.

South Carolina, the last victim of the Blue and White's now defunct spree, came through to gain the nod over Davidson by a 7-0 count in a hectic encounter. The Mules from Allentown, our other past opponent, eked out a 7-6 win over a favored Lafayette club to demonstrate what we already know—that they are very strong.

Temple and Auburn Win

The 'Cats future opponents did not fare so well as a group, however. Temple's great defense showed up to advantage and enabled them to garner a 13-11 victory over T. C. U., and Auburn crushed Mississippi's State's hope for a conference title by virtue of their 7-0 win. But the remaining three on the opponent's list were victimized by breaks and their own mistakes and went tumbling downhill.

Arkansas lost a clean cut decision to Baylor. The tune was 19-7. Detroit's vaunted air attack clicked for two touchdowns, but the motor city lads only made one extra point and went down to defeat 14-13 at the hands of Catholic U. Both Catholic's six-pointers were made immediately after blocked punts had set up scoring chances. In New York Manhattan played the ears off Duquesne, but were unable to score, despite a first down advantage of 20-6. [illegible] lost 7-0.

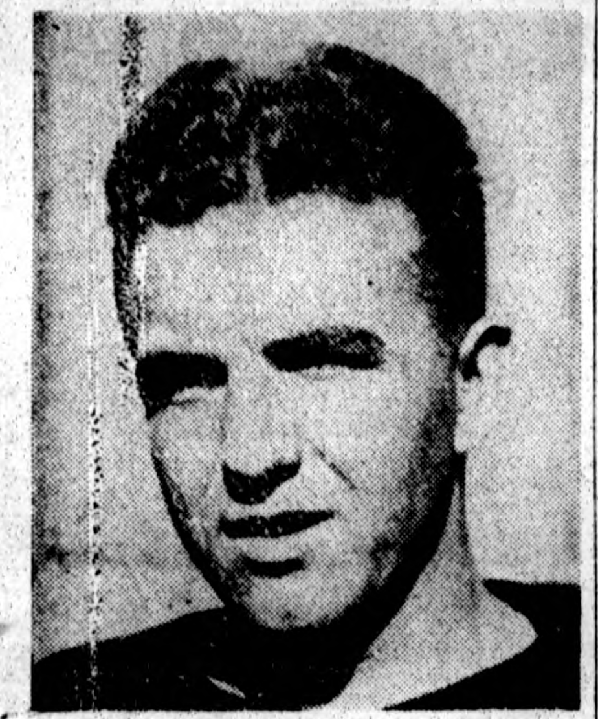
MINER AND CITY SLICKER MAKING GOOD BOTH STELLAR HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES

By BILL EPIFANIO

The Planes of Mahoney have sheltered many a gridiron great, and the soft grounds of the coal dirt hills have provided plenty of space for basic football training. Play is rough and tumble and those who live through it make the coal regions one of the best sources for rugged speedy material. Not the least of this fraternity of bruisers is Villanova's Mike "the Miner" Sabrinsky, who certainly is rugged, looks tough, and specializes in his kicking, passing and off-tackle smashes.



Mike hit Mahoney Planes September 28, 1916. About 15 years later he entered the famed hall of learning, Gilberton High School. Mike's four years at Giberton were memorable both for himself and Gilberton High School. He indulged in four years of football and four years of basketball, captaining both sports in his last year. Unknown to many is the fact that he played basketball.

Enrolled Here in '36

Leaving Gilberton High School in 1935 he worked in the mines for a year, then came to Villanova in 1936.

Completing his freshman year he took his first year of varsity ball in stride by doing substitute work for Andy Stopper. The varsity during his sophomore year was well supplied with experienced backs, therefore Mike didn't receive as much action as his ability demanded. He began his second season at right half, but toward the close of the campaign was changed to left half substituting for Basca.

Now Mike is in his senior year and still substituting for Basca. He continues to see his share of action, however, and is doing rather well. Upon his compietion of his final year of varsity football he will be the recipient of his third letter.

Many of the readers will understand why Mike picked his 75-yard run against Boston University to be his outstanding achievement, if they recall the weather conditions on the day. It was rainging "cats and dogs" at Boston, and the field was covered with mud ankle deep.

He will receive a B. S. in Education with a major in history this June and is contemplating teaching and coaching.

By SID CAPLAN

As the last rays of sun are fading across the Villanova gridiron, our team is in a spot. It is fourth down, eighteen yards to go. The pass from center comes hurtling back to the man in the tailback position, there is a thud of foot meeting ball and far down the field it bounces out of bounds on the seven yard line. "Beau Brummel" Howlett does it again!!

Taught by Wetzler

Buzz owes his success in coffin corner kicking to a Villanova alumnus, Frank Wetzler who was a stellar athlete under former coach Harry Stuhldreher.

Not being content with doing all the punting for the Cats, "Buzz" does a lion's share of toting the old apple in the bargain.

While still a cub in North Catholic High School, Philadelphia, "Buzz," during the course of his sophomore, junior and senior years, played varstiy baseball, basketball, and football. Helping to win championships in his junior and senior years and holding down the position of captain of the baseball and football teams in his senior year, "Buzz" still found time to keep up in his studies.

Played Quarterback

He came to Villanova as a quarterback and showed great promise as a freshman. He began to break into the game in his sophomore year, but was forced to the sideline by injuries. In his junior year, however, he played steady ball for the Cats, figuring in touchdown after touchdown throughout last year's undefeated season.

"Buzz" is a rare combination of a man about town and a stellar athlete. His biggest thrill was the block he put on a former teammate, Joe Palmer, in last year's Temple game. Upon graduation he intends to coach high school baseball and football.

Cornell

ond half Villanova's attack seemed to have bogged down and when Cornell took advantage of two fumbles and an intercepted pass to ring up three more touchdowns it seemed that the Blues had little hope. Nevertheless they kept fighting and just when they seemed to be moving again Cornell's safety fumbled a punt. The ball was swooped up by Ashury who outran the entire Villanova team to score another touchdown. Scoring ceased then, and the game ended with the ball in Villanova's possession at midfield.

Change Defense

Cornell's team played a smart heady game and when they saw that their six man line was not working switched to a five man line which completely bewildered the Villanova offense. Their team play was characterized by hard, fast running and by a willingness to take advantage of every break coming their way.

On the other hand Villanova looked like a powerhouse in the first period but after that could do little or nothing against the Cornell defense. Starring for the losers were Vic Dominic, who played the entire game. Frank Lombardo whose backing up of the line was great and Captain Jack Brown whose hard running time and time again was responsible for many Villanova gains. Lattanza's passing was a constant threat as was also his kicking.

If the boys intend to live up to the promise they showed in the early part of the game they will have to work hard in the next two weeks before they meet Princeton, last year's champions.

(Ed. note: Fred Rappleyea, the writer of the above article and one of the regular 150-pound team's guards, suffered a broken rib in Saturday's game and will be lost to the lightweights for the remainder of the season.)

AFTER SIX YEARS

In his three years of varsity football at Northeast Catholic High School and in his freshman, sophomore, and junior years here, "Buzz" Howlett never played on a team that lost. Now, in his last year at Villanova, "Buzz" finds out for the first time what it feels like.

The charmed life he had led didn't seem to help the Willcats in their fracas with the Texas Aggies on Saturday.

Field House Scene Of Much Activity As Athletes And Office Force Work

Basketeers, Footballers, Trackmen and Swimmers, Not to Mention Trainers and Equipment Men Kept Busy

By BILL CAREY

On entering the gym any day between the hours of two and six, you are met with a barrage of fancy dribblers, the swish of the net, the splash of a championship (?) dive (in the swimming pool of course), the clicking sound of the billiard ball, and that hollow noise ringing out from the bowling alleys, ah! another strike.

McKeon Busy

And of course this is only what goes on to the ordinary onlooker, but let us look into this a little further. If we take the stairway leading up, we find ourselves looking into the office of Messrs Severance, Jacobs, and Elliot. Our next step brings us to the publicity department, where we find Ray McKeon busy collecting and sending the college news to newspapers, far and wide. As the door of this office closes behind us, our vision is crossed by handsome Eddie Hagan hurrying to lend assistance to Bob Whalen. By peeking through the keyhole we catch a quick glance of Bob, seated behind a desk, telephone in hand, eyes scanning a few of the many papers before him, a true picture of business, not at all unusual to a magnate of the Athletic department.

Another Picture

Down stairs again, below all this, another picture presents itself. A crowd of huskies gathered around a window heckling one another, and impatientally waiting for equipment. On the other side of the same window, and unperturbed at all this conjestion is a bespectacled gentleman known as Val. Good ol'e Val. Val is the chief caretaker, and despenser deluxe of the togs that grace the manly torsoes of every Wildcat athlete. Whether it be be slippery Nick Basca wanting his game equipment or a lowly frosh waiting for a towel, it must pass through Val's hands.

Needlers

Back on the gym floor again and into the locker room. In here you'll see the 150's getting dressed, if trackmen Bellew and Guiteras give them enough peace. These two fellows are bound to be found anywhere on the campus putting the needle to you, but they really shine in the Field House.

By putting on a pair of the now famous Villanova swimming trunks, we are declared eligible for entrance to the pool. Look, see those two fishes lying on the floor of the pool, no they aren't fishes . . . It's Shipwreck Kelly, and Bill Hooper hiding from Weasel McStravog.

Aggies

counter. Bill Audish kicked the point.

Fumble Hurts

A fumble led to the final Aggie touchdown. Leon Rahn recovered a fumble on the Villanova ten. Marshall Spivey made two, Audish three. Then Spivey cracked the line for the tally. Audish kicked goal.

The Wildcats came back fighting to get their touchdown early in the fourth period. Joe Behot flipped a pass to Bill Romanowski, who lateralled to Paul Stenn and the latter ran thirteen yards for the score. Behot place-kicked the extra point to end the day's scoring.

Here and There
WITH
BILL SINNOTT

My collaborator, Harry Mazzie, and I harped quite incessantly last year on a subject some of you are familiar with by the name "Moral Rearmament Through Sport." We disagreed with the New York Times' John Keiran when he laughed at Bunny Austin's attempt at sincerity concerning this subject. I wonder if Keiran is still in a "ribbing" mood. For all those things Austin prophesied have come to pass.

Bill Sinnott

His wife and children are somewhere in the English countryside seeking escape from possible Nazi bombs. And Austin, himself, is somewhere in London devoting his time and limitless energy to a situation that he tried to prevent. He'll carry into his work the same spirit and ideals that made him a champion on the tennis courts. He's not alone.

Max Schmelling, former World Heavyweight Champ, is supporting the cause of Hitler. He was reported to be flying a plane for the Nazis, but instead he was turning out a potato crop on his farm to feed the mouths of the boys in the trenches. That's more important than flying in Germany, we suppose.

Paulino Uzcudun, Carnera, Lovelock, Bromwich, the Canadian Hockey stars, are all doing their bit or are prepared to do it in the interests of the causes to which they are espoused.

BASKETEERS OPEN INTRAMURAL PLAY TONIGHT AT SEVEN

Fediganites Appear Strongest as Businessmen Attempt Retention of Championship

By WALTER BROWN

Around this time every year, most everyone's thoughts turn to the intramural sport which will occupy the spotlight for the next five months — Intramural Basketball. The season for this sport will officially open this evening in the Alumni gym at which time the Austinites will face Fedigan, and Alumni will battle the Mendel Residents. However, there will be a game this afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Alumni gym between the Businessmen and their fellow-commuters, the Mendel Day Students.

As last year's followers of this sport know, the C. & F. Day-hops are the defendings champs; but this year they will be greatly handicapped by the loss of Jack Stack, Jim Schelle, and "Bud" O'Connell through graduation; the latter two having made all-intramural last year. Dan McGurk, another Businessman who made all-intramural, will be absent during the first half due ot the fact that he plays on the 150-pound football team.

Two Regulars Return

The only regulars of last year on this team will be George Coupe and Walt Dwyer. Saul Wallach and Gerry Lynam who played in a few games with the team will also return. Regardless of these losses you can be sure that they will be in there fighting and who knows, they might repeat last year's performance.

Fedigan, which only missed last year's championship by one point, appears to have a stronger team this year. After taking the first game in the playoff last year, 29-21, they lost the next two to C. & F. 27-22, and 36-35; the last one on a field goal by McGurk in the closing seconds.

Many Veterans

The players expected to return to this team are Bob Keeler, "Tex" Conners, Vic Sandor, and Joe Bochetto, who were members of last year's first half champions. Jack Dunigan, Hal Murphy, and Tony Scelba, other members of Fedigan teams, are back in the same hall and are expected to report.

Hindered only by the loss of Dan Keating, their star, the Mendel Day-hops should go places this year. Dalina, Carr, Depersio, McMahon, and Al Wood will all return and will be aided by quite a few new men.

Austin Weakened

Austin, which finished runner-up to C. & F. in the second half race, was hardest hit again this year by graduation and transfers to other halls. Although they lost last year's whole first team consisting of Mick Cuskey, Austin Bradshaw, Carl Pantaleo, Jim Dwyer, Ralph Fioretti, Tom Maley and Walt Burlington, Austin received within its walls, two men who were on the all-intramural team last year. Bernie Crumb and Dan Keating. Pantaleo, Dwyer, and Burlington were lost through graduation while Cuskey, Bradshaw, Fioretti and Maley were transferred to Fedigan where they will strengthen that dorm's ranks.

Crumb, who comes to Austin from Mendel, was last year's highest scorer. Dan Keating, who played a bang-up season with the Mendel Day-hops, was follower-up to Crumb in scoring.

Although Alumni and Mendel Residents are composed wholly of inexperienced freshmen, you can bet that Fathers Dunne and McQuade will have their teams come out fighting. As usual they are the unknown quantities which must be reckoned with.

Quarter-Finalists in Mural Tennis

Intramural tennis enthusiasts finish their Fall tournament this week. Those who reached the quarter-finals in the tourney were pictured above as they started play on Friday afternoon. Left to right they are, kneeling: George McFadden, Alumni; Gerry Belz, Mendel D. S., and Jim Kivlin, Mendel Resident; standing: Chet Pajolek, also of Alumni; Bob Keeler, Fedigan, and Bill Carey, C. & F. Ralph Terraciano, Austin representative, was absent when the picture was taken. McFadden and Pajolek played off a tie for the championship of Alumni, which the former won. Keeler beat Carey in the other match.

Last, But Not Least

Frosh Of Various Types

By JAMES F. HAUGHTON

LAST WEEK one of those nice gentlemen who pound the editorials for this sheet condemned the ineptitudes of the Frosh. As he put it, the members of Centennial '43 were slipping way behind in their button wearing, black ties, and all such garb for which first year men are famous.

All well and good. We admire the gent for his interest. But this department has also been taking the young 'uns to task. But in a mental manner. Naturally many may accuse us of cerebral malnutrition. You'd have that disease, too, if you ate coal dust for a few years.

So we busied ourselves with this little problem. It was going to be a contribution to both literature and statistical surveys (without moving from our desk.) Previously, we have limited our deep thought to such analytical twisters as "Does Shirley Temple really wear false teeth?" or "Is Hedy Lemarr partial to college boys?" By this time we were serious.

To seek solace and aid in easing our mind into this difficult proposition, we took our Bank Night knitting tools in hand and fussed a bit on that knitted blue and white drape for our favorite manhole cover. And this is what came out:

These freshmen are quite a diversified group of kids. They number all kinds. We have sorta taken a few apart and put them in their categories or should we say Genera and Species?

The Small Town Boy

The small town boy away from home for the first time. He has that pciture of his high school gal, who had the lead in the graduation play, right on his desk. They correspond every other day. And special delivery. He only knows the "Greeks" as a place where a lot of jitterbugs hang out. But his girl isn't like that. We'll lay two to one odds that he won't have her by Christmas. For going home on that Thanksgiving train he'll see there are really a lot of other pretty girls in this world.

The Student Type

Purely the student type. He's already supplying the rest of the hall with the right answers. Has loads of friends around exam time. Knows the short cuts to the library. Book reviews are his main appetizer. He really must stay in this afternoon to get back that A in biology. Will probably end up in a laboratory.

Joe College

The typical high school collegian. Has been reading Esquire ever since his brother subscribed to it. Was he a humdinger in high school! Why he had every girl in the place just swooning over him. His first question on arrival here was "When does Rosemont come in." And will he have a honey for the Belle Air Ball!

Gets Along

Strong, silent type. Talks only when necessary. Nobody kids him. Gals don't interest him. But he always ends up with the Queen of the Ball. His life is usually like a typical American boy story. Success is always his.

Mixes Well

Playboy type. Nothing bothers him. Alright, what if he does flunk the course? He can always take it over. Did the tailor bring that suit back? Prom Goer. Life of the party and just a regular fella.

Granted that we could go on for inches enumerating the young ones in search of an education. But then what does one benefit by just thinking about Frosh?

SHAW PLAYS SCHOOL SONG

Artie Shaw is going to play Villanova songs at least once during his stay at the Pennsylvania Hotel in New York City, Rev. Ralph J. Handran, music moderator, has announced.

The youthful King of Swing sent a telegram to Fr. Handran last week asking him to suggest the most popular Villanova football song. Fr. Handran immediately suggested "The March of the Wildcats"—the Villanova touchdown song—which will ring out under the swing baton of Artie Shaw .

A. S. C. E. REORGANIZED

The first meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers was held last Monday, October 8, and a tentative program was announced by Mr. Oakey, Assistant Professor in Engineering, the Moderator of the Soceity. It will include illustrated lectures and various trips to plants of interest. Meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of every month.

Assistants Named For Senior Socials

if not—" said Chairman Wilderotter.

During the next 2 weeks, P. Edward Hanlon and Charles G. Martin, president and treasurer of the class respectively, as well as the above named men, will collect assessments. It will not be necessary to pay the ten dollars in a lump sum, but it may be paid in installments of any amount. In the latter case the payor will receive a temporary receipt from whoever collects the fee, which in turn will be supplemented by a receipt from the class treasurer.

It is expected that the various sub-chairmen will have completed the process of organizing the committees and that such lists will be published as soon as received.

Stories Of The Schools

Training For B. S. In Biology

By JOSEPH SANTANIELLO

THE School of Science was established in 1915 to meet the growing demand for a short, specialized preparation for Medical and Dental Schools. Formerly, a fully approved two-year college course fulfilled the minimum requirements for admission to the professional schools.

In order to fulfill the requirements of the various Dental Colleges requiring one year pre-dental study, the first year of the Pre-Med was arranged, supplying the credits needed for this purpose.

Due to the growing demand of those Medical Colleges requiring of their applicants a College degree, a third and fourth year were added to the first two years.

Biology Degree Given

The degree received at the end of the four-year course is the Bachelor of Science in Biology which insures for prospective medical students the best opportunity for successful application to the leading professional schools and also serves as a good preparation for those aspiring to teach Science or engage in laboratory work.

This degree is fully approved by the Association of American Colleges and the Association of Colleges of the Middle States and Maryland; the entire course meets the requirements of the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

The faculty lays stress on the subjects leading to the B. S. in Biology degree rather than the minimum requirements for entrance to graduate schools, hence the curriculum contains many subjects not required by the Medical Association's Committee.

Number of years required in premedical work differ according to the standards of the various medical schools, but the student is admitted with the understanding that he is working toward the attainment of the Bachelor's Degree and not to meet the requirements of any particular professional school.

Fifteen Credits Needed

It is necessary that candidates requesting admission to the School of Science have completed a four-year course of at least fifteen units in a high school approved by a competent accrediting agency.

In the first year, emphasis is laid upon General Biology; in the additional years, stress is laid upon a more extensive course embracing Literature, Science, and Philosophy.

In addition to the four years, candidates for the degree must present a thesis on some Biological subject involving laboratory work.

As for outside activities dealing with the field of science, there are the Lambda Kappa Delta, Science Seminar, Mendel Bulletin, and the most recently formed club, the Research Seminar. These organizations are conducted by the students themselves and under the supervision of the Science faculty.

SENIOR FORMAL BALL COMMITTEE IS NAMED BY CHAIRMAN

Representatives From Various Schools to Aid Wilderotter in Preparations

Robert G. Wilderotter, Belle Air Ball chairman, has designated 16 students to aid in organizing the Senior Ball. Chairman Wilderotter has selected a committee representing all four schools on the campus.

In the School of Arts, James B. Scott will be placed on one of the sub-committees. Members of the science school who will assist are: Ralph J. Fioretti, Richard S. Refowich, Harry M. Taylor, Gilbert E. Noll, Justin Rubin and Claude A. Van Hook. In the School of Engineering Joseph B. Christoph, John C. Hallinan, Casimer J. Kurek, Frank S. Melograna, and Edward J. Cierkowski will participate. The business school will supply John F. Lang, Arthur W. Murphy, Phillip M. Dunn and Thomas J. Casper.

There will be a meeting of this entire group together with the subchairmen this Thursday at 1 P. M. in room 214 Mendel. It is expected that definite progress will be made with each successive gathering. There will be a meeting of the subchairmen every Thursday until the dance and a bi-monthly forum for the rest of the committeemen.

Wilderotter when asked for a statement replied: "Most of the seniors have shown some degree of cooperation since we mentioned the matter of assessments last week but it is necessary to have still more. If no one has approached you it was only because you were inadvertently missed. The assessments do not have to be paid in their entirety but in any installment plan you may devise. Remember that the important thing, however, is to get it paid as soon as possible. This is the last social function that the Class of 1940 sponsors, so let's start to give the Ball some serious thought."

REPORTS DUE

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., requests all campus organizations which have not as yet turned in annual reports to do so as soon as possible.

At the beginning of each school year it is required that all organizations turn in a financial statement with a report of proposed activities and a list of members. Reports were due this year on September 22, but the time was limit was extended until October 17. Many are still delinquent.

ENDOWMENT PLEA MADE BY PRESIDENT

Fr. Stanford Cites Request to Aid Students in Alumni Magazine

An appeal for more permanent assistance for needy high school graduates who wish to go to college was voiced by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., president of the college, in an article in the October issue of the "Villanova Alumnus."

This can be done only by means of endowment funds, a step being taken in this direction by the establishment of Class Scholarship Funds, beginning with the Class of 1928. Already there has been an uninterrupted growth of this source, two of the classes having passed the thousand dollar mark. The chart below shows the present amount of funds:

1929	$635	1936	$795
1930	$660	1937	$730
1931	$580	1938	$1045
1932	$350	1939	$1100
1933	$400	1940	$385
1934	$775	1941	$315

To be active, these funds must reach a minimum of $1000; until then the interest is allowed to accumulate with the principal.

Also featured in this issue were articles previewing the football season. There was also a description of the many improvements made in the library since the writer of the article last visited it and several features telling about the Opinion Of Nation's Campi Favors Roosevelt's Neutrality Program

ACP, — U. S. college students — some 1,400,000-strong — returned to classrooms and campuses last month amid a loud chorus of warnings and imploring. They were warned by the press and the presidents to maintain an open and thinking attitude on the present European war. They were implored to use their every influence to keep the U. S. out of the war and to bend every energy to a sincere study of the world's problems and how they can be met.

From the surveys that have appeared to date, it appears that the average collegian has heeded these warnings and these commands. He maintains that he does not want to go to war, that he wants the U. S. to remain neutral. But he seems to have no objection to the U. S. selling goods of all kinds to the warring nations, so long as it is on a cash-and-carry basis. First real objection to the President's proposed neutrality act changes was made at St. John's University, where 650 students signed a letter to the Chief Executive protesting "a new partisan neutrality act without first consulting the people through the medium of a referendum." This movement has not yet gained much headway.

College newspaper editorial opinion, though about evenly divided, seems leaning toward the President's proposal that the neutrality act be changed to provide for sale of materials to belligerents that can pay for it and transport it from our shores.

The arguments of those who oppose the change is neatly summarized by the St. John's University Record: "If the embargo were lifted business would undoubtedly flourish in America — for a while, that is as long as Britain and France could pay cash. Britain and France, because Germany would never be allowed to purchase here. After England and France could not pay cash, our loans to the democracies would almost inevitably begin again. And there is the danger! That is how we started last time."

For the affirmative, the University of Iowa Daily Iowan states the case: "Congress has two facts to go by. (1) We want peace. (2) We'd fight — or a substantial minority of us would — if defeat began for the democracies. The logical conclusion to this line of reasoning is lifting the arms embargo now."

Whatever their position, most edi-

Student War Stand To Be Found by Poll

181 Catholic Colleges to Take Part in Vote on Issues

Over 181 Catholic Colleges and about 115,000 students will participate today in a poll conducted by the "America," national Catholic review, to determine the opinion that college students hold on the participation of the United States in the present European War.

The poll, carried on in Villanova College through the Student Council, will be held in the dining rooms during the noon lunch hour today.

The students will be asked to give their opinion on questions concerning the United States' entrance into the war, whether intervention on our part would lead to European peace, whether a national referendum should be called before we declare war, and if the student would volunteer for services or become an objector.

October 28 Date Set For Annual Alumni Home Coming Day

Among Features Are Villanova - Arkansas Game, Dinner - Dance

Villanova's annual Alumni Homecoming Day will be held this Saturday, October 28, with the feature event of the day being the Villanova-Arkansas football game.

During the past month the Philadelphia branch of the Alumni, under the direction of Walter E. Alessandroni, '35, who is Homecoming Day chairman, has completed its arrangements to play host to the returning Alumni.

The inaugural function of the day will be the game between Villanova and Arkansas which starts at 2:30 P. M. in Shibe Park.

Shortly after the game the members of the Alumni will travel to the new Terrace Gardens of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, at 9th and Chestnut Streets in Philadeldelphia where dinner will be served at seven o'clock. Music will be provided by Bernie Cummins and his orchestra, and a floor show will be presented.

In an effort to facilitate the large number expected, the committee in charge of preparations has chosen one of the largest dance floors in the city and as three-quarters of the entire Terrace Gardens has been turned over to the Villanova Alumni, 250 tickets are available.

Philosophy Seminar Has First Meeting

Bongiovanni Discusses Individuation in Composite of Spiritual Substances

When, tomorrow, the Philosophy Seminar convenes officially for the first time this year, Joseph N. Bongiovanni, Jr., will present a paper on the principle of individuation in composite and spiritual substances.

The paper will deal with the Scholastic explanation of individuation as found principally in St. Thomas Aquinas. In preparing his paper, Bongiovanni, a senior artsman, consulted the questions which treat of this problem in the "Summa Theologica" and the "Summa Contra Gentiles." He also read the opuscula: "De Ente et Essentia," "De Principio Individuationis" and "De Natura Materiae." John J. Harrington will review the paper.

This will be the third year that the Philosophy Seminar is active at Villanova. It was founded in 1937 by the Rev. Elward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Philosophy.

At a preparatory meeting held last week general plans for the seminar were discussed. It was suggested that occasionally book reviews be brought in to vary the usual procedure. James Donovan, junior artsman, suggested the problems bearing on the history of philosophy be examined. Both plans were accepted by the group.

'OWL' APPEARS THIS WEEK

The Villanova Engineer, monthly publication of the engineering school, will make its initial appearance of the current year sometime this week.

Exact date of issue has not as yet been determined, but the subject of several of the articles has been revealed. There will be a short article on traffic engineering by Joseph A. Gallagher, co-editor of the magazine.

Joseph A. Dorsey, a sophomore, will write on the placement service. There will also be an article telling of the experience gained by several of the students who worked on engineering projects during the summer.

MELOGRANA HEADS OWL HOP ACTIVITIES

Sub-Committees Appointed to Take Care of Publicity, Decorations and Refreshments

Francis S. Melograna, mechanical engineer, has been appointed chairman of the Owl Hop by President Harold Murphy of Phi Kappa Pi. The hop will be held in the Field House on Friday, November 10.

Assisting Melograna will be the following committee: Joseph F. Calvarese, Anthony A. Clauso, Melchior W. Gaston, John Rainey, John J. Seelaus, Clement F. Dinon and Charles A. Barrett, all seniors. Representing the juniors will be James Delina, Paul L. Farnsworth, John J. Skelly, William J. Delahanty. Sophomores on the committee are Vincent J. Gordon, James J. Earley, Edward J. Kelley, and John C. Muench.

The new chairman has been very active at college. He has been a member of the engineering fraternity for four years, having been treasurer last year and also a member of the Owl Hop committee. He is a member of the 150-pound football squad, active in intramural boxing and basketball, and also artist on the Belle Air staff.

At a meeting yesterday Melograna appointed several sub-committees to assist him in the publicity, decorations, refreshments, tickets, and orchestra.

E. P. T. TO NOMINATE

Nomination of officers for the Epsilon Phi Theta, Arts Fraternity, will take place this Thursday afternoon at a meeting called by Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, moderator, to be held at 2:30 in room 111 Mendel Hall.

Fr. Dwyer is anxious that all seniors and juniors in the arts and education departments, who are interested, be present.

SCHOOL MEMBER ATTENDS COLLEGE PRESS CONFERENCE

Syrek of Herald Tribune Speaks on "Modern Newspaper Production"

Twenty-five Colleges and Universities from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania were represented at the Fifth Annual Press Night meeting at the College of Chestnut Hill last Thursday night.

Syrek spoke on "Modern Newspaper Production" and traced the edition of a paper from the time the stories were phoned in by the reporters, until the paper was packed and ready for delivery. The speaker said that the entire process is scheduled to take 14 minutes, though he personally saw a paper written, composed, edited, and sent out on delivery in eight minutes at the time of the Hindenburg disaster.

The Tribune uses over two and a half tons of chemically treated ink per day and if all the sheets of a Sunday edition were placed end to end, the paper would reach more than half-way around the world. Capacity printing speed for the huge presses is 8,600 copies per minute. Papers worth 14 cents are sold for seven and a half cents, the deficit being covered by advertisements.

After Mr. Syrek had finished, Henry Coit, who is associated with the Newark Evening News spoke on "The Newspaper as an Interpreter of the News." He said that while interpretation of the news was something that could not be avoided, it should be done as fairly and as accurately as possible. He claimed that columns are rapidly taking the place of editorials.

At the conclusion of Mr. Coit's address, a panel discussion was held under the direction of Miss Julia O'Keefe of the Philadelphia Inquirer. Ten college editors, including John J. Harrington, editor of the VILLANOVAN, discussed the topic "How to Make a College Newspaper Function."

After all the editors had expressed their views the question was thrown open to the house and anyone who wanted to could question any of the participants of the student panel. The conference continued in this fashion with the different delegates exchanging ideas and discussing their various problems. The meeting adjourned at 10:30 P. M.

Local Colleges Favor Provision Of Group To Act As Campus Hosts

By THOMAS A. SHALLOW

Robert M. Whalen, secretary of the Athletic Association, announced himself in favor of the proposed "Greeters," organized to look after visiting teams and clubs. "It would help the managers and make a good impression on the teams," he said. "I know how we appreciated the hospitality shown us on the Texas trip."

Research revealed that many schools already have similar groups. Among these are the "key" societies of the Ivy League schools, such as Dartmouth's Green Key, the Orange Key of Princeton, and the Red Key of Cornell.

Pennsylvania's Kite and Key, however, seems to be a promotional as well as a welcoming organization. Among its functions are entertaining prospective students at athletic and social events, "spreading the name of the university among the leading preparatory schools," and acting as a service group.

The society projected at Villanova would be unique, however, in that the students have been found to believe that it should look after all visiting groups. Practically without exception the organizations investigated look after only visiting athletic teams.

Local schools with organized reception staffs are Temple University and Drexel Institute. "The "Temple Boosters" group co-operates with its Athletic Association in caring for its guests. Membership here is open to all, and no special requirements are set up.

The Drexel Gold Key is similar to the "Boosters," but its members are selected only from the candidates for managerial posts; in this way many managers are on it, but there are others to help them.

Members of the Villanova track team hold up West Point as an example of hospitality. Two cadet upperclassmen meet each visiting team on its arrival, and they are completely at the service of their guests during their stay.

Another unique system for caring for visiting teams is found at Rosemont. Eight young ladies from the freshman class meet each group and act as hostesses; the class officers form the nucleus of this group but the others vary from time to time.

Other local schools which, like

Alumni Visit Alma Mater

FOND memories of college days will fill the hearts of Villanova Alumni on the occasion of the Annual Homecoming celebration. Once again their four years of college life will be relived in a few short hours. Time and fate have carried them far and wide in their various fields of activity but they are still a part of Villanova.

Although they are members of the student body for only four short years, but years filled to the brim and overflowing with happy thoughts and experiences, they are members of the Alumni for life.

Each year witnesses some material change in the college, but her traditions and ideals, now a part of their personalities, will always be the same.

The learning they absorbed has enabled them to successfully take their places in the world and, we as present students and future Alumni should make the most of our opportunities. Interest in Alumni functions and a closer connection with the members should be considered a responsibility of the student body.

Supplying Vocational Advice

SUCCESS of the Placement Bureau established at Villanova suggests that another bureau should be established as a complement to this. There should be a Vocational Councilor at the head of a Vocational Guidance Program who would analyze the matriculating student's abilities and capacities and advise him as to what profession he would best be suited.

Future maladjustments, wasted time, effort, funds, and abilities could be avoided if a trained man interviewed the aspiring young men, analyzed them, studied their records, and advised them in the all-important choice of a life work.

In time this would remedy the complaint that the professional fields are overcrowded with unproperly trained men and women, benefiting all concerned.

. . . The Gentlemen From Villanova Object

WITH the International situation becoming more intense, and the noose gradually tightening about the throats of young America, it is time for them to look forth where there might be a light.

A perusal of Saint Thomas and Saint Augustine reveals that present conditions bar the possibility of calling the present one a just war. Can any man contend that the present conflict is a just war? Can any man place a gross formal moral guilt on one side alone? Can any man definitely say that war was declared when all means to prevent it had failed? Can any man be morally certain that the side of justice will win? Can justice exist in unjust warfare?

With facts, figures, and history within all men's grasp, how can man arrive at the conclusion that modern warfare is just? How can men demand that youth go to battle, to fight, and to die for a cause that is not just? There is but one answer for the youth of America to give to these men, and that is they will not engage in an unreasonable, an unjust war.

Active Allegiance

TO you, Mr. Catholic College student, has been given the invaluable gift of a spiritual radio, originally tuned to the frequency of Christ's voice. However, free will necessitated a dial and numerous other stations with different wave lengths on the band. If there has been no tampering with the controls, the deeply-thrilling and soothing counsels of Christ still find their way to your ears. On the other hand, with the impatient twist of the dial has come alluringly seductive foreign speech which, having its base on material, must logically crumble in the chaos of earth-bound things.

Guard your receiving set well—your five senses. Persist on the wave length of truth, Christ's truth, even though it seem difficult at times.

But remember that defensive action is not enough. Of course, primarily we must passively sit by our sets and receive full instructions from the Most High in the re-broadcast by Holy Mother Church. But when these have been digested, we are only beginning. The obligation then is to put the theory into practice, to materialize the concept, not once or twice but constantly, all the while heeding the field communiques still issuing from station G O D on our portables.

To particularize — the Catholic Ideal is practiced by the student who with no ulterior motive tutors a classmate in certain studies at the sacrifice of a part of his own recreational time. It is practiced by the resident who inconveniently but charitably shares his already small bed for the night with the stranded day student. It is practiced by the fellow who sacrifices an extra hour's sleep to go to daily Mass and the Altar Rail, who regularly designates a part of his allowance for missionary aid, who fights back and crushes the impure word, the reputation-destroying slam.

In each specific instance noted, proper names are to be had as supplementary verification. Names of Villanova students. Names of Villanovans who practice the Catholic Ideal.

Why isn't your name among them?

Government Protection Of Labor Unions Needed

Legislation Guaranteeing Basic Human Rights Is Necessary

By VINCENT A. McQUADE, O. S. A., Ph. D.

Assistant Professor, Social Sciences

Labor Legislation

AT THE CLOSE of the eighteenth century, the growth of industry and the dominance of the Liberalistic tenets of economics spread misery and poverty amongst the vast masses of the laboring poor. Capital, in the dominant position, was able to appropriate to itself excessive advantages: greedy industrialists claimed all the products and profits, leaving to the laborer the barest necessities which would ensure the continuation of the laboring class. The inexorable laws of economics demanded that all accumulation of riches should fall to the wealthy, while the workingmen must remain in a perpetual state of indigence. Such was the prevailing philosophy.

This changed relationship between masters and workmen prompted the first official ecclesiastical pronouncement on this subject back in 1891 when Pope Leo XIII issued the "Rerum Novarum." Succeeding years have brought further utterances from the Chair of Peter. Pope Pius XI, of happy memory, proposes the modern view in the following terms:

> "Every effort, therefore, must be made that at least in the future a just share only of the fruits of production be permitted to accumulate in the hands of the wealthy, and that an ample sufficiency be supplied the workingmen."
> ("Quadragesimo Anno")

Since it would be rash to expect such a distribution would follow automatically in the present organization of industry, Pope Pius XI also points out the way in which this may be accomplished.

> "The duty of rulers is to protect the community and its various elements; and in protecting the rights of individuals they must have special regard for the infirm and needy. 'For the richer class have many ways of shielding themselves and stand less in need of help from the State, whereas the mass of the poor have no resources of their own to fall back upon and must chiefly depend upon the assistance of the State. And for this reason wage-earners, since they mostly belong to that class, should be equally cared for and protected by the government.' "
> (Ibid.)

During the past few years we have witnessed a great development of social legislation in the United States. Previous to the ill-fated NRA, labor possessed rather precarious rights before the law. Since the advent of the New Deal, various measures have been adopted guaranteeing rights and privileges previously withheld. The Social Security Act, National Labor Relations Act, Fair Wages and Hours Law, to mention but a few, have attempted to restore the balance between masters and workmen.

Criticism of New Deal legislation has been both frequent and violent. While some of its program has been ill-advised, yet, it would be advisable to examine with care the efforts of the National Labor Relations Act to protect labor in its rights to organize; provisions for unemployment compensation and old-age benefits and pensions under the Social Security Act; and finally attempts to establish a ceiling for hours and a floor for wages under its minimum wages and maximum hours law. Undoubtedly defects are present in these legislative enactments. It would be asking too much to expect that our first attempts at social legislation would lack defects. However, examining the labor program from the long range viewpoint, have we not at last made progress in protecting basic human rights?

Fr. McQuade

graduate of Villanova, '31; M. A. and Ph. D. from Catholic University. Other published works include article on child labor for "Central Blatt and Social Justice," and one on St. Augustine's philosophy of the state for the "Christian Front."

It would be well to remember that workmen have a natural right to organize and also a right to the benefits of a living family wage. Labor legislation of the present administration constitutes an attempt to guarantee these rights to workers. Under present circumstances, this is a necessary type of legislation. If workmen are denied opportunity to exercise these rights due to the oppressions of some hard-hearted industrialists imbued with the doctrines of rugged individualism, it is within the province, nay more, it is the duty of the State to protect workmen in the exercise of these rights by legislative enactment. Improvements can be made in the present laws; such improvement will be attained not by sabotage of the present acts, but by well-considered and thoughtful amendment.

Rhapsody

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

The burnished gold of setting sun gives way
Before the purple dusk of deepening night,
While shadowy fantastic preludes play
An elegy of mournful, moody light
In harmony of tenor shafts of glow
That sparkle from Aeolian-lyred streams,
As from on high the moon's soft bassos flow
And swell the lilting hues to giant beams.

J. Bradley McManus, Chairman of Student Council, Versatile Athlete, Excellent Scholar and Social Lion

Beta Gamma, Belle Masque, Honor Roll Among Activities

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

VERSATILITY seems to be the trait common to Villanova students, and here we present the story of a young gentleman who, besides being very athletically inclined, also combines scholarship and social life into his interesting personality to good advantage.

Introducing Joseph Bradley McManus, Senior Commerce and Finance, more popularly dubbed "Brad."

"Brad" first saw the light of day on May 3, 1918, in the city of Philadelphia. His formal education began at St. Andrew's Parochial School in Drexel Hill, where he was first in his graduating class in 1932.

In the September of that same year he registered at West Catholic High, and there "Brad" began to distinguish himself in several ways. He played varsity football for two years, being the quarterback on the team; at the same time he was a prominent member of the track team, in the pole vaulting class. He placed in quite a few meets, and was on the team when it won the Catholic League title and the National Championship at Notre Dame.

Receives Economics Medal

Commencement drew nigh, but "Brad" still had a card up his sleeve, although it wasn't a surprise, being presented the medal for outstanding work in economics at the exercises in June, '36.

Having always planned so, the proximity to home of the school also being a great influence, he decided to matriculate at Villanova. Thus in September he became a day hop in the Commerce and Finance, majoring in accounting.

As a Frosh his latent histrionic talents began to bud, for he joined the Belle Masque, of which society he has been a member for four years.

J. BRADLEY McMANUS

He played the part of Lieut. Raleigh in "Journey's End;" he also had a role in the Masque's production of "Winterset." Recently "Brad" was elected business manager of the society, an enviable position considering the complexities of detail such an officer must attend to in the production of a play.

Tries for Varsity

The spring of the same year saw him trying out for the varsity football team, but as he was destined to make a name for himself in another way, he didn't make the team.

Then came the glorious transformation: "Zrad" was a Soph! Now his interests became multiple. He was both a member of the Orientation and the Sophomore Cotillion Committees. Athletically this year was also successful, for he made the 150's and the track, playing left halfback on the former and performing in the pole vaulting division in the latter for two and three years respectively.

150 Lb. All-American

In 1938 he achieved the distinctive honor of being an All American mention on the 150 lb. All American team. "Brad" also has played for the golf team for two years.

Junior Week activities of the next year saw him as chairman, conducting the events with great success, combining this with his position on the Student Council, which made a rather busy young man. In his senior year he was elected chairman of the Student Council, thus rounding out his list of important offices held while he was a student at Villanova.

Scholastically Excellent

Scholastically "Brad" has made quite a mark for himself in the C & F School, where he made the honor roll quite frequently.

It has been a policy with him to spend his summers working, and the list of the different jobs he has held would make a jack of all trades feel ashamed, for at one time or another he has been a short order cook in a restaurant, has worked in a steel mill, and has helped his father—a builder—by selling houses for him. Incidentally "Brad" is quite enthusiastic about this type of work and has decided to follow his father's footsteps.

Football is his favorite sport, but he doesn't let this natural like interfere with participation in others, for he also enjoys immensely playing tennis, basketball, and swimming.

Socially he is quite a lion, and as a friend of his remarked, I "wouldn't be lyin' if I said that." Rosemont, for some reason or another, sees quite a bit of him. Probably the scenery there is very appealing.

Villanova College,
Villanova, Pa.

Gentlemen:

I was on the Philadelphia and Western, leaving 69th Street at 7:45 P. M., Saturday, October 14th, and arrived at the Villanova Station, I guess about 7:55 P. M.

A number of your College boys got on. As I am colored, usually boys of that age are insulting, but on this occasion, I feel as though I should tell you that those boys were the most polite boys that I have ever met. I cannot find words that would express just how nice those boys were. It not only showed the college training, but also the homes they must have come from. I wish to congratulate them if there is any way of you expressing this to them from me.

Sincerely yours,

Chestnut Trees Bear First Crop

Many of the students who amble so lethargically down the C. & F. roadway have never noticed the trees lining it up to the Lincoln Highway. If you had noticed them you may have been fortunate enough to walk of with some fine chestnuts but as it is you're out some chestnuts.

However, keeping an eye to the future, we will put you wise to some facts so that next year you won't be caught napping. There are about fifty trees which were presented to the School of Science in 1929 by the United States Government. They are of the Chinese variety, all the American varieties being destroyed by the blight of 1910 in the locality. Their botanical origin is Castana Mollissima, and incidentally they yielded chestnuts for the first time this year, and are definitely blight proof.

the 'CATS' MEOW!

By Barney Bellew

A wildcat is a funny animal, mostly like all other animals what has four or more legs. Wildcats has funny shapes; sometimes the same wildcat is hump-backed and again he ain't, depends on what he is doing.

A wildcat has legs, two in front at the end and two behind at the end; two on the right side and two on the left. Those at the front and back ends are set side-by-side, those on the sides are in rows, one row on each side. At the end of each leg is a paw. The paws are padded like a boxing glove (only on the other side), and wouldn't be allowed in a prize ring 'cause they got nails at the end of each pad. Wildcats are a nervous animal 'cause they chew their nails, which don't help none as far as I can see.

Wildcats has two ears, but they ain't big like a mule and they ain't in the same place neither, being set farther back, one at the northwest corner of the head and one at the northeast corner. The ears are covered with hair, like a woman's, only the Wildcats ain't afraid they'll be seen, like a woman. It's all right with the wildcat as long as you don't try to get hold of them, then they ain't so different from a woman either.

A wildcat has teeth and nose and everything like most of the other animals, except'n a chicken. It has two long teeth in front, or pretty near in front, and one on each side at the same place the ones are in front, and yet they ain't crowded none except'n when they come together, and I don't know what ones move over. Most wildcats has a tail, not so much like a rabbit, as like a horse or a cow, which ain't just like a wildcat's either. Wildcats wag their tails and rabbits don't.

Wildcats is alright if they know you're coming, but if they don't they're like a woman when you bring company for dinner and there's nothing to eat, only wildcats don't say nothing. Now a she wildcat. A she wildcat is the same as a woman only it's always wild, and a woman ain't, quite.

Now wildcats is different from deers in this respect, that the two front end legs and the two front end side legs become arms when they stand and change back to legs again when they lie. Wildcats lie just like some people only they don't say nothing.

The wildcat swings a wicked left, like Bill Duffy, or Bob Mentzinger, only it keeps a few back end feet on the ground and also one of the front end side feet. I know a wildcat that swang a wicked right mitt also.

Well I guess that takes care of the long sought wildcat situation.

Just As Happy As If They Had a Brain:

In a recent poll at Bryn Mawr college, the girls who didn't know what it's all about voted for repeal of the arms embargo to the extent of 160 to 59. Three cheers for the 59. Five girls even thought that the United States should enter the war under the present conditions. Now isn't that foolish. Imagine any coy college youngling advancing her ideas on a subject that bothers her least of any.

When Dave Di Filippo was in grammar school, some twenty-five years ago, a teacher asked him to use the word ransom in a sentence. He answered:

"Way out west in a deep ravine,
A wildcat sat on a sewing machine.
The machine started,
Spinning very fast,
Sewed a thousand stitches in the wildcat's ear.
And he ran some.

Alumni Visit Alma Mater

FOND memories of college days will fill the hearts of Villanova Alumni on the occasion of the Annual Homecoming celebration. Once again their four years of college life will be relived in a few short hours. Time and fate have carried them far and wide in their various fields of activity but they are still a part of Villanova.

Although they are members of the student body for only four short years, but years filled to the brim and overflowing with happy thoughts and experiences, they are members of the Alumni for life.

Each year witnesses some material change in the college, but her traditions and ideals, now a part of their personalities, will always be the same.

The learning they absorbed has enabled them to successfully take their places in the world and, we as present students and future Alumni should make the most of our opportunities. Interest in Alumni functions and a closer connection with the members should be considered a responsibility of the student body.

Supplying Vocational Advice

SUCCESS of the Placement Bureau established at Villanova suggests that another bureau should be established as a complement to this. There should be a Vocational Councilor at the head of a Vocational Guidance Program who would analyze the matriculating student's abilities and capacities and advise him as to what profession he would best be suited.

Future maladjustments, wasted time, effort, funds, and abilities could be avoided if a trained man interviewed the aspiring young men, analyzed them, studied their records, and advised them in the all-important choice of a life work.

In time this would remedy the complaint that the professional fields are overcrowded with unproperly trained men and women, benefiting all concerned.

. . . The Gentlemen From Villanova Object

WITH the International situation becoming more intense, and the noose gradually tightening about the throats of young America, it is time for them to look forth where there might be a light.

A perusal of Saint Thomas and Saint Augustine reveals that present conditions bar the possibility of calling the present one a just war. Can any man contend that the present conflict is a just war? Can any man place a gross formal moral guilt on one side alone? Can any man definitely say that war was declared when all means to prevent it had failed? Can any man be morally certain that the side of justice will win? Can justice exist in unjust warfare?

With facts, figures, and history within all men's grasp, how can man arrive at the conclusion that modern warfare is just? How can men demand that youth go to battle, to fight, and to die for a cause that is not just? There is but one answer for the youth of America to give to these men, and that is they will not engage in an unreasonable, an unjust war.

—M. P. Z.

Active Allegiance

TO you, Mr. Catholic College student, has been given the invaluable gift of a spiritual radio, originally tuned to the frequency of Christ's voice. However, free will necessitated a dial and numerous other stations with different wave lengths on the band. If there has been no tampering with the controls, the deeply-thrilling and soothing counsels of Christ still find their way to your ears. On the other hand, with the impatient twist of the dial has come alluringly seductive foreign speech which, having its base on material, must logically crumble in the chaos of earth-bound things.

Guard your receiving set well—your five senses. Persist on the wave length of truth, Christ's truth, even though it seem difficult at times.

But remember that defensive action is not enough. Of course, primarily we must passively sit by our sets and receive full instructions from the Most High in the re-broadcast by Holy Mother Church. But when these have been digested, we are only beginning. The obligation then is to put the theory into practice, to materialize the concept, not once or twice but constantly, all the while heeding the field communiques still issuing from station G O D on our portables.

To particularize — the Catholic Ideal is practiced by the student who with no ulterior motive tutors a classmate in certain studies at the sacrifice of a part of his own recreational time. It is practiced by the resident who inconveniently but charitably shares his already small bed for the night with the stranded day student. It is practiced by the fellow who sacrifices an extra hour's sleep to go to daily Mass and the Altar Rail, who regularly designates a part of his allowance for missionary aid, who fights back and crushes the impure word, the reputation-destroying slam.

In each specific instance noted, proper names are to be had as supplementary verification. Names of Villanova students. Names of Villanovans who practice the Catholic Ideal.

Why isn't your name among them?

Government Protection Of Labor Unions Needed

Legislation Guaranteeing Basic Human Rights Is Necessary

By VINCENT A. McQUADE, O. S. A., Ph. D.
Assistant Professor, Social Sciences

Labor Legislation

AT THE CLOSE of the eighteenth century, the growth of industry and the dominance of the Liberalistic tenets of economics spread misery and poverty amongst the vast masses of the laboring poor. Capital, in the dominant position, was able to appropriate to itself excessive advantages: greedy industrialists claimed all the products and profits, leaving to the laborer the barest necessities which would ensure the continuation of the laboring class. The inexorable laws of economics demanded that all accumulation of riches should fall to the wealthy, while the workingmen must remain in a perpetual state of indigence. Such was the prevailing philosophy.

This changed relationship between masters and workmen prompted the first official ecclesiastical pronouncement on this subject back in 1891 when Pope Leo XIII issued the "Rerum Novarum." Succeeding years have brought further utterances from the Chair of Peter. Pope Pius XI, of happy memory, proposes the modern view in the following terms:

"Every effort, therefore, must be made that at least in the future a just share only of the fruits of production be permitted to accumulate in the hands of the wealthy, and that an ample sufficiency be supplied the workingmen."
("Quadragesimo Anno")

Since it would be rash to expect such a distribution would follow automatically in the present organization of industry, Pope Pius XI also points out the way in which this may be accomplished.

"The duty of rulers is to protect the community and its various elements; and in protecting the rights of individuals they must have special regard for the infirm and needy. 'For the richer class have many ways of shielding themselves and stand less in need of help from the State, whereas the mass of the poor have no resources of their own to fall back upon and must chiefly depend upon the assistance of the State. And for this reason wage-earners, since they mostly belong to that class, should be equally cared for and protected by the government.'"
(Ibid.)

During the past few years we have witnessed a great development of social legislation in the United States. Previous to the ill-fated NRA, labor possessed rather precarious rights before the law. Since the advent of the New Deal, various measures have been adopted guaranteeing rights and privileges previously withheld. The Social Security Act, National Labor Relations Act, Fair Wages and Hours Law, to mention but a few, have attempted to restore the balance between masters and workmen.

Criticism of New Deal legislation has been both frequent and violent. While some of its program has been ill-advised, yet, it would be advisable to examine with care the efforts of the National Labor Relations Act to protect labor in its rights to organize; provisions for unemployment compensation and old-age benefits and pensions under the Social Security Act; and finally attempts to establish a ceiling for hours and a floor for wages under its minimum wages and maximum hours law. Undoubtedly defects are present in these legislative enactments. It would be asking too much to expect that our first attempts at social legislation would lack defects. However, examining the labor program from the long range viewpoint, have we not at last made progress in protecting basic human rights?

Fr. McQuade

graduate of Villanova, '31; M. A. and Ph. D. from Catholic University. Other published works include article on child labor for "Central Blatt and Social Justice," and one on St. Augustine's philosophy of the state for the "Christian Front."

It would be well to remember that workmen have a natural right to organize and also a right to the benefits of a living family wage. Labor legislation of the present administration constitutes an attempt to guarantee these rights to workers. Under present circumstances, this is a necessary type of legislation. If workmen are denied opportunity to exercise these rights due to the oppressions of some hard-hearted industrialists imbued with the doctrines of rugged individualism, it is within the province, nay more, it is the duty of the State to protect workmen in the exercise of these rights by legislative enactment. Improvements can be made in the present laws; such improvement will be attained not by sabotage of the present acts, but by well-considered and thoughtful amendment.

Rhapsody

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

The burnished gold of setting sun gives way
Before the purple dusk of deepening night,
While shadowy fantastic preludes play
An elegy of mournful, moody light
In harmony of tenor shafts of glow
That sparkle from Aeolian-lyred streams,
As from on high the moon's soft bassos flow
And swell the lilting hues to giant beams.

Beta Gamma, Belle Masque, Honor Roll Among Activities

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

VERSATILITY seems to be the trait common to Villanova students, and here we present the story of a young gentleman who, besides being very athletically inclined, also combines scholarship and social life into his interesting personality to good advantage.

Introducing Joseph Bradley McManus, Senior Commerce and Finance, more popularly dubbed "Brad."

"Brad" first saw the light of day on May 3, 1918, in the city of Philadelphia. His formal education began at St. Andrew's Parochial School in Drexel Hill, where he was first in his graduating class in 1932.

In the September of that same year he registered at West Catholic High, and there "Brad" began to distinguish himself in several ways. He played varsity football for two years, being the quarterback on the team; at the same time he was a prominent member of the track team, in the pole vaulting class. He placed in quite a few meets, and was on the team when it won the Catholic League title and the National Championship at Notre Dame.

Receives Economics Medal

Commencement drew nigh, but "Brad" still had a card up his sleeve, although it wasn't a surprise, being presented the medal for outstanding work in economics at the exercises in June, '36.

Having always planned so, the proximity to home of the school also being a great influence, he decided to matriculate at Villanova. Thus in September he became a day hop in the Commerce and Finance, majoring in accounting.

As a Frosh his latent histrionic talents began to bud, for he joined the Belle Masque, of which society

J. BRADLEY McMANUS

he has been a member for four years.

He played the part of Lieut. Raleigh in "Journey's End;" he also had a role in the Masque's production of "Winterset." Recently "Brad" was elected business manager of the society, an enviable position considering the complexities of detail such an officer must attend to in the production of a play.

Tries for Varsity

The spring of the same year saw him trying out for the varsity football team, but as he was destined to make a name for himself in another way, he didn't make the team.

Then came the glorious transformation: "Zrad" was a Soph! Now his interests became multiple. He was both a member of the Orientation and the Sophomore Cotillion Committees. Athletically this year was also successful, for he made the 150's and the track, playing left halfback on the former and performing in the pole vaulting division in the latter for two and three years respectively.

150 Lb. All-American

In 1938 he achieved the distinctive honor of being an All American mention on the 150 lb. All American team. "Brad" also has played for the golf team for two years.

Junior Week activities of the next year saw him as chairman, conducting the events with great success, combining this with his position on the Student Council, which made a rather busy young man. In his senior year he was elected chairman of the Student Council, thus rounding out his list of important offices held while he was a student at Villanova.

Scholastically Excellent

Scholastically "Brad" has made quite a mark for himself in the C & F School, where he made the honor roll quite frequently.

It has been a policy with him to spend his summers working, and the list of the different jobs he has held would make a jack of all trades feel ashamed, for at one time or another he has been a short order cook in a restaurant, has worked in a steel mill, and has helped his father—a builder—by selling houses for him. Incidentally "Brad" is quite enthusiastic about this type of work and has decided to follow his father's footsteps.

Football is his favorite sport, but he doesn't let this natural like interfere with participation in others, for he also enjoys immensely playing tennis, basketball, and swimming.

Socially he is quite a lion, and as a friend of his remarked, I "wouldn't be lyin' if I said that." Rosemont, for some reason or another, sees quite a bit of him. Probably the scenery there is very appealing.

A wildcat has legs, two in front at the end and two behind at the end; two on the right side and two on the left. Those at the front and back ends are set side-by-side, those on the sides are in rows, one row on each side. At the end of each leg is a paw. The paws are padded like a boxing glove (only on the other side), and wouldn't be allowed in a prize ring 'cause they got nails at the end of each pad. Wildcats are a nervous animal 'cause they chew their nails, which don't help none as far as I can see.

Wildcats has two ears, but they ain't big like a mule and they ain't in the same place neither, being set farther back, one at the northwest corner of the head and one at the northeast corner. The ears are covered with hair, like a woman's, only the Wildcats ain't afraid they'll be seen, like a woman. It's all right with the wildcat as long as you don't try to get hold of them, then they ain't so different from a woman either.

A wildcat has teeth and nose and everything like most of the other animals, except'n a chicken. It has two long teeth in front, or pretty near in front, and one on each side at the same place the ones are in front, and yet they ain't crowded none except'n when they come together, and I don't know what ones move over. Most wildcats has a tail, not so much like a rabbit, as like a horse or a cow, which ain't just like a wildcat's either. Wildcats wag their tails and rabbits don't.

Wildcats is alright if they know you're coming, but if they don't they're like a woman when you bring company for dinner and there's nothing to eat, only wildcats don't say nothing. Now a she wildcat. A she wildcat is the same as a woman only it's always wild, and a woman ain't, quite.

Now wildcats is different from deers in this respect, that the two front end legs and the two front end side legs become arms when they stand and change back to legs again when they lie. Wildcats lie just like some people only they don't say nothing.

The wildcat swings a wicked left, like Bill Duffy, or Bob Mentzinger, only it keeps a few back end feet on the ground and also one of the front end side feet. I know a wildcat that swang a wicked right mitt also.

Well I guess that takes care of the long sought wildcat situation.

Just As Happy As If They Had a Brain:

In a recent poll at Bryn Mawr college, the girls who didn't know what it's all about voted for repeal of the arms embargo to the extent of 160 to 59. Three cheers for the 59. Five girls even thought that the United States should enter the war under the present conditions. Now isn't that foolish. Imagine any coy college youngling advancing her ideas on a subject that bothers her least of any.

When Dave Di Filippo was in grammar school, some twenty-five years ago, a teacher asked him to use the word ransom in a sentence. He answered:

"Way out west in a deep ravine,
A wildcat sat on a sewing machine.
The machine started,
Spinning very fast,
Sewed a thousand stitiches in the wildcat's ear.
And he ran some.

Music Seminar Hears Sibelius

Discussion of Finnish Composer's Life Coupled With Study of Compositions

Jean Sibelius, the Finnish composer, will be the subject of study at the next meeting of the Music Seminar, which will be held on Wednesday, October 25.

His immortal "Finlandia" will first be heard. It was this work which aroused extensive patriotic feeling in Finland, and which was outlawed by the Russians when they obtained control of the Finnish government. "Finlandia" will be followed by a biographical sketch of the composer, which will in turn be followed by his "Symphony in E Minor No. 1," one of four which he has composed to date.

After a short intermission, Ravel's "Bolero" will be heard, and the program will close with Sibelius' "Valse Triste."

Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., M. A., who has charge of these seminars, reports that a very great interest in the classics has been aroused this year, particularly among freshmen. So great are the numbers attending the seminars that two meetings per week will be held, one on Thursday as well as on Wednesday evening. The time is 7:30; the place, Simpson Hall.

Seniors Conduct Orchestra Poll

The Belle Air Dance Orchestra Committee headed by Sylvan Schwartz of the science school will hold a poll Thursday and Friday in order to select the most popular orchestra. Ballots for this poll may be deposited in the box outside the VILLANOVAN office on the designated days. Choices should be indicated no later than Friday.

Everyone is eligible to vote but for ballots to be valid they must abide by the following rules: names of favorite rythmaires in the order of choice must be filled in; the ballot must be deposited in the proper place at the proper time. These particulars will be posted at the polling places. Fees of Benny Goodman, Larry Clinton, Kay Kyser and Tommy Dorsey cannot be met, and the chairman has requested that these names be eliminated in the voting.

The results will be published two weeks from today in this newspaper.

"Zulieka" on Stage At Norris Theatre

Miss Zulieka, astrologist and psycho - mentalist, known to millions through her broadcasts over NBC and Columbia networks as the "Voice of Wisdom," appears in person on the stage of the Norris Theater for a special week's engagement starting Monday.

In keeping with the findings of Dr. Ryan at Duke University along the lines of mental telepathy, Miss Zulieka has been elected vice-president of the American Astology Society due to her advanced findings. Her remarkable accomplishments in astrology and psychic readings have brought such results as to leave one amazed.

In one instance she was called to aid Dean Ramey, famous criminal lawyer of New York, who was attempting to save the life of a convict who had stabbed two guards in a New York jail and killed another. Her findings served to save the man from the electric chair by giving evidence before a state supreme court. Where doctors, lawyers and detectives have failed, in many instances she has been able to bring relief and justice.

Definite proof of her many astounding powers are to be had for the asking. Zulieka will appear at all performances.—Advertisement.

Stories Of The Schools

Arts Provides Culture

By WILLIAM N. WAY

The Liberal Arts School, or the College Department as it was called for many years, enjoys the unique distinction of being the oldest and yet the smallest school on the campus.

It is the expressed aim of this school to do more than assist students to solve the problem of making a living. The pursuit of knowledge is encouraged for its own sake as well as for its advantages in our present economic and social systems. Cultivation of mind therefore is a paramount aim urged upon every student.

Courses of study in this school lead to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science in Education. The degree of Bachelor of Arts admits students to standard Law School and to schools of Medicine. The curriculum for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education conforms to the requirement of the State Department for Teacher's Certification.

The term Art School, if taken in the strict meaning of that word, is not adequate expression of the curriculum which that school presents. Coupled with the arts—languages, history and literature, is philosophy covering the four-year period, and the three natural sciences — biology, physics, and chemistry. Physics and chemistry, however, remain optional. The development of an Education department within the Arts adds considerably to the scope of the subjects presented.

Latin and Greek are usually synonomous with a Liberal Arts course. Yet it is a strange fact that at one time interest in these beautiful old languages waned to such an extent that they were all but stricken from the curriculum. They were forced to become optional courses. The plight of Greek became even worse. It was deleted from the course altogether. A few years ago, however, Latin was restored to a bit of its former glory by becoming a required subject again. Just this year there has been a welcome renaissance of the Greek class. In time Greek, too, might be re-established as a requisite, thus completing the cycle and proving that dead languages never die.

Law and teaching are two careers usually chosen by graduates in the school of Liberal Arts. Occasionally, however, an Arts man might have a leaning toward medicine. Chiefly for this reason, chemistry and physics, two requirements of the Medical schools, have been made available.

Not long ago the Arts School raised its standard of entrance requirements. This policy now excludes all those who do not graduate in the upper three fourths of their class from high school. Definite improvement in the kind of student in the school has been achieved by this requirement.

Organizations in connection with the school are the newly rejuvenated arts fraternity the Epsilon Phi Theta, and the philosophy seminar. Arts students may also participate in the history and music seminars.

35 STUDENT FEDERATIONS DISCUSS SOCIAL PROBLEMS

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 23 — Marking the first attempt ever made to unify Catholic college students for the discussion of social problems, a new National Federation of Catholic College Students has been formed here at Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart.

At a meeting attended by representatives of many colleges, organization plans were laid for a federation that would co-ordinate the work of Catholic student federations already formed on some 35 college and university campuses.

Speakers at the organization session indicated that the new federation would not be a pressure group, but would be concerned with social legislation affecting the youth of the nation. The president of the group is Miss Gertrude Kirk of Dunbarton College, Washington, D. C.

TAKE SENIOR PICTURES

Individual Senior portraits for the Belle Air will be taken during the week of Oct. 23. A schedule of sittings has already been posted and Edward Jonik, Editor of the Belle Air, urges every member of the senior class to consult this list and acquaint himself with the day and hour of his sitting.

Belle Air Derived From French Word Meaning Good Air

Rudolph Estate Purchased By Augustinians as Site For School

Freshmen often wonder why the senior annual is called the Belle Air, why the senior ball is called the Belle Air Ball. The name Belle Air is older even than Villanova itself. The name probably originated from the circumstances surrounding the estate. Belle Air or Villanova as it is now known being the highest locality in Delaware County naturally would be noted for its good air. Belle Air in French means "good air."

Belle Air, so called since the beginning of the 19th century, was the name given the estate owned by John Rudolph, a Catholic merchant of Philadelphia. On October 13, 1841, the Augustinian Friars purchased the estate for the purpose of opening a school. Down through the years of Villanova's existence out of mere respect and tribute to John Rudolph the name Belle Air has been associated with Villanova. The peculiarity of this association is the fact that this name is restricted to senior activities and publications.

All Clear Gang; It Wasn't A Raid!

No, fellows, that wasn't a raid on the pie-shop Thursday. All those policemen were here merely to hear Captain Alvin J. Herr, Head of the Swarthmore Police Department, present the first in a series of lectures on policework.

Last Thursday, and on future Thursday afternoons, Captain Herr will teach interested students policework in Room 106 Mendel from 2:00 to 4:00 P. M.

The course at Villanova is one of the Zone Police Schools being held throughout Pennsylvania under the auspices of the Public Service Institute of the Department of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania.

Captain Herr is the instructor in the Villanova Zone; Mr. Harold Pierce is the head teacher of the organization, while the principal of the schools is Dr. Rollin Posey, whom the University of Pennsylvania has loaned to the state to act in this capacity.

SEMINAR DISCUSSES ALKALOIDS

The Science Seminar meeting last week was postponed because of the death of a fellow student, A. Louis Petril. The program announced last week will be followed at this meeting.

The subject will be "Alkaloids and Glucosides" and is to be presented by Joseph M. Gambescia, sophomore science man.

Masque Prepares Thanksgiving Plays

Veteran members of the Belle Masque dramatic society will direct one act plays on Wednesday, November 22, the night before the Thanksgiving holidays.

From four to six plays will be presented. They have not yet been determined.

This afternoon there will a meeting at 1 o'clock, room 111, Mendel Hall, for all who were connected with any phase of last year's production. The purpose of the meeting will be to outline the plans for the coming year.

Freshman will have a chance to join the society on Thursday of this week, room 111, Mendel Hall, at 1 o'clock. Assistant Director of Dramatics M. Joseph McNamara, Jr. has stated: "Attractive positions are open for freshmen phases of production such as acting, directing, business end, etc. . ."

The applicants will be interviewed and their capacities determined.

SINGERS COMBINE RECITAL

"Summer Time" and "Tales of Vienna Woods" Included in Recital

The combined recital of the Glee Clubs from Villanova and Rosemont Colleges will be presented in the Villanova Gym on Tuesday, November 28th, 1939.

A total of one hundred and ten voices constituting the combined organizations will present a repertoire of the light classics and popular numbers including "Summer Time" from "Porgy and Bess" and Johann Strauss' "Tales of Vienna Woods."

A committee composed of Edward Eichman, Fred Kull, Joe McCabe, Jack Gallagher and Jim Brady together with the managers of the clubs, Gerard Belz and Marie Costello, are making arrangements for the necessary publicity and programs.

Harry Parkin made some comments on political freedom. He stated that "one sure sign of the amount of personal freedom that can be expected under any form of political philosophy is to be found in the amount of religious freedom that can be enjoyed."

Sportorial

JOE BARNES'S open letter to "Clipper" Smith in last week's issue raised more comment around here than anything we've printed in a long, long time. It was all Joe's idea; and all the remarks having been complimentary, we'd like to see that he gets all the credit and add our own public word of praise.

—V—

You may or may not have noticed it, but the "Evening Ledger" reprinted the entire letter—with the exception of a sentence or two—in last Thursday's paper. Thanks, Tommy Lovett and Saul Wallach.

—V—

Skipping lightly to another subject, we wonder if U. C. L. A.'s decision to discard the huddle is one of the first stepping stones to the carrying out of Harry Stuhldreher's prophecy made at last year's football coaches convention, that the huddle will disappear from the game. Harry, former Wildcat mentor and now head coach at Wisconsin, does not employ the huddle system.

Phil Dunn

Not that it matters, but we would like to take issue with "Stuhlie" and predict that the huddle will not disappear—in any number of years from one to twenty. (Who's going to remember this after twenty years anyhow? . . . or after one year?)

—V—

We'd still like to see the guy, reputedly a fellow named Boyd, of Texas A. & M., who can pick "Truck" McMahon up with one hand and slam him to the ground, especially when "Big Tom" is really rolling—as he says he was when the incident occured down in Tyler.

—V—

We challenge anyone to pick winners of football games for the remainder of the season. Anyone who had an average of fifty per cent or better on last week's selections can consider himself an expert—or a crazy man; because the guy with stomach enough to pick some of those upsets must be off!

—V—

Reports to this department indicated that candidates for the 150-pound team are growing smaller in number. We are not issuing a call for prospects; it just seems too bad that the team on this campus that plays all the stylishly named schools should have a scarcity of men who wish to participate in the sport.

—V—

Several years ago on the Villanova campus there existed a schedule for intramural touch football. Why not try a revival of this sport? The fact that it is very popular is evidenced by the number who take part in it daily on Mendel Field.

Of course, this game is probably harder to control than any of the intramural sports now in existence, but with the addition of a co-moderator some of this difficulty should be eliminated. We suggest the return of this sport to the mural ranks, and believe that if enough interest springs up, and difficulties are ironed out, the new co-moderators, Fathers McKee and Dunne, will only be too glad to add to what is now considered one of the best intramural programs in any college.

Today's meeting of the sports staff is important. Be there! Room 119 Mendel, 1 P. M.

FRESHMAN ELEVEN BEATS N. Y. U., 27-6; FACES TEMPLE NEXT

Chaplar Stars for Blue and White; Many Others Stand Out in Win

By SAUL WALLACH

Driving through for touchdowns in each of the four periods of play, a fighting Villanova Freshman eleven turned in their secoind win of the year with a 27-6 victory over a courageous New York University yearling aggregation before several hundred spectators on the Main Line Stadium, Wednesday afternoon.

A thirty yard runback of Vincent Finn's punt from behind his own goal line by Frank Chaplar, Kitten safety man, gave the men of Jacobs an early lead which was increased to 14-6 at the half time when Mike Kulpecki tallied from the six, culminating a down field march of fifty yards. Chaplar place-kicked both extra points.

65 Yard Run

Featuring the afternoon's activity was the aforementioned Finn who galloped through the entire Villanova team for a 65 yard runback of Stan Becker's long punt up field, for the lone Violet tally of the game.

Taking the ball on the thirty yard line in N. Y. U. territory, Stan Eusko, Becker, and Chaplar carried the ball to the 11 yard line on successive thrusts. A pass from Eusko to Hank Christman standing on the three gave the locals their third six pointer. Chaplar again kicked the extra point.

Successive passes from Eusko to Kulpecki and Becker brought the ball to the four, where "Big John" Prohovick smashed over the final points of the day.

To Meet Temple

Temple Frosh coaches sitting in the Villanova stands seemed worried as they left the premises at the close of the game. What they learned will be divulged on Thursday night at the Temple Stadium, when Doc Jacobs takes his husky lads into Philadelphia for an arc light tussle with the Owlets.

The Kittens lead in the series inaugurated three years ago when Nick Basca passed Villanova to a 22-7 win on the site of this Thursday's battle. Playing before a capacity crowd under the lights of Roosevelt Field in Norristown, the locals ripped the Templars to shreds with Bill Howlett, Joe Yednock, Joe Behot and "Nappy" Napoletano taking care of the scoring in last year's game.

Cross Country Workouts Begun; Twenty-Five Runners In Action

Cross country, one of the minor sports on the Villanova roster, is now being organized, as is indoor track. "Jumbo" Elliott, track coach, is using cross country to build up the cindermen for the coming season. This is done because track is a mental strain even more than a physical strain, and the runners must use up some excess energy to combat these strains.

Twenty-five Men

The team is composed of about 25 members, some of which never participated in track before coming to Villanova. Barney Bellew and Bill Guiteras are about the best prospects so far this season, but the squad has some other promising fellows, such as Johnny Maher, sprint star; Johnny Di Carlo and Harry Keefrider. The latter are freshmen from West Catholic, where they helped to bring the National Catholic Track Championship to that school and where they participated on the mile relay team which missed the National High School record for this event by one-half of a second.

The cross country schedule consists of two informal meets—one with Haverford College and the second with Swarthmore College.

Indoor Meets

In about a month an outdoor handicap test among the fellows themselves will be conducted by Coach Elliott in which only running events will be held. This is to determine which fellows are capable enough to participate on the indoor track team.

The indoor track schedule shows only one meet and that with Pennsylvania, but the Blue will participate in all the open meets at Madison Square Garden this year. In these meets Villanova will be rpresented in the 50-yard dash, the 60-yard hurdles, and the one and two-mile relays. For the 50 the 'Cats have Johnny Maher and "Whitey" Urbellis, but the participants for the other three events have not yet been determined.

According to information from Arkansas the 72-piece Razorback Marching Band of the University of Arkansas will accompany their football team to Shibe Park this Saturday. The southwestern outfit is reputed to be one of the best bands in the nation.

It is directed by F. J. Foutz and has traveled extensively under his leadership. Last year it won wide acclaim in its performances on the Pacifice Coast and will make its debut in Philadelphia at the Villanova-Arkansas game.

This will be one of the few Villanova home games at which both teams will be represented by musical organizations.

BLUE LIGHTWEIGHTS SET FOR PRINCETON

Injuries Hamper 150's Chances; Three Veterans Out of Game

With the toughest game of the season just three days away, Harvey Buek's lightweight eleven is down to some heavy practice in preparation of their invasion of Princeton where they will tangle with the Tiger on Friday afternoon.

The Cubs boast an all veteran combination, practically the same squad that carried Princeton to the league championship last season.

Three Vets Hurt

Things are not so rosy along the Main Line. Still smarting from the lacing handed him by Cornell, Buek now finds himself minus the services of three stalwarts counted upon to do heavy work this season, as a result of the Cornell fiasco.

Chief among the casualties is Don McGurk, all league wingman last year. McGurk was felled in the waning minutes of the first half, and as a result is propelling himself about on crutches because of two bad ankles.

Out For First Time

The veteran tackle Al Woods for the first time in four years of play is on the inactive list with a trick knee that will keep him on the sidelines for at least two more weeks, thanks to Cornell's hard play.

Freddy Rappleyea, a guard, will be lost to the team for all time due to a rib injury. "Rapp" is out of

PASSING FEATURES ARKANSAS ATTACK; EAKIN STANDS OUT

Many Stars on Line-up Razorbacks Bring to Shibeshire on Saturday

By BOB FUNABASHI

"The passingest team in the nation," notoriously known in Southwestern society as the Arkansas Razorbacks will invade the lair of the Wildcats, Saturday afternoon at Shibe Park.

From the Ozark hills, where men of elephantine size dwell, come the "rootin-tootin" aerial-minded warriors of the "badlands," who will shower their pigskin pellets all through the afternoon to shatter the peace and tranquility of Philadelphia.

Villanova, already having felt the spurs of one Southwestern opponent, will be awaiting the first touch of athletic relationship between the Razorbacks and themselves. Arkansas will come to town with some 40-odd players and a 72 piece band, which is boasted to be one of the best drilled marching bands in the South.

Big Line

Strong monitions are being carried to the offices of the Wildcats in the way of a 215-pound line and a backfield sharp-shooter named Kay Eakin. Tall and ponderous ends who tower in the neighborhood of six feet, three inches and bruising guards and tackles are other threats which the Wildcats will have to contend with.

Francis Wallace's prophetic look in his article "Pigskin Preview of 1939" which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, has this to say about the Razorbacks: "Arkansas, with the most radical pass attack in all the Southwest, is granted a chance to win the title because of Kay Eakin, versatile back and tall, pass-catching ends."

Have Beaten T. C. U.

Claiming the title to two Southwestern championships, the Arkansas clan possesses a fine record this year with a victory over T. C. U. Last year the team won two games, lost seven, and tied one; three of the 1938 defeats were incurred in the final minute of play.

The 1939 edition will boast a trio of veteran ends in Hickey, Freiberger and Britt; the Southwest's leading punter in Kay Eakin; two lineman of all-conference calibre in Simington and Mays, and a great blocker and line backer in Ray Cole.

The most serious loss to the 1939 team was the graduation of Lloyd Woodell, a center whose only superior in the Southwest last year was the great Ki Aldrich of Texas Christian. To replace him, Coach Thomsen will use either Daryl Cato, 190-pounder, or Zeylon Holly, 202 pounds, a reserve of last year.

Triple Threat Back

Co-captain Kay Eakin will be facing his last season with Arkansas and as their triple threat man, the "Kay-Boy" ranks high in the favor of grid experts as one of the top-notchers of the South. Averaging 41 yards on his 41 punts, he ranked first in the Southwest and fifth in the nation in punting. His forward passing and rushing are potential weapons in every encounter as he was among the leaders in those departments.

Coach Thomsen, the Razorback's mentor for the past ten years, has found the forward pass pays excellent dividends in the past but he has always adapted the style of play to the material. Consequently, with his powerful line weighing 1512 pounds when placed upon a scale, and with a flock of speedy ball carriers in the backfield, it is probable that the famed Arkansas aerial attack of recent years will

Solace for the wounded Wildcat's feelings was had last Saturday when Texas A. & M., who needs no introduction, trampled all over Texas Christian, 20-6, down in the Lone Star State. Looks as if the Aggies really have a great ball club down there, so Villanova can spare the blushes when the subject of their recent defeat is brought up.

This win was the Aggies' fourth straight, including the one over Villanova.

Manhattan Wins

Over in New York a future Villanova foe stunned the East with a 7-0 conquest of mighty Auburn, another coming opponent for the 'Cats. Manhattan, almost always underrated, pulled the upset and made all New York gasp with joy. Look for the Jaspers to improve with every game up to the closeout with Villanova, and don't sell the Auburn Plainsmen short. They are still plenty tough and they will meet Villanova down south, where 'Cat outfits seem to have an overabundance of trouble.

Detroit University, clicking on all eight cylinders for the first time this year, rolled all over North Carolina State in amassing an easy 31-6 win total. Muhlenberg stayed undefeated since their fall at Villanova stadium by licking Ursinus, 33-0.

Arkansas, this week's opponent at Shibe Stadium, dropped a heartbreaker to Texas University, 14-13. Make a memo that the Razorbacks will rebound from this one more savage than ever.

S. C. Drops Another

South Carolina improved a little this week but found Clemson too tough and dropped a 27-7 decision on Friday.

Temple University, the most fickle team in the East, lost plenty of dough for me and other football pool suckers by falling 19-0 before an underdog Boston College eleven. Up one week and down the next, the Owls are tough to figure.

This week the enemy battles on the following fronts!

Texas A. & M vs. Baylor
Auburn University vs. Georgia Tech.
Temple University vs. Bucknell
Detroit University vs. Tulsa
South Carolina U. vs. West Virginia U.

Wildcats' Journey To Lone Star State Not Unmentionable; Had Brighter Side

By HARRY MAZZEI

It seems that the current opinion around these parts conveys the idea that reference to last week's hazardous pilgrimage to the Lone Star state (no matter how minute), would be better left unsaid. As far as Saturday afternoon's debacle is concerned, we agree; for the well-founded acquaintances with Messrs. Kimbrough, Conatser, and Moser have left well-embedded impressions on your correspondent. Any bad dreams occasioned in the next six months will undoubtedly be caused by these and some 33 other gentlemen hailing from College Station, Texas.

However, there is a bright side to everything, even our journey to the wide open spaces. On the way down the sophomores prevented the upperclassmen from sleeping mornings. It seems that the neophytes were anxious to look out the windows, and as yet the Pullman Company has not constructed glass panes in uppers. . . . Some of the gourmets were at a distinct disadvantage, for the gyrations of the train made the passage of food from the plate to the palate very difficult. . . . Father Barthusky, one of the 'Cats most loyal supporters, was a blessing to the newshawks, for he bought papers in every town from Paoli to Tyler and repeated the performance on the way back. . . . Walt Carter ran him a close second with his magazine purchases.

Bridge and pinochle vied for the leading pastime, with the later eking out a win (at least it drew bigger crowds). . . . Vic Cook, Ed Collins, and Tony Anderson led mad rushes through parlor cars, club cars, and pullmans looking for fourths and places to play.

Reaching Texas the boys were overwhelmed by the hospitality (among other things). . . . Joe Grimes, president of the Longview Chamber of Commerce and as big-hearted a person as one would ask for, laid the town at our feet — and did some of the fellows step on it

Just where "Jawnny" Lang and Tim Waad disappeared to on Friday night is still a matter of conjecture. . . . Bill Piscione was the camera bug of the trip. Bill contends that the camera serves as a great middleman; he certainly proved his point.

The trips through the oil-well region were most interesting. Pete Yankauskas thought the fires on the prairies were caused by burning surplus oil. . . . Incidentally "George" found a friend who answers to the monicker of "Fred Appleby." They certainly make a great couple. . . . Bill Romanowski and Mike Sabrinski were both baffled by the hotel shower, until Ronnie Tornwall, who spent most of his time writing to Garret Hill, showed them the error of their ways.

Ran into Johnny Sherman, former Main Line engineer, in Longview. He's done well for himself in two years what with a good job, a yellow Buick convertible, and a Rose Festival Duchess — not to mention a Southern accent. . . . And speaking of Southern accents get Jim McClelland to tell you what a couple of "mellow chicks" told him. . . . The elevator had a strange enchantment for Dave Di Fillipo. We don't know whether it was the lovely operators or the free rides.

Walt Nowak, ten gallon hat and all tried to break the post card sending mark he established on the California trip in 1937. Some one bought 105 cards in the local five and dime. We wonder who. . . . City Slicker "Buzz" Howlett kept the Longview gentry well amused with his tales of the big city.

Hot Springs thought it was in for some heavy business when the Villanova special pulled in and Gordon Shader, Paul Stenn, and company dismounted—with aid. . . While in Hot Springs Ben Morkun, Harry Dhue, and Joe Behot walked in one place so long the inhabitants thought they were pickets.

Boner of the trip came when the train stopped in Columbus, Ohio for five minutes. Ad Worthington was informed that it was an hour halt and immediately leaped out of his upper and dressed. Just as he stepped off the platform, the cars began to move and "Goldenboy" was almost killed in the rush.

Tom Casper's journeys through the pullmans earned him the title of "Chief Scout." . . . Tom McMahon and Johnny Gogolinski held a drinking contest (hot water in Hot Springs) to see if they could decide that fullback battle. It was a tie. . . . Jerry Neri's speed came in handy when the caravan was leaving Longview. Even so he was almost the victim of a heart attack.

The pinochle game lost its staunchest supporter on the trip back, because Nick Basca couldn't tell a jack from an ace. . . . "Legs" Shedlosky won the kibitzers' crown and stretched his neck a few inches. . . . Bill Howlett and "Elk" Murray, the "Bobbsey Twins" put the Siamese twins to shame. . . . "Whitey" Urbellis was given a room on the second floor so that he wouldn't have far to fall if he began his sleep-walking activities.

Bob Whelan swore that he had a compartment, but it looked more like a Community Playhouse. . . . "Red" Kamen's first thoughts were of the oil fields. He used the scientific approach. . . . George Gabur didn't bring any books as far as we know. . . . Ed Kasky bought a cowboy hat, but he's skeptical about the reaction of blase' Long Island. . . . Stan Stress was surprised at the Southern names. He still wonders if they changed theirs, too.

Andy Chisik's biggest disappointment came when he was hustled out of the movies during the most interesting part of the picture. He wanted to go back the next day, but unfortunately the picture had changed. . . . The only Wildcat that didn't look dwarfed on Saturday was Len Kolenda, and he was safely situated in the press box. . . . Sam Monaco and Ed Korisky made about the least noise on the whole trip — but they saw plenty.

(Ed. Note: Mr. Mazzei seems to have very carefully avoided mention (among other things) of the pretty miss who boarded the train at Columbus, Ohio, and for whose attention he had to battle Bryan Hayes, the referee.)

be subordinated to the ground game. A good example of weight is found in Saul Singer who weighs 251 pounds and stretches six feet, four inches. As a capable offensive end, the Razorbacks present John Freiberger, who stand at six feet, eight inches and tips the beams at 212 pounds.

Throw Most Passes

During the past three seasons the Arkansas Razorbacks have led major universities of the nation in number of forward passes thrown. During the 1936, 1937, and 1938 season the Razorbacks threw the astonishing total of 855 passes, which is an average of 28.5 passes per game. In completing eleven passes a game the team has averaged 154 yards-gained-by-passes per game.

Meanwhile, the Wildcats after their open date last Saturday, are anxious to pit their razzledazzle against this well publicized aggregation and are strengthening their defensive play by resultful experimentation. The strain of the recent trip to Texas has passed away and the Wildcats are clamoring to start their new winning streak by first defying the Razorbacks. Nick Basca, will match his passing strength against Kay Eakin and Joe Scalet, who are expected to form a forward pass duo this year that will rival the Razorback's great passing team of a few years ago.

The line will be intact with most of the starters on hand, but last minute changes are probable.

Fight For Position

A dog fight between Tony Liscio and a newcomer, Kosier, for a starting berth at end against the Orange is still in progress. The veteran and dependable Vic Dominic will hold down the other end position.

Another newcomer has fought his way into the picture to fill in Wood's spot at tackle. He is George Famiglette, who will have Phillips as his mate. Tony Sachetti and Syl Mahan will hold down the guard positions, flanking Red Nihill at the center post.

No changes loom in the backfield as the veteran quartet of Tom McMahon, Joe Brown, Jim Lattanza, and Frank Lombardo are expected to answer the opening whistle.

Alumni Assumes Basketball Lead

GREEN WINS TWO; AUSTIN AND C. & F. FALL INTO CELLAR

Other Clubs Divide Games as First Week's Contests are Completed

Under the capable guidance of Fr. McKee, and his newly appointed assistant, Fr. Dunne, the intramural basketball season began its first half on Oct. 17. By virtue of their two wins during the past week, the Greenies of Alumni Hall hold first place in the Intramural Basketball League with a perfect record. Fedigan, Mendel and the Mendel Dayhops split their first two contests and are tied for second place in the standings, while Austin and C. & F. with a defeat apiece nestle in the cellar of the league.

First Game

The initial contest was staged between the C&F and Mendel Dayhops. It was the beginning of an expected string of victories for the Mendelites, but due credit must be given to the Businessmen for their excellent performance. The Mendel team carried off the bacon by the score of 41-36, with Buxeda and McMenamin giving spectacular performances. The high scorer of the game was Dalina of the Mendel Dayhops who dropped ten baskets; aside from Dalina, Depersio played a good floor game.

Tuesday night found the representatives of the four dormitories tossing their share of points through the hoops. The opening game was an interesting battle between the two arch rivals of the campus, Fr. McKee's firemen, and Fr. Sullivan's Gigolos. Both teams were well equipped with material, thus various combinations were tried, with the results proving the Gigolos were a bit stronger. However, Austin proved its worth on the court, and it is expected that the Austinites will be very troublesome throughout the season.

Fedigan Wins

The results show Fedigan 33, Austin 28. Scoring honors were divided equally between Bochetto, Connors and Murphy — the trio scoring 18 points. Fr. McKee unveiled two promising sophomores in Tobin and Daly who played a creditable floor game; the scoring honors however went to Keating.

The second game was played by the two freshmen halls — Mendel and Alumni—battling it out. In this game the respective coaches of both clubs were able to determine the ability of the different players. The final result favored Fr. Dunne's boys. The game was a see-saw affair up until the last few minutes. Inspired by their cheering section, the Alumni boys forged ahead with the final tabulations being Alumni 26, Mendel 25. Quinn and J. McFadden showed up well for Alumni; for Mendel it was Martin and Collins.

Thursday's Games

The second half of the first week of intramural basketball was completed on Thursday night, with the results for the week showing two wins for Alumni, a split for Fedigan, Mendel Dayhops, and Mendel Residents, and a defeat each for Austin, and the C&F Dayhops.

The scheduled contest between Austin and the C&F Dayhops was postponed, because of the Freshman football game. It will be played at a later date. Thursday night the initial game was between Fedigan and Mendel. The freshmen from the penthouse after being defeated by Alumni on Tuesday came back strong and made the Gigolos look pretty sick, with the final score reading in Mendel's favor.

Bochetto and Connors split the scoring honors for Fedigan, while Martin and Malone took the honors for Mendel.

Alumni Wins Again

Alumni and Mendel Dayhops were the contestants in the second fray. It was the second straight win for the hustlers of Alumni, and a well deserved victory it was.

With the dexterous ball playing of J. McFadden, who held the Mendel Dayhops well in check throughout the game, and King, who also performed well, the Dayhops were prevented from making very many points. The whole Alumni team played a whale of a game, taking the contest by a 28-13 score. Dalina and Abbott were outstanding for the Dayhops.

Tossing Up The First Ball!

Father McKee inaugurates the 1939-40 Intramural court season by tossing up the first ball to Muralists Danny Dalina, of Mendel Dayhops and George Coupe, of the Commerce Commuters, last year's champions. Mendel sent the C. & F. outfit off to a bad start by winning 41-36.

GRADUATION LOSSES HURT COURT SQUAD; PRACTICES STARTED

Lack of Height May Also be Hindrance to Basketeers' Success

The nemesis of all coaches, graduation, has hit Al Severance, Wildcat basketball mentor. Practically all the starters of last year have left via that route—Big Jim Montgomery, Art Vigilante, Johnny Krutulis and Lou Dubino.

With the loss as great as this Severance will have to build from the ground up. From the ground up is more than true, for the team is badly in need of height.

No Comment

The men have been working out occasionally, but no serious practice has been had as yet. This fact holds Severence from saying how the team has progressed or how he expects it to perform, but he feels that there will be tough going in the competition that comprises the Villanova schedule.

Hot and cold showings are the results of this warming up process, that will soon be turned into serious work. Some days the Varsity make the Frosh wish they never left high school, and on another day the yearlings really flash enough speed and fancy passing to keep the Veterans on the run.

Young and Fast

A young, fast, but inexperienced team is in the making, but it will take a lot more time and work to give the boys that confident, courtwise attitude that was so obvious among the stars of last year.

Severance expressed his pleasure with the physical condition of his yearlings. They have height, and plenty of it, and have been showing some real stamina together with some tricky shooting.

On The Enemy's Trail:

By JOE BARNES

Solace for the wounded Wildcat's feelings was had last Saturday when Texas A. & M., who needs no introduction, trampled all over Texas Christian, 20-6, down in the Lone Star State. Looks as if the Aggies really have a great ball club down there, so Villanova can spare the blushes when the subject of their recent defeat is brought up.

This win was the Aggies' fourth straight, including the one over Villanova.

Manhattan Wins

Over in New York a future Villanova foe stunned the East with a 7-0 conquest of mighty Auburn, another coming opponent for the 'Cats. Manhattan, almost always underrated, pulled the upset and made all New York gasp with joy. Look for the Jaspers to improve with every game up to the closeout with Villanova, and don't sell the Auburn Plainsmen short. They are still plenty tough and they will meet Villanova down south, where 'Cat outfits seem to have an overabundance of trouble.

Detroit University, clicking on all eight cylinders for the first time this year, rolled all over North Carolina State in amassing an easy 21-6 win total. Muhlenberg stayed undefeated since their fall at Villanova stadium by licking Ursinus, 33-0.

Arkansas, this week's opponent at Shibe Stadium, dropped a heartbreaker to Texas University, 14-13. Make a memo that the Razorbacks will rebound from this one more savage than ever.

S. C. Drops Another

South Carolina improved a little this week but found Clemson too tough and dropped a 27-7 decision on Friday.

Temple University, the most fickle team in the East, lost plenty of dough for me and other football pool suckers by falling 19-0 before an underdog Boston College eleven. Up one week and down the next, the Owls are tough to figure.

This week the enemy battles on the following fronts!

Texas A. & M vs. Baylor
Auburn University vs. Georgia Tech.
Temple University vs. Bucknell
Detroit University vs. Tulsa
South Carolina U. vs. West Virginia U.

Wildcats' Journey To Lone Star State Not Unmentionable; Had Brighter Side

By HARRY MAZZEI

It seems that the current opinion around these parts conveys the idea that reference to last week's hazardous pilgrimage to the Lone Star state (no matter how minute), would be better left unsaid. As far as Saturday afternoon's debacle is concerned, we agree; for the well-founded acquaintances with Messrs. Kimbrough, Conatser, and Moser have left well-embedded impressions on your correspondent. Any bad dreams occasioned in the next six months will undoubtedly be caused by these and some 33 other gentlemen hailing from College Station, Texas.

However, there is a bright side to everything, even our journey to the wide open spaces. On the way down the sophomores prevented the upperclassmen from sleeping mornings. It seems that the neophytes were anxious to look out the windows, and as yet the Pullman Company has not constructed glass panes in uppers. . . . Some of the gourmets were at a distinct disadvantage, for the gyrations of the train made the passage of food from the plate to the palate very difficult. . . . Father Barthusky, one of the 'Cats most loyal supporters, was a blessing to the newshawks, for he bought papers in every town from Paoli to Tyler and repeated the performance on the way back. . . . Walt Carter ran him a close second with his magazine purchases.

Bridge and pinochle vied for the leading pastime, with the later eking out a win (at least it drew bigger crowds). . . . Vic Cook, Ed Collins, and Tony Anderson led mad rushes through parlor cars, club cars, and pullmans looking for fourths and places to play.

Reaching Texas the boys were overwhelmed by the hospitality (among other things). . . . Joe Grimes, president of the Longview Chamber of Commerce and as big-hearted a person as one would ask for, laid the town at our feet — and did some of the fellows step on it

Just where "Jawnny" Lang and Tim Waad disappeared to on Friday night is still a matter of conjecture. . . . Bill Piscione was the camera bug of the trip. Bill contends that the camera serves as a great middleman; he certainly proved his point.

Fight For Position

A dog fight between Tony Liscio and a newcomer, Kosier, for a starting berth at end against the Orange is still in progress. The veteran and dependable Vic Dominic will hold down the other end position.

Another newcomer has fought his way into the picture to fill in Wood's spot at tackle. He is George Famiglette, who will have Phillips as his mate. Tony Sachetti and Syl Mahan will hold down the guard positions, flanking Red Nihill at the center post.

No changes loom in the backfield as the veteran quartet of Tom McMahon, Joe Brown, Jim Lattanza, and Frank Lombardo are expected to answer the opening whistle.

GREEN WINS TWO; AUSTIN AND C. & F. FALL INTO CELLAR

Other Clubs Divide Games as First Week's Contests are Completed

Under the capable guidance of Fr. McKee, and his newly appointed assistant, Fr. Dunne, the intramural basketball season began its first half on Oct. 17. By virtue of their two wins during the past week, the Greenies of Alumni Hall hold first place in the Intramural Basketball League with a perfect record. Fedigan, Mendel and the Mendel Dayhops split their first two contests and are tied for second place in the standings, while Austin and C. & F. with a defeat apiece nestle in the cellar of the league.

First Game

The initial contest was staged between the C&F and Mendel Dayhops. It was the beginning of an expected string of victories for the Mendelites, but due credit must be given to the Businessmen for their excellent performance. The Mendel team carried off the bacon by the score of 41-36, with Buxeda and McMenamin giving spectacular performances. The high scorer of the game was Dalina of the Mendel Dayhops who dropped ten baskets; aside from Dalina, Depersio played a good floor game.

Tuesday night found the representatives of the four dormitories tossing their share of points through the hoops. The opening game was an interesting battle between the two arch rivals of the campus, Fr. McKee's firemen, and Fr. Sullivan's Gigolos. Both teams were well equipped with material, thus various combinations were tried, with the results proving the Gigolos were a bit stronger. However, Austin proved its worth on the court, and it is expected that the Austinites will be very troublesome throughout the season.

Fedigan Wins

The results show Fedigan 33, Austin 28. Scoring honors were divided equally between Bochetto, Connors and Murphy — the trio scoring 18 points. Fr. McKee unveiled two promising sophomores in Tobin and Daly who played a creditable floor game; the scoring honors however went to Keating.

The second game was played by the two freshmen halls — Mendel and Alumni—battling it out. In this game the respective coaches of both clubs were able to determine the ability of the different players. The final result favored Fr. Dunne's boys. The game was a see-saw affair up until the last few minutes. Inspired by their cheering section, the Alumni boys forged ahead with the final tabulations being Alumni 26, Mendel 25. Quinn and J. McFadden showed up well for Alumni; for Mendel it was Martin and Collins.

Thursday's Games

The second half of the first week of intramural basketball was completed on Thursday night, with the results for the week showing two wins for Alumni, a split for Fedigan, Mendel Dayhops, and Mendel Residents, and a defeat each for Austin, and the C&F Dayhops.

The scheduled contest between Austin and the C&F Dayhops was postponed, because of the Freshman football game. It will be played at a later date. Thursday night the initial game was between Fedigan and Mendel. The freshmen from the penthouse after being defeated by Alumni on Tuesday came back strong and made the Gigolos look pretty sick, with the final score reading in Mendel's favor.

Bochetto and Connors split the scoring honors for Fedigan, while Martin and Malone took the honors for Mendel.

Alumni Wins Again

Alumni and Mendel Dayhops were the contestants in the second fray. It was the second straight win for the hustlers of Alumni, and a well deserved victory it was.

With the dexterous ball playing of J. McFadden, who held the Mendel Dayhops well in check throughout the game, and King, who also performed well, the Dayhops were prevented from making very many points. The whole Alumni team played a whale of a game, taking the contest by a 28-13 score. Dalina and Abbott were outstanding for the Dayhops.

Tossing Up The First Ball!

Father McKee inaugurates the 1939-40 Intramural court season by tossing up the first ball to Muralists Danny Dalina, of Mendel Dayhops and George Coupe, of the Commerce Commuters, last year's champions. Mendel sent the C. & F. outfit off to a bad start by winning 41-36.

GRADUATION LOSSES HURT COURT SQUAD; PRACTICES STARTED

Lack of Height May Also be Hindrance to Basketeers' Success

The nemesis of all coaches, graduation, has hit Al Severance, Wildcat basketball mentor. Practically all the starters of last year have left via that route—Big Jim Montgomery, Art Vigilante, Johnny Krutulis and Lou Dubino.

With the loss as great as this Severance will have to build from the ground up. From the ground up is more than true, for the team is badly in need of height.

No Comment

The men have been working out occasionally, but no serious practice has been had as yet. This fact holds Severence from saying how the team has progressed or how he expects it to perform, but he feels that there will be tough going in the competition that comprises the Villanova schedule.

Hot and cold showings are the results of this warming up process, that will soon be turned into serious work. Some days the Varsity make the Frosh wish they never left high school, and on another day the yearlings really flash enough speed and fancy passing to keep the Veterans on the run.

Young and Fast

A young, fast, but inexperienced team is in the making, but it will take a lot more time and work to give the boys that confident, courtwise attitude that was so obvious among the stars of last year.

Severance expressed his pleasure with the physical condition of his yearlings. They have height, and plenty of it, and have been showing some real stamina together with some tricky shooting.

Last, But Not Least
Father's Define "Just" War

By MURRAY P. ZEALOR

Why did approximately 65,000 of the 2,810,296 men drafted into the last war attempt to remove themselves from active service in their government's military action in Europe? Why were they called conscientious objectors? Had they substantial reason for refusing to go to the aid of their country in a time of war?

Held Killing Is Wrong

About 75 percent of these men were members of religious sects that forbade participation in the war. The other men were political and other types of "conscientious objectors." The theory held by most of these sects is that killing is a great wrong and that man does not have the right to take the life of another even during a war.

Should Catholics Consider It?

What has this to do with the Catholic? Why is such a situation to be considered by Catholics? There is a reason for Catholics to exert their power at the present time to the extent that they shall be a militant force in preserving peace in America. Catholics do not represent a meager 1.5 percent of the population, they are a group almost including 15 percent of the total population.

Catholics Only in Just War

Catholics are obliged to go to war only in event of a just war. The rules set down for a just war have been contained in the writings of Saint Augustine and Saint Thomas Aquinas. They are summed up in a simple form by Stratman in his book, "Church and War."

"Church and War" Summation

1. Gross injustice on the part of one, and only one, of the contending parties.
2. Gross formal moral guilt on one side—material wrong is not sufficient.
3. Undoubted knowledge of guilt.
4. That war should only be declared when every means to prevent it have failed.
5. Guilt and punishment must be proportionate. Punishment exceeding the measure of guilt is unjust and not to be allowed.
6. Moral certainty that the side of justice will win.
7. Right intention to further what is good by the war and to shun what is evil.
8. War must be rightly conducted; restrained within the limits of justice and love.
9. Avoidance of unnecessary upheaval of countries not immediately concerned and of Christian community.
10. Declaration of war by lawful authorities and exercised in the name of God.

America—Unthanked Savior

Such rules, if we apply them to to the present situation in Europe, prove readily that the war is not a just one, and that Catholics should do their part in preventing this nation from entering into the conflict. Though America was in the last, she was the unthanked savior. She need not enter once again. As long as we Catholics adhere in firm belief to the teachings of the Fathers of the Church, Thomas and Augustine, America will not be in the war.

Records of Choir Will Be Presented
August Radio Program Draws Praise From All Parts of U. S.

Music by St. Mary's Seminary Choir will be heard publicly for the first time since August at a future meeting of the seminar it was revealed by the choir director, Rev. Ralph J. Hanndron, O. S. A. They will be heard on records.

Hundreds of letters were received, after the last recital, congratulating the choir and Father Handron on the wonderful presentation over the radio. They were received from all parts of the United States, some as far as California.

The choir is composed of thirty-six voices, singing only liturgical music and specializing on compositions of Palistrina, Vittoria Morales, and Cascionini.

The program, last August 27, consisted of polyphony, symphony and Gregorian chant and was heard through the Church of the Air. Supplementing the choir recital was an address given by Rev. William J. Shivdy, O. S. A., who delivered an address entitled "Message to Youth."

LOCAL GROUPS OF ALUMNI ELECT YEAR'S OFFICERS

Three local groups of the National Villanova Alumni Association have elected officers recently.

The Wilkes-Barre club, meeting on Sept. 25, elected Roger J. O'Donnell, '31, president; Dr. P. J. Casterline, '32, vice-president, and James T. O'Connell, '34, secretary.

Officers of the Scranton club, elected on Sept. 24, are: Stanley Coar, '12, president; William McGraw, '34, 1st vice-president; Carmen Caputo, '30, 2d vice-president, and Joseph Carroll, secretary.

John White, '09, and Albert J. Laun, '34, were elected president and secretary, respectively, at the meeting of the Baltimore club on Oct. 6.

GERMAN CLUB STARTS

Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., M. A., conducted the German Club in its initial meeting of the year in room 111, Mendel Hall on October 18 at 1 P. M.

Tentative plans for the ensuing year were discussed in German by the moderator who promises that popular German ballads and skits will be among the innovations this year.

All past members as well as those who wished to join the society were in attendance.

FILM TO BE SHOWN TODAY AT MEETING OF A.S.M.E.

"The Story of Power," a motion picture, will be shown at the meeting of the local branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers to be held today at 1:00.

Plans for a trip to the Ford Motor Co. Plant at Chester, Pa., will also be discussed at today's gathering. The inspection trip will probably be held tomorrow, according to William J. Barber, M. S., honorary chairman of the group.

Assistant Professor Barber emphasizes the fact that Villanova members of the A. S. M. E. are regular members of the national society, having full rights as such. Students who are members of the society are privileged to attend the monthly meetings of the Philadelphia division of the society, among other things.

AMELOTTI TO SPEAK FOR MATHEMATICS CLUB FRIDAY

Subjects ranging from the trisection of an angle to the mathematical study of problems in the struggle for existence are on the program of the Mathematics Club this year.

Mr. Emil Amelotti, M. S., assistant professor in mathematics and moderator of the club, has arranged a list of 17 topics to be handled by the students; these will be supplemented by three outside speakers to be announced later.

At the first night meeting of the year at Simpson Hall this Friday night, Mr. Amelotti will speak on "Solution of a Cubic by Radicals—the Reductible Case."

MALEY ADDRESSES A.I.E.E.

Tom Maley, senior Electrical Engineer, delivered a lecture on "Oil Circuit Breakers" to the A. I. E. E. yesterday afternoon. After his speech Maley answered questions pertaining to his talk and there was an open discussion of the subject.

A trip to the substation of the Philadelphia Electric Company at Plymouth Meeting, Pa., is being planned by the electrical engineers. Details are being handled by chairman John Raney. The tentative date for the trip is Friday, October 27.

SOPH ILL OF APPENDICITIS

Members of the sophomore chemical engineering class are planning to have at least one member a day visit William Dougherty, one of their number who underwent an emergency appendectomy last Tuesday.

After leaving class Monday morning because of illness, Dougherty saw his physician who diagnosed his case as acute appendicitis and ordered an immediate operation. He is now recovering.

ANNUAL ENLISTS AID

Belle Aid Editor, Edward L. Jonik, issues a call for all students to join the staff and gives special invitation to those students interested in art to contact him as soon as possible.

The appointment of a sports and copy editor will take place within the next few weeks.

Local Colleges Favor Greeters

Villanova, make the care of visiting teams a managerial duty are Chestnut Hill, Immaculata, Bryn Mawr, Swarthmore, La Salle and St. Joseph's.

The graduate manager of athletics at St. Joseph's, Mr. Michael C. McManus, revealed that the procedure used there is also used at Boston College and many other schools. Mr. McManus and a student manager meet the teams at the station and get them settled at their hotel; the same night the managers and coach visit the team and provide for some kind of social relaxation.

At Villanova student managers have charge of visitors. In the case of the South Carolina game, Tim Waad met them at the station and saw them to their hotel. At the game a sophomore manager was with them and stayed on their bench to help wherever he could.

Mr. Whelan expressed the opinion, however, that with a "Greeters" organization much more could be done for guests.

HOWLETT IMPROVING

All should be interested to know that "Buzz" Howlett's injured right shoulder is not as bad as was feared at first. A separation exists, but no bones are broken—a situation for which Villanova should be thankful.

Tobacco...opens Doors to Fields where People Live, Work & Achieve

Today there are about 1,000,000 cigar stores, drug stores, country and grocery stores where you can buy cigarettes in the United States. These retailers, and the jobbers who serve them, have built up a service of courtesy and convenience unmatched by any other industry catering to the American public's pleasure.

THERE ARE ANOTHER MILLION people who are engaged directly or indirectly in the transportation of cigarettes to every town, hamlet and crossroads.

IT IS ESTIMATED that there are 1,602,000 tobacco farmers raising tobacco in 20 out of the 48 states. Good tobacco is one of the hardest crops to raise and bring to market, requiring great skill and patience from seed-bed planting to harvesting and curing. The modern tobacco farmer has done well the job of constantly improving the quality of his product.

THE AVERAGE LENGTH of service of the 13,230 people working in the Chesterfield factories, storage houses, leaf-handling and redrying plants is over 10 years. This means that every step in the making of Chesterfields, regardless of how small, is handled by people who have had 10 years of experience and ability in knowing their jobs.

TRULY TOBACCO OPENS DOORS to fields where people live, work and achieve, and Chesterfield takes pride in its ever increasing part in this great industry that is devoted entirely to the pleasure of the American public.

TO SMOKERS, Chesterfield Cigarettes have always said, and now repeat, that in no other cigarette made can you find the same degree of real mildness and good taste, or the same high quality of properly cured and aged tobaccos. Chesterfield Cigarettes are made with one purpose only...to give smokers everywhere the MILDER, BETTER-TASTING SMOKING PLEASURE they want. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Immorality of Sale Of Arms Discussed
J. M. Bader Presents Paper At History Seminar; Connors Next Speaker

"Is the Sale of Munitions to Belligerents Immoral?" was the topic of the paper read by J. M. Bader, at the History seminar on Friday, October 27, in Simpson Hall.

After Bader read his paper which presented the principles by which it would be possible to determine whether the sale of munitions would be immoral the question was opened to general discussion by the group.

Rev. John R. Dunne and Dr. Hartman, moderator of the seminar, led the discussion, which dealt with the means of determining whether a war is a just war.

Although no definite decision was reached it was decided that the principles of international law which govern modern warfare "are of themselves just" when judged by the rules laid down by St. Thomas Aquinas and St. Augustine.

At the close of the meeting Frank Connors was selected to prepare a paper on the effects of propaganda.

It was also decided the meetings will hereafter be held on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 in Simpson Hall instead of on Friday afternoon. The next meeting will, therefore be on Tuesday, November 7.

YORK NAMES COMMITTEE TO PREPARE SENIOR BALL

Joseph J. York, chairman of the senior dinner dance to be held January 13, has announced the appointment of six committee men who will aid him in the necessary preparations.

They are Francis X. Connors, Francis A. Pimpinella, and Charles M. Cunningham of the School of Commerce and Finance; John J. Seelaus of the School of Engineering; Robert Griffin of the science school, and Harry A. Mazzei of the School of Arts.

For the presentation of a successful social, York stresses the importance of the payment of class assessments in order that plans may be made accordingly.

PAETRUS BANMILLER ADDRESSES P. K. P.
Fraternity Entertainment Provided by Trio and Short Skit

The annual smoker of the engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, will be held November 6, in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance school. About two hundred persons are expected.

The faculty members of the engineering school as well as the guest speakers, Paul Scully, a former president of the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity and Paetrus F. Banmiller, present registrar of the college and also onetime president of the group will attend.

The theme of Mr. Banmiller's talk is the Importance of Paying Attention to Details. He will give examples of where attention to details are a matter of dollars and cents to the engineering student working on a job for his employer.

Entertainment will be furnished by a trio of Choral Club members. A skit given by William J. Appel and Victor Corbett is planned. Coffee and sandwiches will be served during the course of the evening. Towards the close of the meeting a complimentary ticket to the Owl Hop will be raffled off among the freshmen. The meeting will adjourn about 10:30 P. M.

'Practice Faith' Pre-Meds Urged

The first meeting of the Science Seminar this school year, featured an address by the Rev. John H. Donnelly, M. A., chaplain of Newman Hall of the University of Pennsylvania.

Father Donnelly, in view of the precautions necessary toward preserving one's faith, described the means he employed toward encouraging Catholic students of the University to attend the religious meetings. He recalled an occasion whereupon Jack Dempsey addressed a group on religion.

In order to illustrate the fact that religion is not restricted to sissies, he explained that the football players are frequent visitors to the groups as well as regular attendants at religious services.

Father Donnelly emphasized the fact that fellows must not assume a passive attitude toward the church, but should be ardently interested in understanding their faith and fulfilling all religious obligations.

STUDENTS CONDUCT PANEL

Several students of Anthony J. Frayne's public speaking classes will conduct a panel Thursday, November 9, when they will discuss topics concerning America's position in international affairs during the European conflict and her trade policies with belligerents.

Participants in the discussion will include John J. Raney, senior Eng., Thomas J. McKimmey, sophomore Ed., James J. Donovan, junior arts, Murray P. Zealor, junior C. & F., and Daniel A. O'Mahoney, junior C. & F. One or two members of the faculty will be present to give comment on the various talks.

Joseph McNamara, senior arts, will preside at this Peace Panel.

EPSILON PHI THETA FRAT REORGANIZES
Artsmen Hold Nominations for Officers at Initial Meeting Last Thursday

Reorganization of the Epsilon Phi Theta is well under way due to the interest of junior and senior students in the Arts School and the assistance of Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., moderator.

Almost ten years have elapsed since this fraternity has been active on the campus but the spontaneous interest of a number of students has demanded its rejuvenation.

Nominations for officers took place at a meeting held last Thursday afternoon. At that time the following students were named as candidates, for President, Joseph MacNamara, Joseph N. Bongiovanni, Jr., and Albert Sindall, all seniors in the Arts School. William Garrity, James Collins and James Donovan were named candidates for the office of Vice President. James Forkin and Thomas J. Moore, are candidates for Secretary. Those nominated for Treasurer are John Harrington, William Way and Arthur Fanning. Since each approved fraternity is entitled to a representative in the student council three candidates were named, Robert Wilderotter, James Scott and Frank Moynihan.

After approval by the proper authorities, elections will be held.

It is hoped that more Education students will take an interest in the fraternity since it is open to all members of the Arts School.

Maucieri Selected To Hold Belle Air Sports Editorship
Incumbent a Senior Engineer, Consistent Honors Student, Frat Member

John J. Maucieri, senior engineer, has been appointed sports editor of the Belle Air, it was recently announced by Edward L. Jonik, Editor-in-Chief of the annual publication.

Maucieri is a member of the chemical engineering school and has been on the Belle Air sports staff for the past three years.

Before entering Villanova, Maucieri, who is a resident of Southwest Philadelphia, attended West Catholic High School where his various activities included membership on the year book staff. In high school he won two medals, one for oratory and one for mathematics. Maucieri was first in his class both at grammar school and high school and upon graduation from the latter won a competitive scholarship to Villanova.

During his first three years at Villanova the newly appointed Sports Editor has been on the honor roll, never being below fifth in his class. He belongs to the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity and the Chemical Engineering Society.

OPPOSE ENTRANCE IN EUROPEAN WAR
Majority State U. S. Intervention Would Not Create Permanent Peace

War Poll conducted by the Student Council last Tuesday for "America," National Catholic review, to determine the opinion of Catholic College students on matters of American international policies, presents an interesting cross-section of opinion of Villanova students.

Overwhelming was the number, 538 to 13, that did not favor the entry of the United States as an armed force in the European War. All classes were almost unanimous in this decision.

Results on the second question show that 234 believe that the United States will not be drawn into the war, while 241 students think the contrary. The freshmen, with a total count of 190 are not pessimistic, while the seniors show a total of only 37 holding to the belief that the United States will not be drawn into the Old World conflict. Two Sophomores would not vote on the question. The doubtful number was not too divergent.

With regard to the third question, a great difference in figures shows that most of the students voted "NO." This was a decisive answer to a question on intervention in the European War to promote peace. Most believed that American combination with England and France would not lead to a stable peace.

The fourth question asking "whether there should be a national referendum before the United States declares war and pledges to send American Soldiers to engage in European War," shows a great difference in result. In all classes it was found that three to one were

ALUMNI HOMECOMING FEATURED BY TEAM VICTORY AND DINNER
Graduates' Opinions Mark Day A Success; Benjamin Franklin Dinner Scene

Saturday, October 29, saw Villanova's Alumni gather for their annual reassembly and celebration. The Arkansas-Villanova football game was the initial highlight of the day and proved successful with Villanova's 7-0 victory.

As prepared under the direction of Walter E. Alessandroni, '35, the crowning feature of Homecoming Day was the Dinner Dance given in the new Terrace Gardens of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. There at seven thirty o'clock, P. M., the homecoming alumni dined and danced to the music of Bernie Cummins and his orchestra. The complete floor show was presented for their enjoyment.

At the Arkansas game in Shibe Park the Alumni for the most part were seated in a body. If individual comments of this group are any indication, the game's outcome and interest pleased all members.

Sharing the spotlight of the most commented upon topic of Alumni conversation with Behot's scoring run was the excellence and uniqueness of the Arkansas Band. Under their director, Mr. F. J. Foutz, the bandsmen completed many intricate maneuvers and formations. Notably among their points of impressiveness was their method of "swinging" the usually ponderous marches. During some of their popular interpretations certain members of the band would arise and play a solo chorus while facing the grandstand.

The most part of the Benjamin Franklin was reserved for the Alumni Association, three-fourths of the entire Terrace Gardens, even though the Hotel was playing host to the Arkansas fans, some of the North Carolina University rooters, and many individual guests. In the neighborhood of two hundred and fifty of the Alumni and their guests attended this informal dinner and dance which culminated the Homecoming Day.

The purpose of this annual event is to afford separated members of the many Villanova graduates an opportunity to meet one another again in an organized group. As much contact is maintained with the Alumni by the college proper as is possible under the difficult circumstances. Villanova does not exclude her former students upon graduation. Villanova claims every one of her graduates as her own and is proud of them.

Local Editors Try To Solve Puzzle Of 'Centennial' Tradition Violations

By THOMAS H. DOYLE

Three men guiding the editorial policies of campus publications yesterday put their heads together and came up with the following propositions — Anent the Centennial Class's violation of traditional Freshman regulations.

All members of the Student Council and the Orientation Committee, they unanimously expressed the opinion that the regulations now imposed upon freshmen are not powerful enough.

Along with that opinion, they proposed measures to assure the correct functioning of the regulations and to make the freshman class realize their position while acquiring the true Villanova spirit.

Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, stated, "The regulations, as they are now, are not strict enough to insure adherence to the Freshman rules. The wearing of "regs" are dependent upon each frosh's feeling it an honor to do so, and they apparently do not feel so toward them now."

Murray P. Zealor, Cf. '40, chief editorialist of the VILLANOVAN and secretary-treasurer of Student Council, gave his opinion of the present means of enforcing regulations: "all bluff". He feels that enforcement of rules under the present set-up is "all bluff; and you can't bluff forever."

He proposes an intensive two-weeks' program of freshman training because "as it is now, we treat them as Villanova men from the beginning, whereas we should show them that they are just 'Mama's little boys' when they come here."

John J. Harrington, while feeling that the freshmen are not obeying the regulations, proposes a means of enforcement already active on the college newspaper, of which he is editor-in-chief.

He thinks that all freshmen who do not wear their regs should not be allowed to join societies and organizations run by upperclassmen. This rule is already effective on the VILLANOVAN for according to him, "If freshmen consider themselves too big to wear regs they will probably feel too big to write assigned stories that they do not want. These greenies feel that they are editors, not cubs. If applied to the other organizations, this means of enforcement might be effective."

Wear Your Regs

MEN of 1943! Where are the Frosh of the Class of 1943? Where are the students that entered Villanova College in September of this year? Where are the students who were proud to call themselves 'Frosh'?

Villanova did not greet you with paddles. Villanova did not greet you with threats of violence. Villanova did not subject you to humiliation. Villanova did not give you baths in ice filled tubs. Villanova did not inflict punishment upon you. Villanova greeted you as men, greeted you as old friends.

There was more to this than greeting you as friends; Villanova gave you means of being recognized by your fellow classmates. She gave you regs, regs that easily and readily declared you to be 'Frosh.' These you have discarded, and the only logical summation that can be arrived at by the leaders of organizations and activities is that the freshman class has been diminished by those that do not wear their regs..

"Music Study Exalts Life"

THE ardent interest with which music societies have been attended during past years is indeed an indication of the love for music dominant on the campus.

The noble emotions which comprise a considerably important part of man's make-up cannot be neglected. Beautiful music strikes within the human soul a chord impenetrable to any other exterior influence and the effect of which emphasizes the spiritual superiority of man over the brute. The value of music in developing our deeper appreciation of spiritual beauty and in elevating the individual from the mere sensual activities of the world about him cannot be over-estimated.

In this regard, perhaps, the present year offers more opportunities than ever before for the student to satisfy his musical tendencies. The Music Seminar provides weekly programs of selected recorded music for those who enjoy the works of the masters. For the amateur musician who plays some instrument, and with which students incidentally the campus is particularly well supplied, there are the band and the newly organized string ensemble. Every student inclined in the musical direction is urged to join any one or more of these societies.

War Does Not Save

ON Tuesday, October 24, an overwhelming majority of Villanova youth did "not personally favor the entry of the United States, as an armed force, into the present European war" . . . or believe that "American intervention on the side of Great Britain and France would lead to the creation of a stable peace in Europe."

Villanova youth is an awakened youth . . . they will not be a gullible mass to be swayed by the bleating of the propagandists, for they know that war does not save, but destroys utterly and irretrievably.

These, our boys, believe that the ultimate decision on entry into war should rest with the people, for they hold that it is the blood of the masses that dyes the battlefields, their sons who will rot in trenches, their hearts that will be broken, their children who will have to endure a thousand sorrows in reparation for the sins of a few unscrupulous, sef-centered, power-seeking tyrants!

Decorating the Field House

EXCEPT for the trophy cases in the vestibule, the Field House lacks memorials to the individuals and teams that have made Villanova athletic history. It would be doing no more than justice to those men, and it would also add much to the atmosphere of the gym if other suitable mementoes were displayed.

Pictures of old coaches and stars and plaques commemorating record-breaking individual and team performances could find a place in the Field House proper. For the swimming pool a display of the names, times, and schools of the holders of the pool records would be appropriate.

It is to be hoped that the Athletic Association finds it practical to carry out the above suggestions. This would be paying a really lasting tribute to those who have made Villanova a name that recognizes no peer in athletics.

Best Thing Villanova Offers

A POPULAR custom during November is attending daily Mass for the suffering souls. For many of the non-resident students of Villanova, however, this is a physical impossibility due to the time they have to get up to attend Mass in their parish and yet make train or bus connections for school.

A daily Mass in the college chapel at 8:30 A. M., though, would be convenient for most of the day-hops and give them an opportunity to attend daily. It could be over in time for classes and wouldn't start so early that it would be necessary to get up at an unreasonable hour to attend it.

We believe that a Mass at this time would be appreciated and attended by the day students and hope that Chaplain will find the suggestion practical.

Spies in the Soup

A NEW system of serving has been inaugurated to insure, and to give to the student a plentitude of those foods which he likes best, and those which are best for him.

It is the duty of the student to show some respect for that which he has been given. Each one can do his bit by remedying the growing prevalence of leaving dishes behind on the tables after leaving with trays.

New Encyclical Appeals To Man's Intelligence

Man's Rejection of God Is Basic Cause of World's Evils

By FRANCIS X. McGUIRE, O. S. A., D. D.
Professor of Religion

In the midst of the darkness that has encircled the present day world, and Europe in particular, there appears on the horizon a flicker of light that furnishes the only possibility for a permanent sunshine. It is the first Encyclical, "Summi Pontificatus," of His Holiness Pope Pius XII. A thinking world has received it gracefully. Our American press has given it ample space. It is an appeal not to armed force to quell riotousness and disorder, but an appeal commensurate with man's dignity, an appeal to his intelligence and will. Thus it is termed a flicker for it depends on the conscience of men and nations whether or not the effect of lifting the darkness will ever come to pass.

An outline of this extensive document would far exceed the space allotted here. Yet its main objective, the root cause of present day evils, for the removal of which obvious and sane principles are offered, may be summarized in a brief paragraph: "Before all else, it is certain that the radical and ultimate cause of the evils which we deplore in modern society is the denial and the rejection of a universal form of morality as well for individual and social life as for international relations; we mean the disregard, so common nowadays, and the forgetfulness of the natural law itself, which has its foundation in God, Almighty Creator and Father of all, supreme and absolute lawgiver, all wise and just Judge of human actions. "Indeed, to any sane mind this fundamental cause for the sad plight of the world in these modern days must be self-evident. If man closes his eyes to the existence of his Creator, or outrightly denies such existence, what further grounds are there for decent living? What sanction is there for dishonesty of every kind, robbery, murder? If nations ignore the part of the Supreme Lawgiver in the government of the world, what else remains to prevent injustices of every sort, plunder, and the destruction of the physically weaker by the stronger?

To sane minds it must be equally evident that the word God, and most of all the spirit of its meaning, has been long since banished from the halls of Parliament, erased from the codices of legislation, and hidden from the minds of the people. Once God is banished from the world, there is removed the only true foundation of justice. Once God is banished there is destroyed the cornerstone of charity. And when justice and charity can find no place among men, there can never be true and lasting peace. Disorder among men, war among nations, and chaos in the world is the inevitable result.

As a salutary medicine, a cure for the world's disease, the Vicar of Christ upon earth appeals to the consecration of mankind to Christ the King, in which there is "a penetrating wisdom which sets itself to restore and to ennoble all human society and to promote its welfare." It is on the principles of Christ, the maxims of the Gospel, that the whole of western civilization has been built, welded together, and given life. The value inherent in these priciples has been tested and proven through the centuries, just as the worthlessness of the systems opposing Christianity has been demonstrated from experience. As His Holiness writes: "No defense of Christianity could be more effective than the present straits. From the immense vortex of error and anti-Christian movements, there has come forth such a crop of poignant disasters as to constitute a condemnation surpassing in its conclusiveness any merely theoretical refutation."

Villanova men will do well to read the new Encyclical in its entirety, ponder over the great truths it contains, and with renewed conviction appreciate the spiritual values, both for self and country, contained in the philosophy of life that Villanova so zealously imparts — a philosophy that is clearly represented by the Cross that is aloft every building in her Campus.

Faculty and Administration Endorse Proposed Student "Greeters" Group

By THOMAS A SHALLOW

Endorsement of the proposed student "greeters" organization has come from members of the college administration and faculty during the past week.

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Dean of Men, was impressed by the fact that the movement in favor of the society has come through student initiative. Aside from this, he approved of the idea itself.

"Such a student committee would have a most wholesome effect upon the college itself, as well as upon visitors," is the opinion of Fr. Albers.

It was revealed that no such group was ever organized because there was never any student demand for it. Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., prefect of Simpson Hall, said the matter is entirely up to the students.

Father Vrana is of the belief that the organization is needed at Villanova, and that, if the students do form it, they will be the ones to benefit from the good fellowship that will result.

It is because visitors form their opinion of the college largely from the contact they have with the students that Mr. Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, finds special favor with the idea.

It has been Mr. Banmiller's experience that when a student shows visitors around they form their estimate of the courtesy and quality of the student body from him; the same probably goes for all visitors. Having a specially qualified group to look after visiting teams and groups would thus do much to spread the good name of the college.

Mr. William G. Slaughter, director of the Placement Bureau, feels that the society is needed to insure all visitors of courteous treatment. He has found that many outsiders have trouble finding their way about the campus ,and it is his belief that the proposed organization is needed for visiting groups.

Among the moderators of campus organizations, Fr. Handran felt the need of such a society just last week-end. He had no trouble in getting in to meet the Arkansas band on Friday afternoon, but on Saturday he had difficulty in seeing them about the game, for at times similar to that no band members can be spared.

Any fellows interested in the Reserve Air Corps should see Bill Slaughter at once. There is a notable increase in the number of college students entering both the Army and Navy Reserve Air Corps. It's a great life if you like that kind of work, and you need perfect health to qualify. An examining group of officers is expected here early in November.

At a recent engagement played by the Villanovans dance band in St. Katherine's, Wayne, two high school girls (very pretty—as nature made them) came up to Fred Kull and asked him to sign their autograph books. Since when do we have such astounding personalities on the campus?

Jones' Fall Behind; Smiths and Kellys Top College List

18 Foreign Students Are Headed by Puerto Rican Delegation

Out of the 927 full-time students registered at Villanova only three are of the Jones clan, all members of the Commerce and Finance School.

College records reveal that eight Smiths, seven Kellys and four O'Brien's lead the field.

Puerto Rico leads the foreign delegation with eleven students; Cuba has three; South America, two; Canada, one, and the Philippines, one.

The two students from Venezuela are Virgilio J. Luzardo, freshman, Commerec and Finance, and Manuel F. Alsina, junior, School of Science.

At the beginning of this year the register shows that West Catholic High School of Philadelphia has the greatest representation in the Freshman class.

The many sets of brothers attending the college are led by three brothers from the Martinez and Bongiovanni families.

College professors are still stumbling over the names of Robert Ablanap and Edward Pokulniewicz.

C&F Students Found To Be Favoring Revival Of Delta Pi Epsilon Frat

By GEORGE FLANNERY

The revival of the Art School's fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta, has aroused considerable comment among the students in the School of Commerce and Finance. In their locker-rooms, conversations of the following nature have been heard: "Why can't we have one?" "Didn't we ever have a fraternity?" "There was a C. & F. fraternity called Delta Pi Epsilon a few years back, wasn't there?"

In 1920 a C. & F. fraternity was formed, called Delta Pi Epsilon, continuing its existence until 1932 when the organization dissolved.

Joseph Barnes—Junior—Associate sports editor of the VILLANOVAN was of the opinion that the C. & F. should lose no time in reviving Delta Pi Epsilon.

William A. Guiteras—Senior—"Every other school on the campus has a fraternity. Why shouldn't the C. & F.?"

Francis Cahill—Freshman—"It would stimulate a greater interest in studies if a certain scholastic standard was established as a requisite for admission to the fraternity.

Edward L. Jonik—Editor-in-chief of the Belle Air—"A fraternity would help to form closer friendships among C. & F. students, not only as undergraduates, but also when they have gone out into the business world.

"One of the main purposes of the former Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity was not only to assist its members while on the campus but also through the co-operation of the faculty to furnish information and solution to many problems that confront the present-day business man."

Gordon Brosmer—Junior—"It's a fine idea. There has been a need of such a fraternity on the campus for some time now. It could be used to add prestige to the C. & F. school and also would be an incentive for students to maintain the high scholastic rating the C. & F. school now enjoys."

Robert J. Funabashi—Sophomore—"I believe that a revival of the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity would inaugurate a more sociable spirit among the upper classmen and the freshmen as well as binding the resident and the day students more closely together."

Thomas Keffer—Junior—"A frat would be just the thing to pep up C. & F. We need social organization in order to keep us together after graduation."

the 'CATS' MEOW!

By Barney Bellew

I'VE had quite a few comments on my column of last week. Some had difficulty in understanding the treatise on "Wildcats." Well! It was merely a structural description of a wildcat in simple, intelligent and clear cut words that no one could misunderstand. I deemed the dissertation necessary in order that everyone know just what fine animal the wildcat is, being that he represents Villanova. So, if you had trouble, read it over again. And if you still have trouble I will explain my questionable features personally.

1939—The Age of Chivalry:

Chivalry is definitely on the upgrade. But now it's colors are being carried by the feminine sex. "Francois Villain" Fitzpatrick, Bill "She's off on Mondays" Guiteras and I were seeking three seats together at a recent snow in town. Finding two together, Fitz and Bill snared them and I still carried on the search. A gentle tapping at my shoulder (Poe)—I turned about—Then a cute little trick offering me her seat. Boy! Was I surprised. Seated on the end of the aisle, and preferring not to break up our group, she practically forced me to accept her place which was next to my two chums (the P is silent). Miss "X" then retired to a seat farther back leaving me feeling very manly, indeed. That my fr'ans is a 100 percent girl.

The Bell of The Ball:

One of the Prize Winners at the annual Temple Poverty Ball came dressed as a drunk, all messed up; an ice bag on his head and an alarm clock slung over his shoulder. Every once in a while the alarm would sound off. Hence the above caption.

Another couple came in big fur coats, which when discarded revealed two more prize winners. The fellow was attired in a tie, collar, vest, pants, (I guess) and garters. Around him was a barrel; likewise the girl. But the miss had on long underwear, a dizzy hat and a necklace of pretzels. They represented the "Beer Barrel Polka." I guess the lady's brother stayed in that night unless he has another pair of longies.

Senior Dinner Dance Chairman York Quite a Lad; Gleefully Croons, Argues, Edits for Belle Air

By HOWARD A. McCALL

ON one Nov. 25 in the war torn year of 1918 Temple University Hospital was the scene of great felicitation, for into its portals had just arrived an insignificant bundle which was later to be christened Joseph Jerome York, Jr., present senior in the Commerce and Finance School.

For five years Joe was lost to civilization, and we next discover him exploring the wilds of Nesquehoning, his new hunting grounds. We may presume that it was the following year that Joe commenced his quest for knowledge at the local Sacred Heart grammar school. Little is known of his activities at this early stage, but if his achievements to date are any indication, it can be safely said that he inaugurated his school life with great enthusiasm.

"Kid" Achievement

Joe's next search for truth and certain knowledge impelled him to travel five miles each day to Lansford High School. Here his talents began to unfold, and many activities interrupted his heretofore pleasant life. The school paper found him an invaluable asset. The basketball team embraced him as its own. Dramatics discovered him to be a talented actor, and the school dance band welcomed his piano compositions. Add to the aforementioned factors an unquenchable thirst for knowledge which bore him to the top of the class, and we conclude the accomplishments of Joe at the time of his graduation.

JOSEPH YORK

No motivating power other than his admiration of Villanova prompted him to select this school as his alma mater. It had always been his desire and sincere hope that someday he could attend this college, and in the fall of 1936 his dream was fulfilled.

Joe was not very active during his freshman year, and we might attribute it to the fact that being a freshman he had not as yet acclimated himself to these new surroundings. However, this condition did not prevail during his sophomore year, for it was then that he began to actively participate in the various extra curricular activities of the college. He was a member of the Orientation and Sophomore Cotillion Committees during this term, and also joined the Glee Club.

Musically Talented

During his junior year Joe joined the Belle Air staff, was selected to act on the Junior Prom committee, continued to sing with the Glee Club, and was a member of the dance band.

For the current school year Joe holds the position of chairman of the senior dinner dance. He has also been appointed college editor of the Belle Air. Tenor soloist in the Glee Club is another distinction which Joe holds, as well as being the pianist in the dance band. Joe has not neglected his studies while participating in these activities, and for the past two years he has been an honor student.

One of Joe's first loves is arguing, and if anyone is interested in politics or dance bands we recommend that you consult Joe. Upon his graduation Joe intends to enter Dickinson Law School to study law. Certainly it coincides with his love of argument that he should desire to study law, and judging from the opinions of his vanquished adversaries Joe is destined to be a success.

Bongiovanni Gives Individualism Talk

"The Principle of Individualism in Material Things and in the Soul" was the topic of a paper presented by Joseph N. Bongiovanni, Jr., at the meeting of the philosophy seminar last Wednesday in Simpson Hall.

Following Bongiovanni's discourse, John J. Harrington commented on the method of presentation of the topic and suggested that, at the beginning of the paper, the problem involved should have been more fully stated.

James F. Donovan then proposed the problem of whether it is possible for a metaphysical essence to exist without a physical essence. This problem was answered in the course of a general discussion in which all members of the seminar participated.

Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Philosophy, moderator of the group, then concluded the meeting with a short comment upon the proceedings.

NOTE TO ASPIRING SCRIBES

Lost, strayed, but not, we hope, stolen: about thirty neophytes applied for admission to the VILLANOVAN staff but failed to return to the office for assignments or notice thereof.

Via P. O.

To The Editor:

An article in your issue of October 24, "Fathers Define Just War," signed by Murray P. Zealor, although laudable in its condemnation of the current struggle in Europe as an unjust war, contains what to me is a basic Christian fallacy.

This underlying defect in the argument is the assumption that there ever can be a "just" war. This contention is, I believe, wholly incompatible with the basic tenets of our Christian Faith.

War is murder of innocents by innocents; hence, war is wrong. To combat evils with evil is an obvious inconsistency. Two wrongs don't make a right; they never have; they never shall. Those who raise up the sword shall perish by the sword.

Wars never really involve a clash of ideologies; they reflect the inadequacies of our social and economic order. No war is black against white; right against wrong. We cannot rightly attack moral guilt with the moral sin that is war.

It is impossible to secure an "undoubted knowledge of guilt." War is aggressive response to repression, and the repression involves as much guilt as the aggression.

To declare war "when every means to prevent it has failed" is defeatism, lack of resourcefulness, resignation to temptation.

Good intentions are lost in a war psychosis which accompanies all wars. Good intentions are manufactured slogans to mask the ignominity that precipitates war.

To say that "War must be rightly conducted . . . within the limits of justice and love" is to say that one should smile kindly as he drives a bayonet through an enemy, and sigh, "I'm doing this for your own good."

War cannot be "exercised in the name of God," for God and His Son disowned war. Jesus carried a cross to Calvary, not a hand grenade. To sin in the name of God is blasphemy of the rankest order.

War, a coward's retreat from the problems of peace, cannot be justified; it can only be rationalized.

Messrs. Harrington and Zealor, THERE IS NO JUST WAR.

Most sincerely yours,
DANIEL H. GRAY,

DRUGS DISCUSSED BY RESEARCH SEMINAR

Joseph Gambescia Describes Properties of Most Important Medicinal Alkaloids

"Nicotine, quinine, opium, morphine and atropine are some of the more important medicinal alkaloids," declared Joseph M. Gambescia, freshmen science student, during the Research Seminar meeting last Wednesday.

Gambescia delivered a paper on "Alkaloids and Glucosides." Beginning with a very brief explanation of his topic, the speaker discussed each important drug, the methods of standardizing and their effect upon the physiology of the body.

Among the many interesting points touched upon, was the derivation of the nomenclature.

Belladonna, he explained, is a very important and dangerous drug. It obtained its name from one of its properties, which is to dilate the eye pupil. Years ago, it was the custom of the younger members of the female sex to put a drop in each eye, thus making their eyes appear larger. As a result, the name "bella donna" or "beautiful maiden" was attached to the drug.

Digitalin, digitoxin and gitalin, the main glucosidal constituents in digitalis were discussed. Its action on the heart, particularly in auricular fibrillation and circulatory collapse, were illustrated by drawings. Gambescia emphasized the role that digitalis plays in the field of medicine, and concluded his talk with a description of how the drug is obtained from a plant known as foxglove.

20 Seniors To Apply To U. S. Air Corps

Twenty seniors of Villanova have made known their intentions of being present at an interview to be conducted early in November by a board of Air Corps Officers according to Mr. W. G. Slaughter who has charge of arranging the interview.

This interview is for the purpose of presenting to the students who may be interested in flying information on flying cadet training in the Army and to acquaint them with the opportunities offered after graduation by the United States Air Corps.

Mr. Slaughter wishes it to be known, however, that students who hand in their names are in no way obligated to join the service, for even if they wished to join after listening to the information dessimated by the Air Corps Officers they would still have to pass rigid examinations before they would be accepted.

Even at that they would still be able to withdraw at any time up to the time they actually enter training.

This interview is merely for the purpose of presenting to interested seniors information concerning the Army Air Corps, its life, its requirements, and its opportunities.

in favor of a referendum. Total voting showed that 419 were for a referendum, and 118 against it.

In reference to the fifth question, each student was given a choice of one of the three parts which composed the question. A misunderstanding of the students caused many to vote for all the three parts. The finding that the question on "to be a conscientious objector," received the most votes, is not to be misinterpreted. The fifth question set emphasis on the word today, which was Tuesday, October 24. This does not mean that the voters would not change his mind subsequently.

Villanovans Play For Masquerade

School Orchestra Provides Music At Their First Outside Dance of Year

Last night, the Villanovans played their first outside engagement of the Winter season at a masquerade Dance given at St. George's Parish Hall in Glenolden, Pennsylvania. The contract was awarded to the dance band by Rev. Francis H. McKernan, the pastor of that parish through the manager, Frederick C. Kull.

Several novelty arrangements were introduced by Joseph Rozum, leader of the organization. Vocal honors were given to Daniel Savini of the Freshman Class. Savini was also featured in an accordion solo interlude.

According to Kull, several other contracts have been signed. Among them,—Malvern Preparatory School, which is holding a promenade next Friday night, November 4th, and the "Owl Hop" of Villanova's Engineering Fraternity, to be held November 10th.

The band is interested in building a reputation in and about Philadelphia. Anyone interested in securing this organization to play at any dance or social function is requested to contact Frederick Kull, 211 Fedigan Hall, or phone Bryn Mawr 2539 to arrange for an audition.

JERSEY OFFICERS ELECTED

The Jersey City Club, composed of Villanova Alumni, met last Monday night, October 23, for the purpose of reorganization. This club disbanded in 1935, was reorganized at the request of numerous alumni.

The meeting, at which 28 former Villanovans attended, was held at the Carteret Club in Jersey City. Among the prominent speakers were Paetrus Banmiller and William G. Slaughter, who at the present time hold executive offices at Villanova.

During the course of the meeting the following officers were elected: President, Frank A. Delahunty '10; Vice President, Thomas F. Feeley '34; Treasurer, John McGann '31.

G. Miller Triumphs In Orchestra Poll

Popular Swing Artist's Crew Triumphs By One Hundred Votes

In a poll conducted last Thursday and Friday by the VILLANOVAN to determine the student opinion on the most popular bands in the country, Glenn Miller, exponent of the swing trombone, easily coasted into first place by the overwhelming margin of one hundred votes over his nearest rival—Sammy Kaye.

After counting the Miller votes the rest of the contest was hotly contested with none of the bands having a runaway. Following the successful Glenn Miller who amassed 128 votes was a batch of other fine, although not as well-known, groups. They were: Sammy Kaye, 23; Hal Kemp who has already played at one of Villanova's social functions, 16; Jimmy Dorsey and Art Shaw, deadlocked at 14 votes apiece; and Glen Gray who totaled 5 ballots.

The above is not a complete list of all the ballots received but mentions only those bands receiving an appreciable number of votes. Lack of space prevents the VILLANOVAN from printing a complete listing, as many groups received from four votes down to one.

In this year's poll there was one marked improvement. The Villanovans seemed to take a fine spurt when they tallied three votes. In past years their limit was one.

CAMERA BUGS, ATTENTION!

Any pictures which students may have snapped at the Arkansas football game will be welcomed by the Belle Air, college yearbook. Shots of the Arkansas band parading on the field, or of the band members salaaming down near the goal line in the hope of aiding the Arkansas team to score, are especially desired.

Students having such photos are requested to give them to Robert G. Wilderotter, photography editor of the Belle Air, at room 220 Fedigan, or to bring them to the Belle Air office, room 51 Mendel.

Any other pictures taken at games or about the campus will likewise be gladly received.

ARKANSANS NIPPED; BEHOT'S LONG JAUNT WINS FOR WILDCATS

Chisick and Starting Backfield Play Entire Game as Blue Takes 7-0 Decision

KAY EAKIN STEALS SHOW

By BOB FUNABASHI

Villanova's great sophomore halfback, Joe Behot, coordinating with the 60 minute mighty mites of the backfield and a concrete forward wall, exploded the theory of the "I told you so's" last Saturday at Shibe Park, when he swiveled-hipped his way through a hole big enough for a pack of Mules and gallantly outran the Arkansas secondary to break the hog-tie that the Razorbacks had bewitched upon the Wildcats the first half.

From the opening whistle the Southwesterners and the Wildcats went back and forth in their unwieldy duel until the crisis in the latter part of the third stanza. Nick Basca's booming punts time and again relieved the Wildcats from their momentary distress and Arkansas with the ablest punter in the Southwest, Kay Eakin, also prevented Villanova from scoring.

The One Play

Even Bob Burns' blaring bazooka and the 60 swingsters of the Arkansas band couldn't dismay the Wildcats as theiy lined up for their determined thrust on their 19 yard line. It was just one play in a hundred and with the perfect execution given to it by smashing blocks and proper timing, Behot reeled off 81 yards in grand style, while Nick Basca converted for the extra point.

Then followed the terrible nightmare, but luckily enough the evil thought was broken up by the final whistle, the merriest note of the entire afternoon.

With but four minutes to play, the Razorbacks momentum started to swing towards the Villanova goal line. Taking possession of the ball on their own 23 yard line after an intercepted pass, they desperately took to the air, their only major offensive. Kay Eakin, the most outstanding player on the field, threw a long one for 39 yards to the Wildcat's 38.

Here the pigskin alternated between Cambell and Eakin and with the clock slowly pointing to their doom they ended up deep in Villanova's territory, down on the 15 yard line where the Wildcats stood firm and fast to make them give up the ball on downs.

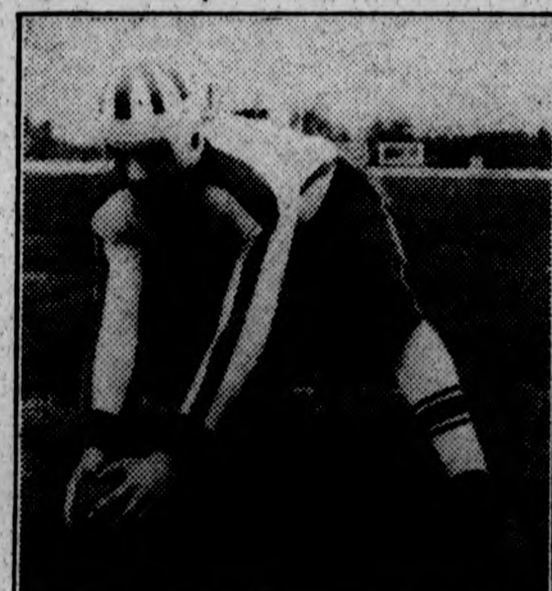
Basca's punt was returned to midfield but since time waits for no man their threats were completely dissolved. The Wildcats charging line sent Eakin to the ground for a 15 yard loss to complete the works before the clock came to a standstill.

Two Opponents Suffer Defeat

Ony two of Villanova's 1939 opponents tasted defeat over the week-end, and one was a one-point decision dropped by Auburn to Georgia Tech. Of the other teams Manhattan was idle and South Carolina tied West Virgina 6-6 on Friday night; the remaining four clubs on the list emerged victorious.

Texas A & M's triumph over Baylor for its sixth win of the season heads the list. Temple beat Bucknell 16-0 in another Friday tilt; Detroit won from Tulsa, no set-up, 16 to 7, and Muhlenberg conquored F. & M. 9-7 in the other games.

The other team on the schedule? Oh, Arkansas lost 7-0 in a game played at Shibe Park on Saturday.



TWENTY-ONE GAME BASKETBALL CARD FIXED FOR '39-'40

Indiana, Tulane, and Ohio Among Outstanding Clubs Listed; 14 Home Tests

The 1939-1940 edition of Villanova basketeers will face some of the country's leading court squads according to the recently released schedule. Besides having to rebuild his aggregation because of the losses suffered upon last year's graduation, Coach Al Severance will face more trouble when his club encounters the listed opponents.

As was announced last year, Villanova has withdrawn from double-headers, thus this year none of the Wildcats' games will be played in Convention Hall. This policy has not prevented a top-notch card from being arranged as many of the leading teams of the country will be seen in action on the floor of the Field House. Among the squads to appear will be those of Indiana, Ohio, Tulane, Western Maryland, Wittenberg, and Catholic U.

Only one third of the schedule will be played away. These games include a contest with St. John's University of Brooklyn. This team was one of the leaders in the East last year and is expected to duplicate its winnings ways this year.

Other games to be played in foreign gyms are: Lehigh, Assumption, P. M. C., Brown, Providence, and a return game with Western Maryland on their home court.

As in past years a season ticket for all home games will be available for one dollar. However, for the Tulane, Ohio and Indiana games, the season ticket plus forty cents will be the admission.

Doraismen Ready For Blue Invasion Of "Motor City"

Titans, Despite Heavy Graduation Losses, Have No Fear of Wildcats; Sophomores Sparkle in Early Games This Season

By JOE BARNES

Ed Palumbo, the Detroit "whirling dervish" who gave Villanova's 1938 undefeated club a 60-minute nightmare one Sunday afternoon last fall is gone. With him goes Jim McMillan, the huge copper-colored end; Al Chesney, captain and pass-catcher deluxe; Charley Beer, rotund tackle and a host of others.

On the surface this looks very bleak for the Motor City boys. But dry your tears, lads and lassies, for a team guided by the hand that once threw touchdown passes to the immortal Knute Rockne is not to be pitied. When Gus Dorais is at the helm hold your breath, for he always packs a punch. The punch this year lies in such men as Jack Halpin and Paul McErlean, snakey halfbacks, and Johnny Biringer, a sophomore quarterback who forgets that sophomores aren't supposed to be good. Take these two for a "shot," but here comes a "chaser" that will rock you from helm to stern.

Hurricane Harry

Harry Groth, packing 156 pounds on a 5' 8" frame, tosses passes with accuracy that makes the Titian clan forget all about a lad whom Villanova can never forget, Eddie Palumbo. They call Harry "Hurricane" and not without reason. He's a sophomore now, but a lot of football already lies behind him. Two years ago he was acclaimed the greatest scholastic gridder in Michigan for many years. Triple threat is no word for the man. From reports from Detroit it appears that he packs a threat in each inch of that 5' 8" frame.

The Titian weakness, they say, lies in the line. Center has been especially troublesome with injuries hampering both Captain "Emmie" Addison and his substitute Vince Banonis; the latter is already being slated for future "All-America" though he is only a sophomore.

Full Physical Strength

This week, however, Line Coach Bud Boeringer, (Notre Dame '27), expects the center situation to be ironed out and the Titians at full physical strength. Two tackles are among the sixteen returning letter-

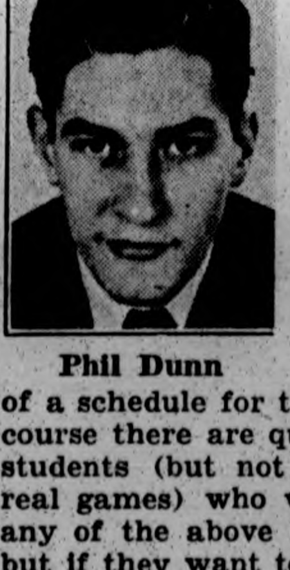
SOME of the seemingly insurmountable difficulties which surround the establishment of touch football among the ranks of intramural sports were brought to light in a discussion with Father McKee, one of the co-moderators of mural activity, the other day. Chief among these is the fact that there are too many other things going on at the times available for intramural play in this sport.



Phil Dunn

Labs, seminars, club meetings, and practice for other sports (for instance the 150's) all conflict with the arrangement of a schedule for touch football. Of course there are quite a number of students (but not enough to play real games) who will not fall into any of the above listed categories, but if they want to play the game, they will play it—as many of them do. They get the same fun out of it. The only thing that is lacking is the inter-dorm rivalry and the inability to add points to the intramural standings.

Father McKee explained that by placing footballs in all the dorms this phase of activity seems to be amply taken care of; and we agree.

REPORT STANFORD SEEKING SERVICES OF CLIPPER SMITH

Vince McNally Also Welcome According to Rumors; No Bid Received As Yet

Whether or not Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith will leave Villanova after this year has once again become a matter of conjecture. Reports that Stanford University is bidding for his services now lead the parade of ever present stories.

Have Lost Three Games

Stanford men are said to be disgruntled over their team's misfortunes this season and decided last Saturday, after the Cardinals had lost their third consecutive Coast Conference game, that a change in coaches is necessary.

Speculation as to present coach "Tiny" Thornhill's successor is divided between the Clipper and "Jock" Sutherland, former Pitt mentor.

McNally Also Welcome

In the event that Clipper does decide to accept a bid from Stanford—if and when one comes—it is understood that his capable associate Vince McNally would also be welcome. Both men have had coaching experience on the West Coast and are well liked in that sector.

Right now, however, Clipper has too many other worries to bother about a possible bid from outside. Getting ready for the Detroit game this Saturday is occupying practically all of his time, but he admits that should he be approached by a stranger he will not slam the door in the man's face.

Detroit "Titans" Named By Scribe

Until the year of 1919 the University of Detroit athletic teams were known as the "Tigers." Owing to the fact that Detroit's baseball club goes by the same name, things were rather complicated. However, in the fall of 1919 the Detroit Free Press assigned a man to cover football at the University who was to give the Red and White athletic teams a nickname that has stuck with them ever since.

Because the members of the 1919 squad were exceptionally large in size, Stan Brink, the sports writer who was covering football for the Free Press, thought that a good nickname for the team would be the "Titans." In Greek mythology the Titans were a class of people who happened to have almost perfect physiques. Whether the comparison was exactly correct, no one seems to know. Nevertheless, the name "Titans" has stuck with University of Detroit athletic teams ever since.

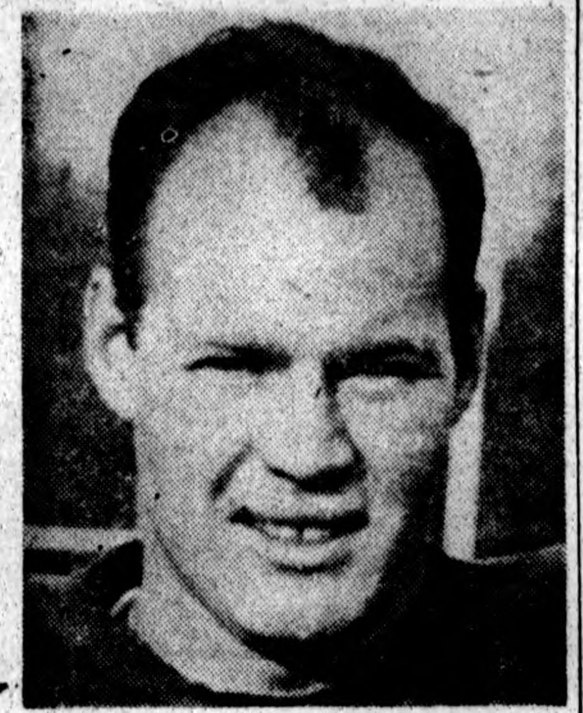
CHAPTERS I & II—HORATIO ALGER; McMAHON AND CASPER AS HEROES

By SAM CANNING

"Local boy makes good."

For the past three years, the idol of Bryn Mawr has not been its pretty girls, but Tom McMahon one of Villanova's really great backfield men. Tom was born and raised in Bryn Mawr and his glorious high school career led the towns people to expect great things from their hero when he entered college. Not to let his public down, Tom accepted a scholarship here at Villanova and has more than filled his home town's hopes for him.



At Lower Merion High School, Tom earned nine major letters, four of these being in football (his favorite sport). He captained the L. M. eleven in his senior year. He also was captain of the wrestling team of which he was a member for two years. Tom also was a three letter man in track. In other words he was just an all-round athlete.

After this glorious career the Bryn Mawr boy was asked to attend the local college where he crashed into the varsity games in his sophomore year. In his two years of alternating with Gordon Shader at fullback, Tom has only played in one game that the Wildcats lost, that being the one to Texas A. & M.

Tom claims that the fondest memory he will cherish of Villanova, when he leaves this year to enter business, will be that of the overwhelming ovation given the team on its arrival at the station after losing the Texas A. & M. game which ended that memorable three year winning streak. "It was a wonderful feeling to know the school was behind the team in victory and defeat," Tom says.

By FRED RAPPLEYEA

"Local boy makes good."

The old saying is true of the lad from Wayne, Pennsylvania, Tom Casper. Born in Wayne, Tom spent his youth acquiring his education at Wayne grammar school and at Radnor Junior and Senior High School.

Starting in early on his athletic career Tom played football for six years during his high school days, three years in Junior High and three years in Senior High, being elected captain of his team in his senior year. His playing ability was of such a high calibre that in his senior year he was nominated to both the All-Scholastic and All-Suburban teams of this district.

In his first year he was one of the freshman guards and his work was of such a grade that after two years he is now a regular guard on the varsity.

Although his play is not sensational, it still stands out because of its steadiness. Whenever a line plunge is stopped cold you may be sure that Tom had a hand in it.

In regard to his social activities Tom has always been well liked. As proof of that we need only point to his election to the Student Council this year. He is majoring in Finance in the Commerce and Finance School and when he graduates hopes to become affiliated with the U. S. Steel Corporation. Until that day comes Tom will be content with running the business that he now has—plumbing. As a matter of fact Tom has for his slogan in that business the following few words. "When that day comes, call Casper." So, we believe that with such a good record behind him, Tom will be called "when that day comes."

All poinions to the contrary should be made known.

While on the subject of intramurals it might be well to put the A. A. men wise to something that they seem to be missing. Experience in coaching hall teams and in officiating at the games should be an invaluable asset to any of you who intend to follow your athletic inclinations through life.

More varsity men should take an interest in the intramural program. There is room there for work to be done, and there are men here who can do it. Pash and Carlissimo stand out in our minds as examples of two who have the right attitude.

—V—

In the roughest, toughest game of the season Fedigan's Gigolos knocked off the high riding Alumni quintet 26-24 last night. Sandor and King led the scoring for their teams with nine points each.

We feel big-hearted today, so we'll hand out another tip: Don't bet your last nickle against Arkansas this Saturday. It's Homecoming Day down in Little Rock, and the Razorbacks might get away.

—V—

Who is the guy who said one month ago that the Wildcats would be in shape for the Arkansas game? Whoever he is, we think he was right. (Aside: Chuckle, chuckle, we said it.)

—V—

Here's hoping that the report carried by yesterday's papers concerning our illustrious football coach are unfounded. "Clipper" has brought our team up to what it is — one of the greatest in the country — and to lose him at this stage of the game would be disastrous to Villanova.

CUB LIGHTWEIGHTS POUNCE ON 'CATS; GARNER 20-6 WIN

Blue 150's Score First in Friday Tilt Staged at Princeton

Villanova's 150-pounders scored first again in their battle with the Princeton lightweights on Friday afternoon but finally succumbed to the Tiger Cubs 20-6 in a game played at Princeton. This victory was the tenth in a row for the Jersey lads, and it enabled them to retain their position at the top of the Eastern Intercollegiate Lightweight League.

A long pass play, Jim Lattanza to Vic Domenic, set up the Wildcats scoring opportunity in the first period. With the ball on the Princeton 15 Lattanza, playing left halfback, sliced off right tackle for the six-pounter. Lombardo's try for the extra point was blocked.

Cubs Come Back

Before the first quarter was over, however, the Cubs came back to take the lead. Two quick scoring thrusts, with Brooks Jones and Stoney Simons garnering the touchdowns and Ed Semple place-kicking an extra point, sent the Tigers into a lead they never relinquished.

The half ended with the count still 13-6.

Another Counter

In the third period Lyn Tipson accounted for Princeton's final six-pointer and Semple added the game's last tally with a placement.

Trials and Tribulations of a "Mgr."; An Unhappy, Toilsome Life Is His Recording the Drama and Pathos in the Everyday Life of a Lowly Football Manager at Villanova

By BILL DE GRACE

Time is valuable to every student but to a football manger it is far more precious. Most of his day when not attending classes is spent in the purlieus of the Field House.

Sophomore managers initiate the day at a alacritous hour. Every morning, not matter how inclement the weather, one of them trudges down to the postoffice, culls up the athletic mail and conveys it to Mr. Whelen's office at the gym. At approximately one forty-five, after he has finished his victuals, he will take attendance in "Clipper" Smith's class on football fundamentals.

Collect Equipment

Down at the Field House at two-thirty all the football managers gather together nine footballs, 48 helmets, 45 colored jerseys, 26 hooded coats, four red flags, a dozen megaphones, four blocking sacks and a tackling dummy and take them out to the field.

To make sure they will not be blown away by a ponderous gust of wind they fill their pockets with tape, cleats, shoe laces, chalk, and a stop watch all of which acts as a ballast. But before anything is taken from the equipment room it must be signed for; and the person who signs, usually the assistant varsity manager, is directly responsible for all equipment if it is lost.

Usually all managers remain out on the field to answer every whim and fancy of both coaches and players. But if there is work (nothing of the drudge type) to be done inside, the two varsity managers come in to complete the chores.

Game Preparations

Friday is one of the managers' most active days because everything must be made ready for Saturday's game. Shoes must be shined and all game equipment must be packed in nine different trunks. After practice is over players are cordially entreated to stow all their pads in separate duffle bags and to abandon them in the locker room. When everyone has left the managers pack them away in one of the trunks.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock all trunks are loaded on to a truck and brought down to Shibe Park. Immediately upon arrival the managers mark every locker with a player's number and proceed to place the player's equipment in his assigned locker. All helmets are brought out on the field in the trunk. A large black board is mounted in the dressing room. It is used by the coaches to explain mistakes at half time that have been committed during the first two periods.

Water Boys

During the game assistant freshman managers carry water out to players every time the trainer goes out on to the field. When a player is removed from the game he is wrapped in a blanket by an assistant varsity manager and his head and face is sponged. Varsity managers note every substitution, all pass interceptions, the distance of punt returns, and anything else that Mr. Smith wishes.

In the wake of the game when everyone else has departed with his date for a round of revelry, the football manager remains to pack all the equipment in the nine different trunks and place them wearily on the truck.

Doraismen

men. Three experienced guards, including Cass Brovarney, are available. Add to these the products of last Fall's undefeated freshman team and one wonders where the weak line comes in!

Yes sir, trouble lies ahead for the Wildcats when they tackle the Titian crowd in the city of automobiles and labor strikes. The midwesterners fear none when they are safely encamped in their own stadium and they feel confident of a victory over Villanova. "If Texas can do it, so can we!" is the general attitude of the Doraismen. They have stopped fearing the Villanova power, which terrified them in the last few sessions; they bask in the confidence that this is "their year" and its going to take a whole lot of Villanova football to change their attitude.

Beaten by Catholic

So far this Fall the Titians have humbled Central State, North Carolina State, and Tulsa University. Only the most powerful Catholic University team in years has been able to halt the Cardinal and White gridmen.

Here and There

WITH

HARRY MAZZEI

FOR two long weeks 43 Villanova gridders were biding their time for last Saturday's tilt with Arkansas' Roading Razorbacks. For two weeks they slaved and sweated—all with a single purpose—once more to capture some of the prestige lost at the Rose Festival down Texas way.

A fortnight of grim determination and steadfast resoluteness bore fruit in Saturday's win and softened the Clipper's brow. Fourteen days that saw dissension and indecision rise only to be smashed down and trampled upon until they were just unpleasant memories.

Important Game

On Saturday afternoon the 'Cats' convoy moved onto Shibe Park with every member of the squad knowing full well that Villanova's hopes to salvage even a little glory from the remainder of the fast-fading season rested on this fray.

Riding down to the ball park it didn't seem as if the thought of the game was oppressive on most of the men's minds. The usual banter and horseplay was indulged in with the usual entertainers doing their bit.

Those Pictures

Finally Shibe loomed into view and the busses rolled to a stop and the team poured into the park—into the dressing room where everyone went to his locker and reached for his program. Loud guffaws and horse-laughs! Why? Those matriculation card photos that were plastered in the program. Tornwall shouting, "And I didn't want to show that to any one." Howlett exclaiming, "Are they trying to frighten Arkansas?"

Then the usual dressing room scenes. The hustle and bustle upstairs in the taping room. Players walking around half-dressed. The carnival attitude gone; nothing now but dead seriousness. Everyone filled with a single grim purpose.

First Half

Out onto the field for preliminary practice. Back again for Clipper's final instructions. Out again and the game is on. An uneventful first half with the Porkers scaring the daylights out of the Wildcat rooters. Meanwhile the Blue offense was sputtering and stalling. No blocking; only that fierce vicious tackling that was so markedly absent down in Texas.

In the second half things continued to look bad for the home team. Then "Jumpin' Joe" Behot catapulted into the clear for 81 yards and a score. Basca converted. Arkansas on the rebound. Three first downs in a row. Then the 'Cats checked the Travelers and blocking with deadly precision smashed out two first downs the hard way—on the ground. The Porkers again took over with a mighty, spine-tingling aerial bombardment that missed its mark, but had the fans chewing their fingernails to the quick. Coming back minutes later with the same type of attack with the same results. Failing again and the game is over.

In the Dressing Room

Back into the dressing room where an amazing lack of boisterousness existed. Clipper and Vince calmly taking cognizance of the win. Teammates congratulating each other. The Blue still unbeaten the confines of Shibe Park.

The Wildcat, battered, bruised, and bleeding, tracked to its own lair had lashed out with all four paws and fought itself into the clear again. Answering the sceptics and critics with a sharp, learcut victory over one of the strongest teams in the Southwest Conference. A team that had as its mainstay a back who did everything that could possibly be done with a football except eat it; a back who has to take a rear seat for no one; who played 60 minutes and was an All-American for all 60; one Kay Eakin.

Turning Point?

This game was expected to be the turning point of the Main Liners grid season. Time will tell. And while everyone is still celebrating Saturday's classic, let's not forget that next week comes the Terrible Titans of Detroit with Auburn, Temple, and Manhattan following in very, very rapid fashion.

ALUMNI HALL FIVE WINS TWO GAMES; HOLDING TOP SPOT

Gigolos in Second Place Pressing Greenies; Teams to Meet This Week

Aided by its wild, enthusiastic fans, Alumni Hall has marched through four teams to hold the lead in the intramural basketball league.

The outstanding contest of the week was the game between Fr. McKee's Austin and Fr. Dunne's Alumni teams. So oonfident was Alumni of victory that they gave Austin a two point lead or handicap in the first minutes of play by scoring Austin's first basket for them. Although this was purely accidental, Father Dunne claims that he and Jimmy Brown had the whole affair planned.

Half Time Count 16-11

The Austiners scored eight points before the Greenies got under way to bring the score up to 16-11 in the Blueshirts' favor at the half. With a wild scoring spree in the second half, headed by King, Alumni pulled up along side their rivals. With only a few minutes left for play Alumni surged ahead and won 30-26.

The same day Alumni's closest rival, Fedigan, trimmed the C. & F. team, 43-29. Things were looking up for C. & F. in the second half when they were within one point of tying their opponents; but lacking substitutes they weakened and permitted the Gigolos to win.

This week the Mendel Day-hops justhopped right over the Residents of that hall, who seemed to be rather weary after licking Fedigan last week. The Yellowjackets didn't offer much resistance to the commiters who tok an easy 31-17 victory.

C. & F. Drops Another

Alumni's second game of the week was with the downtrodden C. & F. Day Students, who have yet to win a game. For a short while it looked as if the Businessmen were going to offer more opposition than was expected. They opened up the second half with a six point scoring spree that brought them within one point of tying Alumni.

Infuriated by this sudden outburst the "league pacers" swiftly moved into action and rang up ten baskets while C. & F. was scoring two. The final score of this game was 40-24.

Keating Rides High

The week's contests were wound up with Austin ekeing out a 29-27 win over the hard luck Mendel Residents. Austin's Big Boy Keating lead the attack, scoring nine out of the ten points in the first half and nine more in the second for an eighteen point total.

The Mendel rooters were riding high at the end of the first period as their team was leading Austin 16-10.

Next week's main event will be the Alumni-Fedigan game. Both teams are looking forward to the meeting.

Palumbo's Successor

Harry Groth, 5'8" short, and only 156 lbs. light, has taken over the duties of last year's Detroit star and is doing a highly commendable job. He's the man that "Clipper's" boys will have to watch on Saturday.

Last, But Not Least

Attention Bookworms!

By IMA NOMAD

Hey bookworm! Liquidate the fog and wake up in the accompanying drizzle. You all can't spend your life in volume two of the Encyclopedia Brittanica nor in Webster's Dictionary no matter how unabridged it may be. Rise and shine once in a while just for the healthy change it provides.

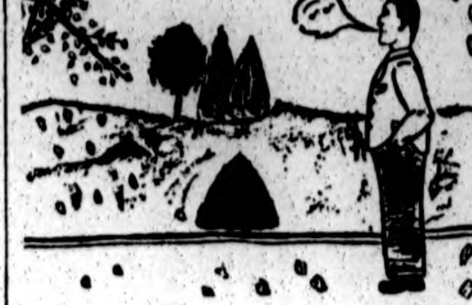
And you, too, Mr. Sleeping Sickness, you who after and between classes wastes not an infinitesimal second in re-assuming your horizontal position over in ye old, stuffy room. Because of your great number of disciples you merit the brunt of our scorn and the raison d'etre of our advisory message.

Why don't all of you try a change and commune with Old Dame Nature. She proffers to you the same ear and encouragement she so handsomely loaned Whiteman, Emerson, and Wordsworth. And note the advantages they derived from their trysts with her. There is no conceivable reason why you also cannot enrich your soul and, simultaneously, your bodily health, by paying her court.

In this wanderer's viewpoint, and in that of countless others, the Main Line, on which Villanova is so advantageously located, has been God's choicest easel. He has saved His most pricely oils and most delicate combinations of shades just for it. It is indeed a bitter shame that they be lost for the most part upon the college student who is supposedly more capable of living a really full and appreciative life than the metropolis vagabond. We honestly don't think they are, totally. He more or less notes and admires them in a subconscious way but doesn't spare himself the time to ponder over them. That's why we suggest. Get away from yourself, and make time for an excursion to the realm of Nature. It's more than worth the trouble.

These brisk Fall days are ideal not only from the standpoint of objective beauty but likewise in a personally exhilarating sense.

A short walk down Spring Mill Road in a westerly direction projects a new and multi-colored panorama of arborial beauty before one's eyes. The onlooker, unless he be of stone, cannot suppress elevating thoughts of Him when he sees a mountain of gay foliage inhumanly blended and outlined against a cloud bedecked horizon of azure blue. Perhaps we are sentimentalists, but if there be those who alone appreciate such aesthetic beauty, we do not regret our convictions.



The bracing wind that takes one's breath away and fills him with the will to live cannot be equalled. It imbues one with a sense of mysterious power and awes in spite of him. Oh, where can anything be found comparable to this?

Out of the aether we return to once again heckle the bookworm, and sleepy head into adopting our remedy for monotony, mental sluggishness, and physical let-down. Get out of the stupor into the air. Temporarily displace the canned Mother Nature in books for the living, vibrant protype all around us!

DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS INAUGURATED BY A. S. M. E.

A drive for new members has been inaugurated by the local division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Freshmen, who in previous years were not admitted until the Spring of their first year or until their sophomore year, are especially invited to join.

"Valves, Their Manufacture and Use" was the subject of a motion picture shown at the A. S. M. E. meeting on Friday, October 27. The film was obtained from the Bureau of Mines of the U. S. Department of the Interior. It is planned to present other technical pictures in the future.

John C. Hallinan, '40, was appointed chairman of the society's Trip Committee at their Tuesday, October 24, meeting.

A. I. E. E. POSTPONES TRIP TO PHILA. ELECTRIC CO.

Visits to Other Points of Interest Planned by John Ranier

The trip of the local unit of the A. I. E. E. to the Philadelphia Electric Company sub-station at Plymouth Meeting, Pa., originally planned for Friday, October 29, has been postponed until a later date.

On Monday, November 6, a film on Power Transformers will be shown.

Trip Chairman John J. Ranier has proposed several interesting trips, among which were included the Bourse Building, which links all telephone lines to other points in the country (long distance) and the Conowingo Dam power plant.

The October meeting of the A. I. E. E. was terminated by a brief financial discussion. The officers elected for the present year are as follows: vice president, E. J. Kelly, and treasurer, Dan Dalina.

Stories Of The Schools

Training For Industry

By THOMAS SHALLOW

The name of the Owl Hop causes many to wonder whether or not the engineering school cherishes an affection for a certain local university, but the bird in question acquired local importance in a very different manner.

Owl-Symbolized Wisdom

It was in 1907 when the Phi Kappa Pi was founded that the owl, symbolizing wisdom, was adopted as the fraternity emblem and became intimately connected with the traditions of the school. This was long before a Broad St. institution adopted it as a nickname for its teams.

It was the Phi Kappa who sponsored the present "Villanova Engineer" when it was started in 1926. At that time it was called "The Owl."

Fr. Stanford, First Moderator

Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, was the first moderator of "The Owl." At that time Father Stanford was on the faculty of the engineering school, teaching mechanical drawing and descriptive geometry. The text that father wrote for the latter course is still used.

Noted for Organizations

The engineers are noted for the number and activitiy of their extra curricular organizations. Each department has its own society, and practically every upperclassman belongs to his particular group.

The local American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers are chapters of national organizations. The newest departmental group is the Villanova Chemical Society, which has both chemists and chemical engineers as members.

The Mathematics Club is for those who wish to delve more deeply into that subject. The Chi Epsilon Mu was organized last year to provide recognition for outstanding juniors and seniors.

Regarded as Hardest Course

A combination of difficult subjects and long hours, with classes six days a week, has caused engineering to be regarded as the hardest course on the campus.

The first degrees conferred by the school were awarded June 15, 1909, and these were in civil and electrical engineering. The first mechanical graduated in 1912, the first B. S. in chemistry was won in 1922, and it was not until 1924 that a chemical engineer graduated.

50 Professional Degrees Awarded

Professional degrees are awarded to graduates who have done responsible work in their field and present a thesis. Of the 600 graduates of the school, more than 50 have come back to achieve this distinction.

Humphrey Guides Destinies Till '38

Until the spring of 1938 the school was under the aegis of Dean Humphrey, who passed away just before the inauguration of the new curriculum. Since then the administrative duties have been discharged by Acting Dean Moorehouse and a board representing the four departments.

Carl T. Humphrey, D. Sc., came to teach the first engineering subjects offered soon after the school was founded in 1905. He came here after having worked in the industrial field and taught at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, his alma mater.

The growth of this school has been the most consistent of any on the campus, and now, in its 35th year, it has the largest enrollment in its history with 232 students registered as candidates for degrees.

Phi Kappa Pi Frat Holds 'Owl Hop' Friday Evening

Novel Decorations in the "Spirit of Autumn" Will Embellish the Gym; Tickets Are on Sale at $1.50 Per Couple

By FRANCIS J. MAMBRETTI

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, will hold its annual "Owl Hop" on Friday night, November 10, in the field house. Informal dancing to the music of the Villanovans will commence at nine o'clock and terminate at one o'clock.

Chairman Frank S. Melograna has announced that several improvements will be noted in this year's program. Chief among these will be the "Balloon Shower." During the evening a shower of balloons will be released and the person who receives the lucky balloon will receive a prize, the nature of which has not yet been decided.

Natural Decorations

The main floor of the field house will be transformed into an autmnal setting. Cornstalks and tree branches will lend a realistic note to the fall decorations, which will be so arranged as to parallel the artistic touch of nature without sacrificing the naturalness of the scene.

Sometime during the evening's terpsichorean activities, a special novelty, surprise in character, will be featured, together with the roving spotlight which the committee is trying to obtain for the event.

Time has beclouded the reason for naming this social event of the Engineering school the "Owl Hop," and many of the newcomers to Villanova are not acquainted with the cause. Some years ago this dance was given on the evening preceding the Temple football game. In fitting tribute to the traditional battle the title "Owl Hop" was bestowed on the event.

The position of the sponsors of this hop is quite high on the Villanova campus. The Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity was organized in 1907 and, at the present time, boasts a membership of approximately one hundred and twenty-five students of the engineering school. The college handbook predicates the organization thus: "It has always enjoyed the reputation of being the most active and, at the same time, the most stable of all such organizations on the campus."

A last minute drive for tickets, though anticipated by the committee, is hoped to be avoided.

HANLON PROCLAIMS ASSESSMENTS DUE

Robert Wilderotter, Chairman, Appoints Sub-Committees for Belle Air Ball

P. Edward Hanlon, president of the senior class, in a statement made last week announced that all senior class dues must be paid before Thanksgiving. The wholehearted cooperation of every senior is requested to insure the success of the Belle Air Ball.

The Belle Air Ball committee has been divided into sub-committees in order to facilitate the handling of preliminary arrangements, according to Robert G. Wilderotter, chairman.

Committee members who will have charge of arranging decorations are: Ralph J. Fioretti, Richard S. Refowich, and Claude A. Van Hook, of the science school; Joseph B. Christoph, John C. Hallinan, and Casimer J. Kurek, of the engineering school, and John F. Lang, commerce student.

Gilbert E. Noll, science man, Frank S. Melograna, and Edward J. Cierkowski, of the engineering school, and Arthur W. Murphy, commerce student, will cooperate on the task of selecting the orchestra.

Harry M. Taylor, science, and Philip M. Dunn, commerce and finance, will handle the publicity, while Thomas J. Casper, commerce man, will take care of the tickets and programs. James B. Scott, artsman, will negotiate for the refreshments.

HALLS MAKE READY FOR CHASE AFTER CONNELLY PLAQUE

Fedigan and Austin Dorms Appoint Chairmen to Head Decoration Committees

Resident halls will drop their usual bare appearance next week and take on one of festivity, for the three day period of November 14-16 will witness the holding of the annual hall decoration contest in competition for the Connelly Award.

The Connelly plaque was donated to the students of the college in 1937 by William Connelly, '27, whose purpose in the donation is to give a worthy award to the hall that has the most original and colorful decorations prior to each Villanova-Temple football game.

Judge on Thursday

The judging of the contest, which is done by the Student Council, will take place on Thursday, November 16. On Friday evening, during the course of the pre-game pep rally that is staged in the field house, the winner will be announced and the plaque will be presented by the chairman of the Student Council to the moderator of the winning hall.

Fedigan, the winner of the Connelly plaque in 1937 and 1938, does not intend to rest on its laurels, and with a whole new idea, will attempt to be the winner for the third straight year in this traditional contest. Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., prefect of Fedigan hall, has announced the appointment of Joseph M. McNamara as chairman of the decoration committee in that dormitory.

Ideas To Be New

Speaking for Austin Hall, Rev. Edward B. McKee, announces the appointment of Patrick Kenney as chairman. Father McKee predicts that the decorations for this year, due to the change in coaches at Temple, will be entirely new. "Austin expects to win this year and to relieve Fedigan of the trophy it now holds" said Father McKee, "and we are certain that this year should produce the most colorful display in Villanova's history."

Appointments to chairmanships of decoration committees are not made in the freshman halls, as the first year men are expected to unite in a coordinating agency formed by the moderator of each hall.

Ring Committee To Take Sizes

Sizes for junior rings will be taken during the period from Tuesday, November 7, to Friday, November 10, beginning at 11:30 A. M., in the reception room in Mendel Hall.

Loren Murchison & Co., Philadelphia jewelry firm, has again been awarded the contract for the rings and it is promised that those who order rings before Friday will have their rings mailed to their home before Christmas.

A deposit of five dollars is required when ordering the rings, which have the same prices as last year and include a choice of 12, 14, or 16 pwt. of gold and 10 stones.

Sizes will only be taken until Friday, but orders may be given to the members of the ring committee at any time. Immediate orders are not necessary to receive information concerning the rings.

Music Seminar Meets

Next meetings of the Music Seminar will be held in Simpson Hall on November 8 and 9, at 7:30 P. M. The program will include "Liebestraum" by Liszt, the "Scheherazade Suite" of Rimsky-Korsakow, and Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite.

GLEE CLUB PERFORMS AT LARGE DEPARTMENT STORE

In the main dining room of the Snellenburg department store, Philadelphia, the glee club gave recitals last Saturday afternoon.

Villanova's glee club is the first such group to perform in that store this year, and the management was pleased with the enthusiasm with which it was received and commended Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., moderator, on the performance.

The program consisted of two half-hour recitals which included six numbers rendered by the glee club as a whole and two numbers by a quartet.

At the conclusion of the recitals, Fr. Handran took the group to Stauffer's Restaurant, where he had previously made reservations for dinner for the club.

FR. M'GUIRE URGES DOCTRINAL WORK

Catechetical Instruction of Uninformed Catholics Is Convention Theme

Returning last evening from his journey to the Fifth Annual Catechetical Congress in Cincinnati Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O. S. A., informed the VILLANOVAN that he was anxious to put into effect immediately recommendations of the convention.

Preserve Teachings

The Fifth Annual Catechetical Congress was formally opened by Solemn High Mass celebrated by the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P., Archbishop of Cincinnati. With more than 5000 priests and laymen in attendance in the large auditorium, Archbishop McNicholas charged the group to enter the congress with the love of God in their hearts, and to work for the salvation of their less fortunate young brethren.

Attempting to formulate a plan by which the 2,000,000 Catholic children who attend public schools might by given the opportunity to learn, the Congress issued a plea for more members of the laity to join in this noble work. Archbishop McNicholas said "We need lay catchists by the hundreds of thousands. Is it too bold a thought to even hope for a million within the next few years in our country with sufficient doctrinal background?"

Students Should Aid

With the knowledge that one-fifth of the Catholic students who leave the public grammar schools never heard of again as Catholics, Fr. McGuire would have the students of Villanova College doing the same work that many of the lay students in several of the Catholic Colleges are doing in the field of Catholic Action. "With our neighboring Colleges, Rosemont and Chestnut Hill, engaged in the work of spreading catechetical teaching in the negro settlements, the students of Villanova College might easily undertake this great mission."

"Write-Ups"

Today is the last day that seniors will be allowed to read their "write-ups" to appear in the Belle Air, according to Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief of the publication.

All changes desired or corrections required must be made at this time; otherwise the content of the write-up is left to the discretion of the yearbook staff.

For this purpose, the Belle Air office, room 51, Mendel hall, will be open from 1 to 5 P. M.

Epsilon Phi Theta Elects McNamara Frat President

Collins, Vice-President; Moore, Secretary; Way, Treasurer; Wilderotter, Student Council, Also Appointed on First Elections

By JOSEPH N. BONGIOVANNI

Joseph M. McNamara, senior artsman, was elected president of the newly revived Arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta, yesterday afternoon. Also elected with him were: James P. Collins, Thomas J. Moore, and William N. Way, junior artsmen, and Robert G. Wilderotter, senior artsman, to fill the offices of vice president, secretary, treasurer, and Student Council representative, respectively.

Upon assuming office immediately after being elected, McNamara pledged himself to further the purposes of the fraternity in every possible way, with the cooperation of his fellow officers and the members of the fraternity.

McNamara Active

McNamara has been especially active in the activities of the class of 1940 and also participated in Belle Masque productions, serving this year in the capacity of assistant director.

Enthusiasm was shown by the new members of the fraternity at the election. Joseph N. Bongiovanni, seniors arts student, stated, "Epsilon Phi Theta has already taken a big step toward success in its choice of McNamara as president. He has shown himself to be a capable leader and is fortunate in being assisted by such capable fellow-officers, I am certain theirs will be a successful term."

Other Officers Worthy

James Collins, vice president, after thanking the group for the honor they bestowed on him, complimented the fraternity on its choice of McNamara. Collins, as college Editor of the VILLANOVAN, has demonstrated the qualities necessary to aid in the direction of an activity. He has been active on the Belle Air staff throughout his stay at college.

Even before his election, Thomas Moore had been serving in the capacity of secretary to the organization. He expressed his willingness and enthusiasm to continue serving in that capacity. It will be remembered that Moore, together with Collins, was very active in initiating the movement which resulted in

FRESHMEN TO MEET SOPHS IN CONTESTS ON TRADITIONAL DAY

Saturday to Witness Struggle of Lower Class to Doff "Regs"

Field Day, the traditional tilt between the freshmen and sophomore classes, will be held next Saturday morning, November 11, according to an action taken at a meeting of the Student Council last Thursday.

At this time the freshmen will have an opportunity to prove that obedience to the rules laid down by the sophomore Orientation committee was engendered out of a willingness to cooperate with the committee, not out of fear.

Many Contests

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., sophomore class moderator, has worked strenuously to provide a program that will set a new high in fun and pleasure for participants in the day's activities.

Highlight of the events provided on the program is the traditional tug of war between the two classes. Although the freshmen will be numerically superior in this event, the sophomores will not be at a loss for man-power. Other contests included on the program are: a touch football game, a three legged race, a potato race, a sack race, a broomball contest, and a rugby game.

No Varsity Men

No men with varsity or junior varsity experience are allowed to participate in any of the contests except the tug of war. This action is taken in order to make the contests more interesting and more evenly matched, according to a member of the program committee.

A point system will be used in determining the value of a victory in each contest. The class compiling the largest number of points will emerge as the victory of the Field Day activities.

A victory for the Frosh will allow them to set aside their regs after the Villanova-Temple football game but, in the event that the sophomores win, the Frosh are bound to wear their regs until Thanksgiving.

Speech Classes Honor Armistice

Papers Dealing With War To Be Presented Thursday, November 9

In commemoration of Armistice Day, students of public speaking will hold a "Peace Panel" at 3 o'clock P. M. on Thursday in the Mendel hall amphitheatre.

After chairman of the panel Joseph M. McNamara, senior artsman, has opened the session, five students will present papers dealing with war. The order of the day will then be concluded with a "Question Box" in which the spectators may have their queries answered.

First speech to be given will be one by John J. Raney, senior engineer, who will speak on the "Resume of Events Leading Up to the Present Crisis."

After Thomas J. McKimmey, sophomore artsman, has spoken on "What Price Peace?", "America's Place in a European Conflict" will be dealt with by James F. Donovan, junior artsman.

"The Morality of the Sale of Arms" will then be explained by John M. Bader, sophomore artsman; Murray P. Zealor, junior in the commerce school, will conclude the speech section of the panel with a talk on "The Effect of Propaganda on War."

An invitation to attend is extended to all students and faculty members by the members of the panel.

GARRITY NAMED TO BELLE AIR POSITION

Award of Copy Editorship Completes List of Appointments to Yearbook

William F. Garrity, senior artsman, was announced as copy editor of the 1940 Belle Air at a staff meeting held yesterday by Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief of the publication. This appointment brings to a close the major appointments of editorial positions on this year's college annual.

Seasoned by three years of work on the publication, the appointment was not a surprise to the associates of the Belle Air staff. Garrity, in his new function, has an enviable position, but one that demands a tremendous amount of work. The entire copy that is handled by the Belle Air, all material that is to be printed, and much that is to be rejected is proof read and corrected by the copy editor.

The new copy editor has proven his ability in other ways, foremost of which is the position he holds on the VILLANOVAN staff where he writes the column, "College Chatter." His college life has been an active one, and the success that is now his has come only after the active service he has rendered in many extra-curricular activities.

Commenting upon the position that he has just awarded to Garrity, Edward Jonik stated, "Bill will have to be the watchdog of the literary content of the book. It is the most thankless job there is, for all the criticisms of the finished product will be directed at him."

All Out For Field Day

GOOD NEWS of the week is the revival of Field Day next Saturday morning after a lapse of one year. This is the climax of the Orientation Program, and without it the rest loses in meaning.

The Frosh will have an opportunity to be honorably released from their "regs," and the sophomores may have their last chance to dominate the new men. The program arranged is in keeping with the friendly rivalry which is the keynote of the event, and removes any possibility that it be considered a grudge fight.

Field Day is being revived because of the requests received for it, notably from the sophomore class. This insures a good turnout for the event, and the competition arranged is such that everyone who desires to take part will be able to enter.

Training For Democracy

A government, our government, which exists "for and by the people" rests its security upon the ability of each citizen to keep our democratic institutions permanent and intact.

To attain this goal an enlightened, united citizenry forms and obeys certain laws which work for the common good; hence it is evident that any disruption of tranquility results from an inadequate training for living in a democracy, leaving the people vulnerable to foreign subversive attacks. This training is essential to the well-being of the state and is an educative process that is an important function of the school.

Knowing that one learns to live by living, the founders of our college had the foresight to create as democratic an environment as possible for the student. We are proud in boasting that here at Villanova the various organizations and activities are conducive to democratic feeling in theory and in practice.

For example: the Student Council and the Orientation Committee are made up of duly elected members of the student body and act for their welfare. In the intra-mural activities the students meet on common grounds and conduct their own activities. The various clubs, fraternities, and publications are composed for and by the students, all striving for the common good. The extraordinary growth of seminars fosters individual thought and are an outlet to original opinion. Finally, in the classroom a congenial atmosphere and close co-operation between student and professor aids in student self-motivation, all these things being conducive to democratic environment.

These few of the innumerable advantages enjoyed by the student body are pointed out for the benefit of those who were not aware of their existence, and it is sincerely urged that their proper appreciation and interest be manifested. In this way students will enjoy a fuller campus life and at the same time be preparing themselves in the practice of democratic principles.

We Can't Forget

I DREW men from ruts in the earth; I drew men from crags in the hills; I drew them from thatched roofed huts; I drew them from castles of stone and might; I drew them from your father's house.

I drew men from the fields of waving golden grain; I drew men from merchant trains; I drew men from mines beneath the earth; I drew men from the factories; I drew men from the offices; I drew men from your father's house.

I drew blood from veins of men; I drew blood from wounds of women; I drew blood from fresh hearts of youth; I drew blood from the stock of man's beasts; I drew blood from your father's house.

I drew life from the grips of nations; I drew life from bodies raked with fire and steel; I drew life from every living being; I drew life from trees, plants, and from the seas; I drew life from your father's house.

I draw you now with my grasp, as I drew your father from your father's house.

I am War.

What's The Matter, Frosh?

WHAT WOULD be the spirit of one of Villanova's finest classes? Would it be disregard for authority and destruction of freedom? Such a spirit would make impossible the democratic environment on which Villanova prides herself. Yet a freshman maintains that "because of their uprising the 'frosh' have shown spirit which will make them one of Villanova's finest classes."

The "uprising" consists of pacific resistance to the Hello habit, non-wearing of regs, and violation of other traditional freshman regulations as found in the handbook.

The "uprising" will not result in any increase of freedom on the part of the freshman class. Freedom is found in doing the right thing freely. This concept has led the Orientation Committee to follow a policy of enforcing these regulations through the honor and understanding of individual freshmen.

Now comes a man new to Villanova who glorifies violation of freshman obligations. Is this outcry symptomatic of the class as a whole? Let us hope not, for it is a diseased spirit that would repudiate the honor of wearing Villanova regs.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Initial Items of Studies Most Difficult to Learn

Fundamentals of Subjects Hardest Because Apparently Unrelated to Previous Knowledge

By HARRY S. BUECHE, M. S., E. E.
Professor, Engineering

IN order to acquire truth, it is necessary to obtain a wide and extensive knowledge of what has been said and done in the world; carefully to ponder over it; clearly to sift it; and earnestly to carry it out."—Confucius.

This search for truth, this tireless effort to wrest from nature her most valuable secrets goes forward at an accelerated pace; spurred on by ambition, and by need, but most of all by the all-impelling human urge to conquer the unknown.

The present day student, as he scans the horizon of his particular field, be it Engineering, Medicine, Law, or Business, cannot help but be overwhelmed with the complexity and variety of the problems, materials, ideas and progress which he sees. If he be curious, he may question these new developments and inquire, "What good are these strange new ideas?" To a question similar to this one, Faraday replied, "Some day they may be taxed." A large manufacturing company replies to this question with the slogan, "More Goods for More People for Less Cost."

Two Stages in Learning

If the student will stop and ponder for a few minutes, he will realize that there are two stages in the process of education. In the first stage, learning is slow and difficult because each new fact acquired either appears unrelated to previous knowledge, or else requires a revision of previous concepts to make room for it. This fact may be tested by the student attempting to read a current magazine in his particular field. He glances through several articles only to discover that the material appears far beyond his present knowledge of the subject. Yet in the course of a year or two, or possibly months, he will have graduated and will be expected to know something of these topics which he now claims to be so far beyond his present knowledge.

In the second stage, learning becomes progressively easier, because each new fact either appears a natural consequence of earlier knowledge or else forms an easily remembered link between already known facts. Each step forward in this stage reveals new and interesting vistas of further progress.

Most of the students' formal schooling embraces this first stage with the result that the individual may become bored, tired and even lose interest because he can see no reason for taking certain courses which are required, and from which he feels that no practical results will accrue. And again the professor may be at fault in not attempting to point out to the student just where the particular course fits into the scheme of things so that it becomes a worth while subject.

The transition from high school to college is such that the Freshman sometimes has more difficulty orienting himself to the new system so that he may not be fully aware of this stage of the learning process. In addition, many of the courses are continuation of his high school work so there is a little of the second stage of this process of learning. It is in the sophomore and junior years that students have the most difficulties. Here the student is introduced to subjects for the first time so that more time must be spent on the courses because of the difficulty of mastering new material. If a good job is done for the first three years, the student is able to enter the last year with a background such that, although the work may be difficult, he is able to correlate his ideas with the result that much valuable knowledge in his particular field is obtained.

Progress in Knowledge

If the student realizes that these strivings for knowledge, especially the first attempts, are difficult and sometimes laborious but that an honest effort will be repaid in dividends of broad understanding and much useful information, he no doubt will be influenced to put forth his best efforts. The Germans have an expression "Aller anfang ist schwer," meaning, "Every beginning is hard." The student should remember this saying whenever being introduced to a new course, and make an honest attempt to master the subject as time progresses and not depend upon concentrated efforts at the very end in order to pass the course.

Bob Wilderotter, Active as Chairman of Belle Air Ball, Finds Time to Engage in Speech, Arts, and Yearbook

Becomes of Age, Just in Time For Today's Election

By FRANCIS M. FITZPATRICK

IN conclusion, let me urge you that it is your duty as citizens of this Commonwealth, to go to the polls on Tuesday, November 7, and cast your ballot for your candidate, Robert G. Wilderotter."

Today there is a two-fold cause for a holiday. Not only does it mark election day, but also the reaching of maturity of the above mentioned individual. Yes, Mr. Wilderotter is twenty-one today and, since the date of his birth on November 7, 1918, Robert George, more familiarly known by "Bob" or "B. A." and various other cognomens, has led a varied and interesting life.

To get on with the story, "B. A." began his education under the guidance of the Notre Dame sisters at St. Peter's School in Newark, N. J. His activities at this time were shrouded in the dark cloak of mystery. Needless to say, however, there is probably some deep lying purpose surrounding this air of secrecy.

Active in Prep School

Finding that ditch-digging and hodcarrying were not to his liking, Bob decided to attend prep school in order to be eligible for the position of checker at steam shovel excavations. This momentous decision led him to seek higher education at St. Benedict's Prep, likewise located in Newark. At this point our copiously constructed subject merged from the rank of the wall-flowers to that of man-about-town. His list of extra-curricular participations reads like a symposium of the school's activities.

Editor of St. Benedict's year book and newspaper, honor man for four years, intramural athlete, actor extraordinary, and (I know you'd never suspect this) drum major of the band, he believed that variety is the spice of life. Ask Bob to tell you about the Passion Play in which he portrayed St. Peter. It seems that the full beard of his wig started itching and, at one of the most serious moments of the drama, he practically broke up the show by—but let him tell you about it.

ROBERT G. WILDEROTTER

Selects Villanova

Having changed his ambitions by this time from steam shovel checker to that of the vice-presidency of an electric fan company, he decided to matriculate at a still higher institute of learning. Fearing to leave you with the impression that Bob is a book worm, let me hasten to state that the supreme motivating power in bringing "B. A." to Villanova was a picture of the college swimming pool. He courageously admits that, since his freshman year, he has been in the pool once annually.

Arriving at Villanova in the fall of 1936, he lost no time in acclimating himself. His freshmen year found him president of the freshman debating society and a member of the North Jersey Club. As a second year man, Robert George again lent his support to the activities mentioned previously as well as serving on the Soph Cotillion committee and portraying "Shadow" in Belle Masque's memorable production, "Winterset."

Intends to Enter Business

During his Junior year he continued in the Belle Masque, Beta Gamma, and turned his journalistic talents to writing for the Belle Air. The current year finds Bob occupying the position of chairman of the Belle Air Ball. Likewise, he has been appointed photography editor of the year book. Quite a busy man!

In conclusion, let me mention that there is the standing challenge of the triumvirate of Wilderotter, "Old Boy" Haggerty and "Handsome Bob" O'Brien, formed early in freshman year, to out-argue anybody, at anytime, about anything.

Upon graduation in June, Bob intends to enter the business field if the opportunity presents itself. If not, he will follow in the footsteps of his older brother, Art, who is now studying law at Georgetown. No one seems to doubt that the prize orator of the arts school will be successful in whatever endeavor he undertakes. "Destined for success," is applicable to this likeable chap from North Jersey.

INTERRACIALISTS MEET

Rev. William J. Lunny, O. S. A., M. A., attended the regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council at Rosemont College on Sunday. The group was addressed by Dr. Charles E. Lewis, president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the National Negro Congress.

The meeting was attended by students in the various collegiate interracial groups and by members of the faculties interested in the problem.

COMPLETE REPORTS GIVEN BY ENGINEERING SCHOOL

A new type of report on which the student's complete record up to each period of issuance is recorded, is being used for the freshman and sophomore engineers.

A "master copy" is provided for each student and at the end of each quarter, his current marks are typed in a space provided for them. The reports then carry the marks and place in class for every quarter the man has been in school.

The reports, on eight-and-a-half by eleven inch forms, are taken off the "master" by a special duplicating machine and copies are made for the Dean, the Registrar, the student's parents, and the student himself.

This system was inaugurated with last year's freshmen and, proving successful, it is being continued for them and begun for the new class. A cumulative report will be issued every semester, while a separate form will be used for the quarterly marks.

Math Club Selects Banquet Committee

Walter N. LaPorte, sophomore chemical engineer, was appointed ticket chairman of the banquet of the Mathematics Club at a business meeting on Tuesday, October 31.

The banquet committee appointed at the same time consists of Joseph C. Dorsey, William J. Ehmer, and Edmund J. Hagan, sophomore engineers.

Rudolph Drenick, Ph. D., new member of the Engineering School faculty, was a guest at the meeting held in Simpson Hall on Friday night, October 27. Mr. Drenick was introduced to the members and consented to lecture on "Modern Concepts of Physics" at the meeting to be held on Monday, November 20.

Mr. Emil Amelotti, M. S., moderator of the club, was the speaker of the evening. His talk was on "Solution of Cubic Equations."

Our Mail Box

To the Editor,
Dear Sir,

As an interested and an ardent reader of your publication, I feel it my duty to tell Messrs. Murray P. Zealor and Thomas H. Doyle that I am getting "fed up" on reading how "terrible" the class of 1943 is.

Just because we fail to be herded around and branded as "miserable frosh" your writers use us as copy for their articles week after week. "Centennial tradition violations," "Unruly frosh," etc., to quote a few headlines.

In an article by Mr. Zealor, he states, "Villanova greeted you as men, greeted you as old friends." Mr. Doyle says that we should not be treated as men, because, he states, "they are just little mamma's boys when they come here." Who is to decide our fate? Mr. Editor, your staff are contradicting each other.

Because of their "uprising," the "frosh" have shown spirit which I think will make them one of Villanova's finest classes. Lay off the "frosh." We are just as much men as any of you. Here's hoping for a change. Will you print this letter and reply?

Yours very truly,
WILLIAM A. CRAVEN, '43.

VILLANOVANS PLAY DANCE

Latest engagement of the Villanovans was their playing of a dance at Malvern Preparatory School last Friday night. New arrangements were rendered, with vocal honors going to Daniel Savini and Frederick Kull.

The next local appearance of the aggregation will be on Friday, November 10, when they will supply the music for Phi Kappa Pi's "Owl Hop."

According to Frederick Kull, manager of the orchestra, the group is interested in building a reputation in, and about, Philadelphia and are willing to play at dances or social functions.

Ice Cream Deluge Causes Minor Riot

The basement of the Commerce and Finance School was the scene of a minor riot last week when Ward Guncheon, commercial freshman, and several other students hit the "jackpot" on the choco-pic machine recently installed there.

Students seemed to come from nowhere to claim their share of the excess of frozen confections that Guncheon suddenly found in his possession. The lucky lad's only complaint was that he did not have the capacity to eat all of his booty before it had melted.

SEEK PRESS RECIPIENT

The Catholic Press Apostolate of of Villanova College has collected back issues of many Catholic periodicals and newspapers, such as "America," "The Tablet," and the "Catholic Worker," and these copies are now in the VILLANOVAN office awaiting selection of a worthy recipient.

Suggestions will be welcomed by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., M. A., from students knowing of Catholic clubs or groups that would like to receive this literature.

Student Discusses .. Canadian Attitude In World Conflict

How is Canada, our friendly next-door neighbor, reacting toward the European war in which it has already become involved.

According to John McGuiness, a freshman in the engineering school, who hails from Mimico, Canada, there is no war hysteria there as in 1914. No bands are playing martial airs and there is not a great deal of flag waving. The people are calm and collected, trusting in their government to lead them. There is no evidence of war going on except for a slight rise in food prices.

"The only steps that the government has taken toward preparation is to increase the force of their standing army from 10,000 to 40,000 men. As yet there is no conscription in force; in fact, the government has been turning away volunteers at the rate of a thousand a day. The navy has been greatly increased, however. As far as I know though, only two contracts for war supplies have been given out," stated McGuiness.

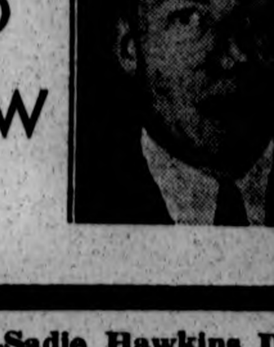
"The announcement that our country had declared war on Germany came as somewhat of a surprise. Everyone thought that the government would at least wait until the United States had lifted its embargo. However we feel that it is a just war we are fighting as Hitler has to be stopped sometime and sometime soon."

HOLY NAME RECEIVES.

The Holy Name Society attended Mass and received Holy Communion together in a group last Friday morning. It is the duty of this society to honor Jesus Christ by reverencing His Name and by attending Mass and receiving Holy Communion on the First Friday of each month.

Soon the Freshmen and other new students will be given an opportunity to be enrolled as members of this ever increasing organization.

THE WIND BELLEW



Nov. 11th—Sadie Hawkins Day.

A general proclamation of the celebration of Sadie Hawkins Day has been issued at the University of Cincinnati. The whole day, including the football game, will be fashioned after the comic strip, Li'l Abner. It will last from noon to midnight—oh unhappy day.

The gals must sign up with their fellers and receive cards claiming their men. They buy tickets for the dinner and dance after the game. The gals pay for everything —oh happy day.

Li'l Abner's pig "Salomey" will make a personal appearance at the football game. He will appear during the half, dressed in a new coat of grease. Quite naturally he will have tails—one, anway. He will be released for a romp, during which the Dog Catchers will attempt to shake hands with him, which is quite hard to do, 'cause Salomey isn't that friendly. Besides, they will have to get him standing up, 'cause then his feet become arms, and his hoofs become hands. This sounds like a swell idea.

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

WERE I inspired by love's own flame to write
These lines and strive my feeling to express,
Perchance, I'd say how much you could incite
My heart to ask of you one sweet caress,
And then I'd tell what deeds I would perform
For the touch of your lips in one lingering kiss,
And how I'd break each rule and every norm
To cling to your embrace. Ah, that is bliss!
But 'tis not love for which I came to ask;
Just let me gaze at you a little while
In wonder and amaze, and let me bask
In the radiant glory of your heavenly smile.
Thus I hope you'll stay unto the end,
A smiling maid so sweet, a charming friend.

EXTRA MASS SAID DURING NOVEMBER

Chaplain Responds to VILLANOVAN Editoral; Arranges 8:15 Mass for Day-Hops

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., M. A., chaplain, has responded to a request made by the VILLANOVAN on its editorial page last week. Fr. Boyle has arranged to have Mass said every morning in the college chapel during the month of November at 8:15 for the convenience of the non-resident students.

The VILLANOVAN editorial explained that it was impossible for the day-hops to attend daily Mass at their parish church when they had an early class. A Mass in the college chapel every morning, the editorial stated, would be a convenience and profitable means of hearing daily Mass.

Even though the editorial said that the Mass was requested during the month of November, it was earnestly hoped that the arrangement would continue during the entire school term.

Father Boyle said, "The hour chosen will make attendance at Mass possible for all those who wish to make the sacrifice every morning during the month of November, the month of the Poor Souls. The convenience of the celebrant and the students has been considered, and the Mass will be over in time to enable both to have breakfast and to make his class."

This Mass will be said in addition to the regular 7:15 Mass that was inaugurated this year for the convenience of the resident students. The new time for the Mass will also be available for all the resident students who wish to hear Mass and yet have not done so before because of the earliness of the regular Mass.

The Chaplain also stated that if the students receive this new offering with favor, he shall have the Mass continued throughout the entire school year, or to that time when student participation warrants the suspension of the 8:15 A. M. Mass.

Officers Chosen By Sociology Seminar

Walter S. Filipek, Francis X. Thomas, senior sciencemen, and Albert P. Sindall, senior artsman, were elected officers of the sociology Seminar. From their number a chairman will be selected.

At the last meeting of the group, Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Ph. D., moderator, discussed Pope Leo's encyclical "Rerum Novarum," or "The Reconstruction of the Social Order," and Pope Pius' "Quadragesimo Anno," or "Forty Years After."

In the discussion, he stressed the effect of the Industrial Revolution on the social order and the means by which the Church effected justice for the proletariat.

Outstanding in the comparison of these two great works was the discussion of the effects of the labor unions of the working man. It was generally believed that labor unions are improperly organized and that capital and labor should cooperate in a different manner.

Alfred Bongiovanni, senior science student, will present a talk on the labor union problem at the next meeting.

Debaters Will Hold Forum For K. of C.

Beta Gamma to Meet St. Joseph Team at Atlantic City

Villanova's varsity debating society, Beta Gamma, will open its current season with a preliminary debate against the St. Joseph College team in Atlantic City on Thursday evening, November 9, in the auditorium of the Knights of Columbus Hotel.

Sponsoring the debate as part of its entertainment program for the year, the Knights of Columbus have requested Beta Gamma to debate in open forum against St. Joseph College on a subject of extreme interest to the public today.

The two teams have selected the Pennsylvania State Debate question: Resolved: That that basic blame for the present European conflict lies in fault with the Allied powers.

A second debate has been scheduled with the Morris Price Forum debating society, to be held before the St. Barnabas Holy Name Society on Monday, November 13. The topic for this debate is the resolution of strict isolation for the United States, of which the Villanova team will uphold the affirmative.

Representing Villanova at Atlantic City will be three senior members of Beta Gamma, Joseph M McNamara, arts; Robert E. O'Brien, commerce, and Robert G. Wilderotter, arts. In the Morris Price debate James F. Donovan and Thomas J. Moore, senior and junior artsmen, repectively, will present Villanova's portion of the argument.

Villanovan From Philippine Islands Expresses Opinions On Pacific Events

By FREDERICK G. KULL

Fearful of traveling too far afield and discovering that international information could be obtained right here at Villanova, your correspondent was happy to meet Ignacio "Mike" Arroyo, junior commerce student who hails from the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands.

Mike was happy to answer questions on affairs in his native country; he even condescended to give a picture of practically the whole Pacific Ocean countries.

In answer to the question that seems uppermost in the minds of most Americans in regard to the Philippine question, "What seems to be Japan's current interest in the Philippines?", he said that China is the main objective of the Land of the Rising Sun at present.

Amplifying his assertion, Mike said, "With Japan's extension movement in China, she has proven no menace to the Islanders."

He further gave out a statement that seems a bit new to most of us. According to Mike, "The real menace rests with England. All the oriental nations and colonies are closely watching the attitude of England. This is especially true of the Philippine Islands, since England has a colony only a few hours away from the southernmost tip of the island group. Even Iran, India, and Libia, are closely watching the movements and attitude of England."

Questioned as to his opinion of the United States, Mike became verbose and told several of his definite impressions.

Some of the things that caught his eye in our homeland were Chicago gangsters and the elevated trains. He thinks the American girl to be cute, but cold. Indignantly, he remarks that the modern jitterbug dance had no origin near his native land.

He admitted, however, that modern cities have already sprung up in the remote sections of the Islands.

When asked as to his opinion of Villanova, he instantaneously answered that he liked it very much, though "schoolwork is very hard, especially business statistics."

MATH CLUB SECURES ADVANCED TEXTS

Through the cooperation of the library, the Mathematics Club is securing new books on advanced mathematics and subscriptions to a number of leading mathematical magazines. These will be used for reference by the club members and will supply topics for discussion at meetings.

"Mechanics of Statistics," "Advanced Mathematics for Engineers," and Losdgon's "A Mathematician Explains" are among the volumes already secured. Subscriptions for magazines such as "The American Mathematical Monthly" and the "School of Science and Mathematics" have also been secured.

Will Durant will be the subject of a paper to be presented by James F. Donovan, junior artsman, at the meeting of the philosophy seminar tomorrow in Simpson Hall.

Following the presentation of Donovan's paper, the members of the group will take part in a general discussion upon the noted American writer.

Wildcats Emerge Victorious Over Titans—

Blue Lightweights Downed By Penn's Aerial Attack

Red Team Retaliates After Lattanza's Tally; Shaky Pass Defense Hands 'Cats Third Defeat; Edwards Accounts For Both Scores

Villanova's 150 lb. team dropped their third straight Intercollegiate lightweight football game last Friday at the Stadium when a light Pennsylvania team, outclassed through the whole contest, threw two desperation passes in the second and third stanzas that humbled the Wildcats for a 12-9 defeat.

Once again the 'Cats tallied first on a twenty yard pass from Jim Lattanza to Captain J. Brown that net them a first down on Penn's one yard line. From that point Lattanza plunged over into paydirt and Bill Brown converted to give the blue and white squad a 7-0 lead.

The second quarter saw Penn take possession of the ball on Villanova's thirty when a bad pass from center, on a punt formation, resulted in the loss of the ball on downs for Villanova. From this point Hughes a substitute back threw a long pass to Edwards in the end zone. Newman's placekick for the extra point was wide and the score then stood 7-6 with Villanova leading. Just before the end of the half Penn threw a scare into the Villanova team when a clipping penalty put the ball on Villanova's three yard line, but Villanova held and kicked out to their twenty where Penn tried a field goal as the half ended.

Wildcats Met Duke in 1929 Football Season

Out of the ten teams played in 1929 only Temple remains on the Wildcats' schedule.

Notable among that season's triumphs were victories over Duke, North Carolina State, and Temple. The Wildcats of last year topped the '29 eleven's scoring record by one point. In 1929 the 'Cats beat Duke, 58-12. (Beat or walloped?) North Carolina State was beaten 24-6. The best victory of the year, however, was the 14-0 submersion of Temple.

THE 1940 Fordham schedule was released the other day. Besides the fact that the Rams will play Tulane, Pitt, St Mary's, North Carolina, Purdue, West Virginia and N. Y. U. what interests us most is the fact that Arkansas replaces Rice on the Crowley menu. The Razorbacks are coming East again this time to meet Fordham on Thanksgiving day.

With the Razorbacks carded for New York it doesn't seem likely that they will again venture a similar trip to meet the Wildcats at Shibe Park during the same season. They could make it a two weeks trip East,but with a tough Conference schedule on tap it isn't very likely. The Villanovans will not meet Arkansas in the hill billy country next fall, or any other place.

The disappearance of Rice from the Fordham schedule brings to mind the rumors now making the rounds of the Main Line lair which would have the Rice Owls performing in Philly against the locals, two weeks after the rumored Villanova-Baylor game.

Gridmen Pass To 13-6 Win Over Detroit; Backs Star

Howlett, Murray Score on Passes as Wildcats Stick to Defensive Game; Quick Kicks Muffle Detroit Attack in Final Half

By PHIL DUNN, Sports Editor

Detroit, Mich.—Although outscored in first downs, Villanova's Wildcats outsmarted the Detroit Titans here on Saturday and won a handy 13-6 victory. Conservation of energy enabled them to score four touchdowns and beat a team that led 17-3 in the 101yard-gaining department.

This was the fifth successive year that Villanova won the annual clash by one touchdown. A crowd of 10,651 witnessed the fray, which spectacular punts and passes won for the visiting eleven.

If any one man can be singled out as the star from the Blue and White standpoint, he is "Buzz" Howlett with Nick Basca running a close second. Howlett's sensational punting brought rounds of applause from a one-sided, home team audience, and his pass snatching and subsequent running were things of beauty.

On the Other End

Basca, of course, was on the firing end of the 'Cat passes which sparked their attacks. Perfect strikes were thrown by the Villanova ace when both touchdowns were scored, and another accounted for a third six-pointed that was called back. The officials ruled that the Phoenixville lad was less than five yards behind the line of scrimmage when he sent the ball on its way.

The fourth Blue and White counter came when Walt Nowak recovered Harry Mazzei's fumble and trotted down the field. The ruling was that Mazzei had been downed before the fumble occurred.

Detroiters Shine

Quarterback Murphy and Halfback Al Ghesquire sparked the Michigan boys' attack and played important parts in the drive which culminated in Detroit's only score. Biringer plunger for this counter after four U. of D. invasions deep into Villanova territory in the last quarter.

In the third quarter Nick Basca, who had previously garnered the 'Cats odd point attempted a field goal from the 33, but the ball fell short.

Quick Kicks

Sticking to a defensive game and using many quick kicks, Villanova maintained the advantage they had built up. Quick kicks by Basca and Howlett in the first quarter had kept the Titans on their heels — and toes and the 'Cats used them to advantage again.

On one occasion in the third period, from an orthodox punt formation, however, Howlett — standing on his own 24 — booted a high 68-yard spiral that bounced out on the homesters' eight yard line. This was the best kick of the day and combined with "Buzz's" other punts kept the Titan attack always a long way from home.

Titans Go

Then in the fourth period the Red and White began to move. Sensational pass catching featured the onslaught, with Murphy, Slovinsky and Schaner doing the honors. Biringer did most of the pitching for the "Motor City" lads and found his mark quite often.

Villanova successfully defended its property during four of these final period surges, but succumbed in the last few minutes.

Basca's "perfect strike" to "Elk" Murray for the Wildcats' second marker "fanned" the Titans' quarterback. He swung and missed; so Mr. Murray made a beautiful running catch. The irony of the play lies in the fact that Murray had just been sent into the game, ostensibly for the purpose of receiving a pass.

Intersectional Tests Head Villanova List

This year's Villanova football team has met or will meet representatives from seven different states and plays games in five of them.

Four contests are played within the confines of Pennsylvania. Muhlenberg (Pa.), South Carolina, and Arkansas, hailing from three states, have already tested the prowess of the Wildcat. All these games have been played in this state, as will the Temple fray.

—And Await Auburn's Jinxed Plainsmen

By JOE BARNES

"Hard luck team of the nation" is the title bestowed on the footballers of Auburn Tech, hosts to Villanova's Wildcats this Saturday down in Birmingham, Alabama.

The title is a merited one for the Alabama crew usually is behind the eight ball when the breaks are dealt out. Playing one of the toughest schedules possible—including Tulane, Mississippi State, Georgia Tech, Manhattan, Boston College, Villanova, Louisiana State, Georgia U., Florida U., and mighty Tennessee—the Plainsmen seldom are overwhelmed. Last year they fought through ten tough battles and were slapped silly in only one, the Villanova game which saw the Wildcats at their peak in running up a 25-12 score.

Beat Mississippi

This Fall they have lost three more tough babies. One was a 7-6 loss to Georgia Tech, which held Notre Dame to a 17-14 win, and the others a 7-0 loss to Manhattan, and a 12-0 decision to Tulane. Finding a few chances to buck the bad breaks the Auburnites scuttled Mississippi State and Birmingham-Southern. Last Saturday the Plainsmen met the Eagles of Boston College and dropped a 13-7 decision to the Birds.

But don't get the idea that Auburn is to be considered an easy win just because the breaks usually break the wrong way for them. Every once in a while they have a hot Saturday and their always evident power turns the opponents to rout. Last year the power broke loose the Saturday following the Auburn-Villanova meeting at Shibe Park. Net result was a 28-6 trouncing for Louisiana State, by far the worst beating the Lousiana team took in many, many years!

"Quadruple Threat"

Big "If" man of the Plainsmen is George Kenmore, who two years ago looked like the best back in the Southern Conference. Then last Fall George twisted a knee and brought grief to "Sweet Auburn".

Now they are waiting for him to swing back into form and when he does—duck! He is one of those newly - discovered "Quadruple-threat" men, i. e. a bozo that can kick, pass, run, and catch passes with the best in the business. What a headache he'll be for some club if that knee ever lets him loose!

Dick McGowen, a classy halfback, will be remembered from last year. He does most of the punting for the Plainsmen and plays plenty of football. Tipping the scales at 180 pounds and standing six foot above terra firma, he's no slouch at toting the ball either. Charley Haynesworth, big gun of the Auburn backfield last Fall, is also still wearing the Orange and Black and cracking opposing lines like a Big Bertha.

In the line "Bo" Russell is gone, but don't release that sigh of relief too quickly for there is another gentleman riding on all six in the Tech line this Fall. He rides under the name of Milton Howell and holds the Captain's job. Playing guard he is the wildest Tiger of them all on offense and a regular Maginot line on defense. He's the guy to watch in the line, but don't watch too close or you'll miss Malvern Morgan in his third year as varsity center and Bill Nichols, successor to Russell at tackle. These men are as terrific as "Two-Ton Tony" Galento in a rage. No wonder touchdowns are scarce against the Plainsmen!

Wildcats Lead

In past Villanova-Auburn games the results were two ties and a win for the Wildcats. The first meeting took place on January 1, 1937 in the Bacardi Bowl clash at Havana, Cuba. Thanks to Matty Kuber, sophomore guard, Villanova earned a 7-7 tie. Kuber blocked an Auburn kick for the score. The following season the meeting took place at Shibe Park and ended in an 0-0 tie. Last year was a Villanova field day as Nick Basca tossed perfect strikes all afternoon. This year will mark the first time that the southerners will play host to the Wildcats, the game being played at Birmingham, Alabama.

It should be a terrific battle of the "jinxes" with Auburn trying to scuttle the "eight-ball" that usually gets in their way and Villanova trying to shake off the "southern game jinx" which has been hounding her for quite a while. Your guess is as good as anybody's as to which jinx will crack first. We're hoping . . .!

EXTRA MASS SAID DURING NOVEMBER

Chaplain Responds to VILLANOVAN Editoral; Arranges 8:15 Mass for Day-Hops

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., M. A., chaplain, has responded to a request made by the VILLANOVAN on its editorial page last week. Fr. Boyle has arranged to have Mass said every morning in the college chapel during the month of November at 8:15 for the convenience of the non-resident students.

The VILLANOVAN editorial explained that it was impossible for the day-hops to attend daily Mass at their parish church when they had an early class. A Mass in the college chapel every morning, the editorial stated, would be a convenience and profitable means of hearing daily Mass.

Even though the editorial said that the Mass was requested during the month of November, it was earnestly hoped that the arrangement would continue during the entire school term.

Father Boyle said, "The hour chosen will make attendance at Mass possible for all those who wish to make the sacrifice every morning during the month of November, the month of the Poor Souls. The convenience of the celebrant and the students has been considered, and the Mass will be over in time to enable both to have breakfast and to make his class."

This Mass will be said in addition to the regular 7:15 Mass that was inaugurated this year for the convenience of the resident students. The new time for the Mass will also be available for all the resident students who wish to hear Mass and yet have not done so before because of the earliness of the regular Mass.

The Chaplain also stated that if the students receive this new offering with favor, he shall have the Mass continued throughout the entire school year, or to that time when student participation warrants the suspension of the 8:15 A. M. Mass.

Officers Chosen By Sociology Seminar

Walter S. Filipek, Francis X. Thomas, senior sciencemen, and Albert P. Sindall, senior artsman, were elected officers of the sociology Seminar. From their number a chairman will be selected.

At the last meeting of the group, Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Ph. D., moderator, discussed Pope Leo's encyclical "Rerum Novarum," or "The Reconstruction of the Social Order," and Pope Pius' "Quadragesimo Anno," or "Forty Years After."

In the discussion, he stressed the effect of the Industrial Revolution on the social order and the means by which the Church effected justice for the proletariat.

Outstanding in the comparison of these two great works was the discussion of the effects of the labor unions of the working man. It was generally believed that labor unions are improperly organized and that capital and labor should cooperate in a different manner.

Alfred Bongiovanni, senior science student, will present a talk on the labor union problem at the next meeting.

Quick Kicks

Sticking to a defensive game and using many quick kicks, Villanova maintained the advantage they had built up. Quick kicks by Basca and Howlett in the first quarter had kept the Titans on their heels — and toes and the 'Cats used them to advantage again.

On one occasion in the third period, from an orthodox punt formation, however, Howlett — standing on his own 24 — booted a high 68-yard spiral that bounced out on the homesters' eight yard line. This was the best kick of the day and combined with "Buzz's" other punts kept the Titan attack always a long way from home.

Titans Go

Then in the fourth period the Red and White began to move. Sensational pass catching featured the onslaught, with Murphy, Slovinsky and Schaner doing the honors. Biringer did most of the pitching for the "Motor City" lads and found his mark quite often.

Villanova successfully defended its property during four of these final period surges, but succumbed in the last few minutes.

Basca's "perfect strike" to "Elk" Murray for the Wildcats' second marker "fanned" the Titans' quarterback. He swung and missed; so Mr. Murray made a beautiful running catch. The irony of the play lies in the fact that Murray had just been sent into the game, ostensibly for the purpose of receiving a pass.

Intersectional Tests Head Villanova List

This year's Villanova football team has met or will meet representatives from seven different states and plays games in five of them.

Four contests are played within the confines of Pennsylvania. Muhlenberg (Pa.), South Carolina, and Arkansas, hailing from three states, have already tested the prowess of the Wildcat. All these games have been played in this state, as will the Temple fray.

—And Await Auburn's Jinxed Plainsmen

By JOE BARNES

"Hard luck team of the nation" is the title bestowed on the footballers of Auburn Tech, hosts to Villanova's Wildcats this Saturday down in Birmingham, Alabama.

The title is a merited one for the Alabama crew usually is behind the eight ball when the breaks are dealt out. Playing one of the toughest schedules possible—including Tulane, Mississippi State, Georgia Tech, Manhattan, Boston College, Villanova, Louisiana State, Georgia U., Florida U., and mighty Tennessee—the Plainsmen seldom are overwhelmed. Last year they fought through ten tough battles and were slapped silly in only one, the Villanova game which saw the Wildcats at their peak in running up a 25-12 score.

Beat Mississippi

This Fall they have lost three more tough babies. One was a 7-6 loss to Georgia Tech, which held Notre Dame to a 17-14 win, and the others a 7-0 loss to Manhattan, and a 12-0 decision to Tulane. Finding a few chances to buck the bad breaks the Auburnites scuttled Mississippi State and Birmingham-Southern. Last Saturday the Plainsmen met the Eagles of Boston College and dropped a 13-7 decision to the Birds.

But don't get the idea that Auburn is to be considered an easy win just because the breaks usually break the wrong way for them. Every once in a while they have a hot Saturday and their always evident power turns the opponents to rout. Last year the power broke loose the Saturday following the Auburn-Villanova meeting at Shibe Park. Net result was a 28-6 trouncing for Louisiana State, by far the worst beating the Lousiana team took in many, many years!

"Quadruple Threat"

Big "If" man of the Plainsmen is George Kenmore, who two years ago looked like the best back in the Southern Conference. Then last Fall George twisted a knee and brought grief to "Sweet Auburn".

Now they are waiting for him to swing back into form and when he does—duck! He is one of those newly - discovered "Quadruple-threat" men, i. e. a bozo that can kick, pass, run, and catch passes with the best in the business. What a headache he'll be for some club if that knee ever lets him loose!

Dick McGowen, a classy halfback, will be remembered from last year. He does most of the punting for the Plainsmen and plays plenty of football. Tipping the scales at 180 pounds and standing six foot above terra firma, he's no slouch at toting the ball either. Charley Haynesworth, big gun of the Auburn backfield last Fall, is also still wearing the Orange and Black and cracking opposing lines like a Big Bertha.

In the line "Bo" Russell is gone, but don't release that sigh of relief too quickly for there is another gentleman riding on all six in the Tech line this Fall. He rides under the name of Milton Howell and holds the Captain's job. Playing guard he is the wildest Tiger of them all on offense and a regular Maginot line on defense. He's the guy to watch in the line, but don't watch too close or you'll miss Malvern Morgan in his third year as varsity center and Bill Nichols, successor to Russell at tackle. These men are as terrific as "Two-Ton Tony" Galento in a rage. No wonder touchdowns are scarce against the Plainsmen!

Wildcats Lead

In past Villanova-Auburn games the results were two ties and a win for the Wildcats. The first meeting took place on January 1, 1937 in the Bacardi Bowl clash at Havana, Cuba. Thanks to Matty Kuber, sophomore guard, Villanova earned a 7-7 tie. Kuber blocked an Auburn kick for the score. The following season the meeting took place at Shibe Park and ended in an 0-0 tie. Last year was a Villanova field day as Nick Basca tossed perfect strikes all afternoon. This year will mark the first time that the southerners will play host to the Wildcats, the game being played at Birmingham, Alabama.

It should be a terrific battle of the "jinxes" with Auburn trying to scuttle the "eight-ball" that usually gets in their way and Villanova trying to shake off the "southern game jinx" which has been hounding her for quite a while. Your guess is as good as anybody's as to which jinx will crack first. We're hoping . . .!

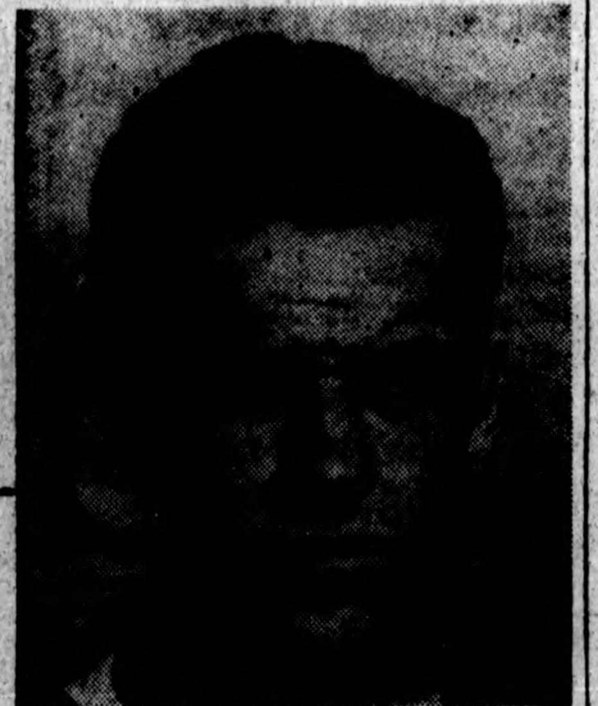
Let's take a trip to Nutley, N. J., for a short stay at the Romanowski domicile to take a peek at the new addition of the family, namely Bill. Nutley is a suburb of Newark where Bill learned the fundamentals of crawling and walking. Leaving Nutley, Mr. and Mrs. Romanowski took Bill to Freeland, Pa., for two years, and finally moved to Avoca, Pa., the back door of the coal regions.



When "Romo" entered Avoca High School, little did the authorities know that here was a boy who possessed great potentialities, and who wanted to give all he had for his high school. Being a versatile athlete, Bill was the recipient of 12 major letters, three each in football, track, baseball and basketball. During his senior year Bill was captain of the football team.

Desirous of obtaining a Catholic education, Bill made it his business to enroll at Villanova in September, 1936.

During his sophomore year Bill became very much interested in figures — meaning numbers used in mathematics— and that's how he acquired his title of the "Mathematical Whiz." He has taken practically all the mathematic courses available at Villanova; he really is a whiz at the subject.

At Shibe Park against South Carolina Bill made his first six pointer, and in his estimation that is one of his greatest achievements.

This week's limelight falls upon nine other than Vic "Swing and Sway" Cook, two hundred and ten pound tackle on the hoof; the personality kid of the campus. Vic came here under the former coach, Harry Stuhldreher.

Cook came here from Loyola High School down yonder in Maryland, with a record which speaks for itself. Excelling in three sports, Vic played four years of varsity football and lacrosse, and three years of varsity swimming. Not being content with staying in the ranks, Vic stepped out and made All-State in football and lacrosse for two consecutive years. Topping all this off, he engaged in amateur dramatics for the Loyola Dramatic Society in his odd moments.

Vic was one of our most promising rookies in his freshman year, and was expected to go places. But in his sophomore year a broken ankle drew the curtain on his chances. He started to pick up where he left off in his junior year and this year, as we all know, has been making himself heard of in a good share of the ball games.

Vic, aside from being an active member of the Wildcats, tackles the books also, and is in the top quarter of his class in the C. & F. School. According to Vic, his greatest thrill was the way the students, accepting defeat with victory, welcomed the team home with open arms after the Texas Aggie game. Upon graduation Vic intends to study diplomacy at Georgetown University for work in the foreign service.

ENEMIES:

Victories and defeats were evenly divided during Saturday's intersectional tilts for Villanova's foes. Upsets were frequent as the hitherto strong teams went down to defeat by the unpublicized weaker opponents. Some of the best games of the nation had the Wildcats' foes faced against the headliners.

Texas A. M., undefeated and untied and one of the few teams in the country who hold that position, rolled up a 27-0 win over the Arkansas Razorbacks. The Aggies, powerhouse of the Southwestern Conference, had big John Kimbrough and Bill Conaster the big heroes of the day as they ran roughshod over the Razorbacks, whom the Wildcats had defeated a week previous at Shibe Park.

Coming up North again, Auburn lost a thriller to Boston College by the score of 13-7. The Plainsmen led at half time but the Boston team retaliated in the last quarter by scoring 13 points. The Pittsburg Panthers, on the rebound from the recent Fordham defeat, eked out a 13-7 win over the Temple Owls. The Owls time and again threatened to tie the score, but the Pitt forward wall repulsed the attacks. Manhattan, whom the Wildcats face on Nov. 25 at the Polo Grounds, faced Boston University up in the Hub city and trounced them easily, 26-0. All of the Jaspers points resulted in the last three periods.

In the Keystone State Muhlenberg dropped a 7-0 decision to a strong Gettysburg eleven. The Mules, who looked so impressive against the Wildcats in their opening game, were tamed after a hard struggle. One of the big upsets of the South was South Carolina's victory over Florida, 6-0. The Gamecocks, who are facing one of their worst seasons, came back to take the 'Gators in the last period, by shoving over the winning touchdown.

Gigolos Edge Out Greenies

INTRAMURAL GAMES MARKED BY UPSETS; ALUMNI VANQUISHED

Previously Undefeated Frosh Taste First Defeat as Pennant Fever Increases

Upsets were in the making and "Father Time" was playing an important role this week as Fedigan nosed out Alumni, C & F won their first two games, Austin fell before Fedigan and Alumni squeezed out the Mendel Residents.

The main contest was the thriller played between the two leading teams, Alumni and Fedigan. The Gigolos were really hot this night, but Alumni stayed right with them and after a furious first half the score read 18-12, leaning towards Father Sullivan's boys. But the greenies from Alumni were still in the game and came back strong in the second-half to tie the score up as the final minutes were whizzing by. The excited Alumni rooters rose to their feet with only ten seconds to play, figuring the game would go into extra time. But then Jim Forkin was seen streaking down the side lines and with one hand tossed the ball over his head and through the hoop for a "Dick Meriwell" finale.

Next on the list was the amazing comeback of the C & F day students and the surprising downfall of the Mendel Residents. Mendel seems to be the goat of Fate, having lost so many one and two point games; they suffered a bad defeat at the hands of the Business Men who finally broke into the win column. This newly inspired team ran up the largest score of the year thus far. Led by Buxeda they scored 44 points against Mendel's 21.

Not content with taking the Mendel residents, the C & F team imposed their wrath on the Mendel Day Hops and licked them to the tune of 29-14. These boys are out to raise their standing at the expense of anyone and are a strong threat to the league leaders.

The second major event of the weekly intramurals was the hard fought victory which the Campus Gigolos won over the Austinites. Besides the several grudges, the two teams were striving for second place; Fedigan trying to hold it and Austin attempting to gain it. Seventeen fouls were called during the game; eleven being against Austin. The victory was really won by Fedigan taking advantage of the free throws and scoring eight points through them. The Gigolos' attack was led by Sandor and Clark while Austin's markers were well divided. The final score read 32-29.

To the wild cheering of the Greenie's fans, Alumni once more repeated their previous performance by taming the Mendel Residents in a close contest. Alumni was trailing at the half time by a 16-14 score. Coming back the hard way they tied the score just as the game neared its finish. Then with only ten seconds remaining a substitution was made while a play was in process constituting a technical foul. Frantic arguments ensued and vain attempts to restore order were in process, but the staunch referees refused to rule a foul. Order was restored and the game proceeded with only seconds of playing time.

Several futile tries were made by the disappointed Residents but the game ended in favor of Alumni, 27-25.

Court Champ

RALPH TERRACCIANO, representing Austin Hal, defeated George McFadden, of Alumni, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-2 for the Intramural Tennis Championship.

RALPH TERRACCIANO WINS TENNIS TITLE; AUSTIN LEADS RACE

McFadden, Keebler, and Chegin Fall Before Drives of Blueshirts' Ace

Ralph Terracciano, representing the Blue team of Austin hall, vanquished George McFadden of Alumni hall, last week-end to claim the championship of the annual Intramural net tourney held every Fall. Terracciano, with his driving forehand, easily subdued his freshman opponent by scores of 6-0, 6-3 and 6-2 and thereby clinched the coveted honors for his first time in the round-robin tournament.

The sets were played in considerably fast time, with Terracciano displaying a brand of tennis that restrained any offensive threats that McFadden had to offer. Relying on his smooth working forehand and the half-twist service, Terracciano, on his advancements to the net, drove his opponent to cover. His experience upon the courts enhanced his playing and he easily outwitted McFadden.

Beat Others

This triumph was preceded by victories over Bob Keeler, of Fedigan, 6-4 and 6-2, and Bob Chegin of Mendel Hall, who were the defending champions of their respective teams. The winners of the remaining teams were Bill Carey of C & F and Gerry Belz, representing the Mendel Day-hops.

Terracciano's win gave Austin hall ten points towards achieving the intramural championships. Alumni gathered seven points, Fedigan received five points by finishing third.

Presenting Article Two: A Candid Biography of "Digging Up the Dirt" at the Football Training Table

By BILL DE GRACE

Perchance when walking in front of Mendel you have heard a radio playing, accompanied by the tinkle of glass and silverware. That phonation is emerging from the renowned training table for varsity football men. Here in this subterranean dining room, the ravishing appetites of forty-eight men are appeased.

In the morning, those who rise early enough to eat are bestowed with cereal, toast and milk and other varieties of nourishment. Occasionally, bacon and eggs are served and, less frequently, chops. Saturday morning before a game, steak is served; for the gentlemen concerned must have something stable to stay by them in the course of an afternoon, when all the energy they can muster must be used.

At noon, lunch is served to a host of men who come streaming out of classes. It is of light variety and no milk is distributed as it does not concur with a player's constitution before venturing out onto the practice field. After practice is ended those who have a super abundance of animation (of which there are few) hurry to evening edibles. The majority, after participating in a stalwart scrimmage, are tenderly favoring their bruises, walk up to the brown door that bears the sign "No Admittance" and enter.

Training Table Tabs

Six large tables are in this dining hall, seating eight persons to a table. One, entering at approximately 6:15, will invariably hear the eminent ether enunciator, Kirby Cushing. He is a great favorite among the players.

George Kamen, huge tackle for the 'Cats, is always the first one there in the morning, usually eating alone and enjoying it in an unmolested way. "Smiling Jack" Dhue is usually complaining that he is losing weight—Ben Morkum, Pete Yankauskas and Joe Yednock eat the most and say the least—Jerry Neri can usually be heard chanting "For the last three days I have gotten the butter and now I want a piece, I can't get it."

A quiet picture is presented by silent Sam Monaco—Mike Sabrinsky and John Gogolinski are always in search of the best offered by the chef and waiters—Joe Behot, Nick Basca and Bill Piscone uphold their gentlemaness by waiting for the other fellow to get something—Carter never leaves Behot's side—Tom Morgan keeps Ed Korisky amused and "Elk" Murray and Tom McMahon, those sly old gentlemen, are the world's slowest eaters. The table's number one fault-finder is Jim McClelland who debates frequently with Ed Kasky and Tony Anderson—"Legs" Shedlosky and Frank Famelette have collected enough tea to furnish a Bryn Mawr social—Bill Howlett is the instigator of all arguments at his table, while brother "Buzz" just looks on.

There are never any olives nor celery at George Gabur's table—Paul Stenn wishes that they would serve more hot "dawgs"—"Golden Boy" Worthington is always heard making the most noise—Ray Gadsby is wondering where his silverware has gone to (but we ain't sayin', see!)—Whitey Urbellis is uttering "Please pass the butter"—Ronnie Tornwall is always first to meals—Harry Mazzei can't possibly eat his meal without a fruit cocktail which is his mania, and Southerner Vic Cook's few words criticize Northern fried chicken.

WITH
HARRY MAZZEI

WHEN Villanova's varsity basketball schedule was released last week, the howls and groans about the lack of "name opponents" were audible as far as Conshohocken. It seems that student opinion was cognizant of the fact that Indiana, Tulane, and Ohio have brilliant court aggregations, but they were nonplussed as to why these opponents were scheduled during the Christmas holidays.

Harry Mazzei

This observer would like to shed a little light on this seemingly lamentable situation. If all 'youse guys' will take a look at the double - header schedules, the U. of P.'s, as well as Ned Irish's New York bargain bargain bills, you'll become aware of the fact that almost all the intersectional games are played during the Xmas furlough. You can easily see that the Blue and White athletic authorities have taken full advantage of their only opportunity to have distant rivals visit the Main Line gym, but unfortunately they were forced to schedule the games at an inopportune time for the student body.

Still a number of aggrieved Wildcat undergraduates bemoan a situation that finds only one New York team and NO Philadelphia teams listed on the Blue's court list. Why, they insist, aren't these teams scheduled instead of those of the "roll over and die, Rollo" variety? Once again we take up arms for the Athletic Association.

Villanova has never been on the best of terms with the doubleheader authorities, thus all New York teams desirous of playing in the Madison Square Garden twin bills (and what Gotham quintets don't want to play there?) regard Villanova as so much poison ivy.

The surprising lack of Philadelphia teams dotting the winter court card is still another tale. A tale that can not be divulged by this post, because we're still groping in the dark about a few developments.

That is the Villanova basketball situation "in toto." Last spring this column went on record as favoring the Wildcats' decision to play all of their games at the Main Line gym, but we didn't reckon with the present developments. The current list of ribbed court opponents is definitely below the standard of previous years. Perhaps in the future this condition will be remedied. We sincerely hope so.

As far as we know, bridge has yet to become a recognized sport at this institution. When it does become a varsity pastime, your observer will certainly champion the cause of a certain group of Fediganite "grand slam" enthusiasts. This group frequently has two games going in one room, and to say their "quiet" discussions gave them away would be making an understatement.

Several times they have been known to match wits for seven and eight hours at a time. The inhabitants of Fedigan don't object to the noise or even the clouds of cigar smoke that one of the Culbertsons enjoy so much, but we feel that it will be a long time before they become used to entering their rooms and finding their chairs missing.

crutches for the football parahernalia, along comes Frank Lombardo, stellar halfback, who reports a broken arm. We remember seeing Lombardo make almost half the tackles against Princeton and Yale.

Speaking of bad luck, our sympathies to Princeton's Don Herring, star tackle who lost his left leg due to an injury sustained on the opening kick off against Brown University. What price football! !

Dream play of the year in reverse: A halfback catching his own forward pass. It happend two Sundays ago when the Green Bay Packers played the Washington Red Skins. Cecil Isbell, Minnesota All-American playing for the Packers, threw a forward pass which hit a Red Skins' helmet and bounded into the air, where Isbell grabbed it before it touched the ground. P. S.—He lost eight yards on the play.

Now they have Tom Lieb coming to Philadelphia to tutor some local college team next fall. Next it will be Harry Kipke and Jock Sutherland putting the boys through their paces on the Main Line. All the excitement because somebody from Stanford was coming east to talk to Clipper Smith. Now we have three coaches without jobs and the possibility of Joe Blurp, assistant at Pan Handle A. and M. who has just been relieved of his duties from that institution of higher learning, coming east to take over the job the Clipper still holds.

second half and Penn aided by a forty yard run by George, pushed the ball to Villanova's twenty yard line. There they were repulsed for three plays but on the fourth down Edwards again got behind the defenders to catch a pass and go over the goal line untouched. An attempted pass for the extra point was incomplete and the score now read Penn 12, Villanova 7. From this point Villanova came to life and drove deep into Penn territory several times only to be stopped. The closing minutes of the game found the Wildcats on the Penn five yard line with four downs to put the ball over. However, they failed and Penn took the ball on downs on their one yard line. The next play saw Newman of Penn falling on the ball for an intentional safety making the score 12-9, in favor of Penn. The game ended when Dominic was downed after a long run-back of Penn's kickoff from their twenty.

The main contest was the thriller played between the two leading teams, Alumni and Fedigan. The Gigolos were really hot this night, but Alumni stayed right with them and after a furious first half the score read 18-12, leaning towards Father Sullivan's boys. But the greenies from Alumni were still in the game and came back strong in the second-half to tie the score up as the final minutes were whizzing by. The excited Alumni rooters rose to their feet with only ten seconds to play, figuring the game would go into extra time. But then Jim Forkin was seen streaking down the side lines and with one hand tossed the ball over his head and through the hoop for a "Dick Meriwell" finale.

Next on the list was the amazing comeback of the C & F day students and the surprising downfall of the Mendel Residents. Mendel seems to be the goat of Fate, having lost so many one and two point games; they suffered a bad defeat at the hands of the Business Men who finally broke into the win column. This newly inspired team ran up the largest score of the year thus far. Led by Buxeda they scored 44 points against Mendel's 21.

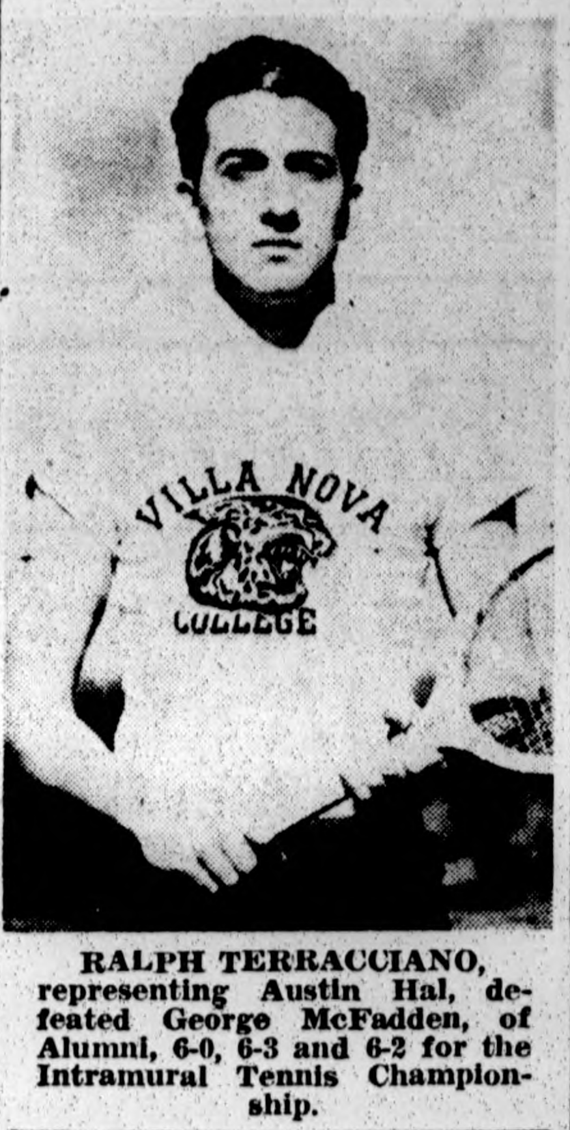
Not content with taking the Mendel residents, the C & F team imposed their wrath on the Mendel Day Hops and licked them to the tune of 29-14. These boys are out to raise their standing at the expense of anyone and are a strong threat to the league leaders.

The second major event of the weekly intramurals was the hard fought victory which the Campus Gigolos won over the Austinites. Besides the several grudges, the two teams were striving for second place; Fedigan trying to hold it and Austin attempting to gain it. Seventeen fouls were called during the game; eleven being against Austin. The victory was really won by Fedigan taking advantage of the free throws and scoring eight points through them. The Gigolos' attack was led by Sandor and Clark while Austin's markers were well divided. The final score read 32-29.

To the wild cheering of the Greenie's fans, Alumni once more repeated their previous performance by taming the Mendel Residents in a close contest. Alumni was trailing at the half time by a 16-14 score. Coming back the hard way they tied the score just as the game neared its finish. Then with only ten seconds remaining a substitution was made while a play was in process constituting a technical foul. Frantic arguments ensued and vain attempts to restore order were in process, but the staunch referees refused to rule a foul. Order was restored and the game proceeded with only seconds of playing time.

Several futile tries were made by the disappointed Residents but the game ended in favor of Alumni, 27-25.

Court Champ



RALPH TERRACCIANO, representing Austin Hal, defeated George McFadden, of Alumni, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-2 for the Intramural Tennis Championship.

RALPH TERRACCIANO WINS TENNIS TITLE; AUSTIN LEADS RACE

Ralph Terracciano, representing the Blue team of Austin hall, vanquished George McFadden of Alumni hall, last week-end to claim the championship of the annual Intramural net tourney held every Fall. Terracciano, with his driving forehand, easily subdued his freshman opponent by scores of 6-0, 6-3 and 6-2 and thereby clinched the coveted honors for his first time in the round-robin tournament.

The sets were played in considerably fast time, with Terracciano displaying a brand of tennis that restrained any offensive threats that McFadden had to offer. Relying on his smooth working forehand and the half-twist service, Terracciano, on his advancements to the net, drove his opponent to cover. His experience upon the courts enhanced his playing and he easily outwitted McFadden.

Beat Others

This triumph was preceded by victories over Bob Keeler, of Fedigan, 6-4 and 6-2, and Bob Chegin of Mendel Hall, who were the defending champions of their respective teams. The winners of the remaining teams were Bill Carey of C & F and Gerry Belz, representing the Mendel Day-hops.

Terracciano's win gave Austin hall ten points towards achieving the intramural championships. Alumni gathered seven points, Fedigan received five points by finishing third.

Presenting Article Two: A Candid Biography of "Digging Up the Dirt" at the Football Training Table

By BILL DE GRACE

Perchance when walking in front of Mendel you have heard a radio playing, accompanied by the tinkle of glass and silverware. That phonation is emerging from the renowned training table for varsity football men. Here in this subterranean dining room, the ravishing appetites of forty-eight men are appeased.

In the morning, those who rise early enough to eat are bestowed with cereal, toast and milk and other varieties of nourishment. Occasionally, bacon and eggs are served and, less frequently, chops. Saturday morning before a game, steak is served; for the gentlemen concerned must have something sizable to stay by them in the course of an afternoon, when all the energy they can muster must be used.

At noon, lunch is served to a host of men who come streaming out of classes. It is of light variety and no milk is distributed as it does not concur with a player's constitution before venturing out onto the practice field. After practice is ended those who have a super abundance of animation (of which there are few) hurry to evening edibles. The majority, after participating in a stalwart scrimmage, are tenderly favoring their bruises, walk up to the brown door that bears the sign "No Admittance" and enter.

Training Table Tabs

Six large tables are in this dining hall, seating eight persons to a table. One, entering at approximately 6:15, will invariably hear the eminent ether enunciator, Kirby Cushing. He is a great favorite among the players.

George Kamen, huge tackle for the 'Cats, is always the first one there in the morning, usually eating alone and enjoying it in an unmolested way. "Smiling Jack" Daue is usually complaining that he is losing weight—Ben Morkum, Pete Yankauskas and Joe Yednock eat the most and say the least—Jerry Neri can usually be heard chanting "For the last three days I have gotten the butter and now I want a piece, I can't get it."

A quiet picture is presented by silent Sam Monaco—Mike Sabrinsky and John Gogolinski are always in search of the best offered by the chef and waiters—Joe Behot, Nick Basca and Bill Piscone uphold their gentlemaness by waiting for the other fellow to get something—Carter never leaves Behot's side—Tom Morgan keeps Ed Korisky amused and "Elk" Murray and Tom McMahon, those sly old gentlemen, are the world's slowest eaters. The table's number one fault-finder is Jim McClelland who debates frequently with Ed Kasky and Tony Anderson—"Legs" Shedlosky and Frank Famelette have collected enough tea to furnish a Bryn Mawr social—Bill Howlett is the instigator of all arguments at his table, while brother "Buzz" just looks on.

There are never any olives nor celery at George Gabur's table—Paul Stenn wishes that they would serve more hot "dawgs"—"Golden Boy" Worthington is always heard making the most noise—Ray Gadsby is wondering where his silverware has gone to (but we ain't sayin', see!)—Whitey Urbellis is uttering "Please pass the butter"—Ronnie Tornwall is always first to meals—Harry Mazzei can't possibly eat his meal without a fruit cocktail which is his mania, and Southerner Vic Cook's few words criticize Northern fried chicken.

Here and There

WITH HARRY MAZZEI

WHEN Villanova's varsity basketball schedule was released last week, the howls and groans about the lack of "name opponents" were audible as far as Conshohocken. It seems that student opinion was cognizant of the fact that Indiana, Tulane, and Ohio have brilliant court aggregations, but they were nonplussed as to why these opponents were scheduled during the Christmas holidays.

Harry Mazzei

This observer would like to shed a little light on this seemingly lamentable situation. If all 'youse guys' will take a look at the double header schedules, the U. of P.'s, as well as Ned Irish's New York bargain bargain bills, you'll become aware of the fact that almost all the intersectional games are played during the Xmas furlough. You can easily see that the Blue and White athletic authorities have taken full advantage of their only opportunity to have distant rivals visit the Main Line gym, but unfortunately they were forced to schedule the games at an inopportune time for the student body.

Still a number of aggrieved Wildcat undergraduates bemoan a situation that finds only one New York team and NO Philadelphia teams listed on the Blue's court list. Why, they insist, aren't these teams scheduled instead of those of the "roll over and die, Rollo" variety? Once again we take up arms for the Athletic Association.

Villanova has never been on the best of terms with the doubleheader authorities, thus all New York teams desirous of playing in the Madison Square Garden twin bills (and what Gotham quintets don't want to play there?) regard Villanova as so much poison ivy.

The surprising lack of Philadelphia teams dotting the winter court card is still another tale. A tale that can not be divulged by this post, because we're still groping in the dark about a few developments.

That is the Villanova basketball situation "in toto." Last spring this column went on record as favoring the Wildcats' decision to play all of their games at the Main Line gym, but we didn't reckon with the present developments. The current list of ribbed court opponents is definitely below the standard of previous years. Perhaps in the future this condition will be remedied. We sincerely hope so.

As far as we know, bridge has yet to become a recognized sport at this institution. When it does become a varsity pastime, your observer will certainly champion the cause of a certain group of Fediganite "grand slam" enthusiasts. This group frequently has two games going in one room, and to say their "quiet" discussions gave them away would be making an understatement.

Several times they have been known to match wits for seven and eight hours at a time. The inhabitants of Fedigan don't object to the noise or even the clouds of cigar smoke that one of the Culbertsons enjoy so much, but we feel that it will be a long time before they become used to entering their rooms and finding their chairs missing.

crutches for the football paraphernalia, along came Frank Lombardo, stellar halfback, who reports a broken arm. We remember seeing Lombardo make almost half the tackles against Princeton and Yale.

Dream play of the year in reverse: A halfback catching his own forward pass. It happend two Sundays ago when the Green Bay Packers played the Washington Red Skins. Cecil Isbell, Minnesota All-American playing for the Packers, threw a forward pass which hit a Red Skins' helmet and bounded into the air, where Isbell grabbed it before it touched the ground. P. second half and Penn ahead by a forty yard run by George pushed the ball to Villanova's twenty yard line. There they were repulsed for three plays but on the fourth down Edwards again got behind the defenders to catch a pass and go over the goal line untouched. An attempted pass for the extra point was incomplete and the score now read Penn 12, Villanova 7. From this point Villanova came to life and drove deep into Penn territory several times only to be stopped. The closing minutes of the game found the Wildcats on the Penn five yard line with four downs to put the ball over. However, they failed and Penn took the ball on downs on their one yard line. The next play saw Newman of Penn falling on the ball for an intentional safety making the score 12-9, in favor of Penn. The game ended when Dominic was downed after a long run-back of Penn's kickoff from their twenty.

Last, But Not Least
At The Close of Day

By ALFRED M. BONGIOVANNI

THIS column, being the terminating one, is appropropriately dedicated to sleep and it is the sincere hope of the writer that the reader is not already in that state.

Sleep, which is the last activity (or inactivity) at the end of an intense day of school work, is certainly not the least of our normal processes.

In the following interviews with various students, there is presented a representation of the methods reverted to on the campus which are calculated to hastily produce the sleeping state.

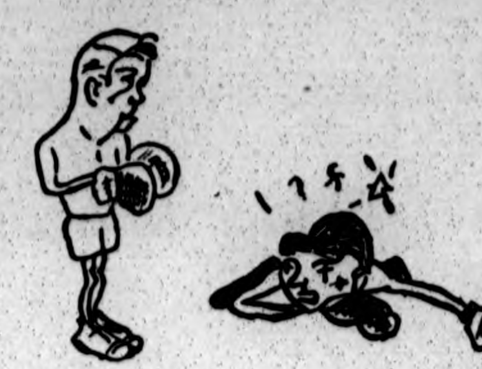
John C. Healy, sophomore science student, suggests first of all that the subject close his eyes. Then, by resting his feet on a higher level than the remainder of the body, such as a bed post, he postulates that the blood rushes to the head and chest regions, thus causing the lower half of the body to fall asleep. "The rest of the body," he explains, "rapidly follows suit."

Howard A. McCall, sophomore artsman, presents a relatively simple recipe for sleep: "First, get into bed; second, roll the covers snugly around the body; third, curl up in a ball, resting the head on one arm and extending the other straight forward, and off you go!"

Francis X. Thomas, a senior prominent for his reputation as a good sleeper, suggests the following procedure: "It is essential that you are sleepy; to assure good results in this regard, stay up late. Just before retiring, eat a good sized meal to prevent any stomach pains from interrupting your slumbers. Then undress hurriedly, brush your teeth, say your prayers, and crawl into bed. Meditate on something pleasant, and don't think about sleep."

Andrew McKane, senior science student, makes some practical suggestions toward inducing the sleeping state. "Take a walk in the fresh air to get tired. Don't eat before retiring. Open the windows wide, use lots of covers, and nature will do the rest."

Richard J. Martin, senior science student, advises: "Hold your breath, then release it suddenly and remain in a relaxed state; sleep will come along eventually. However, if you hold your breath and count slowly to one hundred, you go out like a light."



Thomas A. Shallow, sophomore engineering student, claims that he can always get to sleep by looking at his calculus book. His statement is, "If that won't do the trick, nothing will!"

Joseph R. Malone, freshman engineering student, states: "I always try to fall through the mattress—that's real relaxation."

Arthur A. Lyness, Jr., freshman engineer, advises the readers to concentrate on the image of a blank wall if they wish to enter the arms of Morpheus.

Edward L. Manderfield, freshman engineering student, complains, however, that he falls asleep all evening—until he goes to bed; then he can't sleep!

So, with the idea of a famous scientist that "mental work seems to be improved upon partial insomnia," we leave you to your late "dates" and go to bed.

PETITION SIGNED BY 250

Students Request That P. & W. Return to 3-Month Ticket Policy

Over two hundred and fifty students have signed a petition asking the Philadelphia and Western Transportation Co. to return the student ticket that was used last year.

This year it is necessary to buy a ticket for forty-six rides which must be used within thirty days. It is impossible for most students to use all these, and the number not used causes the price per ride to be higher than before.

The previous policy permitted the sale of tickets for twenty-five rides which could be used over a period of three months. Gerard F. Belz, sophomore artsman who is circulating the petition, hopes that some such arrangement can be secured again.

Chemists Take Trip Through Oil Plant

Members of the Villanova Chemical Society made their first field trip of the year last Wednesday when thirty-three men visited the Passyunk, Philadelphia, plant of the Atlantic Refining Company.

Accompanying the group were Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., moderator, Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O. S. A., Ph. D., and Rev. Joseph W. Paquette, O. S. A., M. A., of the faculty of the chemistry department.

During the three hour visit, the club saw the processes that crude oil undergoes as it is refined into gasoline. In the course of the tour the members of the society passed through the "cracking ground." It is rare that visitors are permitted there, since it is there that the oil undergoes the secret processes of that particular company.

Stories Of The Schools
C & F Newest, Largest

By JOSEPH V. McCABE

THE COMMERCE and Finance School or, as it is better known, the business school, is the newest and yet the largest school in point of enrollment on the campus.

Realizing the need of a practical business school to meet the growing demands of the complex business world, the college authorities deemed it wise to offer to prospective students a specialized course in training in business subjects. Accordingly, the School of Commerce and Finance was opened in 1922.

Placed under the direction of the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., in 1923, who still guides the destinies of the school, this new venture attracted immediate attention; very soon its enrollment equalled, then surpassed, that of any of the other schools. In the beginning classes were held in Mendel Hall, but it was decided that a separate building was needed to house exclusively this new department. Completed in 1931, the Commerce and Finance building contains the executive offices and classrooms for this most popular seat of higher learning.

Courses of Study

The course of study offered in this department leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Economics. This degree will admit those students who are desirous of studying law, into the law schools throughout the country, as well as affording the graduate opportunity to seek a profitable position in the world of business.

The curriculum of the School of Commerce and Finance has been planned with a threefold purpose. The first is to give its students a knowledge of the techniques of business to the end that they will be better prepared to earn a living. The second is to give its students a deeper understanding of the significant changes which mark the couse of social, political, and economic life in this country so that they will be better prepared to assume the duties and responsibilities of intelligent citizenship. The third, and most important purpose, is to instill in its students a knowledge and a love of truth, justice, and charity in order that they may give reasonable service to God and their fellowmen.

An Eye to Future

In the Freshman year, all students are required to take the same course of studies. The reason for this is that it is the opinion of those who know that a Freshman entering college very often has not made up his mind what will be his life's work. However, in the second, third, and fourth years more specialized courses are taken, in which the techniques of banks, brokerage houses, exchanges, department stores, chain stores, insurance companies, and railroads are studied. In this way the prospective business man is not restricted in his knowledge, but rather is given a very broad insight into modern business methods and conditions.

Since the trends of modern business are constantly changing, it has been necessary for the administration, from time to time, to make changes in the curriculum in order to keep the school among the foremost throughout the entire country.

The success of the school may be demonstrated by the number of its graduates who today hold down enviable positions both in the business and legal worlds.

Miss PHIL OFFER was this year's pick of them all for "Cotton Queen" because she has the right combination of charm and loveliness typical of the modern American girl.

CATS ON EDGE FOR TEMPLE CLASH

RALLY FRIDAY NITE TO KINDLE STUDENT SPIRIT FOR TEMPLE

Mammoth Bonfire to Follow Program of Speaking, Cheering, and Music

Villanova school spirit will reach its zenith at 8:30 Friday night on the occasion of the annual Temple football pep rally.

Giving vocal expression to the dominant theme of the week — "Beat Temple" — the 'Cat rooters will first assemble in the Field House. Through the medium of songs and cheers instead of passes and wide end sweeps; the students will accelerate the demand to which the stalwarts of the Wildcat squad will supply physical impetus on Saturday.

Several speakers are under consideration to supply oratorical splendor to the meeting. Among these are representatives of the Faculty, the alumni, figures of prominence in the local sporting world and in the sporting circles of the school.

After the speakers have had their say, the students will adjourn to the parking lot opposite the Field House where a huge bonfire erected by the Frosh during the week will be fired. There the band will furnish music for the snake dance which will be led by the cheerleaders.

Concluding the proceedings the Connelly plaque will be presented to the moderator of the hall which during the week, has put on the best display typifying the "Beat Temple" theme.

All senior proofs are to be submitted without fail, Monday and Tuesday following the Thanksgiving Holidays, November 27 and 28 respectively, according to an announcement by Robert G. Wilderotter, Photography Editor of the Belle Air. One of the two informal pictures is to be selected for the year book at this time. Personal orders will also be taken.

SPORTSMANSHIP

AN INTEGRAL part of the gentleman is sportsmanship. His whole mode of behavior is conditioned by fair play and consideration for his fellow men. It is an enviable trait, and one which has become a synonym for a "regular fellow" especially in athletics.

Annually Villanova meets Temple on the gridrion, a feeling of friendly rivalry pervading this contest, and it has been a point of pride with both institutions and fans that these two schools in the past have exemplified this quality to an almost superlative degree.

Athletes and students alike have conducted themselves as perfect gentlemen on the field and in the stands. Injured players of both teams have been treated with consideration; good playing, no matter on whose part it may have been, has been cheered enthusiastically. Defeat has been accepted honorably, and the better team acknowledged, the keen sense of rivalry only being the more sharpened by an anxious pointing for the next year's game.

On these terms, these two teams have met, fought hard and furiously, and parted with greater respect for each other's ability and resourcefulness. We, as Villanova students, salute this sportsmanship and point to it with justifiable pride. May it be an inspiration to many in guiding their actions.

No Student Tickets Sold After Today

The sale of student tickets for the Villanova-Temple game will close this afternoon at three o'clock. Before that time each full-time student is entitled to one student ticket upon presentation of his matriculation card and $1.14.

Tickets for non-students may be purchased at the Athletic Office in the College Field House any day this week between 9:30 A. M. and 12:00 P. M. and between 1:30 P. M. and 5 P. M. Ticket prices are $1.71, $2.85 and $3.42.

The largest crowd to attend the annual Villanova-Temple football game was in 1937, when thirty-eight thousand fans clicked the turnstiles to watch the undefeated "Cats" defeat the "Owls" by a 33-0 score.

Villanova students are advised to bring their matriculation cards with them to the Temple game for, according to John B. Lawson, controller, ticket takers at the student gate are empowered to require the showing of the card as evidence of attendance at Villanova.

Furthermore, states Robert Whalen, chairman of the Athletic Board, no tickets in the student section are available to outsiders.

ZEALOR ADDRESSES PEACE ASSOCIATION

When the Middle Atlantic Student Peace Association met in convention at Misericordia College, Murray P. Zealor of Villanova was among the delegates from the various colleges to speak. The topic of his address on Saturday was "The American Agencies of Propaganda and Their Purpose." Joseph Bongiovanni was also a Villanova delegate to this convention.

Zealor's address centered around the definition of propoganda as an "effort to make an individual believe something without paying too much attention to the evidence for believing it." He then proceeded to show how various agencies especially the radio were doing this in America.

The convention was opened in the Misericordia College chapel with a Mass celebrated by His Excellency, Most Reverend William J. Hafey, D.D., Bishop of Scranton. After the Mass he gave a short discourse in which he reminded the delegates of the importance of keeping God in their plans for peace.

Following the Mass a panel discussion on justice and charity was commenced. Justice and charity were discussed by Paul Mundy of the University of Scranton. Then these virtues studied in application to the problem of war and peace by Lawrence J. Bell of St. Joseph's College and Mary Melvin "Propoganda and Peace" was the theme of the next discussion. Patrick McGee of St. John's University discussed propoganda as a weapon of war diplomacy. Then Murray Zealor examined American propoganda.

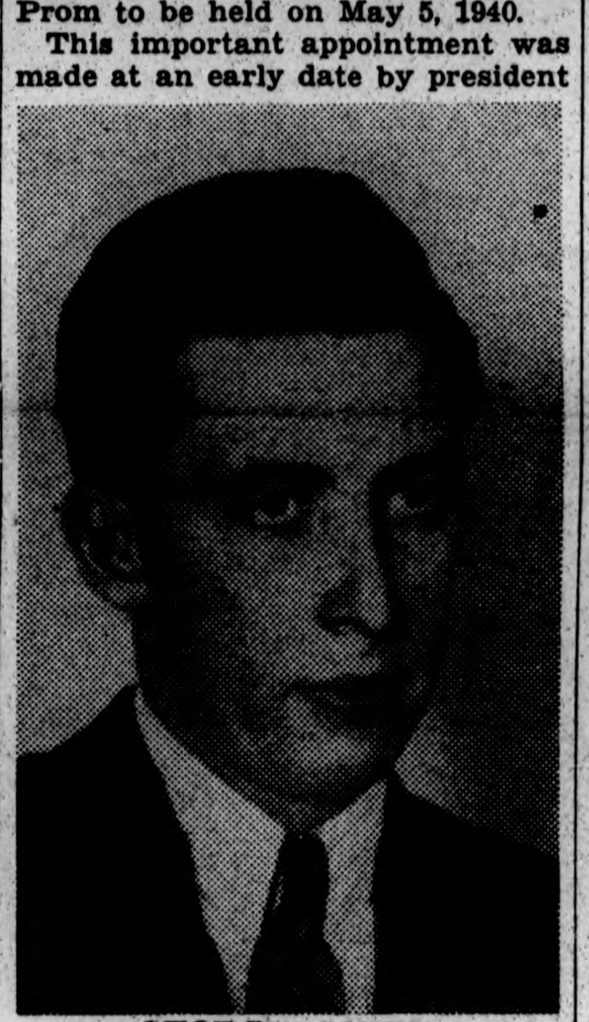
In the course of this concluding discussion it was brought out that isolation as a policy was not Christian but that neutrality was not objectionable.

GEORGE COUPE MADE JUNIOR PROM HEAD

George W. Coupe, junior Commerce student, has been selected Chairman for the annual Junior Prom to be held on May 5, 1940.



GEORGE COUPE

This important appointment was made at an early date by president Daniel Keating to enable the Juniors, through Coupe and his committee, to secure the best orchestra possible for their main social event.

Coupe is a graduate of La Salle High school and, since coming to Villanova, has been very active. He has been an important cog in the commerce school intramural activities; was a member of the 150 lb. football team last year, and was also on the committee for the Sophomore Cotillion.

He has asked for the support of the entire Junior class and said: "We want this Junior Prom to be the biggest in Villanova history, and I am asking the co-operation of all Juniors."

President Keating has also made an appeal to the Juniors to pay their class assessment. All assessments can be paid either to Keating or to class treasurer James Forkin.

Villanova Meets Templars Saturday On Owl Grid

Swans Stake All Against Wildcats in Attempt at Successful Season; Bowles Big Threat in Cherry Attack

By JOE BARNES

For the twelfth successive year the Wildcats of Villanova College will meet the Owls of Temple University this Saturday on the green turf of Temple Stadium. Upwards of thirty-five thousand rabid fans are expected to pack the stands at kick-off time, 2:00 P. M.

One of the most natural rivalries in collegiate circles the Owl-Wildcat clash almost always decides the Philadelphia district gridiron championship and this year is no exception. When the fur stops flying Saturday afternoon and the stadium turns bleak and gray, a clear claimant to top laurels in the Philly sector will ascend the throne, barring of course a tie ball game.

Fred Swan, who played his football for Stanford University in bygone days, is director of the Temple forces. It will be his first meeting with Villanova as head coach of the Owls although he spent many uncomfortable moments in past years as assistant to Glenn S. "Pop" Warner during T. U.-V. C. clashes.

Same Line-up

Swan will in all probability stick to the line-up which has brought fair success to the Templars through this season thus far. The Owls' attack has been built around the 190-pound senior fullback, Jonah Bowles, a triple-threater from West Virginia. He is ably assisted by such backs as Jack Berrier, Ed Schwope, Bob McCracken, Jimmy Powers, Al Jurale-

"It Looks Like Murder," to be directed by Robert Wilderotter, senior artsman, has the following cast: Breinerd, Ed Hanlon; Milton, Joseph Donovan; Collins, Thomas McKimmey.

In "That This May Never Happen," which has Robert O'Brien, junior C.&F. student, as director, George Haggerty will play the part of John; Paul Fitzmaurice will be Bob; Jim McGovern will play the role of Marc; and Frank Quaranta will be cast as George.

Robert McIntyre, sophomore C.&F. student, has announced his cast of "Four of a Kind" as follows: Father Jeroleom — Richard Coughlin; Smike—George Weber; Jake—Joseph O'Donnell; Crawls—Thomas Devine; Wang Sing—David Reardon.

Joseph McNamara, senior artsman, has been chosen by Anthony J. Frayne, director of Belle Masque, to supervise the direction of the plays, which are given for the purpose of uncovering new talent for Belle Masque annual spring production.

The Symphonic Band will deliver several selections during the intermission between plays. There will be no admission charge for those attending the reception.

NEXT ISSUE DECEMBER 5

The next issue of the VILLANOVAN will be published Tuesday, December 5. This lapse of publication is due to the proximity of the quarterly examinations and the Thanksgiving holidays.

FIELD DAY DATE STILL TENTATIVE

Event To Be Held Only if Frosh Adhere to Regulations

Following a meeting of the Sophomore Class on Friday, Nov. 10, Thomas J. McKimmey, class president, announced that, after a heated discussion on the issue, the class reserved final decision until after the Thanksgiving holidays as to whether or not they were to participate in Field Day.

If, by that time, sophomores feel that the centennial class has shown cooperation in obeying the freshman regulations, they will take part in the Field Day.

In the last issue of the VILLANOVAN, it was announced that Field Day would be held Saturday, Nov. 11. Most of the class had not heard of it up to that time and, as a good deal of protest was raised against it, President McKimmey called a class meeting to discuss it on Thursday, Nov. 9.

At this meeting, Thomas A. Shallow, sophomore engineer, the originator of the proposed program, explained his plan to the class and gave the reasons why he thought it should be approved.

A heated discussion ensued among those who were for the idea and those who were against it. The proponents of the plan argued that it would be against the tradition of the school not to hold Field Day; those against it said that the freshmen did not deserve a Field Day because of violation of regulations.

The meeting closed without any definite decision on the issue. It was decided to tentatively postpone the event and to have a meeting the following day where they would decide finally.

At the Friday meeting, Andrew Melton, class treasurer, made a motion that the class approve of Field Day, on condition that the freshmen wear their regs during a probationary period, lasting until Thanksgiving. The motion was voted on and passed by the class.

Dormitories Compete

EVERY YEAR at Villanova, in preparation for the Temple classic, the various halls situated on the campus vie with one another in caricature decorations. Through this medium the students are offered an excellent opportunity to express their enthusiasm and school spirit. The mere mention of this fact should incite an interest in the contest.

Do not delay. Start to plan your exhibits now. It is not too early—not if you are earnest. Last year the displays were not completed till the day the winner was to be decided. Do not mar the spirit of this contest by your failure to comply with the regulations. Finish your decorations before the date on which the decision is to be rendered. Get on the job immediately.

Originality, design, and color scheme are the primary factors to be considered when constructing your banners. Strive to achieve these qualities. They will necessitate labor and effort, but the distinction and honor extended to the winner will more than justify the work.

H. A. McC.

The Field Day Question

THE controversy that has arisen over question of whether or not to hold Field Day has shown that many students share the views of educators that this remnant of a more rough-and-tumble collegiate era should be discarded.

The institution of Field Day has arisen from the traditional rivalry between the freshman and sophomore classes. Under freshman customs, the second year men have had control over the new men until they have freed themselves in some way.

Formerly the end of the hazing period was a general fight between the two classes, but this has been discarded in practically all schools. In the larger colleges it is impractical because of the large numbers involved; in practically all schools, the old fights were cut out because of the danger to those concerned.

Under the new order, Field Day is given a new name and the winner is decided on a point basis. In some cases, a trophy is put up and passed on to the winning class from year to year. Whether or not such an orderly program breaks down into a brawl depends on the manner in which it is carried out and the attitude of those taking part in it.

The revival of Field Day was suggested this year solely in the hope of preserving a tradition of the college. The objection offered by the sophomore class has been that the freshmen haven't observed their regulations and, since they have not upheld the traditions in that respect, they are not entitled to a Field Day.

The sophomores have not won a Field Day within recent history; if they are to hold one, it seems that there must be some inducement for it. The issue is now put up to the centennial class: if they observe their regulations they have a chance to meet the second year men in competition; if they continue to disregard them, the Class of '42 will have nothing to do with it.

Calling to Peace

STUDENTS of Villanova! Soon others may call you to arms but we would call you to peace—by the students approach—study.

Not yet have you reached the point where you can directly make your opinions felt in the main current of international events but you are not condemned to inactivity. Yours is the task of studying the issues involved in peace and war.

No! you will not be able to settle the problems of the world—not even academically. But you can learn the ethics of peace and of war. You can get for yourselves the stanadard by which to model your course of action. This is a vital part of the problem.

Ascertain the facts you may not be able to do. But then no one seems to be capable of that either. —— Don't give up. Examine them critically. Keep in mind the principles but don't stop there.

Keep a look out for the next meeting of the International Relations Society. Attend it. They are interested in the problem. Maybe they can help you.

—J. N. B., Jr.

To The Elected:

THE BALLOTS have been cast; the people have made their choice. Let that he sufficient. The rest is up to the newly-elected officials.

To them remains the sacred duty of working in the interests of the people, for fundamentally they are servants of those they represent, or otherwise the whole system of democracy would totter. The reason why it can function efficiently is that individuals acting en masse are willing to be led, not driven. If their trust is misplaced in corrupt and self-seeking men, a democratic form of government can be made a living hell on earth.

Once in office party affiliations and partisan prejudices should be discarded by the elected so that they can utilize their undivided energy for the benefit of the masses. This is a duty too often forgotten by men who play party politics to further their office-seeking aspirations.

We believe that the troubled events in Europe should drive home the fact that here integrity must be preserved and that this can be done in great degree by the newly-elected officials if they in the future will serve in the capacity of honest, conscientious leaders.

In doing this, the resulting unshaken faith of the people in this system of government will make them impervious to all subversive attempts to undermine all the principles that held as "inalienable rights."

There is a Freshman in Alumni Hall who is terrifically angry at a smart little girl from Rosemont. It seems this charming lassie has a penchant for calling aforementioned dorm at the snoozing hour of 12:30 A. M. Our Frosh, rooming near the phone, dashed out to take the call. Here is the brilliant conversation: "Hello, is this Will?" "Will who?" "Villanova?" The Frosh hasn't caught her as yet, but the Mother Superior has.

SEA GULL ISLAND

A lonely point of surf-washed rock,
Upon the broad Pacific.
Owned not by man, nor clique, nor clan,
Unbound by maps specific.
The rulers there were bird-kings fair,
Bright gulls that were prolific.
They held their sway till late one day
A pirate, Admiral Slavit,
Came o'er the waves, with thieves and knaves,
A swarm on every davit.
"This isle," roared he, "belongs to me!"
So the sea gulls let him have it.

The other type is the one that comes dressed for the dance, afterwards. She sits in the stands and freezes, or else borrows her date's coat (over his dead body). In other words she sits in the stands and freezes.

The only way to a strike a happy medium is for the fellow to bring a blanket; or for the girl to come dressed like a panda; or for the fellow to bring a blanket, etc.

AIR EXAMINATION TO BE HELD AT U. OF P. BY U. S. ARMY BOARD

Applicants Will be Interviewed by Officers From November 29 to December 3

The examining board of the Third Corps Area, United States Army, has informed the college authorities that it will be unable to visit Villanova for the purpose of examining candidates for the Flying Cadet Corps. This is because the examining board has only a limited time in which to conduct these examinations.

The University of Pennsylvania has been chosen as headquarters for this locality, and the publicity agent of the Flying Cadet Examining Board will be there from November 19 to 23. All desiring information may obtain such at this time.

From November 29 to December 3, the Examining Board proper will be at the University to test all those who are interested. All who meet the requirements will be admitted to the Flying Cadet Corps in June, 1940.

The Flying Cadet Corps is a preparatory school for the United States Air Corps. Upon successful completion of the course of training, a flying cadet is commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve, receives his wings and a rating of pilot.

The present course of instruction requires nine months, including three months elementary, three months basic, and three months advanced training. In addition to the flying training, this instruction includes courses in navigation, meteorology, radio, and other subjects pertaining to military aviation. It consists of approximately 215 hours in the air, during which time the student receives instruction in all maneuvers necessary in the piloting of military airplanes.

Invites Freshmen to Math Club Banquet

All students of the engineering school, especially the members of the freshman class, have been invited by the president of the Mathematics Club, Vincent J. A. Gordon, to its banquet, which will be held at Van Tassell's Restaurant in Philadelphia, Thursday, Dec. 14.

Joseph C. Dorsey, William Ehmer, and Edmund Hagan, all sophomore Engineers, have charge of arrangements for the affair. They are trying to get one of the outstanding mathematicians in the East as guest of honor and expect to make an announcement concerning this soon.

Walter N. LaPorte, second year chemical engineer, is handling the ticket sale. "We have hopes of having up to 100 at the dinner," he said. "The response from upperclassmen has been good, and we expect many freshmen will come."

SINCE everyone and everything is getting CATTISH and OWLISH, I may as well begin purring, too.

The longest touchdown romp of the series was made by Bill Rogers in 1937. Bill, a tackle of 225 lbs. gross, looked like a giant bomber being escorted by a squadron of combat planes after he intercepted a Temple pass and raced, or should I say waddled, sixty-eight yards to pay dirt.

The longest punt recorded in the series was made by Walt Korchinski, of Villanova, in 1934, when he kicked ninety yards.

In 1929, Grover Wearshing, of Temple, ran seventy yards but was hauled down ten yards short of a touchdown.

An oddity of this annual battle is the fact that no one player has scored touchdowns in more than one contest.

A gentleman in the Villanova stands sounded "taps" on his bugle each time the Wildcats scored a touchdown in the 1937 game. May he blast loud and often this year!

SCENE: Temple Stadium—Station WACK.
Time: November 18, 1939.

Announcer: "Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience. Today I have a treat in store for you. Beside me are standing five young college gentlemen who have graciously consented to set the scene for this annual classic between Temple and Villanova, each stressing the sidelights that appeal to his type of education. First, I shall bring to the microphone a young man who is majoring in philosophy, Mr. Philos!"

Philos: "Er, thank you. It is a self-evident truth that there is a football field present and that the field is suitable to the playing of this game. On the field there are two teams; we see that the teams are composed of eleven men each; therefore, the game can be played because the participants are rational men, since football is a game to be played by rational creatures. Next we will proceed to establish that—"

Announcer: "And if you are in town after the game, don't forget to visit your old friend Jimmy the Slug! The next speaker will be Joe Educat."

Educat: "Let us look at this spectacle in terms of its educational values. It is to be classed as play and belongs to the primary group in society. Football requires an extraordinary coordination between mind and muscle and develops both. Who is the man that has not played football in his youth and cannot trace some skill that he now possesses to the football gridiron of his youth? It doesn't make any difference where it is played, because the important contacts—"

Announcer: "Contact, that's it. If your spark plugs don't contact because they are dirty, go to Greasy Mike's Garage for special rates. The next commentator will be N. G. Neer. He—"

N. G. Neer: "Thank you. To give you the facts, the game is played on a field of geometric design. The ball is made of an inflated oval piece of leather, the pressure necessary to keep it inflated being approximately 13 pounds. Now, since in making a field goal the angle of incidence must equal the angle—"

Announcer: "To get the right angle at the news read the daily column of Joe Hawkeye! The next guy, pardon, lug, to speak will be A. Premed."

Premed: "It is of utmost importance the muscle tonus is in perfect state. If the men are troubled with digestive, respiratory, circulatory, or neurological ailments, sluggishness and irritability would result and hamper efficiency; hence, it is vital to the team that they eat food that contains carbohydrates, proteins, and vitamins. Physiologically they—"

Announcer: "Listen, people, I had nothing to do with this. Please stay tuned in for the game. There's only one more of these to come. He . . ." (sobs).

Comus Finance: "Aha, the game is a success . . ' 30,000 paid admissions. Hm, I think they should put stands under the goal posts and charge five dollars. Now if only we could sell the space on the football to a company for advertising and the back of the players' suits as well, we could net at last six or seven hundred iron men more. This money could be spent on tours, it would circulate, and the depression would be over. Ah, I'll write my thesis on that!"

Flash!!!: "Ladies and gentleman, we interrupt to announce that the regular announcer has just fell through the microphone. His last words were: Goodbye, cruel world. Ga-Ga, Kutchy-kutch, you can't get to France on a trolley car?"

Routes For Reaching Temple Stadium Described To Assist All Rooters

On Saturday, November 18th, all roads will lead to Temple University Stadium located at City Line and Vernon Road on the outskirts of Philadelphia.

If travelling by commercial transit from Villanova, the P&W line proceeds to 69th and Market Sts., from where the Market St. Subway-Elevated should be boarded to 13th St. where a 3c exchange will transfer the passenger to the Broad St. Subway. Remain on this line until the end, from where a Route 6 trolley is taken to the termination of that line. Walk two blocks west to the Stadium.

A much shorter route may be followed, however, if one boards the Aronimink bus to 63d St. and City Line from where the P. R. T. bus "E" goes to Washington Lane and Greene St. Bus "H" runs from here to the stadium.

Once in Philadelphia, it is an easy matter to locate the field. All east and west bound transit lines cross Broad St. One should travel directly north to City Line; then proceed left for approximately six blocks.

Automobiles arriving from New York or Northern New Jersey should use the Tacony-Palmyra Bridge to avoid city traffic congestion. From this bridge they should travel on Levick St. to Roosevelt Boulevard, then left to Broad St. from where a right turn will lead them directly to City Line. There a left turn reaches the field.

Coming from the northwest on Bethlehem Pike, one should bear left on Stenton Avenue to Vernon where another left turn will lead directly to the field.

Arriving from the west or southwest it will be well to use City Line Ave. to enter the Schuylkill River Drive, then left to Washington Lane. Turning right, proceed to City Line, then left to the stadium.

Northern rooters will probably come down York Road to City Line, then right to the stadium.

COMMITTEE SELECTED FOR COMBINED VOCAL RECITAL

A committee to handle arrangements for the recital to be given by the combined choristers of Villanova and Rosemont on November 28 has been appointed by Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., moderator of the Villanova glee club.

John T. Gallagher, sophomore commerce student, has been named chairman of the committee. His assistants will be Frederick G. Kull, junior science; James T. Brady and Edward A. Eichman, junior commerce, and Joseph V. McCabe, sophomore commerce.

The program for the evening will consist of standard selections ranging from Brahms to Gershwin.

Featured on the schedule will be harp solos rendered by Kathryn Jane Kearns, of Rosemont, and selections sung by a quartet from Villanova.

PRESIDENT, ALUMNI SECRETARY INSPECT NEW ENGLAND CLUBS

Local Graduate Groups Evidence Active Interest in Villanova Affairs

On Friday, November 3, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the college, accompanied by William G. Slaughter, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Alumni Association and Placement Director of the College, left Villanova for a visit to the local Alumni Clubs in the New England area.

On Friday evening, they attended a dinner meeting of the Waterbury, Conn., Club which was held in Patsy Brown's Silver Chalet. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Vincent T. Shea, '29, president of the club. Among those in attendance was Rev. Andrew Plunkett, '95, Chaplain of the National Alumni Association who, at the present time, has a parish in Derby, Conn.

The following night found Father Stanford and Mr. Slaughter in Boston where they sat in on a meeting of the Boston Club, at which Mr. Joseph C. Thomasella, '27, was reelected president of the organization for the coming year. Sunday found them in Lawrence, Mass., attending a meeting of the local club at which meeting the Hon. Walter A. Griffin, '27, mayor of the city of Lawrence, spoke. Nicholas J. Young, '24, president, presided.

Belle Air Ball Committee Meets

There will be an important meeting of the Belle Air Ball committee tomorrow afternoon at 1 P. M. in room 214 Mendel. Chairman Robert G. Wilderotter asks every member to be present punctually. Due to the fact that mid-semester examinations are being conducted, the meeting will be necessarily brief.

According to the report of Charles G. Martin, class treasurer, there is approximately $165 in the treasury. Wilderotter when informed of this existing condition remarked: "You can readily see that my hands are practically tied as far as naming a band is concerned.

"In order to negotiate for an orchestra the class must have at least $600. At the time the contract is signed it is necessary to post $100. One week later half of the entire amount is required. The remainder is payable the night of the dance. Of course, the $600 mentioned does not include the $450 credit allowed by the administration."

Wilderotter also stated that if it were possible he would like to collect the necessary amount before Thanksgiving.

Dormitories Compete

EVERY YEAR at Villanova, in preparation for the Temple classic, the various halls situated on the campus vie with one another in caricature decorations. Through this medium the students are offered an excellent opportunity to express their enthusiasm and school spirit. The mere mention of this fact should incite an interest in the contest.

Do not delay. Start to plan your exhibits now. It is not too early—not if you are earnest. Last year the displays were not completed till the day the winner was to be decided. Do not mar the spirit of this contest by your failure to comply with the regulations. Finish your decorations before the date on which the decision is to be rendered. Get on the job immediately.

Originality, design, and color scheme are the primary factors to be considered when constructing your banners. Strive to achieve these qualities. They will necessitate labor and effort, but the distinction and honor extended to the winner will more than justify the work.

The Field Day Question

THE controversy that has arisen over question of whether or not to hold Field Day has shown that many students share the views of educators that this remnant of a more rough-and-tumble collegiate era should be discarded.

The institution of Field Day has arisen from the traditional rivalry between the freshman and sophomore classes. Under freshman customs, the second year men have had control over the new men until they have freed themselves in some way.

Formerly the end of the hazing period was a general fight between the two classes, but this has been discarded in practically all schools. In the larger colleges it is impractical because of the large numbers involved; in practically all schools, the old fights were cut out because of the danger to those concerned.

Under the new order, Field Day is given a new name and the winner is decided on a point basis. In some cases, a trophy is put up and passed on to the winning class from year to year. Whether or not such an orderly program breaks down into a brawl depends on the manner in which it is carried out and the attitude of those taking part in it.

The revival of Field Day was suggested this year solely in the hope of preserving a tradition of the college. The objection offered by the sophomore class has been that the freshmen haven't observed their regulations and, since they have not upheld the traditions in that respect, they are not entitled to a Field Day.

The sophomores have not won a Field Day within recent history; if they are to hold one, it seems that there must be some inducement for it. The issue is now put up to the centennial class: if they observe their regulations they have a chance to meet the second year men in competition; if they continue to disregard them, the Class of '42 will have nothing to do with it.

Calling to Peace

STUDENTS of Villanova! Soon others may call you to arms but we would call you to peace—by the students approach—study.

Not yet have you reached the point where you can directly make your opinions felt in the main current of international events but you are not condemned to inactivity. Yours is the task of studying the issues involved in peace and war.

No! you will not be able to settle the problems of the world—not even academi cally. But you can learn the ethics of peace and of war. You can get for yourselves the stanadard by which to model your course of action. This is a vital part of the problem.

Ascertain the facts you may not be able to do. But then no one seems to be capable of that either. —— Don't give up. Examine them critically. Keep in mind the principles but don't stop there.

Keep a look out for the next meeting of the International Relations Society. Attend it. They are interested in the problem. Maybe they can help you.

To The Elected:

THE BALLOTS have been cast; the people have made their choice. Let that he sufficient. The rest is up to the newly-elected officials.

To them remains the sacred duty of working in the interests of the people, for fundamentally they are servants of those they represent, or otherwise the whole system of democracy would totter. The reason why it can function efficiently is that individuals acting en masse are willing to be led, not driven. If their trust is misplaced in corrupt and self-seeking men, a democratic form of government can be made a living hell on earth.

Once in office party affiliations and partisan prejudices should be discarded by the elected so that they can utilize their undivided energy for the benefit of the masses. This is a duty too often forgotten by men who play party politics to further their office-seeking aspirations.

We believe that the troubled events in Europe should drive home the fact that here integrity must be preserved and that this can be done in great degree by the newly-elected officials if they in the future will serve in the capacity of honest, conscientious leaders.

In doing this, the resulting unshaken faith of the people in this system of government will make them impervious to all subversive attempts to undermine all the principles that held as "inalienable rights."

BOB KEELER is now entitled to the leather medal awarded by the VILLANOVAN to the student telling the tallest story. That sport story Bob has published was purely and simply a dream.

There is a Freshman in Alumni Hall who is terrifically angry at a smart little girl from Rosemont. It seems this charming lassie has a penchant for calling aforementioned dorm at the snoozing hour of 12:30 A. M. Our Frosh, rooming near the phone, dashed out to take the call. Here is the brilliant conversation: "Hello, is this Will?" "Will who?" "Villanova?" The Frosh hasn't caught her as yet, but the Mother Superior has.

SEA GULL ISLAND

A lonely point of surf-washed rock,
Upon the broad Pacific.
Owned not by man, nor clique, nor clan,
Unbound by maps specific,
The rulers there were bird-kings fair,
Bright gulls that were prolific.
They held their sway till late one day
A pirate, Admiral Slavit,
Came o'er the waves, with thieves and knaves,
A swarm on every davit.
"This isle," roared he, "belongs to me!"
So the sea gulls let him have it.

I've been advised not to mention anything about a certain man or his room-mate in this column. The first man is continually worrying because of a guilty conscience while his roomie costs the college newspaper money. Every time his name is mentioned he sends out thirty or forty copies to his many friends. What do you think this is, a clipping agency?

And then, with sudden overheard inspiration, up springs the biggest "W—d B—g" inthe college to coin a phrase. . .yeah. I won't say who it is, but his name begins with Z and ends with "ealor." He doesn't even have the intelligence to pronounce my name correctly. Incidentally, few people do. And I do mean you. They quote a Georgetown boy in the "Times" concerning gals and games.

He divides the girls up into two classes. The one comes dressed for the game in a big bundle of flashy wool. She's not a bit cold and looks it. But after the game you feel as if you were dancing with a panda.

The other type is the one that comes dressed for the dance, afterwards. She sits in the stands and freezes, or else borrows her date's coat (over his dead body). In other words she sits in the stands and freezes.

The only way to a strike a happy medium is for the fellow to bring a blanket; or for the girl to come dressed like a panda; or for the fellow to bring a blanket, etc.

They don't have anything on Villanova. It costs twice that much here.

AIR EXAMINATION TO BE HELD AT U. OF P. BY U. S. ARMY BOARD

Applicants Will be Interviewed by Officers From November 29 to December 3

The examining board of the Third Corps Area, United States Army, has informed the college authorities that it will be unable to visit Villanova for the purpose of examining candidates for the Flying Cadet Corps. This is because the examining board has only a limited time in which to conduct these examinations.

The University of Pennsylvania has been chosen as headquarters for this locality, and the publicity agent of the Flying Cadet Examining Board will be there from November 19 to 23. All desiring information may obtain such at this time.

From November 29 to December 3, the Examining Board proper will be at the University to test all those who are interested. All who meet the requirements will be admitted to the Flying Cadet Corps in June, 1940.

The Flying Cadet Corps is a preparatory school for the United States Air Corps. Upon successful completion of the course of training, a flying cadet is commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve, receives his wings and a rating of pilot.

The present course of instruction requires nine months, including three months elementary, three months basic, and three months advanced training. In addition to the flying training, this instruction includes courses in navigation, meteorology, radio, and other subjects pertaining to military aviation. It consists of approximately 215 hours in the air, during which time the student receives instruction in all maneuvers necessary in the piloting of military airplanes.

Invites Freshmen to Math Club Banquet

All students of the engineering school, especially the members of the freshman class, have been invited by the president of the Mathematics Club, Vincent J. A. Gordon, to its banquet, which will be held at Van Tassell's Restaurant in Philadelphia, Thursday, Dec. 14.

Joseph C. Dorsey, William Ehmer, and Edmund Hagan, all sophomore Engineers, have charge of arrangements for the affair. They are trying to get one of the outstanding mathematicians in the East as guest of honor and expect to make an announcement concerning this soon.

Walter N. LaPorte, second year chemical engineer, is handling the ticket sale. "We have hopes of having up to 100 at the dinner," he said. "The response from upperclassmen has been good, and we expect many freshmen will come."

SINCE everyone and everything is getting CATTISH and OWLISH, I may as well begin purring, too.

The longest touchdown romp of the series was made by Bill Rogers in 1937. Bill, a tackle of 225 lbs. gross, looked like a giant bomber being escorted by a squadron of combat planes after he intercepted a Temple pass and raced, or should I say waddled, sixty-eight yards to pay dirt.

The longest punt recorded in the series was made by Walt Korchinski, of Villanova, in 1934, when he kicked ninety yards.

In 1929, Grover Wearshing, of Temple, ran seventy yards but was hauled down ten yards short of a touchdown.

An oddity of this annual battle is the fact that no one player has scored touchdowns in more than one contest.

A gentleman in the Villanova stands sounded "taps" on his bugle each time the Wildcats scored a touchdown in the 1937 game. May he blast loud and often this year!

SCENE: Temple Stadium—Station WACK.

Time: November 18, 1939.

Announcer: "Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience. Today I have a treat in store for you. Beside me are standing five young college gentlemen who have graciously consented to set the scene for this annual classic between Temple and Villanova, each stressing the sidelights that appeal to his type of education. First, I shall bring to the microphone a young man who is majoring in philosophy, Mr. Philos!"

Philos: "Er, thank you. It is a self-evident truth that there is a football field present and that the field is suitable to the playing of this game. On the field there are two teams; we see that the teams are composed of eleven men each; therefore, the game can be played because the participants are rational men, since football is a game to be played by rational creatures. Next we will proceed to establish that—"

Announcer: "And if you are in town after the game, don't forget to visit your old friend Jimmy the Slug! The next speaker will be Joe Educat."

Educat: "Let us look at this spectacle in terms of its educational values. It is to be classed as play and belongs to the primary group in society. Football requires an extraordinary coordination between mind and muscle and develops both. Who is the man that has not played football in his youth and cannot trace some skill that he now possesses to the football gridiron of his youth? It doesn't make any difference where it is played, because the important contacts—"

Announcer: "Contact, that's it. If your spark plugs don't contact because they are dirty, go to Greasy Mike's Garage for special rates. The next commentator will be N. G. Neer. He—"

N. G. Neer: "Thank you. To give you the facts, the game is played on a field of geometric design. The ball is made of an inflated oval piece of leather, the pressure necessary to keep it inflated being approximately 13 pounds. Now, since in making a field goal the angle of incidence must equal the angle—"

Announcer: "To get the right angle at the news read the daily column of Joe Hawkeye! The next guy, pardon, lug, to speak will be A. Premed."

Premed: "It is of utmost importance the muscle tonus is in perfect state. If the men are troubled with digestive, respiratory, circulatory, or neurological ailments, sluggishness and irritability would result and hamper efficiency; hence, it is vital to the team that they eat food that contains carbohydrates, proteins, and vitamins. Physiologically they—"

Announcer: "Listen, people, I had nothing to do with this. Please stay tuned in for the game. There's only one more of these to come. He . . ." (sobs).

Comus Finance: "Aha, the game is a success . . ' 30,000 paid admissions. Hm, I think they should put stands under the goal posts and charge five dollars. Now if only we could sell the space on the football to a company for advertising and the back of the players' suits as well, we could net at last six or seven hundred iron men more. This money could be spent on tours, it would circulate, and the depression would be over. Ah, I'll write my thesis on that!"

Flash!!!: "Ladies and gentleman, we interrupt to announce that the regular announcer has just fell through the microphone. His last words were: Goodbye, cruel world. Ga-Ga, Kutchy-kutch, you can't get to France on a trolley car?"

Routes For Reaching Temple Stadium Described To Assist All Rooters

On Saturday, November 18th, all roads will lead to Temple University Stadium located at City Line and Vernon Road on the outskirts of Philadelphia.

If travelling by commercial transit from Villanova, the P&W line proceeds to 69th and Market Sts., from where the Market St. Subway-Elevated should be boarded to 13th St. where a 3c exchange will transfer the passenger to the Broad St. Subway. Remain on this line until the end, from where a Route 6 trolley is taken to the termination of that line. Walk two blocks west to the Stadium.

A much shorter route may be followed, however, if one boards the Aronimink bus to 63d St. and City Line from where the P. R. T. bus "E" goes to Washington Lane and Greene St. Bus "H" runs from here to the stadium.

Once in Philadelphia, it is an easy matter to locate the field. All east and west bound transit lines cross Broad St. One should travel directly north to City Line; then proceed left for approximately six blocks.

Automobiles arriving from New York or Northern New Jersey should use the Tacony-Palmyra Bridge to avoid city traffic congestion. From this bridge they should travel on Levick St. to Roosevelt Boulevard, then left to Broad St. from where a right turn will lead them directly to City Line. There a left turn reaches the field.

Coming from the northwest on Bethlehem Pike, one should bear left on Stenton Avenue to Vernon where another left turn will lead directly to the field.

Arriving from the west or southwest it will be well to use City Line Ave. to enter the Schuylkill River Drive, then left to Washington Lane. Turning right, proceed to City Line, then left to the stadium.

Northern rooters will probably come down York Road to City Line, then right to the stadium.

COMMITTEE SELECTED FOR COMBINED VOCAL RECITAL

A committee to handle arrangements for the recital to be given by the combined choristers of Villanova and Rosemont on November 28 has been appointed by Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., moderator of the Villanova glee club.

John T. Gallagher, sophomore commerce student, has been named chairman of the committee. His assistants will be Frederick G. Kull, junior science; James T. Brady and Edward A. Eichman, junior commerce, and Joseph V. McCabe, sophomore commerce.

The program for the evening will consist of standard selections ranging from Brahms to Gershwin.

Featured on the schedule will be harp solos rendered by Kathryn Jane Kearns, of Rosemont, and selections sung by a quartet from Villanova.

PRESIDENT, ALUMNI SECRETARY INSPECT NEW ENGLAND CLUBS

Local Graduate Groups Evidence Active Interest in Villanova Affairs

On Friday, November 3, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the college, accompanied by William G. Slaughter, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Alumni Association and Placement Director of the College, left Villanova for a visit to the local Alumni Clubs in the New England area.

On Friday evening, they attended a dinner meeting of the Waterbury, Conn., Club which was held in Patsy Brown's Silver Chalet. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Vincent T. Shea, '29, president of the club. Among those in attendance was Rev. Andrew Plunkett, '95, Chaplain of the National Alumni Association who, at the present time, has a parish in Derby, Conn.

The following night found Father Stanford and Mr. Slaughter in Boston where they sat in on a meeting of the Boston Club, at which Mr. Joseph C. Thomasella, '27, was reelected president of the organization for the coming year. Sunday found them in Lawrence, Mass., attending a meeting of the local club at which meeting the Hon. Walter A. Griffin, '27, mayor of the city of Lawrence, spoke. Nicholas J. Young, '24, president, presided.

Belle Air Ball Committee Meets

There will be an important meeting of the Belle Air Ball committee tomorrow afternoon at 1 P. M. in room 214 Mendel. Chairman Robert G. Wilderotter asks every member to be present punctually. Due to the fact that mid-semester examinations are being conducted, the meeting will be necessarily brief.

According to the report of Charles G. Martin, class treasurer, there is approximately $165 in the treasury. Wilderotter when informed of this existing condition remarked: "You can readily see that my hands are practically tied as far as naming a band is concerned.

"In order to negotiate for an orchestra the class must have at least $600. At the time the contract is signed it is necessary to post $100. One week later half of the entire amount is required. The remainder is payable the night of the dance. Of course, the $600 mentioned does not include the $450 credit allowed by the administration."

Wilderotter also stated that if it were possible he would like to collect the necessary amount before Thanksgiving.

Temple Owls Ready To Overthrow Wildcats

Plainsmen Conquer Jinx And Cats By 10-9 Score

Southerners Hold Villanovans on One-Inch Line and Win With One Point Margin; Basca Sparks Blue

By BOB FUNABASHI

"Sweet Auburn's" adverse Tigers arose from their secluded depths to pounce upon an unsuspecting foe from the North, and digested a 10-9 triumph over the Wildcats last Saturday at Birmingham, Ala.

Nearly 12,000 pro-Auburn adherents watched the "unluckiest team of the South" counteract their previous defeats up North, and up-and-tumble the Wildcats, engendering their second defeat in twenty-six games.

It was Dick McGowen, the shining light in Auburn's backfield and ace punter in any ranks, who carefully manipulated a field goal in the opening period; and then it was he, the able passer, who rifled a touchdown pass to Faulk for a 9-0 lead. In addition, that same lusty foot sent the pigskin sailing between the uprights for the extra point and the margin of victory.

Perchance it was the presence of Nick Basca, who was rushed into the game after two periods had gone by, that made the Wildcats begin their expeditious march to the Auburn goal line. For it was in the closing minutes of the third quarter that Harry Mazzei zigzagged his way to the Plainsmen's 26-yard line on a punt return, where Basca carried through for a first down on the Auburn 12-yard stripe. Here Basca, Howlett and Gogolinski carried over for the score, with Basca converting.

Immediately the Wildcats came

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — Paced by Ken Gebler and Slim Moss, Rutgers' lightweights scored a 12-0 triumph over Villanova's 150-pounders Saturday afternoon in the Rutgers' stadium.

Gebler tallied the first Rutgers' touchdown in the final minute of the second period from the four-yard line. Bill Freeman's placement attempt was blocked by Logan Phillips, Wildcat tackle. Gebler's score climaxed a 41-yard touchdown march.

SATURDAY'S defeat at the hands of Auburn may or may not have an uplifting effect on the attitude of the Main Line gridders about the coming Temple fray. If they feel properly chagrinned about it, they can come back and tear the Temple Owl to shreds.

However, it is entirely too possible that their second defeat this season will have a benumbing effect. This would be disastrous.

Phil Dunn

As it is, Temple has a slight psychological edge—being rated as the underdog. Villanova's mental attitude can increase this edge, or it can wipe it out entirely if the locals decide that they are on the rebound and can win with the expenditure of the proper energy. If they go into this contest, however, as if it were just another ball game, they are in for a big surprise.

Temple has pointed for this game, and they have already made mighty good showings against top-notch foes. Figure that one out.

We deduct that the Owls are ready to make their best showing—better than those that they have already made against Carnegie Tech, T. C. U., and Pitt. The 'Cats will have their paws full. Their wicz, Andy Tomasic, Al Nichols, and George Honochick who has been hampered by injuries. Almost any three of these have excellent chances of being in the opening line-up but at present it looks as if Powers, Berrier, and McCracken will accompany Bowles to the starting post.

The Cherry and White line, always powerful, will probably include Charley Walters and Sam Ashwood at the end posts when the whistle blows. The tackle slots, all-important in the Warner system, are ably filled by big Ed Kolman and either Bob Morgan or Bill Watson. Stan Batinski and Edwin McGee have the guard posts pretty well tied up despite heavy competition. The centre job is a bruising battle between Andy Brunski, a 180-pound husky from Pittsburgh and Larry Braham. who hails from Andy Chisick's hometown, Newark, New Jersey.

Must Stop Bowles

A word about the aformentioned Jonah Bowles would be appropriate. He is the man Villanova must stop Saturday if victory is to be brought back to the Main Line. Jonah is a resident of Eskdale, West Virginia, although he came to Temple via Mooseheart High School in Illinois. It will be his third year on a Temple team facing Villanova and thus far he has tasted nothing but the bitters of defeat. When a man is as husky as Jonah you can bet that he'll be Villanova's varsity gridmen met yesterday afternoon and elected John "Buzz" Howlett to captain the Wildcats in the coming Temple game.

Howlett is playing his third year as a member of the varsity and is distinguished for his punting ability. He broke into the regular starting line-up last Fall and stayed secure ever since. Against Detroit University, two weeks ago, his punting saved the day for Villanova. The choice was well-received on the Villanova campus.

Chisick Most Valuable

At the same grid meeting Andy Chisick was voted the best player in the recent Texas A. & M. game and will receive a trophy from the Warwick Hotel in Philadelphia. The Warwick promised the trophy by telegram just before the game. It will be awarded in the near future.

Chisick, like Howlett, is playing his last year for the Blue and White. Acclaimed the greatest center in Villanova history he has played 60-minute ball in several games. Against Texas A. & M. he was one of the few wildcats to play 100 per cent up to former standards.

In The Past—

A close perusal of the records discloses that Villanova has a seven to three game advantage in the traditional Temple-V. C. contests. The series opener, 1928, was a tie. The Main Liners were victors in 1929, '30, '32, '35, '37 and '38.

A recapitulation of this famous Owls-'Cats series reveals many interesting plays and players.

"CLIPPER" SMITH says of this year's Villanova-Temple fray: "This is still the game we point to intently right from the first work-out. We have so much respect for Temple that we have scouted them in every game this year. Each report indicates they are improving, and they have the best line they have had in years. They seem to have an abundance of spirit and any defeats they have suffered this year have been by narrow margins against top-notch competition. This has gone a long way toward affording their team poise and confidence, and the resultant ruggedness which is so essential in the make-up of every good team. This will be our most difficult and strenuous assignment of the entire campaign."

VINCE McNALLY: "Clipper's" able associate, tersely commented, "The toughest game on the schedule, including Texas A. & M."

BOB WHELAN: A. A. Secretary says, "This will be the toughest Temple team we have met in years."

FRED SWAN, Temple mentor, issued the following statement on the coming clash, "I don't care what the records of the two teams are! When the game comes all the dope goes in the ash can. The Temple-Villanova games are always hard-fought. It is the game in which you can never tell the outcome."

CHARLES WINTERBURN: Owl backfield coach and scout for Fred Swan, said, "Well, we'll do our best."

Temple Owls Ready To Overthrow Wildcats

Plainsmen Conquer Jinx And Cats By 10-9 Score

Southerners Hold Villanovans on One-Inch Line and Win With One Point Margin; Basca Sparks Blue

By BOB FUNABASHI

"Sweet Auburn's" adverse Tigers arose from their secluded depths to pounce upon an unsuspecting foe from the North, and digested a 10-9 triumph over the Wildcats last Saturday at Birmingham, Ala. Nearly 12,000 pro-Auburn adherents watched the "unluckiest team of the South" counteract their previous defeats up North, and up-and-tumble the Wildcats, engendering their second defeat in twenty-six games.

It was Dick McGowen, the shining light in Auburn's backfield and ace punter in any ranks, who carefully manipulated a field goal in the opening period; and then it was he, the able passer, who rifled a touchdown pass to Faulk for a 9-0 lead. In addition, that same lusty foot sent the pigskin sailing between the uprights for the extra point and the margin of victory.

Perchance it was the presence of Nick Basca, who was rushed into the game after two periods had gone by, that made the Wildcats begin their expeditious march to the Auburn goal line. For it was in the closing minutes of the third quarter that Harry Mazzei zigzagged his way to the Plainsmen's 26-yard line on a punt return, where Basca carried through for a first down on the Auburn 12-yard stripe. Here Basca, Howlett and Gogolinski carried over for the score, with Basca converting.

Immediately the Wildcats came

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — Paced by Ken Gebler and Slim Moss, Rutgers' lightweights scored a 12-0 triumph over Villanova's 150-pounders Saturday afternoon in the Rutgers' stadium.

Gebler tallied the first Rutgers' touchdown in the final minute of the second period from the four-yard line. Bill Freeman's placement attempt was blocked by Logan Phillips, Wildcat tackle. Gebler's score climaxed a 41-yard touchdown march.

SATURDAY'S defeat at the hands of Auburn may or may not have an uplifting effect on the attitude of the Main Line gridders about the coming Temple fray. If they feel properly chagrinned about it, they can come back and tear the Temple Owl to shreds.

However, it is entirely too possible that their second defeat this season will have a benumbing effect. This would be disastrous.

Phil Dunn

As it is, Temple has a slight psychological edge—being rated as the underdog. Villanova's mental attitude can increase this edge, or it can wipe it out entirely if the locals decide that they are on the rebound and can win with the expenditure of the proper energy. If they go into this contest, however, as if it were just another ball game, they are in for a big surprise.

Temple has pointed for this game, and they have already made mighty good showings against top-notch foes. Figure that one out.

We deduct that the Owls are ready to make their best showing—better than those that they have already made against Carnegie Tech, T. C. U., and Pitt. The 'Cats will have their paws full. Their wicz, Andy Tomasic, Al Nichols, and George Honochick who has been hampered by injuries. Almost any three of these have excellent chances of being in the opening line-up but at present it looks as if Powers, Berrier, and McCracken will accompany Bowles to the starting post.

The Cherry and White line, always powerful, will probably include Charley Walters and Sam Ashwood at the end posts when the whistle blows. The tackle slots, all-important in the Warner system, are ably filled by big Ed Kolman and either Bob Morgan or Bill Watson. Stan Batinski and Edwin McGee have the guard posts pretty well tied up despite heavy competition. The centre job is a bruising battle between Andy Brunski, a 180-pound husky from Pittsburgh and Larry Braham, who hails from Andy Chisick's hometown, Newark, New Jersey.

GIGOLOS COP LEAD AS ALUMNI SLIDES TO SECOND PLACE

Mural Basketeers Find Competition Much Keener After Three Weeks of Play

As the mural season progresses the competition becomes hotter. Fedigan by their win over the Businessmen Thursday afternoon, coupled with Alumni's two defeats this week, moved into first place with Alumni slipping into second.

The first game of the week between Austin and the C&F Day Students in which the Austinites emerged victorious by a score of 36-35, was about the most exciting. The half ended with the score 23-18 in favor of the commuters and they maintained thsi lead all through the second half up until there were three minutes to play when the Residents forged ahead. Then a C&F basket put them out in front again by one point with about ten seconds to go. Skaf on an underhand shot from the middle of floor scored his first basket of the game. This proved to be the payoff shot for Austin.

Fedigan Wins

Next on the list of close ones was the Fedigan - Mendel Residents game which Fedigan only won by four points, 34-30. Leading almost all the way through the first half, the Gigolos maintained their pace throughout the second but not without difficulty because the Freshmen fought right to the final gun. Producing 25 of their team's points, B[illegible] Keeler and Frank Connors paced the upper-classmen while Collins, O'Brien and Heckler provided six each for the losers.

The last of the Tuesday night games proved to be a close one also when the Mendel Day Students turned the tables on a slowly slipping Alumni team, beating them by a score of 23-21. The former leaders just didn't have "it" and they fought uphill all the way.

Since C&F did not have enough men on the floor Thursday, their game with Fedigan had to be postponed. However, a little practice game was played between these two teams with C&F winning 57-41. Dunovitch (as the score book has it, but Father Dunne to you) occupied the spotlight in this game when he filled in as the fifth man for the Businessmen. Although he did not score the most points, he did score eight, all on spectacular shots, and was the spearhead of the winners' attack.

Frosh Beaten

The result of the two night games proved to be the reverse of the results when these four teams met previously. Losing to Alumni in their previous meeting, Austin turned around and trounced Father Dunne's freshmen by a score of 34-19. This defeat drove Alumni deeper into second place while the win moved Austin into a tie with Medel Day Students for third place. In the first half Austin built up a lead and then breezed through the second half. Dan Keating lead the Austinites with twelve points.

The Mendel Residents showed lots of spirit and plenty of good basketball when they downed the Mendel Day Students, 36-26.

Here and There
WITH
HARRY MAZZEI

ANOTHER year, another fall, and another gridiron classic between the Main Liners and the Big City Boys. This fall finds the Owl fostering its greatest desire to sink its claws into the Wildcats' collective necks, but the 'Cats still boast of feline superiority. Whether or not this boast is well founded will be known to all concerned come 5:00 P. M. Saturday afternoon.

Harry Mazzei

Three years ago a band of callow freshmen football players witnessed the Temple outfit score a 6-0 victory over the Blue. Immediately after that contest the frosh took a vow never to lose a pigskin encounter to the Owls. In the next two years the 'Cats scored 53 points to seven for the Cherry and White.

This year finds that acid test coming up. The Owls have given trouble to every club they've faced (and they have faced the best). Still there are 16 of those ambitious frosh strolling around as serious seniors who want to close their playing days with the pleasant memory of roasted Owl assailing their nostrils, seniors who want to keep their batting average at 1.000 against the city slickers. Saturday will tell the story of the strength of their determination.

ATTENTION! VILLANOVAN STAFF

There will be an important meeting of the entire staff of the VILLANOVAN today at 1 o'clock in Room 119. All staff members are requested to attend without fail. Assignments will be given at this time.

FOURTEEN YEARS

A fact unknown to many grid fans is tht Temple Univeristy has been playing intercollegiate football for only fourteen years. The Owls grid team was formed in 1925 when Villanova already had twenty-seven years of gridiron warfare behind it. The Owls have had three coaches in their fourteen years—Heine Miller, now at St. Joseph's, Pop Warner, and the present Fred Swan have ruled the Templars.

Bowles

out to even up matters a little Saturday.

Throughout the season Bowles has been the mainstay of the Owl attack. In the Warner System the fullback is the big gun and Jonah is Temple's fullback. Draw your own conclusions. He reached his high-point in the Bucknell game and ripped the Bisons to shreds with some of the most beautiful fullbacking ever seen on Temple sod. Against Carnegie Tech, Pittsburg, and Texas Christian he was also plenty hot.

Berrier A Threat

Bowles' chief aide is Jack Berrier, left halfback and ball-toter de-luxe. This pair form Temple's most dangerous threat. From a Bowles to Berrier reverse or fake reverse can spring any play in the Swan bag of tricks. Bowles does the kicking, Berrier the passing, but quit often the order is reversed to confound the opposition. Both do plenty of hard running. So take a tip and keep a sharp eye on this combination Saturday. They do most of Temple's football playing.

Bob McCracken, a Main Line boy who drifted a little far from home is the Swans' field general. He is a junior serving his first year as a regular but has caught on to the intricate Warner system quickly. Most of his work is in calling the plays and blocking but he can also carry the mail on occasion, the occasion usually being the most oppurtune moment to fool the other club. Bob hails from Norristown, Pa.

Schedule Blamed

The Owls, despite a poor "paper" record really have a tough club. "Ank" Scanlon, coach of the undefeated St. Joseph's Prep City-championship football team, claims that Temple's poor record lies wholly in the hands of the Owls schedule-makers and not with Fred Swan or the Temple team.

Reviewing the situation coldly it seems that Temple will have the edge out there Saturday. Villanova has the better team (at least to the writer's eyes) but Temple enjoys the all-important mental edge. The Owls are expected to lose by those gents who term themselves "experts," which fact boosts their chances much higher. On top of this they are "due" for a win over the Wildcats, having lost ever since 1936. But Villanova has "Clipper" Smith and "Clipper" has his usual great team, so you can bet that the Owls will have a very tough Saturday afternoon and many a bruise on Sunday morning.

Temple Will Win According to Owls

Barney Bellew, ace (?) scribe for this publication, hiked his way up to Broad Street last week and after weathering a storm of Temple rotten tomatoes obtained the following comments from Temple gridmen. Barney says his flag of truce was violated by Owl students!

Jack Bishop, tackle: "I don't know much about Villanova, only comparative scores and what I read in the papers. Last year I figured Villanova to win; this year it's a toss-up. Temple has a greatly improved club, especially on pass defense."

Al Juralewicz, back: "It won't be like last year's score. There's a lot of reasons why. Our style changed for on ething. We always point for this game, but we point for almost all of them now."

Andy Brunski, center: "We have more spirit this year. The fellows feel that Villanova gets a lot of breaks, although they try to take advantage of them."

Frank Sayles, tackle: "Dunno. Due for a win."

Jim Powers, back: (last year scored Temple's touchdown against us): "Temple is sure to win. By the time we meet V. C., their luck will have run out."

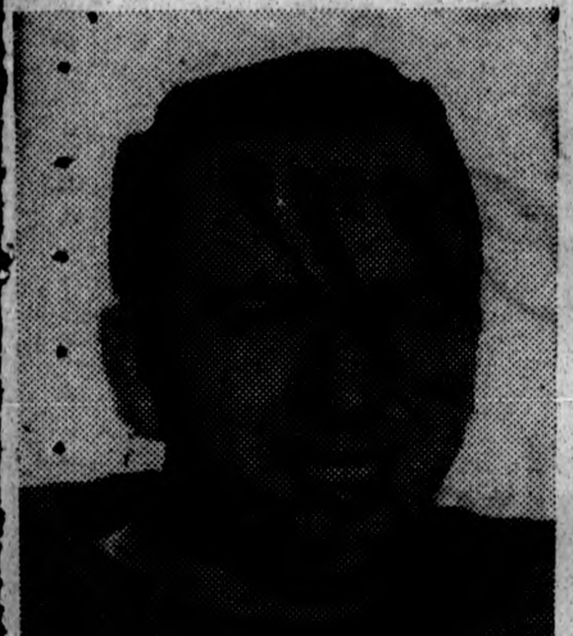
NERI — THE FOOTBALL COACH; TORNWALL — THE ACCOUNTANT

From the "City of Brotherly Love," comes Jerry Neri who acts most unbrotherly when he carries the "mail"on his end runs. It's not that Jerry is uncongenial; it's just that he learned to play the game at Northeast Public High School, where football is taken seriously, and where young men who possess great potentialities are not ignored. Football is Jerry's meat and he is no vegetarian.

During his stay at Northeast, he not only gave his attention to football, but devoted a great deal of his time to his studies. He was awarded the Morrison Trophy, which is the highest honor given to any athlete who has proved his worth scholasticly.

In his first year at Northeast Jerry was permitted to play varsity ball because he was of age; and most of his time was spent doing guard duty. At Northeast's first game during his sophomore year Jerry was found lugging the pigskin from the halfback position. He won All-Scholastic honors at the termination of his junior and senior years.



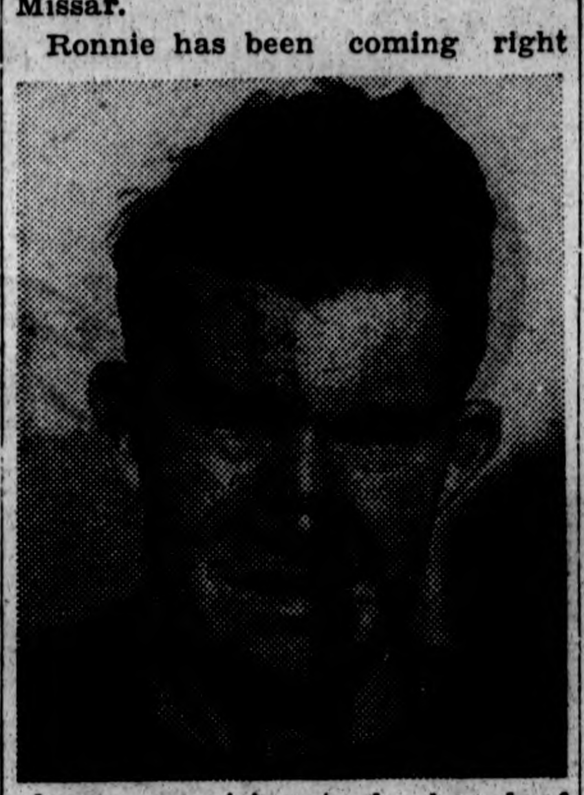
Aside from receiving four letters in football, he was also the recipient of two letters in baseball and three in track. Incidentally Jerry was high scorer in his senior year for all of Philadelphia, and held the distinguished honor of being Vice-President of his class, and President of the school.

September 1936 found Jerry digging his cleats in the terra firma of Villanova. Rather pleased with "Clipper" Smith's style of tutoring Jerry made it his business to place himself under his wing.

Throughout his freshman year he saw sufficient action, but an operation on his shoulder was a detriment to his playing. Three years of varsity ball found Jerry devoting most of his time to substitute work for "Buzz" Howlett. The latter part of his sophomore year he finally found his proper position. After switching from quarterback to left halfback, he finally found his place at right halfback, and a smashing blocking back he is.

In June of 1940, he will receive his B. S. in education, with a major in history, and a minor in English. After receiving his diploma he will be available for any coaching and teaching position anyone has to offer.

Rolling along on the next Blue and White float in this week's parade is Ronald (Heavy Horse) Tornwall. Known by all his friends as the "abba-jabba" man of the campus, Ronnie is one of the well-liked fellows on the team. During these past few years he has been the understudy of such stellar players as Mattie Kuber, Bill Rogers, and Joe Missar.



Ronnie has been coming right along, promising to be heard of this season. He began to break into the lineups during his sophomore year. Ronnie, "the pride of Fedigan Hall," and the apple of Harry Mazzei's eye, is the Wildcat's chief source of merriment, continually popping up with a snappy quip.

Good Baseballer

Believe it or not "Heavy Horse" never participated in a high school football game, confining his activities in athletics to baseball and basketball. He was considered a most promising player by his baseball coach Johnny Slane, Villanova Alumnus who induced him to come here.

His biggest thrill was in his sophomore year when he figured in the Wildcat's landslide of 33-0 over Temple. Besides being a varsity football player Ronnie has been an honor student well in the upper brackets of the C.&F. school since his freshman year.

Upon graduation Tornwall intends to tackle the business world as an accountant.

to life and after a few minutes of the fourth quarter, a blocked kick by Walt Nowak with recovery by Andy Chisick set up another touchdown. A pass from Basca to Howlett and an end sweep by Basca put the pigskin on the one-yard line. In vain Tom McMahon threw his 190 ounds against that defending line but it never released its ground. Again he gathered all his moving force towards that irresistible line but when the whistle blew the pigskin was still resting those few feet from the goal line and Auburn had receiued possession of the ball.

The Plainsmen, using their strategy, elected to commit themselves to a safety rather than have their kick blocked, which might have led to a touchdown for the 'Cats. On their free kick from the 20-yard stripe, McGowan punted 70 yards to relieve the chances of a Villanova offensive in their territory.

GIGOLOS COP LEAD AS ALUMNI SLIDES TO SECOND PLACE

Mural Basketeers Find Competition Much Keener After Three Weeks of Play

As the mural season progresses the competition becomes hotter. Fedigan by their win over the Businessmen Thursday afternoon, coupled with Alumni's two defeats this week, moved into first place with Alumni slipping into second.

The first game of the week between Austin and the C&F Day Students in which the Austinites emerged victorious by a score of 36-35, was about the most exciting. The half ended with the score 23-18 in favor of the commuters and they maintained thsi lead all through the second half up until there were three minutes to play when the Residents forged ahead. Then a C&F basket put them out in front again by one point with about ten seconds to go. Skaf on an underhand shot from the middle of floor scored his first basket of the game. This proved to be the payoff shot for Austin.

Fedigan Wins

Next on the list of close ones was the Fedigan - Mendel Residents game which Fedigan only won by four points, 34-30. Leading almost all the way through the first half, the Gigolos maintained their pace throughout the second but not without difficulty because the Freshmen fought right to the final gun. Producing 25 of their team's points, B[illegible] Keeler and Frank Connors paced the upper-classmen while Collins, O'Brien and Heckler provided six each for the losers.

The last of the Tuesday night games proved to be a close one also when the Mendel Day Students turned the tables on a slowly slipping Alumni team, beating them by a score of 23-21. The former leaders just didn't have "it" and they fought uphill all the way.

Since C&F did not have enough men on the floor Thursday, their game with Fedigan had to be postponed. However, a little practice game was played between these two teams with C&F winning 57-41. Dunovitch (as the score book has it, but Father Dunne to you) occupied the spotlight in this game when he filed in as the fifth man for the Businessmen. Although he did not score the most points, he did score eight, all on spectacular shots, and was the spearhead of the winners' attack.

Frosh Beaten

The result of the two night games proved to be the reverse of the results when these four teams met previously. Losing to Alumni in their previous meeting, Austin turned around and trounced Father Dunne's freshmen by a score of 34-19. This defeat drove Alumni deeper into second place while the win moved Austin into a tie with Medel Day Students for third place. In the first half Austin built up a lead and then breezed through the second half. Dan Keating lead the Austinites with twelve points.

The Mendel Residents showed lots of spirit and plenty of good basketball when they downed the Mendel Day Students, 36-26.

Here and There

WITH

HARRY MAZZEI

ANOTHER year, another fall, and another gridiron classic between the Main Liners and the Big City Boys. This fall finds the Owl fostering its greatest desire to sink its claws into the Wildcats' collective necks, but the 'Cats still boast of feline superiority. Whether or not this boast is well founded will be known to all concerned come 5:00 P. M. Saturday afternoon.

Harry Mazzei

Three years ago a band of callow freshmen football players witnessed the Temple outfit score a 6-0 victory over the Blue. Immediately after that contest the frosh took a vow never to lose a pigskin encounter to the Owls. In the next two years the 'Cats scored 53 points to seven for the Cherry and White.

This year finds that acid test coming up. The Owls have given trouble to every club they've faced (and they have faced the best). Still there are 16 of those ambitious frosh strolling around as serious seniors who want to close their playing days with the pleasant memory of roasted Owl assailing their nostrils, seniors who want to keep their batting average at 1.000 against the city slickers. Saturday will tell the story of the strength of their determination.

ATTENTION! VILLANOVAN STAFF

There will be an important meeting of the entire staff of the VILLANOVAN today at 1 o'clock in Room 119. All staff members are requested to attend without fail. Assignments will be given at this time.

FOURTEEN YEARS

A fact unknown to many grid fans is tht Temple Univeristy has been playing intercollegiate football for only fourteen years. The Owls grid team was formed in 1925 when Villanova already had twenty-seven years of gridiron warfare behind it. The Owls have had three coaches in their fourteen years—Heine Miller, now at St. Joseph's, Pop Warner, and the present Fred Swan have ruled the Templars.

Bowles

out to even up matters a little Saturday.

Throughout the season Bowles has been the mainstay of the Owl attack. In the Warner System the fullback is the big gun and Jonah is Temple's fullback. Draw your own conclusions. He reached his high-point in the Bucknell game and ripped the Bisons to shreds with some of the most beautiful fullbacking ever seen on Temple sod. Against Carnegie Tech, Pittsburg, and Texas Christian he was also plenty hot.

Berrier A Threat

Bowles' chief aide is Jack Berrier, left halfback and ball-toter de-luxe. This pair form Temple's most dangerous threat. From a Bowles to Berrier reverse or fake reverse can spring any play in the Swan bag of tricks. Bowles does the kicking, Berrier the passing, but quit often the order is reversed to confound the opposition. Both do plenty of hard running. So take a tip and keep a sharp eye on this combination Saturday. They do most of Temple's football playing.

Bob McCracken, a Main Line boy who drifted a little far from home is the Swans' field general. He is a junior serving his first year as a regular but has caught on to the intricate Warner system quickly. Most of his work is in calling the plays and blocking but he can also carry the mail on occasion, the occasion usually being the most oppurtune moment to fool the other club. Bob hails from Norristown, Pa.

Schedule Blamed

The Owls, despite a poor "paper" record really have a tough club. "Ank" Scanlon, coach of the undefeated St. Joseph's Prep City-championship football team, claims that Temple's poor record lies wholly in the hands of the Owls schedule-makers and not with Fred Swan or the Temple team.

Reviewing the situation coldly it seems that Temple will have the edge out there Saturday. Villanova has the better team (at least to the writer's eyes) but Temple enjoys the all-important mental edge. The Owls are expected to lose by those gents who term themselves "experts," which fact boosts their chances much higher. On top of this they are "due" for a win over the Wildcats, having lost ever since 1936. But Villanova has "Clipper" Smith and "Clipper" has his usual great team, so you can bet that the Owls will have a very tough Saturday afternoon and many a bruise on Sunday morning.

Temple Will Win According to Owls

Barney Bellew, ace (?) scribe for this publication, hiked his way up to Broad Street last week and after weathering a storm of Temple rotten tomatoes obtained the following comments from Temple gridmen. Barney says his flag of truce was violated by Owl students!

Jack Bishop, tackle: "I don't know much about Villanova, only comparative scores and what I [illegible]d in the papers. Last year I figured Villanova to win; this year it's a toss-up. Temple has a greatly improved club, especially on pass defense."

Al Juralewicz, back: "It won't be like last year's score. There's a lot of reasons why. Our style changed for on ething. We always point for this game, but we point for almost all of them now."

Andy Brunski, center: "We have more spirit this year. The fellows feel that Villanova gets a lot of breaks, although they try to take advantage of them."

Frank Sayles, tackle: "Dunno. Due for a win."

Jim Powers, back: (last year scored Temple's touchdown against us): "Temple is sure to win. By the time we meet V. C., their luck will have run out."

'CATS ON PARADE

NERI — THE FOOTBALL COACH; TORNWALL — THE ACCOUNTANT

From the "City of Brotherly Love, comes Jerry Neri who acts most unbrotherly when he carries the "[illegible]il" on his end runs. It's not that Jerry is uncongenial; it's just that he learned to play the game at Northeast Public High School, where football is taken seriously, and where young men who possess great potentialities are not ignored. Football is Jerry's meat and he is no vegetarian.

During his stay at Northeast, he not only gave his attention to football, but devoted a great deal of his time to his studies. He was awarded the Morrison Trophy, which is the highest honor given to any athlete who has proved his worth scholasticly.

In his first year at Northeast Jerry was permitted to play varsity ball because he was of age; and most of his time was spent doing guard duty. At Northeast's first game during his sophomore year Jerry was found lugging the pigskin from the halfback position. He won All-Scholastic honors at the termination of his junior and senior years.

Aside from receiving four letters in football, he was also the recipient [illegible] two letters in baseball and three in track. Incidentally Jerry was high scorer in his senior year for all of Philadelphia, and held the distinguished honor of being Vice-President of his class, and President of the school.

September 1936 found Jerry digging his cleats in the terra firma of Villanova. Rather pleased with "Clipper" Smith's style of tutoring Jerry made it his business to place himself under his wing.

Throughout his freshman year he saw sufficient action, but an operation on his shoulder was a detriment to his playing. Three years of varsity ball found Jerry devoting most of his time to substitute work for "Buzz" Howlett. The latter part of his sophomore year he finally found his proper position. After switching from quarterback to left halfback, he finally found his place at right halfback, and a smashing blocking back he is.

In June of 1940, he will receive his B. S. in education, with a major in history, and a minor in English. After receiving his diploma he will be available for any coaching and teaching position anyone has to offer.

Rolling along on the next Blue and White float in this week's parade is Ronald (Heavy Horse) Tornwall. Known by all his friends as the "abba-jabba" man of the campus, Ronnie is one of the well-liked fellows on the team. During these past few years he has been the understudy of such stellar players as Mattie Kuber, Bill Rogers, and Joe Missar.

Ronnie has been coming right along, promising to be heard of this season. He began to break into the lineups during his sophomore year. Ronnie, "the pride of Fedigan Hall," and the apple of Harry Mazzei's eye, is the Wildcat's chief source of merriment, continually popping up with a snappy quip.

Good Baseballer

Believe it or not "Heavy Horse" never participated in a high school football game, confining his activities in athletics to baseball and basketball. He was considered a most promising player by his baseball coach Johnny Slane, Villanova Alumnus who induced him to come here.

His biggest thrill was in his sophomore year when he figured in the Wildcat's landslide of 33-0 over Temple. Besides being a varsity football player Ronnie has been an honor student well in the upper brackets of the C.&F. school since his freshman year.

Upon graduation Tornwall intends to tackle the business world as an accountant.

P. K. P. Smoker Program Varied

Fr. Dougherty, Dr. Haenisch, Mr. Banmiller Address Group

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, held its annual smoker on Monday evening, Nov. 16, in the Commerce and Finance auditorium. The evening was highlighted by the presence of faculty members, returning alumni, freshmen, and fraternity members.

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., dean of the science school, represented Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., moderator of the fraternity, who was unable to be present. Fr. Dougherty reminded the group that those who attain the highest positions in life are those that are humble and suppress their egotism.

Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, also reminded the audience that loyalty to one's work, instructors, faith and country are of utmost importance to all students.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, head of the chemistry department, gave the greetings of the faculty to the members and wished them the best for the future.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Frank O'Connell, who gave his vocal interpretation of " A Little Red Ford," Vic Corbett and Bill Appel at the piano and Dan Savini at the accordian.

After the meeting was brought to an end, the group adjoined to an adjacent room where sandwiches and coffee were served.

work is cut out for them. Let's go, Wildcats! !

Auburn's victory in no way resembles the terrible Texas A. & M. shellacking. Villanova's forces do not have as far to come back this week as they did after the engagement in Tyler. On the other hand, they have less time in which to do it.

In five days they must, for one thing, acquire a scoring punch strong enough to penetrate the Temple line, indicated by reports from various sources as being stronger than the forward wall of the Plainsmen. Also, the Owls claim to have a pass defense that is capable of stopping Messrs, Basca, Howlett and Co. Whether or not this is true remains to be seen.

Quite prevalent at this time are rumors that Villanova and Temple will not meet on the gridiron next year. The rumors are false. It has been learned from a reliable source that the Wildcats are already on the Broad Streeters' list for 1940.

—V—

OWL NOTES:

Every opponent on Temple's 1939 schedule has been met before. The foes hold a lead in all time play as the Owls show a record of 13 wins, 21 losses, and 11 ties.

All of Temple's coaches have been linemen. Miller played end for Penn, Warner was a guard at Cornell, and Swan played guard at Stanford. All of the coaches were connected with the Rose Bowl classic either as a coach or player.

In 14 seasons Temple has won 81 games, lost 33 and tied 17 for a winning percentage of .711. A total of 2151 points has been scored by the Owls, while the opposition has tallied 1001.

There's No Great Mystery about Cigarette Tobaccos

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of tobaccos found in the more popular cigarettes, namely... Bright, Maryland, Burley and Turkish.

ALL THESE TOBACCOS except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision) are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or a chair.

AT THE AUCTION SALE the tobacco is piled in baskets weighing from about 100 to 500 pounds and each purchaser buys all of his tobaccos by competitive bidding for the particular piles he wants.

THE CHESTERFIELD BUYERS buy the best of these mild ripe tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination... the right amounts of Burley and Bright... just enough Maryland... and just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

IT IS BECAUSE of this combination that Chesterfields are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MILDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.

RESEARCH SEMINAR HEARS GAMBESCIA ON ENDOCRINOLOGY

Seven Main Glands of Body Explained in Terms of Functions

Endocrinology, the study of the ductless glands of the body whose secretions directly affect the growth and activities of animals possessing them, was the subject of a talk by Joseph Gambescia before the research seminar.

Gambescia explained that the main glands are seven in number: The Pineal and Pituitary, found in the head, the Thyroid and Parathyroid, found in the neck; Thymus, found in the chest, and the Adrenal and Gonada, found above the kidneys and lower abdomen, respectively.

The Pineal was not discussed extensively, as very little is known about its function. The Pituitary was shown to control partially the growth and sexual development of man by the secretions common to all the glands, hormones. Diseases of the Pituitary can affect the entire organisms' growth; an example of this is acromegaly, an excessive growth of the extremities.

The Thyroid was considered as the regulator of all the glands and the entire organisms through its secretions of Thyroxine. Cretinism and Myexdema, forms of mental sluggishness or even of idiocy, are due to under-secretion, while extreme nervousness and sensitiveness are due to an over-secretion of this fluid.

The Parathyroid gland was considered as the regulator of calcium metabolism, affecting the bones and the nervous system. Oversecretion causes hard or brittle bones, while undersecretion causes bone deformities resembling rickets.

The Thymus and Gonads were considered as controllers of growth and sexual characteristics, respectively. The Thymus is a very large organ while we are young and decreases in size as we grow older. The Gonads were thought to bring out those characteristics we associate with adults.

The Adrenal glands were emphasized because of their secretion of adrenalin, which is used as a stimulant in circulatory diseases and in the relief of asthma.

Insulin, the secretion of the pancreas, was mentioned because of the increased use of this drug by diabetics, those with a disease wherein the sugar of the body is not properly burned.

Gambescia made his lecture easy to follow by handing out printed sheets containing the main features of his talk.

At the next meeting of the group, Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D., will endeavor to have motion pictures of the life of Louis Pasteur shown.

Gendarmes Taught Criminal-Procedure

A course in basic police procedure is being held every Thursday afternoon, from 1:00 to 4:00 P. M., in room 206 Mendel Hall, under the auspices of the Public Service Institute of the Department of Public Instruction. The students are 36 patrolmen from Montgomery, Delaware, and Chester counties, and the teacher is Captain Alvin J. Herr, head of the Swarthmore Police Department.

The instruction given at these lectures deals with the statute laws of Pennsylvania, first aid, self-defense, criminal procedure, the use of small arms, and other subjects with which the patrolman should be familiar.

This school is one of 14 being conducted in the state of Pennsylvania. Schools are also located in Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Pottsville, and Reading. The principal of the group is Dr. Rollin Posey, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The course lasts from October to May, and upon completion of it, successful patrolmen receive diplomas at formal graduation exercises.

Benjamin Franklin James, 3d, spoke last night at a sociology seminar in Simpson Hall on problems of the Pennsylvania Legislature. A resident of Villanova, he represents this district in the State Assembly.

VILLANOVA EDITORS PLAN SUPPER-DANCE

Gallagher Toastmaster of Social Affair Inducting New Staff Officers

The eighth annual VILLANOVAN supper-dance, the only social function of the paper, has been definitely set as Tuesday, January 9th. It is to be held at the exclusive Arcadia International Restaurant in the Widener Building on Chestnut Street east of Broad in central Philadelphia.

John E. Gallagher, business manager has been named chairman and toastmaster for the affair by Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator.

The affair is restricted to only the staff members, who will number about sixty, and their guests. A formal banquet will be included with dancing afterwards. After the meal several talks will be given. The new editor will make a speech of acceptance and the retiring editor, John J. Harrington, will make a few farewell words. A feature of the affair will be an address by Fr. McKee, who will also present keys to some senior members of the staff.

The principal function of the affair is the appointment of the new staff in favor of the retiring one. The new staff will be appointed by the retiring staff and is to be sanctioned by the faculty advisors. The first issue that will be under the new editorship will appear on January 9 and all subsequent issues will be under their guidance.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by Hayes Watson and his Orchestra, who are currently taking care of the Arcadia's musical highballs.

Debate Series Begins Today

Beginning today in the amphitheatre of Mendel Hall at 3 P. M., the Beta Gamma Forensic Group will sponsor a series of inter-class debates, designed to uncover prospective material for the varsity team and to materially aid in the practice of public speaking. This new program is an offspring of the course in Public Speaking under the guidance of Anthony J. Frayne, Instructor.

The proposition to be debated is the one proposed by the national council, Resolved: That the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation toward all nations involved in armed international or civil conflict. Constitutionality waived.) In order to further limit the scope of this question the teams chosen will discuss in alternate debates first the economic and second the military angles of the problem. Each team will present two constructive speeches and one rebuttal of seven minutes each.

MATH CLUB DINNER TO HEAR HAZELTINE

Nearly 100 Expected to Attend First Anniversary Celebration December 14

Close to 100 club members, other students from the engineering school, faculty members ,and outside guests are expected to attend the Mathematics Club dinner at the Conestoga Mill, Thursday evening, December 14.

Principal speaker of the evening will be Alan Hazeltine, M. E., A. M., Sc. D., professor of physical mathematics at the Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J.

Professor Hazeltine is one of the outstanding men in his field in the world today. Among his accomplishments is the development of the neutrodyne for the vacuum radio tube. This is one of the most important factors in overcoming interference to good reception, and Professor Hazeltine solved it by mathematics.

The dinner will mark the first anniversary of the club. Mr. Emil Amelotti, M. S., assistant professor of mathematics, started it last year among the freshmen engineers to give those interested a chance to look into topics not covered in the regular courses.

At present all the members are from the sophomore class, but the dinner will give the freshman engineers a chance to get acquainted with the club and its work before the elecetion of new members next year.

'Delta Pi Epsilon' Given Green Light

Delta Pi Epsilon, School of Commerce and Finance fraternity, may be revived in the near future if the proper historical background of the organization can be unearthed.

Rev. B. A. Albers, O. S. A., Dean of Men, has pointed out the importance of discovering the significance of the name, Delta Pi Epsilon, as well as the location of the former charter of the fraternity. A group of students are working on these problems.

Difficulty is expected to be encountered in the location of the charter since it may have been destroyed along with other documents at the time of Villanova's last fire. Although this would necessitate getting in touch with former secretaries of the fraternity, it is expected that on the return of the students from Christmas vacation that the necessary information will be obtained to permit the organization to again take its place in college activities.

SOCIOLOGY CLASS VISITS NEW STATE PENITENTIARY

The New Eastern State Penitentiary located at Gratersford, Pennsylvania, was the scene of a tour conducted by the Sociology classes under the supervision of Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., moderator, on Thursday, November 30.

The tour of inspection included visits to the cell blocks and the commissaries, and resulted in the members' receiving a general idea of the conditions under which the inmates of a prison live.

Another tour to the same penitentiary is scheduled for Thursday, December 7, for those who were unable to be present at the first tour.

Senior News

Seniors must return proofs personally to Zamsky Studio no later than Saturday, December 9.

Ordered pictures will be returned to the students on Tuesday, December 12 in the Reception Room. At this time, full payment for pictures must be made.

There will be an important meeting on Wednesday, December 6. All will please attend as plans must be made concerning the dinner-dance.

Villanova Rosemont Chorus To Give Recital Tonight

Fr. Ralph Handran Announces Varied Program Including Harp Solo, Vocal Solos and Many Choral Numbers

By JOSEPH GAMBESCIA

The combined choral groups of Villanova College and Rosemont College will hold their second annual concert this evening in the Villanova Field House at 8:30 P. M.

The chorus of one hundred voices includes sixty students from Rosemont and forty from Villanova under the direction of the Rev. Ralph Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus.

Classical, popular, sacred, folk and collegiate songs will be on the program representing the genius of Beethoven, Brahms, Palestrina, Strauss, Tchaikowsky, and Gershwin.

Among the soloists will be Kathryn Jane Kearns who will render two selections on the harp, Pierre's "Impromptou Caprice" and Salzedo's arrangement of the "Volga Boatman."

Joseph York and William Appel, tenors, Hugh Boyle, baritone, and Charles Cavanaugh, bass, will comprise the Villanova quartet and will sing "The World Is Waiting For the Sunrise" by Seitz and "The Drum," by Gibson.

Betty Raser, freshman, will sing "None But the Lonely Heart" by Tchaikowsky.

A feature of the recital will be W. Lawrence Cury's "Nightingale" sung by Jane Schwartz, Rosemont freshman, and a chorus.

"Tales from Vienna Woods" by Strauss, the "Hallelujah Chorus" of Beethoven and Palestrina's "Sicut Cervus" will be included in the presentation by the mixed chorus in addition to "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place" by Brahms, "Summer Time" by Gershwin; Palingren's "Sorrow," and the "Silver Swan" by Gibons and "Jesu Dulcis Memoria" by Vittoria.

The male voices will sing Praetorius' "Low, How a Rose."

The managers are Gerard Belz and Marie Costello. Members of the committee are Joseph McCabe, Fred Kull, James Brady, Edward Eichman, and John T. Gallagher, chairman.

Members of the arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta, will act as ushers at the concert. The following have been appointed from the senior class: Joseph M. McNamara, Robert G. Wilderotter, Arthur E. Fanning, Francis M. Fitzpatrick, and William F. Garrity.

Others are James P. Collins, Thomas J. Moore, William N. Way, Robert P. Schisler, and James Forkin, juniors; and John M. Baeder, sophomore.

Fr. Handran also wishes to impress upon the students the fact that, while tickets to the affair are sold at $.45, they may be purchased at the bookstore today for 10 cents when the buyer presents his matriculation card.

DECORATION PLANS NEAR COMPLETION

New Features Will Lead Wintery Theme to Belle Air Ball

Plans for decorating the Field House for the Belle Air Ball, to be held January 12, are rapidly nearing completion according to M. Joseph McNamara, chairman of decorations.

In a recent statement McNamara said that several new features will be presented in order to insure a novel note in decorating. One of the changes made will be the elimination of the fountain which has been the chief ornament in former years. In its stead will be substitued a wintery theme more in keeping with the season. "Incidently," said the chairman, "this will mark the first dance that the seniors will attend that has not been characterized by the presence of a fountain."

A winter garden that will be composed of tall shrubs and smaller plants sprayed with silver or white to represent snow will surround the bandstand which will be located in front of the stage. In each corner of the garden a frozen pond will appear, giving the impression of a recent snowfall and cold spell.

Besides the interior adornment, it is the plan of the committee to eliminate the bare aspect that has been evidenced in the lobby at previous dances. In order to make this possible it has been suggested that the foyer should be decorated in such a manner that it would remove all trace of athletic contests. This will be accomplished by the use of ferns and other materials.

Likewise, among other suggestions that have been presented, it is most probable that a marquee leading from the road to the entrance of the Field House will be erected with a uniformed doorman in attendance to assist guests from their cars. This idea, although not entirely new, being suggested for the Junior Prom last May, is more feasible when the season of the year is considered. In view of the possibility of inclement weather it is expected that the marquee will play a leading role in preventing the finery of the ladies from being ruined by the elements.

Fr. Bartley Lists C F Honor Students

Yesterday the honor roll of the School of Commerce and Finance, except for the junior ratings, for the first quarter was released by Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean.

The following received the rating of excellence in studies:

In the senior class: Charles Volz, Frank Pimpinella, and Gerald Lynam

In the sophomore class: Thomas Sullivan, Thomas Doyle, and Bernard Swartz.

In the freshman class: Loring Jones, Ward Guncheon, John Di Carlo, and Mortimer Mahoney.

These students received the rating of merit in studies:

In the freshman class: William Fallon, William Walpole, Edward Cublar, and Harry Keefrieder.

Arts Frat Pledges Juniors and Seniors

Arthur Fanning and Frank Fitzpatrick, seniors in Education and Arts respectively, were appointed co-chairmen of the pledge committee by President Joseph McNamara at yesterday' meeting of the Epsilon Phi Theta.

At the meeting the constitution of the Fraternity was read and duly approved. It was drawn up by a committee which included Frank Fitzpatrick, Thomas Moore, Andrea D'Angelo, and Joseph Bongiovanni, who served as chairman of the committee.

Part of the meeting was given over to pledging those present as members. Rev. Edward Dwyer, moderator, first pledged the President who in turn pledged the others present. A motion was proposed and carried to pledge Rev. Dwyer as a member.

The next meeting of the Fraternity is scheduled to take place Monday at 1:00. The purpose of this meeting is to receive the pledges of those Artsmen who were unable to attend yesterday's meeting and to discussed and determined plans for the future activities of the organization. At this meeting will be broached also the question of financing these activities.

It Will Be Superior

THIS EVENING at 8:30, the curtain will rise on the first major choral concert of Rosemont-Villanova Colleges. After many weeks of hard work spent in rehearsing the numbers for this evening's program the members of the chorus group are anticipating a large audience. For this anticipation they have every right—the program to be offered is one which is bound to please all who are in the least bit interested in an appreciation of fine music.

But what of the audience? Of whom will it be composed? According to reports it will be composed chiefly of outsiders and students from Rosemont College. The question naturally arises what about the Villanova student body? The answer is to found in the number of Villanova students who attended the recital of the Glee Club last Spring. At this concert only sixty-six students bought tickets to attend—sixty-six out of roughly nine hundred. Is this what could be called a good representation?

Villanova students, are you going to allow the idea to gain momentum that things containing culture are of no interest to you? The answer rests entirely upon your shoulders. Attend tonight's concert!

Happy New Year

LAST SUNDAY there began a new ecclesiastical year, a new year of worship to God and service to neighbor. This pre-Christmas period, Advent, prepares us "to adore the King Who is to come." It reveals to a weary world of the twentieth century, shorn of its sophisticated mask and craving a stable place of rest, the expectation of the ancient world in its long night of spiritual unrest.

But Christ in His human form has visited this world and gone. He has been gone for quite some time, too. The approaching Christmas will mark the nineteen hundred and thirty-ninth anniversary of His birth. Then why should the present condition of this world of ours, 1939 years after Christ, be pessimistically likened by some to the pagan straits of 1939 years before Christ? Was Christ, the Man-God, a failure? No, indeed. It is true He is no longer here directly under bodily guise, but He left us Himself in the Blessed Sacrament under the appearances of bread and wine. He bequeathed us His own Roman Catholic Church which continues to teach the self-same doctrines He taught in His name and right. If to some the present status of the world parallels the B. C. universe, the fault lies not with Christ but with mankind itself. His teachings, the dogmas of faith of the Catholic Church, need only to be adopted and practiced for convincing results.

Advent, the four week preparatory and penitential season is an opportune time to knuckle down and honestly practice your religion. It is the beginning of a new year, time for spiritual inventory, time to replace the old, seiled ledger with a clean, new one and begin the transcription of this year's deeds. Please, every one to a man, make this Advent the testing-ground of a concentrated drive for a practical life of the Catholic Ideal! God both gently asks it in His love and demands it in His justice!

Democracy On The Campus

FROM TIME to time notices are posted on the bulletin board dealing with certain offences on the part of the students against college regulations. There seem to be some students who believe that these restrictions are hard sticks of discipline which the officials force on them. Hence, some take a pleasure in violating them because they think they are putting something over on the officials of the school.

As students of democratic principles we know that laws are not made to protect the officers but the interest and welfare of society in general; therefore, an offense against a law is an offense against society.

This principle in turn can be applied to college regulations, A violation of laws here should be considered an offense against the student body and should be punishable as such. This is not a radical idea, for in the past the student body, through its representatives, has acted accordingly. A classic example of such can be pointed out. The Sophomore class, after reviewing the refusal of the Frosh to adhere to the college traditions of wearing "regs," has reserved indefinitely its right of participating in Field Day. This is enough evidence to show that the Sophs do not think that the Freshmen were violating laws set up by anyone in particular, but are of the opinion that the Frosh have insulted the student body in general through their actions.

If this attitude becomes prevalent on the campus, the individuals will have absorbed another principle of democratic government by living it in practice; thus the idea the VILLANOVAN advanced in one of its first editorials this year will have been in part realized—i. e., that the only way to learn to appreciate democratic principles is to live according to them not by learning their theory alone.

Continuing a Precedent

THE DAILY eight-fifteen Mass for day-hops held during the last month set a precedent that we hope will be followed during Lent of next year. Even more than November this is a period of devotion, and the same opportunities should be available then as there were last month.

More will desire to attend the daily Mass during the Lenten season, and if the opportunity to do so is offered at the college chapel there is no doubt that students who otherwise should find it impossible to attend will make use of it.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Quest for Truth and Beauty Primary End of Science

Science—Even Physical Sciences—Are Speculative in Final Analysis

By JOHN H. CRAWFORD, O. S. A., M. S.
Professor of Physics

Theoretical Scientific Data

IN a recent book review, A. H. Compton wrote: "It has been said that the science of physics has done more during the past 50 years to improve the economic, social, and cultural life of man than has been accomplished in a similar period by any other agency in history."

I believe that this statement would be equally true if we changed the words "science of physics" to "physical science," so as to include biology and chemistry. The practical value of physical science is far too extensive to be discussed in such a limited space. We need only to look about us to realize that our present-day civilization could not have been attained nor could long endure without science.

The science of biology, which had its beginnings as medical science, has made enormous advances in the battle against the diseases which ravage the human race. Today, medicine not only seeks to cure those who are ill, but makes every effort to secure methods and means for the prevention of disease.

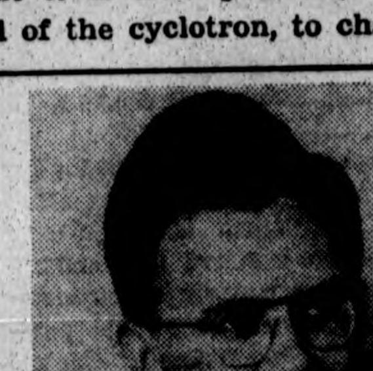
Who could begin to enumerate the points at which chemistry touches our daily lives? The single example of the automobile, which serves more than half the population of our country and which would have been impossible without the chemistry of petroleum, is a case in point.

Modern communication and transportation could not exist without the science of physics. It would be hard to imagine today's business being conducted without the aid of telephone, telegraph, and radio, steamships, locomotives, automobiles, and airplanes. But the science of physics has contributed every one of these indispensable means of today's living.

It frequently happens that scientists are criticized because they are too theoretical; the layman wants to see practical results coming out of scientific research. But such criticism is unwarranted. Often the most unexpected practical applications are derived from purely theoretical speculations. To those who first learned of Maxwell's electromagnetic theory of light, which was merely an effort to displace the ether theory with one that would prove more satisfactory, it must have seemed that there could be little of practical value in such theorizing. And yet as a direct result of Maxwell's speculations, plus the research of men like Hertz, Marconi and de Forrest, today we have nation-wide radio hook-ups and war news direct from the capitals of Europe.

The winner of the Nobel Prize in Physics for 1939 was announced recently. He is Prof. E. O. Lawrence, youthful inventor of the cyclotron, better known as the atom smasher. A few years ago when Lawrence published the first results of his invention, there were many who felt that here, indeed, was an example of the impracticality of the research scientist; for Lawrence began his work as a purely theoretical investigation into the constitution of the atom and the possibility of tranmutation of elements—the dream of the alchemists of the Middle Ages.

Success has crowned the labors of Lawrence and his co-workers so that it is now possible, with the aid of the cyclotron, to change one element into another. But it is not the gold of the alchemist that is produced from baser elements, but artificially radio-active substances from those which normally show no such activity.



Fr. Crawford

A. B., Villanova, 1921; ordained, Villanova, 1923; M. A., Catholic Univ., 1924 (major, physics); studied physics at Univ. of Pennsylvania, 1924; Johns Hopkins, 1933-1939, physics, specializing in ultra-sonics.

Most important is the fact that these artificial radio-active elements are much more powerful in the treatment of cancer than similar elements which occur in nature. Moreover these elements, which are a direct product of the theoretical investigation into the structure of the atom, can be produced more cheaply than it is possible to wrest them from nature,, so that treatment of cancer, the scourge of the race today, is extended to a far greater number than could have been reached without the aid of the cyclotron. Another triumph for theoretical research.

On The House of Hires:

The Hires Company erred in their annual booklet containing football schedules, in saying Bowdoin beat Bates last year 21-0. The score was just the reverse. The mistake was called to their attention and the athletic director received the following letter: "We are sending to the college a shipment of Hires, containing a bottle for each undergraduate. We feel that a drink for each should be on us in order to offer our sincere apology for such a serious mistake."

Cierkowski And Maucieri Display Similar Histories; Active In Many Extra-Curricular Positions

CHEMICAL engineers en masse take over "Introducing" this week as we present laboratory locker-mates of two years' standing and two scholastic histories of marked similarity. In this corner we spotlight Wilmington's contribution to the duo—Edward J. Cierkowski.

In September of 1936, due chiefly to the arguments and exortations of a friend and former student, Ed Gornowski '38, Ed donned the blue and white dink and officially became a humble Villanova frosh.

Joins P. K. P. in First Year

During his first year he joined the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity and the following year he became a member of the Chemical Engineering Society and was elected secretary-treasurer of this organization. As a sophomore he also served on the Vigilance Committee.

In his Junior year Ed was elected vice-president of both the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity and the Chemical Engineering Society. From here on he seems to have become an inveterate committeeman; he served on committees for Mother's Day, Open House, Blazer Ball, and Class Rings. Deeming these activities insufficient to use up his abundance of spare time, Ed lent his talents to the Villanova Engineer and in January was made business manager of this magazine. He also joined his brother in chemistry, John Maucieri, by becoming a laboratory assistant.

Still Serves

This year he is president of the Chemical Engineering Society and is still living up to his mania for serving on committees by already being selected for two: one for the Owl Hop and the other for the Belle Air Ball.

. . . Jack Maucieri and Ed Cierkowski engaged in an experiment in the Chem Lab.

This is what we know of Ed since he entered Villanova but what are deep, dark secrets of his hidden past?

Secrets of Past Revealed

The great event occurred on August 17, 1915, in Wilmington, Delaware. After attending grammar school at Public School No. 19 and Bayard School, and incidentally, completing the eight year course in seven years, he enrolled at Wilmington High School. Here Ed played the quiet roll of a student until third year when he entered almost every activity in the school: he was an officer in the Theta Phi fraternity, played halfback on the football team, was a javelin thrower and pole vaulter on the track team, and became a member of both the Spanish and French Clubs.

In his senior year he was elected class president and all during high school he was a member of the National Honor Society. At graduation he set a precedent for his friend-to-be, Maucieri, by winning the mathematics prize.

Working His Way Through College

After leaving Wilmington, Ed spent three years working he worked about six months in a women's shoe store and the rest of the time as a mechanic's helper on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Every Summer he returns to his job with the railroad and has thus been able to pay his own way through college.

Following graduation in June he would like to continue his studies if possible and get a post-graduate degree at Penn.

THE other half of this Damian and Pythias combination, this duo of laboratory wizards, hails from Philadelphia. For your edification and admiration we present John J. Maucieri, Sports Editor of the Belle Air and chemical engineer super deluxe.

Recipient of Two Scholarships

When John graduated from high school in June of 1936, he felt that he did not have the time to earn enough money to pay his way through college as Ciercowski had done so he compromised by winning a scholarship—two of them, in fact; one to La Salle and the other to Villanova. Having chosen the latter because he wished to study engineering, he enrolled here the following September.

In his freshman year he joined the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity and in his sophomore year the Chemical Engineering Society. (For similar details consult the life of Cierkowski in the local paper.) It was also as a sophomore that John made his first appearance on the Belle Air sports staff.

Becomes Laboratory Assistant

In third year he began working as an assistant in the general chemistry laboratory and he still devotes his energies to this task every Saturday morning.

As a senior John has been appointed Sports Editor of the Belle Air and seems to have caught his workmate's passion for committees, already having been appointed chairman of two: the re-organization committee and the banquet committee, both of the Chemical Engineering Society. During all three years he has been on the honor roll of engineering school.

John made his initial appearance in the drama of life on March 30, 1919, the scene being laid in the southern part of Philadelphia.

Attends Many Grammar Schools

He began his scholastic activities at Stephen Girard but before he reached the second grade he had attended two other institutions of learning. Shortly after starting school he moved to Merchantville, N. J., but a few months later returned to Philadelphia, this time entering St. Monica's.

Second, third and fourth grades having been likewise completed at St. Monica's, the urge to travel was again felt and our budding scholar journeyed to his present home, a district in Southwest Philadelphia known as the "Meadows." Here John completed his grammar school education and received a medal at graduation for being first in class.

Captures Medals in High School

In 1932 he entered West Catholic High School For two years he played a game of watchful waiting, but third and fourth years were a different story. In both of the latter he was an honor student. As a senior he was a member of the year book staff and when he graduated he won two medals—one for being an honor man and the other for mathematics.

After he graduates John hopes to get on some sort of a chemical engineering job, prefarably with a large corporation. He claims that his favorite hobby is sleeping, to quote him: "I'd rather sleep than eat." Among his fellow engineers, however, he is known for his arguments with Bud Leary and as an admirer of the scenery on the P. & W.

Stories Of The School

Alumni Organized 1875

By WILLIAM E. SCHUBERT

Mention of the year 1875 would mean little or nothing to the average Villanova student, yet it is one of the most important dates in the history of the College, for on June 29 of that year there was founded an institution which has developed into one of Villanova's strongest and best organized bodies, the Villanova College Alumni Association.

On this historic day, now almost 65 years past, the Alumni held their first meeting, with the Very Rev. President Galberry, Bishop-elect of Hartford, acting as chairman.

The Alumni is a living parallel to the old adage, "great oaks grow from little acorns," for, from a group so small that the first meeting was held in the house parlor of the monastery, the body grew slowly but steadily until in 1932, when it was re-organized, it was found necessary to station an Alumni Secretary at the college.

Bishop First Chairman

The Alumni, as it exists today, received its final moulding in June of 1938, when a new constitution was drawn up and officially adopted. According to this new constitution, the purpose for which the organized and united support of Villanova College by the Alumni, Association is formed is: "for the preservation and strengthening of those fraternal ties among the Alumni inculcated during their student days at Villanova."

Administrative Board

The Alumni is governed by an administrative board consisting of a President, a 1st Vice-President, a 2nd Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, Chaplain, and Board of Governors.

The Board of Governors is composed of the above mentionel officers, with the exception of the Chaplain, together with the immediate past President, one representative from each local club, two representatives appointed by the President of the College, and a minority appointed by the President of the Association. It is really the Board of Governors, through its regular quarterly meetings, which directs the activities of the association throughout the year.

Several measures have been adopted to keep the widely scattered members of the Alumni in as close connection as possible with one another. Local clubs have been formed in numerous districts throughout the country. The idea of local clubs is comparatively recent in origin. Ten years ago there were only a few and the Philadelphia club, the oldest of them, has only been in existence for 20 years.

Activities Varied

Recently, however, the number has increased rapidly and there are now 26 clubs, extending from Lawrence, Mass., to Richmond, Va., and as far west as Detroit, with plans already underway for the founding of a Chicago club. The Philadelphia club, in addition to being the oldest, is also the largest with a potential membership of 687.

Another instrument which has proved effective in bringing the members into closer contact with each other is the edition of a publication by the Alumni for the Alumni.

26 Local Clubs

The "Villanova Alumnus" first appeared in 1935, after publication of the "Villanova Alumni News," edited by the college, had been discontinued. The "Alumnus" now has a circulation of 1000 copies and is printed four times a year.

The two feature attractions of the Alumni's social program are Homecoming Day, which includes a football game and dinner-dance, and the week-end reunion, held immediately after graduation.

All the expenses of the association are paid from the Maintenance Fund, contributions to which are purely voluntary.

In addition to any presentations which the local clubs might make, several awards are bestowed annually to the organization as a whole: a plaque is given the class having the greatest number at the week-end reunion; a trophy is given the alumnus coming the longest distance to the reunion week-end; the Maintenance Fund cup is presented to the local club which has the greatest number of its potential membership contributing to the Maintenance Fund; a cup is awarded to the alumnus who has done the most for the school in the past year; and a Publicity Competition Cup is given to the club which has gotten the most publicity in the local papers for Villanova.

Graduation from Villanova is not a requisite for membership in the organization; former martriculates, recipient of honorary degrees, friends and benefactors [illegible] present or past faculty [illegible] considered eli[illegible]

SELF-DECAPITATION is exceedingly difficult and, besides, it's suicide, which is punishable by death"—"The Mikado."

Forty Auburn students signed away their lives in a pact disguised as a petition. The petition to the administration for a grant of an extension of one day to Auburn's Christmas vacation contained a clause in which the signers promised to cut off their heads on return from the holidays.

Most of the signers were students outstanding in leadership and activities. Most of them merely scanned the petition and stated, "Sure, I'll sign it. Hope it goes through," or, "I'll sign it, I'm for anything," and, "The pleasure's all mine." Eleven members chosen for "Who's Who in American Colleges" signed it.

The killing paragraph read, "We respectfully submit this petition, faithfully promising to decapitate ourselves on return from said holidays."

FEDIGAN CAPTURES DECORATION AWARD FOR TEMPLE GAME

Connelly Plaque Given After Heated Competition Between Victors and Austin

By WARD GUNCHEON

The pre-Temple rally saw Villanova's West Enders, Fedigan Hall, garner in for the third consecutive time the Connelly award presented to the resident hall displaying the best pre-Temple decorations.

In the hotly contested race, the war theme was predominate with both the victor and its arch-enemy, Austin Hall, using military tactics.

Fedigan's army of privates under General Father Donnellon, featured Villanova goal posts barricaded with sand-bags and guarded with pill boxes imported directly from the Maginot Line. Colorful banners spread over the entire front of the building carried such war clogans, "We have our aircraft carriers—Basca and Mazzie," "We have our 'subs,' too." On either side of the building were huge blue and white letters, V. C.

Austin Hall employed the talents of its engineers in the construction of a large snarling 'Cat. On its tongue was a somewhat timid and anemic Owl. The 'Cat, made in four separate pieces, was mathetmatically planned to the fraction of an inch. Brilliantly flood-lighted were the Wildcat's goal posts defended with barbed wire and pill boxes. Facing them were the Temple posts completely destroyed by the 'Cats "lightning attack."

Alumni and Mendel completed the campus displays with banners depicting the Temple losses to Villanova in previous years along with the prediction for the coming game.

The Alumni display was completed following the game when the Temple goal posts were added by the Freshman football team.

Industries Require Practical Workers

Too much studying does not make a good engineer, was the warning of Lester M. Goldsmith, Chief Engineer of the Atlantic Refining Company's Philadelphia plant, and guest speaker at the annual A. S. M. E. Smoker at the Field House last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Goldsmith said that to an engineer a mechanical sense, an ability to solve problems in the most practical way is as important as a mass of knowledge of theory.

Criticizing the popular belief that engineers are too practical, the speaker said it was his experience in hiring men that they aren't practical enough, and he urged the developement of common sense as well as studying theory for the engineering student.

The were about 60 in the audience which was made up of faculty members, student members of the A. S. M. E. from Swarthmore College, Drexel Institute, and the University of Pennsylvania, as well as the local members.

The program of the evening was held in the Blue Room, and before and after the speeches the billiards room, the bowling alleys, and the swimming pool were open to and used by those present. Refreshments were also served afterwards.

The following reply was received by Robert S. Keeler, senior business student, in response to a letter which he sent to Davis Rich Dewey, Ph. D., correcting the latter on a contradiction in his text, United States Financial History:

AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW

Mass.

October 27, 1939.

Mr. Robert S. Keeler,
Villanova College,
Villanova, Pa.

My dear Mr. Keeler:

I received your letter of October 22. You have convicted me of an error; and I wish to congratulate you and your associates on your careful reading. This speaks well for the scholarship of our smaller colleges that you should be the first to detect the slip on my part. I might add that this is the second slip which has been discovered during a somewhat long period of publication and use of the volume.

Minimum duties were not introduced in the Tariff of 1824. I have consulted the original statutes, and have also refreshed my memory somewhat in regard to the debate. The minimum principle was adopted by the House but afterwards struck out by the Senate in the debate in 1824.

I shall change my text to read as follows on page 174:

> "The duties on woolen goods were slightly raised, but the effort to extend the principle of minimum value from cotton to woolen good was not successful."

Yours sincerely,

FR. DUNNE READS PAPER

Monroe Doctrine Subject of History Seminar Meeting Last Tuesday

Activity at the history seminar on Tuesday, Nov. 28 was centered around the Monroe Doctrine. A paper delivered by Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., M. A., was the highlight of the meeting.

Father's paper was concerned with problems incidental to the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine—problems which have arisen from the European situation and which involve American interests. Following the presentation of the paper a discussion ensued dealing chiefly with the question "Is the Monroe Doctrine a Policy or a Doctrine?"

The seminar meets every Tuesday at 4:30, and if any of the students are interested in this question they are urged to attend.

L. K. D. Makes Ready For Future Events

Members of the L. K. D. fraternity are preparing for a dinner-dance, which will be held in the early spring.

Beginning with Thursday, Dec. 7, a campaign for new members will begin. Any student in the science school is eligible for consideration, according to Charles G. Martin, president of the organization.

Meanwhile, arrangements are being made to bring outside speakers to the meetings to address the members on topics usually concerning the fields of medicine and dentistry. This year, the members will also visit many places of interest associated to students of science.

The next meeting will find the constitution of the fraternity enforced strictly from that time on. The president urges all members to attend, as important business is to be considered.

PARTICIPATES IN OLYMPICS

Villanova will be represented by four men at the Cultural Olympics to be held at the University of Pennsylvania on Saturday, December 9 in the morning and afternoon.

Two men will be chosen to participate in each of the speech divisions, extemporaneous and declamation, on Wednesday, December 6. The exact time at which they will be chosen will be posted on the bulletin board by Murray P. Zealor, manager of debate.

VOGEL TO TALK ON "STEEL"

At the next regular meeting of the Villanova Chemical Society, Carl Vogel, junior chemical engineer will deliver a talk on "Steel." December 7 the society will take a trip to the plant of the E. J. Lavino Co. at Plymouth Meeting, Pa., to witness the manufacture of industrial refactories.

SHORT PLAYS BEGIN THESPIAN SEASON

Belle Masque Society Sponsors Student-Directed Playlets in Talent Search

On Thursday evening, Nov. 21, the Belle Masque Society of Villanova made its first public appearance of the year, by presenting four one-act plays, directed by students, in the Field House.

The first to trod the boards were: Thomas Devine, Joseph O'Donnell, John Coleman, David Reardon, and George Weber appearing in "Four of a Kind," a comedy-drama of pearls, Chinamen, and murder under a tropical moon. The show was produced and directed by Robert McIntyre, sophomore in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Following "Four of a Kind," Robert Wilderotter, senior Artsman, presented another mystery play, "It Looks Like Murder," in which the roles were enacted by Edward Hanlon, James Donovan, Thomas McKimmey and Joseph McNamara.

After an intermission during which Rev. Robert Sullivan, O. S. A., M. A., moderator of the Society addressed the audience, Joseph McCabe, sophomore in the School of Commerce and Finance, presented still another mystery play entitled, "A Smart Reporter," in which the principal role was enacted by Andrew Melton. Supporting him were: Daniel Savini, Eugene Smith, James Thompson, James Walsh and Thomas Lyons.

The last show and only comedy of the evening was directed by Robert O'Brien, senior Commerce student. "That This May Never Happen," enacted by George Haggerty, Paul Fitzmaurice, James McGovern, and Frank Quaranta, brought howls of laughter from the audience, (especially the feminine contingent!) by giving the "inside" of what really goes on at the ladies' bridge club meetings as satirized by male poker players.

Arrangements for scenery and lighting were handled back-stage by stage manager John Gallagher, and electrician Robert Dooley.

Research Seminar Studies Hydroponics

Harry Goodman, junior science student, presented "The Effect of a Deficiency of Certain Elements Upon the Growth of the Garden Pea." in the recent Research Seminar.

Brought out in the discussion was the fact that plants grown under ordinary conditions utilize only water and dissolved salts from the soil. Goodman in his experiments grew the pea in salt solutions, doing away with the soil completely.

By varying the concentrations of the ions concerned, it was possible to alter the health and appearance of the plant. Jars lacking calcium, phosphorous, and iron, caused the greatest stunt in growth. Only by the proper balance of the various ions can healthy plants be grown.

VILLANOVANS AT PREMIUM

VILLANOVANS were at a premium last week when Temple University fraternity pledges were required as part of their initiation to procure a copy of a "Villanova newspaper." In addition to numerous copies of the coveted paper pledges also brought to the campus quotes from "Esquire," 1903 pennies, live white chickens, et al.

Basketball Season Opens Friday At Field House

Mount St. Mary's Furnish Opposition in Curtain-Raiser; Loyola and Wittenberg on Week's Card at Villanova Home Court

By BOB FUNABASHI

Friday night, the 1939 edition of the Villanova basketball team will make its debut into the ranks of winter sports, when the Blue and White squad, discarding their preliminary methods, will engage Mt. St. Mary's at the Field House.

Coach Al Severance, commencing his third year as court mentor, will have a strong squad to represent the Blue and White with a formidable array of veterans who were part of last years squad. The Wildcats held the coveted position of Middle Atlantic Champions last year and included in that winning combination were; Mike Lazorchak, Loyd Rice, Chuck Yund, Paul Nugent, George Duzminski, Bill Sinnott, "Reds" Murphy and Ernie Robinson. The aforementioned will form the nucleus of this years squad, supplemented by last year's freshman squad.

Starters Unrevealed

No indications have been made ye tas to the starting five, but it is probable that the more experienced members will break the ice and probably give way to the newcomers who will try to grasp the Villanova system in actual play. Coming up from the freshman squad are the reserve strength and possible starters, Dick Gray, Bill Gerland, Tony Parpan, James Stakem, Ad Worthington Frank Famalette and Tom Hartford.

The folowing night the Wildcats will meet Loyola of Baltimore, at the field house also. Loyola fell before Villanova's high-riding quintet last year by the score of 42-21, but this year their squad is enthused to a high pitch eager to topple the Wildcats. Mt. St. Mary's is a new opponent on the basketball schedule as is Wittenberg College, whom the Blue and White faces on Monday night. The fourth team in five days will be met on Tuesday evening at the Gym, that being Washington College, who hail from Pennsylvania.

The Freshman team will meet Lincoln Prep in the Preliminary contest, Friday night. Art Spector and Bill Woods, former Brown Prep players will lead the Frosh in their opening fray.

Austin Defends Crown Won Last Year; Fedigan Outlook Brighter

By JOE BARNES

Austin Hall will defend her Intramural Swimming crown tomorrow night at the Field House Natorium against what is expected to be the toughest competition in years. As in the past the varsity tankmen, ineligible for mural competition, will put on an exhibition of their talents in connection with the interhall affair.

Father McKee's Austin crowd copped the crown with plenty to spare last January in rolling up 33 points. Closest competition came from the Mendel Hall team with eleven counters. Alumni was third followed by Fedigan and the Mende Day-Hops. C. & F. failed to tally.

Gaston in Fedigan

Biggest blow to Austin's hopes for a repeat came with the moving of last year's star, Melchor Gaston, up to Fedigan. Bandon, another winner for the Firemen last year, is also gone from Austin but Joe Clarken, who followed Bandon in the diving event, is expected to come through for the McKeemen this year.

First event on the program tomorrow evening at 8 P. M. will be the 50 yard freestyle with Melchor Gaston defending his crown. Last year's runner-up, Joe Scornavacci of Mendel Hall, has moved to Austin, thus giving that hall a chance to hold its laures in the event. Winning time ast year was 30.7 sec.

Bill Tobin, winner of the "100-freestyle" for Alumni Hall last January, has brought his crown up to Austin Hall for defending purposes and barring some "Black Horse" is

Varsity to Open Season With Delaware University

With six meets already scheduled and negotiations pending with eight more colleges the Villanova 1940 swimming schedule is rapidly nearing completion.

John Lind, varsity manager, has completed arrangements with Delaware University, Franklin and Marshall, Rider College, Pennsylvania, St. Francis College, and Seton Hall. Lind is also attempting to bring about meets with Fordham, Temple, La Salle, Swarthmore, Rutgers and several other colleges.

Appointment of a coach to succeed Ruggerio Flocco, who died last Summer, is expected in the next few days. Several prospects are under consideration.

Holdovers from last year's Blue tankmen include Walt Kelley, holder of numerous championships, John Pholeric, Charlie Timmins, Charlie Barrett, Ed Leahy, and several others. Kelley and Pholeric are juniors while Timmins, Barrett and Leahy bring their Villanova careers to a close this year.

The complete swimming schedule will be released in next week's VILLANOVAN if it is possible at that time.

CHISICK SELECTED FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Gridders Reward Andy for Two Years of Stellar Play

By HARRY MAZZEI

In their last appearance in uniform the 1939 edition of Villanova's gridiron Wildcats paused momentarily before the picture taking session of last Wednesday to elect Andy Chisick honorary captain for the year.

Andy, who performed so ably at the center post while wearing that big number "30" jersey, rose to stardom in his junior and senior years after sharing the position with Johnny McKenna in 1937. Besides receiving the captaincy, "Handy Andy" has also been selected for a Maxwell Award for his outstanding pivot performance in the Temple game, and the George LaMaze trophy for valuable play in the Texas A. and M. fray. Andy also applied the springboard for another successful 'Cat season when he commanded the Blue aggregation in this year's opener with Muhlenburg.

"All-American" Mention

Although Chisick has been given All-American mention in the last two years, there are many who feel that the big Newark boy has been slighted in the long run. There is no doubt in our minds about Chisick's ability. Ever since he pulled on his first varsity jersey his play has been ultra-conspicuous. For sheer power in line backing and accurate passing under adverse conditions this writer has yet to see the Newark Tornado's equal. From the results we find the locals were pretty well satisfied with the backfield situation. To the man they placed Jolting John Kimbrough at Fullback, Kay Eakin of Arkansas and Dick McGowen of Auburn at the wingback posts. Or the trio McGowen is the lone holdover from last year's rival team. Conatser, Kimbrough's teammate at Texas A. and M., held a three vote lead over Birrenger of Detroit for the Quarterback position.

Howell Unanimous

Unanimous choices on the line went to Captain "Hatch" Howell, sterling guard of the Auburn Plainsman and to Milt Simmington of the Arkansas Razorbacks at the left guard post.

Howard Hickey of the Razorbacks and Herb Smith, another Texas Aggie, won places on the honor team for their fine end play. Interesting to note is the number of votes that were cast for Muhlenburg's Scott for one of the terminal posts.

One Owl

Temple received one post on the 'Cats mythical ball club when Ed Kolman, the vicious tackling Brooklyn lad, polled 18 votes for a berth. Holding the other tackle position is Ted Pavolic of Gus Dorias' Titans. Joe Boyd of the Texas Aggies was beaten out by three votes by the Detroit star for the other Tackle position.

Auburn's Mal Morgan had things pretty much his own way in the loss to explain that situation, furthermore he is not even going to try.

FEDIGAN CAPTURES DECORATION AWARD FOR TEMPLE GAME

Connelly Plaque Given After Heated Competition Between Victors and Austin

By WARD GUNCHEON

The pre-Temple rally saw Villanova's West Enders, Fedigan Hall, garner in for the third consecutive time the Connelly award presented to the resident hall displaying the best pre-Temple decorations.

In the hotly contested race, the war theme was predominate with both the victor and its arch-enemy, Austin Hall, using military tactics.

Fedigan's army of privates under General Father Donnellon, featured Villanova goal posts barricaded with sand-bags and guarded with pill boxes imported directly from the Maginot Line. Colorful banners spread over the entire front of the building carried such war clogans, "We have our aircraft carriers—Basca and Mazzie," "We have our 'subs,' too." On either side of the building were huge blue and white letters, V. C.

Austin Hall employed the talents of its engineers in the construction of a large snarling 'Cat. On its tongue was a somewhat timid and anemic Owl. The 'Cat, made in four separate pieces, was mathetmatically planned to the fraction of an inch. Brilliantly flood-lighted were the Wildcat's goal posts defended with barbed wire and pill boxes. Facing them were the Temple posts completely destroyed by the 'Cats "lightning attack."

Alumni and Mendel completed the campus displays with banners depicting the Temple losses to Villanova in previous years along with the prediction for the coming game.

The Alumni display was completed following the game when the Temple goal posts were added by the Freshman football team.

Industries Require Practical Workers

Too much studying does not make a good engineer, was the warning of Lester M. Goldsmith, Chief Engineer of the Atlantic Refining Company's Philadelphia plant, and guest speaker at the annual A. S. M. E. Smoker at the Field House last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Goldsmith said that to an engineer a mechanical sense, an ability to solve problems in the most practical way is as important as a mass of knowledge of theory.

Criticizing the popular belief that engineers are too practical, the speaker said it was his experience in hiring men that they aren't practical enough, and he urged the developement of common sense as well as studying theory for the engineering student.

The were about 60 in the audience which was made up of faculty members, student members of the A. S. M. E. from Swarthmore College, Drexel Institute, and the University of Pennsylvania, as well as the local members.

The program of the evening was held in the Blue Room, and before and after the speeches the billiards room, the bowling alleys, and the swimming pool were open to and used by those present. Refreshments were also served afterwards.

My dear Mr. Keeler:

I received your letter of October 22. You have convicted me of an error; and I wish to congratulate you and your associates on your careful reading. This speaks well for the scholarship of our smaller colleges that you should be the first to detect the slip on my part. I might add that this is the second slip which has been discovered during a somewhat long period of publication and use of the volume.

Minimum duties were not introduced in the Tariff of 1824. I have consulted the original statutes, and have also refreshed my memory somewhat in regard to the debate. The minimum principle was adopted by the House but afterwards struck out by the Senate in the debate in 1824.

I shall change my text to read as follows on page 174:

> "The duties on woolen goods were slightly raised, but the effort to extend the principle of minimum value from cotton to woolen good was not successful."

Yours sincerely,

Monroe Doctrine Subject of History Seminar Meeting Last Tuesday

Activity at the history seminar on Tuesday, Nov. 28 was centered around the Monroe Doctrine. A paper delivered by Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., M. A., was the highlight of the meeting.

Father's paper was concerned with problems incidental to the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine—problems which have arisen from the European situation and which involve American interests. Following the presentation of the paper a discussion ensued dealing chiefly with the question "Is the Monroe Doctrine a Policy or a Doctrine?"

The seminar meets every Tuesday at 4:30, and if any of the students are interested in this question they are urged to attend.

L. K. D. Makes Ready For Future Events

Members of the L. K. D. fraternity are preparing for a dinner-dance, which will be held in the early spring.

Beginning with Thursday, Dec. 7, a campaign for new members will begin. Any student in the science school is eligible for consideration, according to Charles G. Martin, president of the organization.

Meanwhile, arrangements are being made to bring outside speakers to the meetings to address the members on topics usually concerning the fields of medicine and dentistry. This year, the members will also visit many places of interest associated to students of science.

The next meeting will find the constitution of the fraternity enforced strictly from that time on. The president urges all members to attend, as important business is to be considered.

PARTICIPATES IN OLYMPICS

Villanova will be represented by four men at the Cultural Olympics to be held at the University of Pennsylvania on Saturday, December 9 in the morning and afternoon.

Belle Masque Society Sponsors Student-Directed Playlets in Talent Search

On Thursday evening, Nov. 21, the Belle Masque Society of Villanova made its first public appearance of the year, by presenting four one-act plays, directed by students, in the Field House.

The first to trod the boards were: Thomas Devine, Joseph O'Donnell, John Coleman, David Reardon, and George Weber appearing in "Four of a Kind," a comedy-drama of pearls, Chinamen, and murder under a tropical moon. The show was produced and directed by Robert McIntyre, sophomore in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Following "Four of a Kind," Robert Wilderotter, senior Artsman, presented another mystery play, "It Looks Like Murder," in which the roles were enacted by Edward Hanlon, James Donovan, Thomas McKimmey and Joseph McNamara.

After an intermission during which Rev. Robert Sullivan, O. S. A., M. A., moderator of the Society addressed the audience, Joseph McCabe, sophomore in the School of Commerce and Finance, presented still another mystery play entitled, "A Smart Reporter," in which the principal role was enacted by Andrew Melton. Supporting him were: Daniel Savini, Eugene Smith, James Thompson, James Walsh and Thomas Lyons.

The last show and only comedy of the evening was directed by Robert O'Brien, senior Commerce student. "That This May Never Happen," enacted by George Haggerty, Paul Fitzmaurice, James McGovern, and Frank Quaranta, brought howls of laughter from the audience, (especially the feminine contingent!) by giving the "inside" of what really goes on at the ladies' bridge club meetings as satirized by male poker players.

Arrangements for scenery and lighting were handled back-stage by stage manager John Gallagher, and electrician Robert Dooley.

Research Seminar Studies Hydroponics

Harry Goodman, junior science student, presented "The Effect of a Deficiency of Certain Elements Upon the Growth of the Garden Pea." in the recent Research Seminar.

Brought out in the discussion was the fact that plants grown under ordinary conditions utilize only water and dissolved salts from the soil. Goodman in his experiments grew the pea in salt solutions, doing away with the soil completely.

By varying the concentrations of the ions concerned, it was possible to alter the health and appearance of the plant. Jars lacking calcium, phosphorous, and iron, caused the greatest stunt in growth. Only by the proper balance of the various ions can healthy plants be grown.

Basketball Season Opens Friday At Field House

Mount St. Mary's Furnish Opposition in Curtain-Raiser; Loyola and Wittenberg on Week's Card at Villanova Home Court

By BOB FUNABASHI

Friday night, the 1939 edition of the Villanova basketball team will make its debut into the ranks of winter sports, when the Blue and White squad, discarding their preliminary methods, will engage Mt. St. Mary's at the Field House.

Coach Al Severance, commencing his third year as court mentor, will have a strong squad to represent the Blue and White with a formidable array of veterans who were part of last years squad. The Wildcats held the coveted position of Middle Atlantic Champions last year and included in that winning combination were, Mike Lazorchak, Loyd Rice, Chuck Yund, Paul Nugent, George Duzminski, Bill Sinnott, "Reds" Murphy and Ernie Robinson. The aforementioned will form the nucleus of this years squad, supplemented by last year's freshman squad.

Starters Unrevealed

No indications have been made ye tas to the starting five, but it is probable that the more experienced members will break the ice and probably give way to the newcomers who will try to grasp the Villanova system in actual play. Coming up from the freshman squad are the reserve strength and possible starters, Dick Gray, Bill Gerland, Tony Parpan, James Stakem, Ad Worthington Frank Famalette and Tom Hartford.

The folowing night the Wildcats will meet Loyola of Baltimore, at the field house also. Loyola fell before Villanova's high-riding quintet last year by the score of 42-21, but this year their squad is enthused to a high pitch eager to topple the Wildcats. Mt. St. Mary's is a new opponent on the basketball schedule as is Wittenberg College, whom the Blue and White faces on Monday night. The fourth team in five days will be met on Tuesday evening at the Gym, that being Washington College, who hail from Pennsylvania.

The Freshman team will meet Lincoln Prep in the Preliminary contest, Friday night. Art Spector and Bill Woods, former Brown Prep players will lead the Frosh in their opening fray.

Austin Defends Crown Won Last Year; Fedigan Outlook Brighter

By JOE BARNES

Austin Hall will defend her Intramural Swimming crown tomorrow night at the Field House Natorium against what is expected to be the toughest competition in years. As in the past the varsity tankmen, ineligible for mural competition, will put on an exhibition of their talents in connection with the interhall affair.

Father McKee's Austin crowd copped the crown with plenty to spare last January in rolling up 33 points. Closest competition came from the Mendel Hall team with eleven counters. Alumni was third followed by Fedigan and the Mende Day-Hops. C. & F. failed to tally.

Gaston in Fedigan

Biggest blow to Austin's hopes for a repeat came with the moving of last year's star, Melchor Gaston, up to Fedigan. Bandon, another winner for the Firemen last year, is also gone from Austin but Joe Clarken, who followed Bandon in the diving event, is expected to come through for the McKeemen this year.

First event on the program tomorrow evening at 8 P. M. will be the 50 yard freestyle with Melchor Gaston defending his crown. Last year's runner-up, Joe Scornavacci of Mendel Hall, has moved to Austin, thus giving that hall a chance to hold its laures in the event. Winning time ast year was 30.7 sec.

Bill Tobin, winner of the "100-freestyle" for Alumni Hall last January, has brought his crown up to Austin Hall for defending purposes and barring some "Black Horse" is

Varsity to Open Season With Delaware University

With six meets already scheduled and negotiations pending with eight more colleges the Villanova 1940 swimming schedule is rapidly nearing completion.

John Lind, varsity manager, has completed arrangements with Delaware University, Franklin and Marshall, Rider College, Pennsylvania, St. Francis College, and Seton Hall. Lind is also attempting to bring about meets with Fordham, Temple, La Salle, Swarthmore, Rutgers and several other colleges.

Appointment of a coach to succeed Ruggerio Flocco, who died last Summer, is expected in the next few days. Several prospects are under consideration.

Holdovers from last year's Blue tankmen include Walt Kelley, holder of numerous championships, John Pholeric, Charlie Timmins, Charlie Barrett, Ed Leahy, and several others. Kelley and Pholeric are juniors while Timmins, Barrett and Leahy bring their Villanova careers to a close this year.

The complete swimming schedule will be released in next week's VILLANOVAN if it is possible at that time.

CHISICK SELECTED FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Gridders Reward Andy for Two Years of Stellar Play

By HARRY MAZZEI

In their last appearance in uniform the 1939 edition of Villanova's gridiron Wildcats paused momentarily before the picture taking session of last Wednesday to elect Andy Chisick honorary captain for the year.

Andy, who performed so ably at the center post while wearing that big number "30" jersey, rose to stardom in his junior and senior years after sharing the position with Johnny McKenna in 1937. Besides receiving the captaincy, "Handy Andy" has also been selected for a Maxwell Award for his outstanding pivot performance in the Temple game, and the George LaMaze trophy for valuable play in the Texas A. and M. fray. Andy also applied the springboard for another successful 'Cat season when he commanded the Blue aggregation in this year's opener with Muhlenburg.

"All-American" Mention

Although Chisick has been given All-American mention in the last two years, there are many who feel that the big Newark boy has been slighted in the long run. There is no doubt in our minds about Chisick's ability. Ever since he pulled on his first varsity jersey his play has been ultra-conspicuous. Here and There
WITH
HARRY MAZZEI

ORDINARILY the interim between the termination of one major sport and the beginning of another is as devoid of news as a London blackout is of light. Not so the time between the football and basketball seasons.

Harry Mazzei

No sooner had the silks (they used to be moleskins) been packed in the proverbial mothballs than did the fairy tales begin to circulate. If one were to lend credence to all the stories heard on this rumor-laden campus, we would find the "Clipper" coaching at seven different institutions next fall and the 1940 grid schedule would contain four "Ivy League" opponents, three "Big Ten" teams, and two Southwest Conference (P. S. That's where the Aggies come from in case a memory freshener is necessary) outfits.

It seems strange that after being bamboozled year after year, college students are still obligingly gullible to all the "hoomalimali" that is printed about coaching changes and schedule additions. Probably just another collegiate "quirk of nature."

At this time, too, we find the All-this and All- that selectors supplying additional copy. For years this custom of picking All-American, All-Conference, All-Sectional, and All-City teams has been going on, and to say that it has not been a boon for the "hot stove" leaguers would be making a gross misstatement. This time honored tradition gives all the "Monday-morning quarterbacks" an opportunity to tell just why this or that lad should or should not have been chosen on certain all-star selections.

For the present this post would like to join this group and extoll the merits of a few Wildcat performers whom we think have been given the royal "go-by" in no uncertain manner by the "experts."

For two years it has been our pleasure to watch Nick Basca cavort on the striped rectangle. And for two years we've gotten plenty of thrills (pleasant ones) from the antics of said Mr. Basca. Opponents (the "guys" who should know) have picked him on their all-star teams, but the so-called experts ignore him because he has not accumulated an impressive list of touchdowns. Yet "Nifty Nick" has been THE cog in the wheels of the Wildcats. A passer par excellance, a runner de luxe, a good punter, deadly tackler, and a sharp blocker, Nick will probably be expected to collect tickets before he is given any All-American consideration.

Also on the eleven this year were two chaps, one big and the other not so big, who played plenty of fine, ferocious football—Andy Chisick and Walt Nowak. They along with "Buzz" Howlett, a truly great kicker, also have been given the "Waltz-me-around-again-Willie" by most of the selectors.

Why this dearth of recognition? Perhaps it is because we don't operate in the same fashion that other instituitions do. Maybe because we are in the "poison-ivy" league. This commentator is at a chatter brings to mind the best grid joke of the year. It was pulled by a Stanford halfback during their recent game with U. C. L. A. As you probably know this Uclans have several colored players on the squad and during one portion of the game all three of them were performing at the same time. While they were in the contest the aforementioned Cardinal halfback was called on to carry the ball on an end sweep. Running the ball wide the Palo Alto lad was confronted by three tacklers, all dusky. By dint of some fancy manuevering he evaded the tacklers, but was immediately downed by a fourth Bear. On looking up the Stanford lad noticed that his tackler was white, whereupon he came out with: "Doctor Livingston, I presume?"

Gridders Ring Down '39 Curtain; Austin Favored To Retain Crown

Six Wins and Two Losses on Villanova Slate as Season Closes

By WALTER BROWN

Villanova's gridiron season drew to a close a week ago Staurday against Manhattan. The year was successful when one considers the opposition we faced. The record was marred only by defeats at the hands of Texas A. & M. and Auburn, two very strong and top-notch teams in the country.

The Blue started the season by defeating a plucky Muhlenburg team 14-0, on Basca's two tuchdown heaves to Mazzei and Behot, and the following week under the lights, crushed a South Carolina eleven 40-0; a game in which 41 of the 43 players participated.

First Loss

But then came disaster; The Blue and White carried with them to Texas, a record of twenty-two straight games without a defeat, but after those roaring Aggies got through, the streak was broken and the record read one defeat in twenty-three games, which was not so bad. Then came another close struggle against Arkansas, in which the Blue emerged victorious because of Behot's eighty-yard smash off-tackle for the lone score.

Detroit was the next to be added to the list but only after a close battle in which the 'Cats' touchdowns came on passes by Basca—one to Howlett and the other to Murray, substitute for Nowak, the last one proved to be the margin of victory because of Detroit's come back and score in the final period.

The following Saturday defeat came again; this time at the hands of Auburn and the score of 10-9 is explanation enough of the sort of game it was.

In the traditional Temple battle the Owls put up a gallant fight but were downed on Basca's two pass-interceptions which provided one score and set up another. The nal score was 12-6.

In the final game against Manhattan, the team played a fine game and thoroughly outclassed their opponents in every department. Although the nal score only read 7-0, bad breaks spoiled numerous other scoring opportunities.

Six Wins

The record for the season reads six wins and two defeats which brings our record under "Clipper" Smith to twenty-nine wins, four defeats, and three ties and only two defeats in the last twenty-eight games.

Joe Behot made the two longest runs of the year for Villanova; 81 yards off tackle against Arkansas and 79 yards on a fumble against South Carolina.

No one from here who has seen both boys play—which doesn't include us—seems to agree with the choice; but, of course, they may be predjudiced.

—V—

And now, basketball. Friday starts it; and here's hoping for as successful a season as we had last year. In case the frosh were not informed on the subject, Villanova gained the semi-final round in the N. C. 4-A. basketball championships in 1939. (Quite informative today, aren't we?)

Returning from the Thanksgiving vacation, we felt very good to see all the football men smiling. The biggest smiles, however, were planted on the faces of the seniors, those men who have served their four years as heros. Were they glad that their playing days were over? "Yes, but," ran most of the answers, and the "buts" covered many fields and many angles.

Most were happy to have escaped serious injury. Some claimed that when next fall rolls around they won't be so happy. Others hope to continue and make the game their life's work—as coaches. Those last words are emphasized. It seems no one, if he has a choice, want to enter into the pro football racket.

—V—

Johnny Mellus is doing O. K. in the professional game, though. He played a bang-up game against the Redskins on Sunday—as most of you know. All over the campus ears were glued to radios on Sunday to hear that semi-final pro test.

Any student desirous of entering the Boxing tournament must take advantage of this training. Participation in the tournament will positively not be allowed unless the student is well trained and in the peak of physical condition. I'll see you down at the gym, pal, and I'll knock your head off!

favored to keep his championship. Joe Clarken, second last winter, is also an Austinite. Time for the event was 1 min., 3 seconds.

Murphy Winner

Winners of both the backstroke and the breaststroke events are both still in school. Hal Murphy of Fedigan, Backstroke king, will defend his laures against such competition as ast year's runner-up, Dave Daly, now a resident of Austin. Murphy swam the distance (50-yards) in 40 seconds. Jack Brendnan, breaststroke winner, did his 50 yards in 37.8 seconds for Austin Hall. Runner-up was Gaston.

Austin holds the 100-yard relay crown, winning in 544.3 seconds last winter. Mendel Hall took the 75-yard Medley relay in 49.5 seconds.

Austin Favored

Austin appears to be headed for its second straight championship as it possess an even stronger team than last year. However the calibre of Freshman halls can never be predicted because of no knowledge of their past performances. Also the Commerce Commuters are expected to furnish more competition this year under the guidance of their new moderator, Father Maguire.

The meet is under the general direction of the intramural moderators, Fathers McKee and Dunne, and student chairman Clem Lavin. It will take place at 8 P. M. tomorrow, Wednesday, evening at the Villanova Field House.

was the alert defensive center who intercepted many of the Villanova passes intended for the wearers of the blue.

Two Slip

Two former All-Opponents, Jerry Fall of Manhattan and Charley Haynesworth of Auburn fell far behind in the voting this year. Fall, a guard, failed to poll a single vote as Howell and Simington walked off with the honors. Kay Eakin received Haynesworth's post.

Asked to give a reason for each choice, the Smithmen claimed Hickey to be the best pass receiver and Smith the most aggressive of the ends to face them this year. Of Howell: "The immovable Gibraltar of the Auburn goal line stand." Simmington was called "the big tough man" of the Arkansas team. Kolman and Pavolic were named for their hard-charging tactics. Both know how to use their hands to the best advantage.

Eakin Praised

Conatser was termed the "best ball carrying back outside of Nick Basca." Kay Eakin: "The most underrated football player in the country; he can do everything—and besides any guy who can play the full game under the beating we gave him deserves to be "All-American," the consensus was. McGowen was the fellow who kicked Villanova into holes every fourth play and then added a field goal to his credit in addition to an extra tally he accounted for in the early minutes of the game with Auburn. Besides the name of "All-American" Kimbrough in the space provided for comments we found the following inscription:

"Texas Aggies 33—Villanova 7."

VISITOR

Visiting the campus recently was Ray Stoviak, halfback on Villanova's 1937 undefeated football team. Ray is now coaching at New York Military Academy.

GOGOLINSKI NOT AN ATHLETE? URBELLIS FASTEST GRIDDER!

By DAVE MORSE

Injuries have been known to cut short the career of the greatest of athletes, but man of the week Johnny Gogolinski has risen head and should above the rank and file and shoulders above the rank and file and proven that injury can be defeated.

Freshmen and sophomores may not remember "Gogo" three seasons ago when he broke into the Villanova line-up as a sophomore. Johnny burned up the gridiron all during his soph campaign and was hailed as another Elmer Layden, being the lean, tricky type of fullback.

Then before the opening of the 1938 season John was laid low by old man injury and out of action for the year. "Experts said he was all "washed up" but Johnny refused to be put aside so easily. You all know the story of how he came back this year to give some great performances at fullback as replacement for Tom McMahon and Gordon Shader. All three were virtually on a par. Johnny's greatest performance came in the Manhattan game a few weeks back when he reeled of several long gains in a few minutes of the second half.

John expects to receive his Bachelor's degree in Mathematics next June from the Education school. Outside of school and football Gogo spends his time with the Citizens Military Training Corps, in which he is a sergeant. His bosom pal is "Roman" Romanowski, halfback on the grid team and another Education senior.

Gogolinski hails from Shickshinny High where he was an excellent football and baseball player but he claims that he is not an athlete!

ALL-ITALIAN

Silent Sam Monaco, senior end on "Clipper" Smith's grid aggregation was selected end on the first team of an "All-Italian" squad picked by the Italian-American Civis League recently. Harry Mazzei was selected quarterback on the second Latin eleven.

WORKOUTS

Coach Jim Elliot, director of Villanova's track team, has his runners working out daily in preparation for a strenuous indoor season.

By JACK MAUCH

Go down to the practice field any afternoon in the fall and you will see a stocky, stubby-nosed, individual cavorting about, or go down to the track any afternoon in the spring and you will see this same individual running down the cinder path, his mass of yellow hair seeming to shiver in rhythm with his pounding feet. He is Vytold Urbellis, better known as "Whitey," football halfback and sprint star of the track team.

"Whitey" came to Villanova through former coach Harry Stuhldreher. He didn't see much action during his Fresh-N man year because of a torn ligament in his ankle, but for the past three years he has done substitute work for such men as "Buzz" Howlett and former star, Ray Stoviak. He is one of the fastest men on the team, having run the "100" in less than ten seconds. He has also been a mainstay of the varsity track team for the past three years and will round out his fourth season of competition this spring.

"Whitey" was born in Freehold, N. J. After completing his elementary schooling he attended Freehold high where he participated in the four major sports, football, baseball, basketball, and track, earning three letters each in footbal and track. In one season of football "Whitey" amassed the huge total of 133 points.

Attended Prep

After high school he spent a year in Perkiomen Prep, participating in all of his high school sports with the exception of baseball. From there he came to Villanova.

"Whitey's" most thrilling experience came in the Manhattan game in '38. He was sent into the game, carried the ball three times, and each time made a first down!

In June he will receive his B. S. in Education. "Whitey" intends to accept pro offers, but meanwhile he will look for a job near home coaching and teaching.

Fedigan Team Can Clinch Mural Crown This Week

Gigilos Need Two Wins in Week's Battles; Alumni Has Chance

After a lapse for Thanksgiving and the quarterly exams the intramural basketball season swung into last lap for the first half with several games last week.

Main event of the week was the second defeat Fedigan has suffered during the season. This time it was Alumni who evened the score they had to settle with Gigolos. Previously Fedigan had nosed out Alumni by one basket in the final minutes but this time the "Greenies" administered a nine point licking to the Fedigan boys in a fast, hard-fought gaem. Alumni was led in scoring by its captain, John McFadden, who garnered eight points.

Mendel Loses

The Mendel Residents wound up their first half by bowing to the C&F Day Hops by a score of 36-26. Mendel started out the season very impressively and looked very strong but several defeats by one and two points took the starch out of them and they ended in the cellar.

Austin Hall had a big week playing three games, two with Mendel Day Hops and one with C&F. Mendel licked Austin in the first game by a 39-32 score with Delina scoring 18 points.

Having last five and won three Austin put on a final sprint to take over its next two opponents and bring their averages up to .500. Their first victim was the C&F day students who put up a swell fight, the score being 18-16 at the half. But Austin wasn't to be denied and they waged a seemingly endless barrage on their opponents' basket to take over the situation towards the nal gun and win by 38-33. Skaf was high scorer for Austine with nine and McMenamin took the game honors with 12 points.

Austin Winner

Playing its final game Austin showed its true power by trimming the Mendel Day Hops 35-22. Leading by only four points at the half the Blue team scored 19 more in the last half to the Day Hops' ten. Keating was the big gun for Austin with ten points and Depersio scored 13 for Mendel.

The two games to be played this week will be the deciding factors of the half. Fedigan has to play the C&F team and the Mendel day students. If the Gigolos win both games they clinch the championship for the first half. If they split they will be tied with Alumni for first place and a play-off will be played. But and its a big "but," if Fedigan loses both games Alumni will win the half crown.

Lightweights Close Unsuccessful Season; Hope For Better '40 Record

By FRED RAPPLEYEA

In losing, 25-12, to the Yale forces from New Haven, the lightweight squad of Villanova brought a rather poor season to a close. After a see-saw period of scoring that had the score 12-12, Yale forged ahead in the final part of the game to come out on the long end of the 25-12 score. The Blue were handicapped by the loss of several veterans who, due to injuries, were unable to play in the last game of the season.

Looking back we see that the 150's started off by losing to a strong Cornell team by the score of 33-7. Although displaying good scoring punch in the first few minutes of play they were unable to hold their lead and were overwhelmed in the second half when Cornell ran up the score.

Lost to Princeton

In the second game of the season the highly improved Blues held a highly favored foe, Princeton, to a low score and even threw a scare into their opponents when they pushed over a touchdown in the first two plays of the game. Villanova's next contest was a close affair with Villanova losing to the tune of 12-0 to a fine Rutgers team.

The game with Penn at home was by far the best showing of the year with the Blues dropped a very close one to a fighting Penn eleven by the score of 12-9. This game was featured by a fine passing and running attack by both teams and by a last minute rally by the Villanova men that had the spectators tense.

Hoping to salvage something from a disastrous season Harvey Buek's charges went up to Easton to engage the Lafayette team. However when the Blue team lost their passer Lattanza in the first few minutes of play and were forced to be content with a straight running attack they succumbed to a passing attack that Lafayette came up with and lost the game 25-12.

Lombardo Outstanding

Summarizing the results we find that the 150's lost six games, finished last in the Eastern Lightweight Intercollegiate League and scored 46 points as against their opponents' 127. Outstanding for the Blues during the year were Dominic with his fine end play, Brown with a great exhibition of defensive play, Lattanza because of his very good kicking and passing and Lombardo with his crashing fullback tactics. With the loss of a host of veterans, the lightweights have a man-sized job of building a new team for their campaign next year.

Chisick

four years despite almost a dozen troublesome and recurrent injuries, there can be no doubt about his being selected for the honorary post. In those rare defeats in which Chisick participated, he never for one moment lost the indomitable spirit with which he has fired Villanova teams for the last two years. "Chis" has probably been the leading exponent of Clipper Smith's now-famed Wildcat yell.

LOSE TWO

Texas A. & M.'s powerhouse number one football team of the nation and first conqueror of Villanova in twenty-three consecutive games promises to be tougher than ever next year. Homer Norton's all-conquering Aggies lose only two men via graduation and from views of their reserves this loss will not be felt by the southwesterners. Big "All-American" John Kimbrough will be among the multitude of returing veterans.

LATANZA HIGH SCORER

Halfback Ranks Third in League Point Producing Department

Jim Lattanza, stellar sophomore halfback for Harvey Buek's 150-pound grid team ranked in a tie for third place among the leading scorers in the Eastern Intercollegiate League during the past season.

Lattanza, scoring three touchdowns and one extra-point for a total of 19, was tied with Dell, Yale back. League leader was Bronson of Cornell. Astry of the same school finished second.

Other Villanova scorers were Vic Dominic, senior end, with twelve points, Gordon and Kazior with six points each and "Guy" Lombardo with one point.

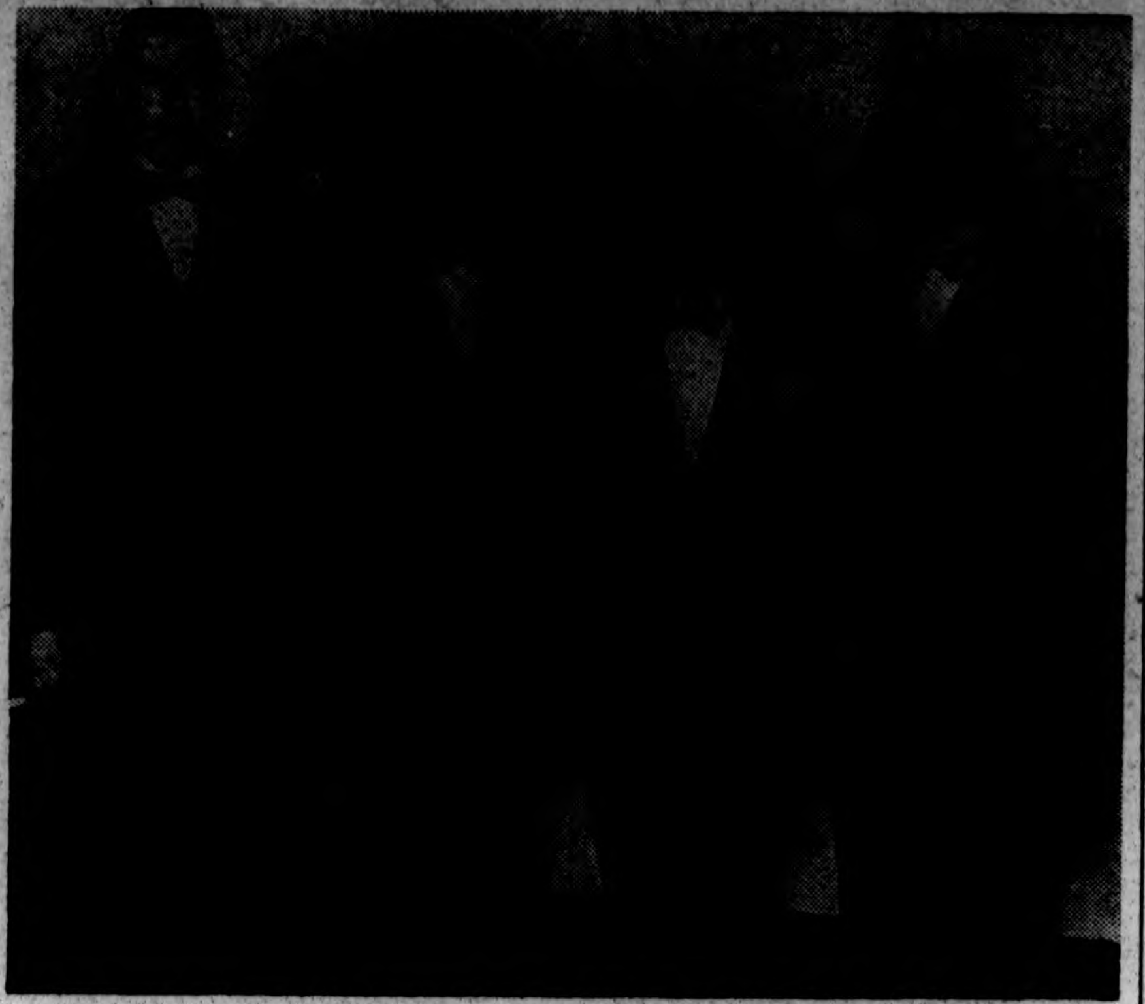
MOYNIHAN READS PAPER FOR PHILOSOPHY SEMINAR

When the Philosophy Seminar meets tomorrow afternoon, Francis X. Moynihan will present a review on Gilson's "Faith and Reason."

In the course of the paper the "credo ut intelligam" will be examined as a scientific method. In later meetings it is planned to study this procedure in its application to the physical sciences. Some members have expressed the thought that it can be shown that physicists "believe in order that they may know." They think this is made manifest by theory method, a good example being the Einstein Theory of Relativity.

At the last session of the seminar, the book of the Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A., Ph. D., "The Philosophy of Communism," was reviewed by William N. Way.

Quartette at Villanova-Rosemont Concert



Charles Cavanaugh, Hugh Boyle, William Appel and Joseph York will give their interpretation of two selections this evening.

'Spain Not Fascist' Declares Fr. Lozano

"Spain under Franco is not a Fascist country." This was the text of the address presented to the Spanish club last week by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., M. A. Fr. Lozano, who has just returned from a visit to Spain who found the Spanish people interested and pleased with the new free Spain created by Franco.

During the open forum that followed his address, Fr. Lozano enlightened the members by answering their questions.

In the near future Fr. Lozano will present a motion picture for those interested.

The next meeting of the Spanish club will be held Wednesday, December 6, at 7 o'clock in Simpson Hall.

AIEE HEARS DR. LOEFFLAD

On Monday, December 4, the local chapter of the A. I. E. E. was addressed by Dr. Loefflad, the college physician. The subject of his talk was "Resuscitation" in connection with electrical shock. Resuscitation after an electrical shock has saved many a man's life, which otherwise would have been lost.

The electrical engineers are planning a trip to the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia in the near future. The object of this trip will be to study any electrical equipment which pertains to their course.

A film on "Mercury Arc Rectifiers" was shown and a talk pertaining to this film was delivered by Mr. George J. Wilson on Thursday, November 30.

ALUMNI ATTEND RALLY

November 24, the eve of the annual Villanova-Manhattan football classic, found the New York Alumni club gathered in a mass football rally sponsored by Major Bowes.

Featured among the prominent speakers were our own "Clipper" Smith and Herb Kopf, head coach of Manhattan, together with various sports editors of New York and Philadelphia newspapers. Major Bowes who was unable to attend because of his radio program, expressed his regrets but promised to be present at next year's rally.

The real reason more and more smokers are asking for Chesterfield is because CHESTERFIELD'S RIGHT COMBINATION of the world's best cigarette tobaccos gives them a better smoke...definitely milder, cooler and better-tasting. For real smoking pleasure . . . you can't buy a better cigarette.

SCHAFER APPOINTED EDITOR OF ENGINEER WITH CURRENT ISSUE

New Policy Finds Dorsey, La-Porte, Norton Completing Managing Board

Charles J. Shafer, junior Chemical Engineer has been appointed editor-in-chief of "The Villanova Engineer", the engineering school's monthly magazine.

Shafer has stated that henceforth the "Engineer" staff will consist of only a board of four editors which will function in rewriting, providing topics for articles and arranging the make-up. All writing assignments will be done by engineering students who apply for them. Besides articles by students other articles written by alumni will be featured in the December issue, out Friday. An article by Eric Storms, '34 B. S. in C. E. entitled "Aerial Photography" will appear describing work that he has been doing.

Among the other features will be an article "Bronze Welding," by Mr. William Gorman, engineering instructor. It is a description of the applications of this process in repairing large cast iron and steel. There will also be an article by Daniel Troy, senior chemical engineer, "Plastics."

Edmund J. Hogan, sophomore mechanical engineer has written on "Power Transmission by Fluids" describing a phase of hydraulics, notably in fluid clutches and gearless drives for automobiles.

Continuing the custom started last year, the new staff have commenced their duties with the production of the December issue.

The retiring co-editors, Joseph Gallagher and Clement Dinon, and associate editors George Wilson and Melchor Gaston guided the new staff in the production of their first issue.

Schafer, a member of the Phi Kappa Pi, the Chemical Society, and engineering honor roll, has served on the "Engineer" in his freshman and sophomore years.

The other three editors are Joseph Norton, copy; Joseph Dorsey, business manager; and Walter La Porte, circulation manager. Under the new policy editors are required to possess a high scholastic record to maintain membership on the staff. By making all engineering students part of the staff organization it is hoped that more contributions will be received because of the wider interest.

DR. HAENISCH PLAYS AT MUSIC SEMINAR

Assistant Chemistry Professor Interprets and Lectures on Works of Haydn

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, assistant professor of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, exhibited his talents as a pianist and a lecturer on music at a piano lecture recital on the music of Haydn conducted as part of the Music seminar on December 6th.

Dr. Haenisch opened his piano lecture recital by playing Haydn's "Serenade" on the piano. Then Dr. Haenisch explained the story behind the "Surprise Symphony" and played the leading themes of each movement on the piano. The second or andante movement, which contains the "Surprise" was analyzed in detail, a piano transcript being used to illustrate the analysis and the use of a blackboard enabled the shifting of the theme among the various instruments of the orchestra to be followed.

Following a short intermission Dr. Haenisch proceeded to show that many of the 'hit' tunes of the past few months are nothing but direct steals from the melodies of famous symphonic works.

Parade Of Local Amateur Talent To March In Review Tomorrow

On Wednesday evening, the stage of the Field House will again be the scene of the annual Amateur Night. As in the past, the different resident halls on the campus in addition to the day students, will offer a variety of programs in order to gain position in intramural standing and to provide entertainment for the college students.

Last year's winners, Austin Hall, will again be in the fore with an elaborate revue reminiscent of that by-gone period known as the Gay Nineties. No particular student has been placed in charge of the show, thus giving all the residents of Austin a chance to lend their talents both musical and otherwise.

Alumni Hall, the winners in 1936 and 1937 will try to wrest the crown from Austin with a variety show affectionately called a "Birthday Party." Written by Daniel Savini and Atkinson it will feature imitations and musical specialties by the Freshmen resident students who, from all accounts, are exceptionally well talented.

The inhabitants of Fedigan Hall have thus far been very vague as to what their plans will be but news has leaked out that a miniature of The Greatest Show on Earth—Barnum and Bailey's Circus will be given. Joseph McNamara has been placed in charge of the production.

As was featured last year, the day students of both Mendel Hall and the business school will take part in the affair. Under the direction of Robert McIntyre they will present a combined show the title of which is "A Peace Conference."

Each group will be allowed twenty minutes, thus making for a fast moving production; the order of appearance is as follows (1) Alumni (2) Fedigan (3) Mendel Residents, who as yet have not decided what they will do, (4) Day Students, and (5) Austin.

Contest Opens For Collegiate Artists

The attention of all campus photographers, artists, musicians, writers, is called to the Catholic College Contest now going on under the supervision of "The Queen's Work" magazine.

Prizes of $50 will be awarded for the best photograph, the best cartoon or drawing, the best one-act play, the best song, and the best short story submitted.

Any student of a Catholic college or university and Catholic students of non-secular and state colleges and universities are eligible.

The themes may be religious, comical, serious, dramatic, or any that will suit the applicant.

All entries should be addressed to "The College Contest Editor," The Queen's Work, 3742 West Pine Blbd., St. Louis, Missouri.

Along with the $50 first prize offered for the best entry in each division, other prizes are given to those entries deemed worthy of publication. These awards are: five dollars for each additional photograph and drawing printed, one cent a word for each additional short story, and $25 for every other song and one-act play deemed worthy of publication.

Teagarden Plays For Prom; Aronimink C.C. Dinner Site

By FRANCIS M. FITZPATRICK

Jackson Teagarden and his orchestra featuring Kitty Kallen, songstress, will provide music for the Belle Air Ball. Simultaneous with this announcement it was revealed that the Senior Dinner Dance will be conducted at the Aronomink Country Club on West Chester Pike. Robert G. Wilderotter and Joseph J. York, chairman of senior dance and dinner dance respectively, recently released these selections.

Aronomink Country Club is one of the more beautiful of the numerous golf clubs that surround the Philadelphia district. Situated in rolling farm country, the Club House itself is built in conformity with the architectural principles embodied in the Old English style.

Music for the affair, held January 13, will be supplied by the Villanovans. Chairman York said that approximately 65 seniors have already signified their intentions of attending.

The purpose of holding their affair at a country club is to insure the seniors of a closed affair. This is a slight departure from tradition, for in former years the dinner was usually held at one of the larger hotels in town.

This change in precedent resulted from numerous requests that were made to that effect at a class meeting conducted last Wednesday. Because of the accedance to the wishes of the seniors, York expects every senior to co-operate in order to insure the success of this affair.

Teagarden, whose voice and instrument have tagged him with the line, "I've got a right to sing the blues," is the dean of blues trombonists and his orchestra, newly organized at the beginning of the year, includes in its ranks musicians of prestige and experience. Incorporated in his present organization are three former members of Tommy Dorsey's Orchestra and one each from Goodman, Clinton, Russ Morgan and Bob Crosby as well as others from lesser known bands.

Tommy Dorsey, generally recognized as one of the best trombone players in the business, alleviates all doubts as to Teagarden's top position on the swing trombonists lists. Last year when Jack and Tommy were making the record date with the famous All-Star Swing Band, Benny Goodman virtually nagged Tommy to do a solo, but Tommy refused the suggestion with the words, "Teagarden, here, is the best swing man . . . I just play pretty."

Feature event of the January 12 evening will be the Grand March of the Seniors. With Wilderotter and P. Edward Hanlon, class president, and their partners leading the marchers, the seniors will parade directly to the bandstand where they will sing the Alma Mater.

In order to insure the success of the dance, Robert E. O'Brien, chairman of the program committee, has announced that it is the plan of the Senior class to solicit patrons. A charge of one dollar will be the requirement for becoming a patron. All members of the faculty to whom invitations are tendered will be approached and asked to become patrons.

Research Seminar Shows Jenner's Life

Movie Depicts Work of Jenner in Connection With Smallpox

The highlights in the life of Edward Jenner, English physician and discoverer of vaccination against smallpox, were depicted on the screen at the meeting of the Research Seminar Wednesday, December 6.

Smallpox was one of the most prevalent of human maladies until the end of the eighteenth century, when Jenner discovered that it could be cured by vaccination with cowpox virus. Smallpox had its origin in India about 1000 B. C. and it had become so prevalent that in the eighteenth century sixty million people died from its effects.

Until the time of Jenner, the only method used in trying to prevent this disease was by inoculation with the pus from pustules of smallpox sufferers. This was a very poor practice for it usually resulted in the person becoming afflicted with the disease through the inoculation.

When Jenner was a youth, a dairymaid remarked to him one day that she could not contract the dreaded smallpox because she had contracted cowpox while milking infected cows.

Jenner never forgot this remark and later proved that cowpox was a mild form of smallpox and could be used as a preventive against the disease.

In 1796, Jenner obtained pus from a girl infected with cowpox and vaccinated a boy named James Phipps with the virus. Six weeks later he infected Phipps with smallpox virus but Phipps failed to contract the disease. Vaccination spread rapidly and at the present time the death rate is very small compared to what it was in the early eighteenth century.

The last meeting of the Research Seminar before the Christmas holidays will be held in Simpson Hall on Wednesday, December 13. As usual there will be a speaker.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAM ANNOUNCEMENT OUT

U. S. Department of Agriculture Offers Seniors Choice of Junior Positions

A consolidated Civil Service examination for junior professional positions in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, given a trial for the first time last year, has worked so successfully that the Civil Service Commission is expected to make the examinations, offering nearly 30 options, an annual affair.

Under the plan, graduating seniors who pass the examination will be eligible for appointment about July 1. Announcement of the consolidated examination will be made by the Civil Service Commission about January 1, and the examination will be given about two months earlier than last year. In this way the graduating students will know if they are eligible for appointment before school closes.

The junior professional positions pay a starting salary of $2000 a year and offer good opportunity for advancement for capable workers.

Examinations will be given during the latter part of February or first of March in the following junior grades: administrative technician, agricultural economist, agronomist, animal breeder, biologist, chemist, engineer, entomologist, forester, information assistant, librarian, meteorologist, olericulturist, plant breeder, poultry husbandman, range examiner, rural sociologist, social psychologist, soil scientist, statistician, textile technologist, and veterinarian.

Red Christmas

IT IS HEARTENING to note that there is a general tendency even among the big commercial companies to recognize the true meaning of Christmas. Its spiritual significance is coming into its own, and rightly so for in these turbulent times the principles of truth, justice, and charity personified in the events of the first Christmas Day are sorely needed to bring back the world to normality.

Christmas, therefore, being Christian, is a symbol to all Christian men of the Christ-Child sent by the Almighty to redeem mankind. After more than nineteen hundred years the Church still pursues in the path pointed out by Our Saviour.

At the present there is on the earth an enemy that leaves in its fiendish wake materialism and irreligion. Communism, and all it stands for, is more feared by civilized nations than any barbarian invasion ever perpetrated. The barbarians were destroyed but eventually were assimiliated and converted by the conquered; whereas the communists destroy, and remove all obstacles in their path by cleverly planned propaganda and education. The barbarians destroyed material things, the communists destroy faith, justice, and charity, and render individuals as animals, slavish peons of the state.

We Americans, being thankful that there is a fundamental belief in our form of government in the people, can do well to observe this coming Christmas in a new spirit. We can pray that the true spirit of Christianity will persist here always and practice Christian virtues ourselves, for the Lamb of God is the only defense that will stampede the advance of the anti-Christ clenched fist.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Quest for Truth and Beauty Primary End of Science

Science—Even Physical Sciences—Are Speculative in Final Analysis

By JOHN H. CRAWFORD, O. S. A., M. S.
Professor of Physics

BUT it is not the so-called practical value of physical science that I wish to emphasize, nor the practical results that emerge from theoretical speculations. While the importance of such results will scarcely be questioned by anyone, the physical scientist is aware of other values which perhaps may escape the notice of the layman.

The first of these values may be termed the satisfaction of human curiosity. Apart from such fundamental questions as those which concern the origin and destiny of man, and his "raison d'etre," physical science can go further towards satisfying man's natural curiosity than can any other field of intellectual activity. We can truthfully say that the beginnings of all science can be traced to human curiosity. Perhaps in some instances the curiosity was motivated by fear or the need of protection, but always men have sought to learn the causes of events just for the sake of knowing.

Knowledge for its own sake is an aim that has an irresistible fascination for man and needs no defense. Sir Isaac Newton, sitting beneath any apple tree and observing the fall of an apple to the ground, formulated the law of gravitation, not to protect himself from being struck on the head by a falling apple, but to satisfy his curiosity concerning all falling bodies, as well as the motion of the celestial bodies.

When Henri Becquerel discovered radioactivity in 1896, it was his curiosity about the nature of the then recently discovered X-rays that guided him to fame, rather than his intention to take X-ray pictures of broken bones. The almost insuperable task undertaken by the Curies, to seek out the element later named radium, shows the powerful domination exerted by intellectual curiosity. The unfailing patience of Millikan during the ten years spent in determining the charge of the electron is a striking instance of the fascination to be found in the satisfaction of human curiosity.

Another value to be found in science might be called the aesthetic value. Scientific knowledge is not a mere inventory of facts. If it were, it could attract men only in the same way as a time table. Science inspires ardor and devotion in men; to do this it must meet one of the deepest needs of human nature — desire for beauty. This desire is satisfied for scientific men themselves; to laymen science is interesting because it is practical, to scientists practical applications are frequently incidental, mere by-products. This is especially true of mathematics, but the aesthetical element is not lacking in the physical sciences. If two theories cover the facts equally well, the scientist will choose the simpler, and simplicity is one of the criteria of beauty.

The harmony of nature and the discovery of this harmony among so many diverse phenomena are what attract the physical scientist. "If nature did not possess a harmony that was beautiful to contemplate," said Poincare, "science would not be worth pursuing and life would not be worth living." Albert Einstein wrote these self-revealing words about Max Planck: "The longing to see this pre-established harmony is the source of the inexhaustible patience and persistence which we see in Planck's devotion to the most general problems of our science, undeflected by easier or more thankful tasks. . . The emotional condition which renders possible such achievements is like that of the religious devotee or the lover; the daily striving is dictated by no principle or program, but arises from an immediate personal need."

The same spirit is to be found in the other physical sciences as well as in physics; great advances have come from this desire to uncover the pre-established harmony of nature.

Science possesses infinite possibilities for satisfying the undying curiosity of man. It gives him marvels to gape at: the vast distances of the stars, the minuteness of the electron. It can overcome him with its figures, by their enormity or by their almost vanishing smallness. But to the dyed-in-the-wool scientist, science is an art and he is an artist; and his creation is none the less a work of art because it is an imperfect and faint copy of another—of the supreme work of the Supreme Artist which is nature itself.

Colonel Lyle's Private Collection Contributed To College Library

By CHARLES W. SCHAUMANN

Over one hundred and fifty books of the professional library of the late Colonel David Alexander Lyle, U. S. A., retired, were recently contributed to the Villanova College Library by Mrs. David Lyle.

Colonel Lyle was the author of many well-known books, among them being "Report On Life Saving Apparatus," "Rackets and Racket Apparatus," "Manufacture of Leather," and other reports on professional, orinthological, and geogogical subjects.

Served as Editor

He was Departmental Editor of the "Military Terms" in the Funk & Wagnal New Standard Dictionary and was Contributing Editor for the "Military" terms in the Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia.

His professional library consisted of books on Mining and Civil Engineering. The Library also received the text books he used while a student at West Point from 1865 to 1869. These books contain many original notes and computations in Colonel Lyle's hand writing. These notes largely pertain to class work, but frequently there are remarks about life and the "infernal cold" weather conditions at the Military Academy. These latter books will be placed on the library shelves with books pertaining to West Point, as they will give the Villanova students some idea as to how the cadets studied immediately after the Civil War.

Inventor

Among the many inventions credited to Col. Lyle were the 2, 2½, and 3 inch Lyle life saving guns, projectiles, and similar apparatus. In 1877 he was put on special duty with the Life Saving Service and Coast Guard.

"Legion of Honor"

He had experienced active frontier duty in Alaska in 1870 and was assistant Engineer and Commanding Officer of the cavalry escort to Lieutenant Wheeler's expedition in Nevada and Arizona in 1871. While on the faculty at West Point, he was Assistant Professor in Philosophy from 1872 to 1875.

Col. Lyle, in early life, was converted to the Catholic Church and maintained his position in society and was a sincere devout Catholic throughout his life. From experience he had learned that most of the aristocrats throughout the world are Catholics. Those, therefore, with aristocratic ambitions should not feel their faith bars them. To many it doesn't seem so in the United States, but this country after all is only a small portion of the aristocratic world.

Colonel Lyle was born in Ohio in 1845 and was graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., in 1869. In 1884 he received the Bachelor of Science Degree in Mining Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In June, 1869, he was commissioned Second Lieutenant in the United States Artillery, and finally commissioned Colonel, March 26, 1907. He was retired by operation of the law January 21, 1909. Since that time he had made his home in Wayne, Pa., where he died October, 1937.

Fr. Handran Says Chorus a Success

High Calibre of Concert Evidenced by Reception of Audience

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus. conductor of the Villanoval-Rosemont Chorus, commenting on the recent concert expressed his satisfaction with the entire performance. "I think it was a grand musical success."

Considering the program and the reaction of the audience, Father Handran said, "The program was intended to be 'heavy', that is, we wished to present good, difficult, classical numbers and the manner in which it was received by the audience proved that it was entirely to their liking."

Having received favorable comment on the performance from the students Fr. Handran, however, had one pet grievance to settle with the students. "The majority seem surprised with the fine performance of the Glee Club yet I feel that their surprise is entirely unwarranted since our Glee Club has always been considered to be of high standard."

Regarding the interest and cooperation shown by the student body Father Handran had the utmost praise and wished particularly to thank those members of the Arts School who acted as ushers.

Judging by this interest shown by the students Fr. Handran is of the opinion that the annual Symphonic Band-Glee Club recital should be most successful.

Questioned on the general criticism received Father Handran revealed that M. Muschamps, an eminent vocal critic in the Philadelphia area, was in the audience and that he had nothing but the highest praise for the entire program.

Fr. Francis Talbot And Karl Rogers Address Catholic Press Conference

Rev. Francis X. Talbot, S. J., editor-in-chief of the national Catholic magazine, "America," and Mr. Karl H. Rogers, founder and general director of the Narberth Movement, were the principal speakers at the first Eastern Regional Conference of the Catholic School Press Association, held at Immaculata College last Saturday.

Holy Mass celebrated by the Rev. Francis J. Furey, D.D., Ph.D., president of Immaculata College, marked the official opening of the conclave. Round table discussions on the various topics pertaining to the successful edition of a school paper, magazine, or yearbook were held at 10:45 and 11:30 A. M. Members of both the VILLANOVAN and Belle Air staffs attended.

Movement Explained

"The Narberth Movement in the Secular Press" was the topic of Mr. Rogers' discussion. He explained the organization and the aims of this movement, which purposes to destroy anti-Catholic bias in the United States by giving to non-Catholics a common sense explanation of the doctrines of our faith. With the assistance of a number of other Catholic laymen, Mr. Rogers took the first steps toward the forming of his organization after anti-Catholic bigotry had proven so disastrous to Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential candidate of 1928.

The speaker briefly outlined the growth of the Narberth Movement and stated that, through pamphlets and newspaper columns, the principles of the movement are now reaching over a million homes each month. He urged the press delegates to support this movement, if not by actually joining the organization at least by adopting its policies in spirit.

Few Catholic Writers

Fr. Talbot gave an informal talk on the method by which he edits "America." Throughout his talk he stressed the need for more American Catholic writers and advised his listeners to continue their writing after graduation from college. Despite the fact that over 10,000 experienced writers have graduated from Catholic Colleges in the past ten years, Fr. Talbot pointed out, there are barely 300 first rate Catholic authors in America at the present time.

Solemn Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was held at 5:00 P. M. to close conference.

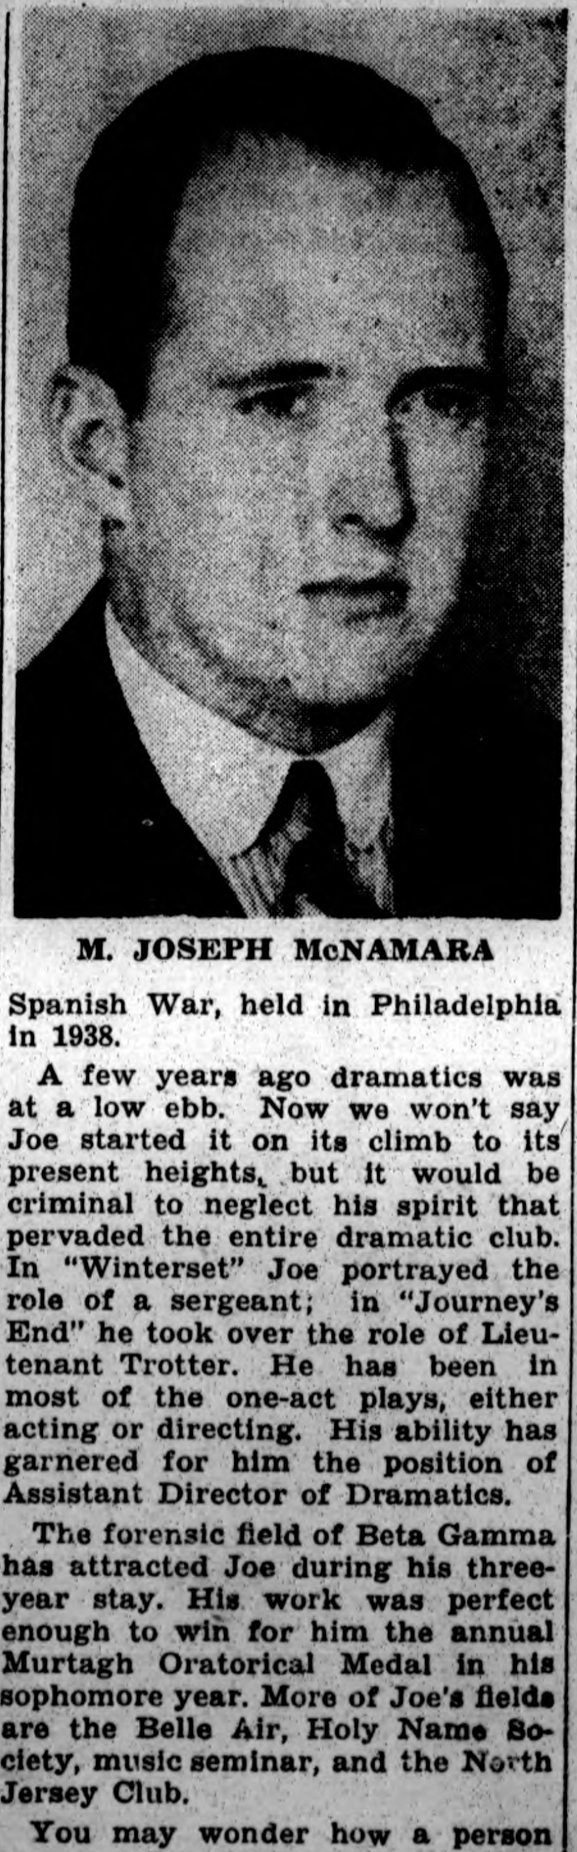
Joe McNamara, Organizer De Luxe, Perennial Chairman, Is Also Ept. President, Honor Student, Orator, Dramateur

By BERNARD A. BELLEW

When we speak of Joe McNamara, we naturally think of a perennial chairman or leader. Joe at present is chairman of the decorations for the Belle Air Ball. He is also chairman of Fedigan's representation in Amateur Night. He saw to all the decorations preceding the Temple game and we find that Fedigan won the award for the display.

Joe is so active in so many fields that it is really a job in itself to keep up with with him. For the past few years he has worked with an insurance company in the summer vacation. During the preceding spring, Joe crossed everyone up and went into the political field. One of the youngest members in politics in Bayonne, he aided tremendously in a campaign last summer which defeated Mayor Hague. This was a great feather in Joe's cap, for it was the first time Hague was a loser in a good many years. He was one of the original speakers in the campaign and went far in organizing it.

We always find Mac in a current debate or conference. While still a sophomore in Holy Family Academy, Joe address a city-wide rally on the N. R. A. He represented Villanova at the Symposium on the Spanish War, held in Philadelphia in 1938.



M. JOSEPH McNAMARA

A few years ago dramatics was at a low ebb. Now we won't say Joe started it on its climb to its present heights, but it would be criminal to neglect his spirit that pervaded the entire dramatic club. In "Winterset" Joe portrayed the role of a sergeant; in "Journey's End" he took over the role of Lieutenant Trotter. He has been in most of the one-act plays, either acting or directing. His ability has garnered for him the position of Assistant Director of Dramatics.

The forensic field of Beta Gamma has attracted Joe during his three-year stay. His work was perfect enough to win for him the annual Murtagh Oratorical Medal in his sophomore year. More of Joe's fields are the Belle Air, Holy Name Society, music seminar, and the North Jersey Club.

You may wonder how a person can complete four years of college and one year of Law school in four years. Well, Joe has, but not without a bit of work. After completing his sophomore year Joe felt he had sufficient background for Law School and enrolled at Fordham. Here he successfully mastered the first year of Blackstone, but changed his mind and decided the remainder of his college work would be beneficial. So with some summer school work and a bit heavier schedule he received permission to complete his work.

Mac counts it among his cherished achievements at Villanova to be among the reorganizers of Epsilon Phi Theta, traditional School of Arts fraternity. This achievement can be measured by the fact that although for several years sentiment was strongly in favor of its revival, yet it was not until Mac and his friends set themselves to the task that anything decisive was accomplished. In appreciation of his efforts and in recognition of his leadership, his colleagues elected him to the presidency.

If all goes well Joe expects to graduate this year. For one who has always been on the honor roll during his career this seems easy.

Historically and geographically speaking, Joe is a Jerseyite, being born in Jersey City on April 6, 1919. he received his elementary education at St. Henry's School and completed his preparatory work at Holy Family Academy in Bayonne, where he now resides. While here he also gathered his share of honors, winning the general excellence medal in his first, third and fourth year.

Beta Gamma Argues Neutrality Question

William Garrity will be the chairman of the debate to be held in Mendel Amphitheater on Tuesday, December 12, and Robert Wilderotter will be chairman of the debate on Thursday.

On Tuesday the affirmative side of the proposition will be taken by the following Sophomore Arts students: John Maher, Gerald Belz and Richard Gray. The Negative will be taken on by Sophomore Engineers, Thomas DeSipin, John Ayerle, and Walter La Porte.

On Thursday junior Commerce and Finance students Victor Corbett, Arthur Somers, and Joseph E. Finn will defend the affirmative while John Raney, John Madison, and Joseph Dorsey, sophomore engineers, will speak for the negative.

Engineers Defined At A.S.M.E. Smoker

The Villanova chapter of the A. S. M. E. held its annual smoker on November 29, in the Villanova Fieldhouse. John Heck, Senior Mechanical Engineering student was the chairman of the meeting.

Various speakers, talking on subjects pertinent to engineering; were presented to the members. Mr. Goldsmith, an engineer connected with the Atlantic Refining Company, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke on "What Is An Engineer?" Mr. Charles Jenes, chairman of the Student Branch Relations of the Philadelphia district, also spoke briefly.

The smoker was well attended by many members of the faculty of the Villanova Engineering School and also some students from Drexel and Swarthmore were present.

the 'CATS' MEOW!

By Barney Bellew

HI-YUH everybody. just received an interesting letter from some fans, so I'll present it to you.

Dear Mr. Bellew:

(pronounced "Bell-you").

We heard that this is your last column and took this opportune moment to express our sorrow in seeing you leave. Your columns were the delight of our whole school. You certainly have the right slant on college girls even if it does go a little against the grain. But we appreciate your frankness of expression, and hope you always carry it with you.

George Kamen, a stellar tackle, is really a great poet on the side, not to mention studies. I asked him to write a short poem for one of my columns. He did. It was written just before the Detroit game while still at the hotel. Though it is not the best example of what he can do, it may give you an idea of his work.

Voices From The Huddle

From the huddle one sometimes hears,
Besides the signal and the cheers,
Another voice, distinct from all the rest.

It tells you to go, and go, and have no fears;
And to fight right on, through all the years,
And never, never lay down, but to fight your best.

Then, that voice disappears.
And again we hear the noise and cheers.
And our quarterback calling to kick — touchdown — wind in the west.

Hitler (to weatherman): What is the weather report for today?
Weatherman: Hail, Hitler.

Down south they really do it up right. Two students from North Texas Agricultural College raided their opponents' rally and bonfire in an airplane.

They descended on the John Tarleton College Campus and tried to set off the pep rally bonfire with phosphorus bombs. One of the Tarleton boys threw a stick into the propeller of the plane as it swooped down. Disabled, the plane crashed, and the two raiders were apprehended.

According to Step Riley, Rosemont has at least four potential movie stars. He says his head felt like a door-knob the other night at the concert. He claims he has discovered another "Lamarr," in one of the Sophs. . .but then if we are to believe all that we hear from his pal Healy, we would say Step will "look and not touch."

Science Quarterly Makes Appearance

The Mendel Bulletin, School of Science quarterly publication, will make its first appearance this year, Thursday, December 14.

The various scientific articles which are of popular interest are presented in an untechnical manner so that students from all classes may understand them. Contained in this issue, in addition to the regular articles is a cartoon by John J. Grey, sophomore science student, and a poem describing a freshman's observations of the process of mitosis under the microscope, written by Harry Goodman.

All students of the School of Science may call for their copies of the Mendel Bulletin at the office, Room 53, Mendel Hall, between 12:30 and 1:30. In addition to the college circulation, the Mendel Bulletin enjoys a nation-wide distribution among other colleges, high schools, and scientific publications as well as a number of foreign institutions.

'TIMES' INVITES STUDENTS TO VISIT MUSEUM, PLANT

The "New York Times" has issued invitations to all students who will be in New York during the Christmas holidays to take a specially conducted trip through the Times Building.

Lasting approximately one and a half hours, this trip takes the visitor through the editorial department, the Times studio, Wide World Photos, the composing room, the news room and the press room.

In addition visitors may visit a special room arranged to display the history of the recorded word. This exhibit showing man's progress in recording his works and thoughts from the first impressions in clay to the modern newspaper, contains more than 200 objects, including manuscripts, printed books, newspapers and examples or pictures of equipment used in producing them. The museum is open every day from ten to five and on Wednesday from ten to ten.

Tours are scheduled from nine to eleven in the morning and from two to four in the afternoon daily except on Sundays and Holidays. In order to secure a reservation, it is necessary to either write to the New York Times Guide Service about ten days in advance or telephone Lackawanna 4-1000, extension 41, at least one day in advance.

Fr. Stanford Makes Annual Grad Tour

Every year at this time very Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the College, makes a tour of various local Alumni clubs. At the dinners given in his honor he speaks on subjects that prove interesting to alumni, such as changes in teachers and equipment.

Those clubs marked with asterisks found Mr. Slaughter, Alumni Secretary-Treasurer, accompaning Fr. Stanford. Mr. Slaughter on these visits explained the set-up of the newly installed placement bureau and Alumni organization.

The following are the clubs Fr. Stanford has visited this year:

INDICATIONS of another successful basketball season were seen in the Field House over the week-end. The boys started on the right foot; we see no reason why they shouldn't continue their winnings ways and come through with another championship team.

Once again, however, the schedule has been arranged to deprive the students of seeing the better teams. As in the past, the clubs with "names" will show their stuff here during the Christmas holidays. It is too bad that such is the case; but when all our home games must be played in the local gym, it can hardly be arranged otherwise.

Phil Dunn

It is during the holidays that the major quintets make their trips. Therefore it is only during the holidays that intersectional games will not be played here, which is not at all what the students would like.

—V—

Our attention was called to an error in last week's issue which stated that Ray Gadsby, football trainer and erstwhile boxing coach, was an Olympic trainer. Instead, he boxed in the Olympics. Sorry if we made you look like an old man, Ray; we didn't intend to.

—V—

Announcement has been made that the track team is taking a rest. Although they did not compete in any cross-country meets, they worked out in this department for three months and are now "laying off" until some time in January, when they will begin workouts for the indoor season.

—V—

Last year's indoor season was memorable for the race which Johnny Maher ran in Convention Hall where he ran a virtual dead-heat with Barney Ewell, Penn State's colored flash, in the record breaking time of 5.1 seconds. Johnny is hampered just now by an injury to his knee. Whether or not this injury will linger and cause his running to be below par in the coming year even John doesn't know. All Villanova hopes it isn't so.

—V—

Another coach bemoaning knee injuries is Al Severance. Just as it looks like "Duke" Duzminski has returned to form and can be counted on, Lloyd Rice folded up with a similar ailment and will be out of the next four or five games at least.. Coaches Elliott and Severance should get together

Dick Monsaert became an uncle and football manager on the same recent date and since then has been going around with his head (and nose) in the air. We hear that there is a fee charged for each time you shake his hand.

Mendel's victory in the intramural swimming meet was a little bit of an upset, in that few gave them an even chance to win. For some time around here it has been the general idea that the upper-class dorms were powers supreme in the intramural contests. This year's crop of frosh are out to refute that idea and so far have made great progress.

Alumni's great showing in the basketball race, and the swimming prowess displayed by the Penthousers are notable examples of the fact that the newcomers are not

KITTENS TRIUMPH IN TWO OF THREE CONTESTS PLAYED

Narberth and Lincoln Prep Fall Before Yearlings; Conshohocken Club Wins

The Villanova yearlings opened up unofficially with a practice session against the Conshohocken Hy Club at the Redmen Hall Wednesday evening. Being the yearlings' initial start and the game having only been set forth to be a practice session, Coach Severance was able to experiment with various combinations.

During the first half the game was really a struggle, the score at the half being 23-22, with the yearlings on the short end of the score. Bill Woods, the former Brown Prep star, and Jack Stanton from St. George High at Evanston, Illinois, shared most of the burden. The final score found the yearlings still on the short end of the score, which was 46-42. Brown and Stanley fared well for the winners .

The "Kittens" had their official opener as a preliminary to the varsity game against Lincoln Prep Friday night. After their practice session with the Conshohocken Hy Club Wednesday, Coach Severance was able to determine, through his various experiments, the best quintet. His selection proved highly favorable, as the 37-30 score with Lincoln Prep on the short end of the score indicates.

Starters

After prudent selection the initial quintet saw Woods and Bob Kelty who is from Trenton Catholic, doing the "Kittens" scoring which gave them the lead at half time. Completing the quintet was Bilski from John Adams High in New York; Art Spector, the local boy who is making good, from Brown Prep., and Jack Stanton. During the second half, after resting his starters, the Coach sent in Rosatto, Pryzyski, and Casael all who proved to be valuable substitute material. Stanton carried off the scoring honors with 12 points. Proving worthy and who should be mentioned here were Curtis and Chilinick for Lincoln Prep.

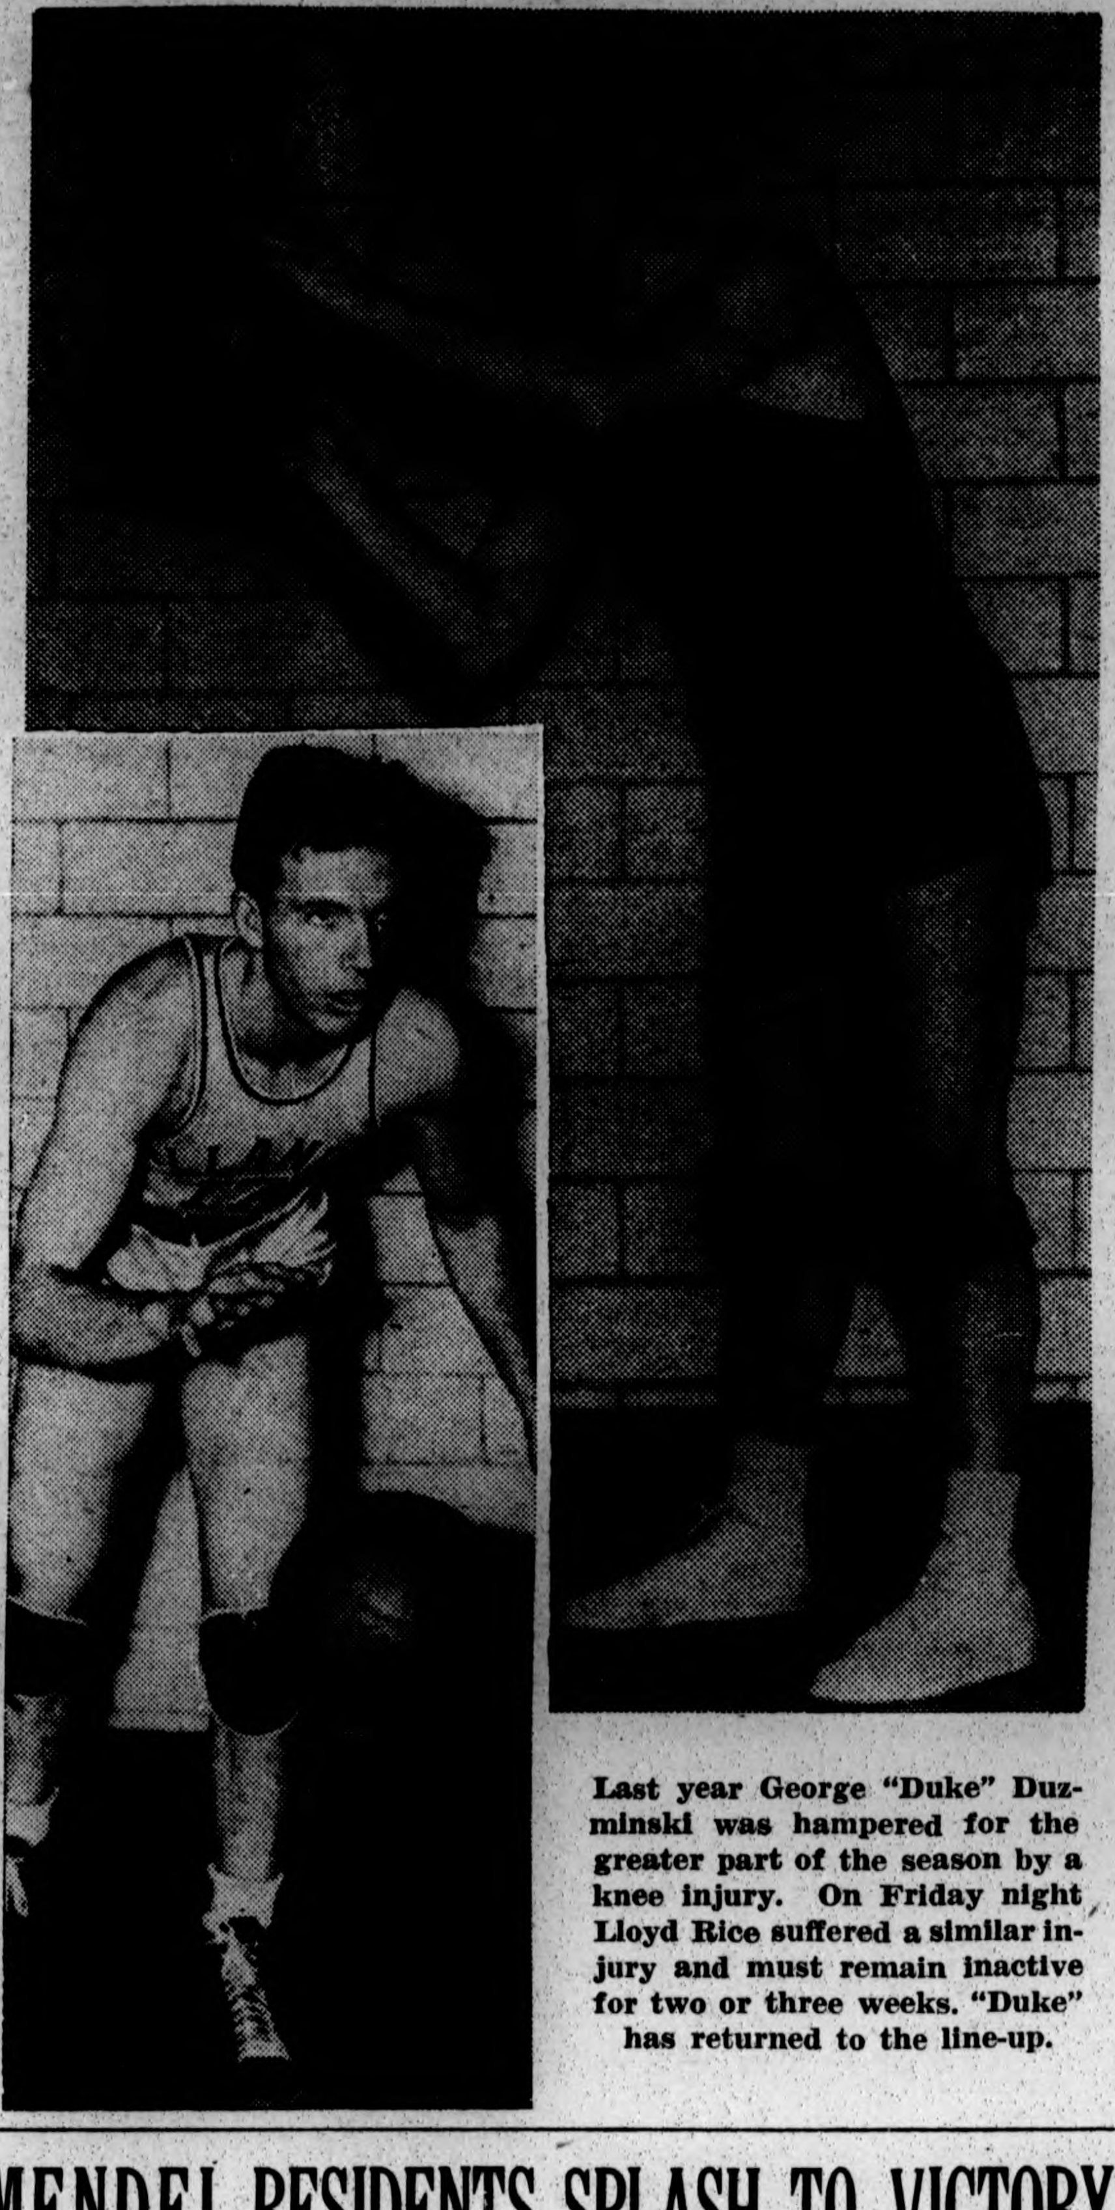
Saturday night the "Kittens" chalked up their second win against the Narberth Aces. This proved to be as good a game as anyone will ever see. The Narberth Aces proved to be worthy opponents, and they made the Kittens "purr" to a great extent throughout the thriller. However, soon after the initial whistle the "Kittens" discovered that they were in for a great battle. With this in mind Woods went to town and scored 12 points during the initial half. Stanton and Spector played a memorable floor game with great dexterity. The score at the half was the "Kittens" 18—the Aces 10.

Tighten Up

Throughout the second half, which proved to be a thriller, the Aces were playing great ball behind their leading dropper, Griffis. The "Kittens," however, began to tighten up as Tony Calandra, the memorable star from Seton Hall, came through with a honey of a floor game. Aside from him Pryzycki proved to the spectators that he will be a future varsity man next year, and they should at least devote one of their two good eyes to his excellent ball handling.

After 40 minutes of battling back and forth the official scorer stated his decision which was the Frosh 37—the Aces 30. Giving the Frosh trouble throughout the game were Griffis, Stanley and Morris.

Jinx Transferred



Last year George "Duke" Duzminski was hampered for the greater part of the season by a knee injury. On Friday night Lloyd Rice suffered a similar injury and must remain inactive for two or three weeks. "Duke" has returned to the line-up.

MENDEL RESIDENTS SPLASH TO VICTORY

Desman's Win in "50" Enables Penthousers to Ward Off Austin

Another wild and exciting event in Villanova's elaborate intramural program was bitterly contested in the college pool last Wednesday evening. It was the annual swimming championship which was justly won by the Mendel Residents who displayed a fine quality of taletn in all events. Almost equally matched was the fine Austin team which was tagging the Mendelites all the way.

The many onlookers who lined the observation platform were thrilled no end as each race was contested as if the whole meet depended on it. The climax came with the swimming of the final event on the program, the 50-yd. breast stroke. Mendel held a 24-23 lead over Austin, and C. & F. was close behind with 19 points. It was any teams meet at this point, and excitement was at its highest pitch. Father McGuire, sure of victory, spoke calmly to his boys in the rear of the pool.

Desman Wins

Then they were off as a terrific din arose which did not subside until many minutes after Mendel's Desman submarined across the line four yards ahead of his nearest opponent, Reilly who was also a second placer in the 100 yd. free style. Reilly, being a Mendel man also, aided in assuring the victory for his team. Third place was taken by Lyons of Austin who was just edged out of second by Reilly.

Jubilantly the Mendel Frosh swarmed around the winded Desman, who had already swam in the Medley Relay and the 250-yd. dash, as proud Father McQuade strutted around the pool, a little wet for his troubles, but happy.

Results

The results of the individual events were: 50 yd. Free Style — 1. Gaston F., 2. Powell C & F, 3. Koness A.; 100 yd. Free Style—1. Mauch M.D.S., 2. Reilly M. R., 3. Clarken F.; 50 yd. Breast Stroke—1. Desman M. R., 2. Reilly M. R., 3. Lyons A.; Fancy Diving—1. Green A1., 2. Boudon A., 3. Clarken F.; Relay—1. C&F., 2. Austin, 3. Mendel R., 4. Fedigan, 5. Alumni; Medley Relay—1. Mendel R., 2. Austin, 3. C&F, 5. Fedigan, 5. Alumni.

Totals

1—Mendel R.	32
2—Austin	24
3—C & F	19

WITTENBURG LOSES TO BLUE COURTMEN BY 38 - 24 MARGIN

Mount St. Mary's and Loyola Also Beaten; Lazorhak Leads in Scoring

Little Mike Lazorchak paced the Villanova basketball team to its third consecutive victory last night when he scored 18 points in his team's 38-24 win over Wittenburg College of Springfield, Ohio, on the Main Line floor. Trailing 15-14 at halftime, the 'Cats once again demonstrated their ability to come back when they decisively outscored their opponents in the second half. "Chuck" Yund was second high score for the Blue with eight markers, while Heskett and Chatlain sparked the losers play with 10 and nine points respectively.

Villanova's frosh won a preliminary game from the Lighthouse Boys' Club 48-35.

On Friday night a Blue barrage of field goals proved to be too much for an outclassed Mount St. Mary's five, and the Cats copped their inaugural, 43-17. The Villanova five opened up slowly, but turned on the heat in the second period and stayed hot until the final gun.

Leader in the scoring column for the Wildcats was "Duke" Duzminski, who seemed to be back in the form that he had in his sophomore term when he took the Philadelphia individual scoring crown. Duke cut the cords for eleven points.

Lloyd Rice, a senior brought up from last year's substitute ranks, played brilliant ball for the Wildcats, especially in the initial half. Rice's four fied goals won him second place in the scoring column, followed closely by Mike Lazorchak with seven points.

Bill Harkins, a forward, shone for the Mount club and was the chief thorn in the 'Cats' hide.

Numerous Subs

The starting five, Lazorchak, Rice, Gerland, Yund, and Duzminski, played most of the game for Villanova, while Mount St. Mary's used numerous substitutes in a vain attempt to stop the Blue onslaught. Nugent, Sinnott, and Gray also saw action in the Villanova line-up. Every Villanova man to play scored for the 'Cats.

Saturday night Loyola College furnished the opposition and met the same fate as Mount St. Mary's. Villanova took the lead after about nine minutes of play and kept it safely throughout to conquer the Loyolans by a 35-26 count. Little Mike Lazorchak burned up the court with a sterling performance in racking up 14 points. Duzminski continued his brilliance of the preceding night and split the cords for seven counters.

Severance used numerous substitutions in the latter part of the game but every combination was invincible against the Baltimore clan which the night before had thrown a scare into La Salle College of Philadelphia before being nosed out in the final minutes of play.

Rice Hurt

Lloyd Rice incurred an injury early in the second half and was removed from the game.

Observers of the Wildcats' opening games expressed the opinion that Al Severance has again moulded a fine aggregation. Experienced material was none too prolific, but the team as a unit seems to compare favorably with its predecessors, especially in defensive play.

Mike Lazorchak was high scorer for the first two games, racking up twenty-one points. George Duzminski piled up eleven and seven for a total of eighteen counters.

WIN FOR FEDIGAN WILL CLINCH CHASE

Gigolos Crush C&F Commuters; Assure Tie in Intramural Court Race

With still one more game to play in the first half of the intramural basketball tournament, Fedigan is at least sure of a tie for first place. In the final game which should take place sometime this week the Gigolos will face the Mendel Day Students, and you can bet the Day Students will have a good cheering section mostly occupied by resident students from Alumni Hall. If Fedigan wins this game, they will also win the first half crown; but if they should lose it, they will still tie with Alumni for first place and a playoff will be necessary.

In the only game last week Fedigan trounced the C&F team 43-27. The Gigolos got off to a good start in the first period and breezed through the rest of the fray, not once being threatened by the Commuters. Keeler starred for the Residents, while Coupe and McMenamin paced the losers.

Four New Rules For Basketball

When college court teams begin the 1939-40 season next month, they will play under revised basketball rules that are intended to reduce fouling and minimize the disadvantages many claimed existed under last year's regulations.

The end line of the court shall be four feet from the face of the backboard (this had been optional last season). The exception to this rule is for courts where the physical limitations of the floor do not permit such an extension but a two-foot minimum is required. The ideal court is 94 feet in length from outside line to outsile line with 86 feet from the face of one backboard to the face of the other.

After a free throw from a technical foul the ball is to be awarded to the team which was awarded the free throw, the ball to be put in bounds at midcourt.

When a personal foul is called the offended team has the option of trying a free throw or putting the ball in play from out-of-bounds. If two free throws are awarded this rule applies to the last free throws shall be awarded whether the field is mode or not.

willing to take a back seat in the inter-dorm rivalry.

We'd like to add our voice to the number of murmurs heard on the campus with regard to the pomp and ceremony going on at the gym before each basketball game. "Ladies and gentlemen, the National Anthem," Bob McIntyre announces; and all noble citizens arise and bare their heads.

We have nothing against the Star Spangled Banner, of course, nor against the country for which it stands. Those thoughts are furthest from our mind.

What the reason for the procedure at this time is, however, does not seem clear. It could very easily be mistaken for an attempt to insert a spirit of patriotism into the "cannon fodder" meaning you, you and especially us, which attends and participates in these games.

According to all reports the cultural side of Villanova activity was taken care of last Tuesday night, but some how or other the news didn't reach the ears of the gentlemen in the Athletic Office. Let's hope in the future that basketball authorities will stay on their own side of the fence, and save the flag waving for the American Legion.

1939 FOOTBALL SEASON'S ENDING BRINGS THREE MORE ILLUSTRIOUS CAREERS TO A CLOSE

By FRED RAPPLEYEA

BE A FOOTBALL MANAGER AND SEE THE WORLD!" This is the slogan that John Lang, co-manager of the football team, seemed to have in mind when he decided to become custodian of the football equipment. Since first joining the managerial staff as a freshman, this twenty-year-old lad has seen almost every state in the Union, having made trips to South Carolina, Texas, Alabama, Detroit and Boston.

Although a manager's position involves heavy responsibilities and numerous little menial tasks, John, together with his partner, Tim Waad, has never had the enigma of having left something behind on a trip hang over his head. When one considers that on the day the team leaves for a distant place there are players shouting for everything under the sun, one cannot help but realize that this is quite a feat.

Versatile Lad

This Mildred, Pennsylvania, lad is quite versatile. To prove this we need only point to the fact that in his high school days at Dushore High in Dushore, he not only played basketball but also found time to assume the hard task of editing his school newspaper.

Here at Villanova, John is one of the fortunate lads who can be found rooming in our newly acquired Simpson Hall. Taking up where he left off in high school, John decided to tackle the Commerce and Finance Course here at Villanova. In this department he chose to major in Accounting. Even though he has had to spend much time and effort in keeping the equipment of the football squad straight, his studies have not suffered in the least for he has never been out of the first quarter in his class. This fact when viewed under these circumstances is really an achievement.

Thrilled at Detroit

To round out a picture of John we have to show that he was quite the lad around the gridiron. Usually he could be seen arguing with Harry Mazzei about many and various points. On all the trips, he, together with Timmy Waad, was always anxious to see that various members of the team really enjoyed the trip. His greatest thrill of his four-year career came when he saw a battling Villanova club stave off an inspired Detroit team in the closing minutes of this year's game. After that sight John was really proud to have had something to do with such a game Villanova squad.

Upon graduation, John hopes to become a member of that world famous organization, the F. B. I. He wants to be a G-man and help in the Legal and Accounting departments. If his work as Senior Co-Manager of the football squad in the last two years can be any measure or indication of his future success, John need have no fear for the years to come.

CHRISTMAS DANCE

On December 25, in the Sterling Hotel, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the Wilkes- Barre chapter of the Villanova Alumni Association will hold its annual Christmas Dance. The dance will begin at 10 P. M. and end at 2 A. M.

Particulars about this social affair can be obtained from William Gillespie, Gilbert Noll, Walter Filipek or William Devers. All are resident students.

THIS WEEK we have another varsity man, who hails from the coal regions, where many Villanova players have in some way or other commenced their athletic careers. We bring forth to you Alphonse D. Shedlosky, "Legs" to you, born in Nanticoke, Pa., Oct. 4, 1916. He is one of four brothers who have made good and are still making good in football—one an All-American at Pitt—a few years ago, one at Scranton University, and a young brother, a freshman at Fordham.

Three Sports

At Nanticoke High School "Legs" participated in three sports, four years of football, three years of basketball, and four years of track. Incidentally, in track he held the quarter mile record. At the conclusion of four years of high school he was the recipient of seven letters, two in football, three in track, and two in basketball.

Enters Villanova

After washing the coal dirt from behind his ears he decided to enter Villanova under the capable guidance of "Clipper" Smith. Upon his entrance here he was converted from halfback to end. Aside from giving two years of his time to varsity football, Legs found time to run for the track team. He was a member of the track team that ran second in the Penn relays.

Big City

The important point that "Legs" will always remember will be his trip to New York in his sophomore year when the varsity went up to play Manhattan. It was "Legs'" first trip to the big city with all those big lights and beautiful women.

Incidentally, have "Legs" tell you about his first trip and you will understand in a more explicit manner why it was quite memorable.

When "Legs" walks off with his "Sheepskin" in June with a B. S. in Economics, he has intentions of opening up a Beauty Parlor in Wilkes-Barre—why Wilkes-Barre?—Ask Legs.

ALL-CATHOLIC

Selecting of "All" teams is at its peak. Latest news is that which concerns Harry Mazzei's reward for meritorious service. The "Baby Tank" was named second team quarter back of the mythical All-Catholic team.

IT is a brisk Saturday afternoon in the fall. The stadium is fast filling with eager fans, while out on the field the teams are warming up. Most of the spectators are scanning the field looking for their favorite players, or searching for the numbers of the big threats of the opposing team. But down on the sidelines there is a man running about between bench and dressing room, seeing that all equipment is in order, and taking terse orders from a nervous coach. He is the unsung hero of the football team,—the manager. At Villanova he is Tim Waad who along with John Lang shares the title of "Clipper's Right-hand Man."

Manager Eight Years

Tim has been a football manager for eight years, four in high school and four here at Villanova. For the past two years he has been head manager and has made all the trips with the team. Tim says he has learned much from his travels and has made many interesting and valuable contacts. He has had a number of novel experiences and has seen many interesting things, from the vast oil fields of Texas to an old-fashioned town in Dearborn, Michigan.

Tim hails from Audubon, N. J. where he graduated in 1934. Besides being manager of football he participated in basketball, tennis and track.

After high school Tim worked for two years at the DuPont Paint Co. Then in 1936 he decided to further his education, and through the influence of Bill Grimberg, former "Wildcat" football captain, he enrolled at this institution.

During his stay here Tim has not confined his activities to football, but has been a regular member of the varsity track team since his freshman year, participating in the broad-jump and throwing the javelin.

In June Tim will receive a B. S. in Economics, and from his past performances we feel sure he will be successful in the business world.

STAKEM VS. STAKEM

A brother against brother show was enacted last Saturday when Villanova's basketeers met the Loyola of Baltimore quintet on the Main Line court. Jim Stakem, sophomore guard on the Blue and White squad was pitted against his brother who handles a forward assignment for the Southern five.

MORE HOME GAMES

"Clipper" Smith announced recently that the Villanova football schedule will include several more home games next year in contrast to the 1939 card which had the Wildcats make several long jaunts. A game with Baylor is definitely set for Shibe Park in 1940.

FIVE HOME GAMES ON QUINTET CARD

Tulane, Indiana and Ohio Clubs to Display Wares on Field House Floor

Five basketball games to be played on the Villanova court between now and the time for our next issue, Jan. 9. These include tests with the best teams on the schedule, which are to be played during the Christmas holidays.

This evening, Dec. 12, Washington (Pa.) College will be met on the Main Line floor. These lads hail from the western-most part of the state, and wade in with no advance notice. Being an unknown quantity, they could very easily provide an upset.

On the 15th Western Maryland, an old Villanova rival where athletics are concerned, comes to town with their usually tough quintet. This club is perenially made up of rugged individuals who have the necessary dash and spirit to provide a thrilling contest.

Next Tulane, Indiana, and Ohio move in in that order. These games will find the student body absent, and should be the toughest of the season. Tulane's Green Wave put in their appearance on the 22nd of this month and brings a strong aggregation of sharp-shooters. Indiana, beaten out by Ohio State for the big ten title last year, should be the bright light of the entire season; and Ohio will be another really great club. Indiana and Ohio will be met on the 28th of Dec. and 5th of Jan., respectively.

SUGGESTIONS

"Clipper" Smith made the following suggestions at a recent local football meeting: 1. Number the yard lines in white on the playing field (inside the boundaries), as an aid to the players. This would also tend to eliminate injury from boxed markers. 2. Mark the end zone so it can readily be seen, even at a distance. This would facilitate both offensive and defensive playing.

HERE and THERE

With HARRY MAZZEI

AFTER MORE fanfare than a Brooklyn Dodger baseball game, Villanova's Varsity quintet finally shedded their sweatsuits last Friday night and exhibited themselves to the local gentry. What the locals saw must have pleased them no little, for all those doubts and fears about "Duke" Duzminski's dubious knee were at last dispelled.

Harry Mazzei

Although not moving in the lightning-like fashion that studded his pre-injury performances, the "Duke" showed enough skill and agility to snake under the Mount net for four lay-up baskets. Duzminski's long range gunning was not even close to his usual standard, but the fact that he didn't miss a minute of the contest almost insures his eventual return to form.

The 'Cat basketeers showed plenty of promise after overcoming a shaky start probably caused by the high pressure pre-game activities. Only a combination of Tex Rickard, Barnum, and Larry "The Red" McPhail could better Friday evening's pompous display.

Undoubtedly the inception of such a glamourous innovation produced a change from the usual procedure, but still it reminded one of various All-Star football games played throughout the country early each fall; unless we're mistaken these contests are participated in by "pros." "Enuff" said.

When the frosh gridders played St. Benedict's Prep early this season, Ed "Rip" Collins of the Prep sustained a broken left leg in an unfortunate accident. Last week Collin's leg was amputated because of an infected blood clot that resulted from the injury.

On Saturday Head Coach "Clipper" Smith journeyed up to Newark to offer whatever solace he could. To this fine gesture we would like to add the regrets of the whole Villanova student body, and also express the hope that next Fall will find Ed Collins a member of the Blue and White class of '44.

Whether you are aware of this fact or not, this is the final effort of yours truly. Before we depart posthaste we would like to take time out to tip our hat to one of Villanova's more brilliant athletes—little Mike Lazorchak. For three years the diminutive "Canonsburg Cannonader" has been doing things at the Main Line institution all out of proportion to his five feet, seven inches. Last year, along Johnny Krutulis, Lazorchak made the 'Cats howl. This year he's back at his old post, digging for loose balls and tempering the nerves of the opposition. This should be his best year; we sincerely hope it is.

Despite the ineptitude of Mt. St. Mary's court representatives their student body was not lacking in spirit. Quite a number of the Mounters journeyed from Emmitsburg, Maryland, to watch their five go down to an almost predestined defeat. This is just another indication that winning is not everything in sports.

* * *

And now, as that time honored saying goes, "All good (?) things must come to an end." It's with a mingled feeling of regret and relief that we now cover our Remington and bid good-luck to whomever has the misfortune to follow.

So long!

We'd like to finish up with something new. So with hats off to Richard Vidmer of the N. Y. Herald-Tribune, we are going to conduct a little sports quiz of our own. Just how many can you answer?

Prizes will be awarded in the VILLANOVAN office on Christmas Day. First prize (open to all contestants living 700 miles from Philly) two tickets to the Villanova-Tulane basketball game.

CARDS DRAFT CHISICK

In the recent draft meeting of the National Professional Football League the Chicago Cardinals won the exclusive right to bid for the services of Andy Chisick, center on the Villanova eleven for the past two years.

'Cats Second

Although Villanova's 1939 football ranking did not find them in the first ten, some consolation was offered yesterday when the Associated Press rated the 'Cats as the second best grid aggregation in the nation over a period of five years. This feat just adds another brilliant chapter to the football careers of "Clipper" Smith and Vince McNally, who have guided the Main Line destinies in four of these five years of plenty.

Rated on the percentage of wins and losses scored over a half-decade only the Purple Crusaders of Holy Cross have been able to better the efforts of the Smithmen, who were tied for the runner-up post by Fordham. Holy Cross compiled a percentage of .886, while the 'Cats and Rams gained an average of .857.

It is most interesting to note that the Main Liners ranked higher over this span of years than many of the elevens that reaped the harvest in the post-season grid plumes. Perhaps (although we doubt it very much), this revelation will cause the Bowl committees to scan this particular section of suburban Philadelphia more closely when future records may merit added consideration.

Villanova's commendable mark was established as a result of 36 wins, 6 defeats, and three ties. By far the most lucrative period was the space including the 1937-38 seasons. In those two years the Blue reeled off 16 victories, was tied twice, and failed to suffer a defeat.

SCRIBES CHALLENGE COLLEGE QUINTETS

Preliminary Game Between Staffs to be Arranged; Material Plentiful

Being anxious to try their skill on the hardwood court, the scribes of the VILLANOVAN have issued a challenge to all groups in their class. Just what class this means is not quite clear at present, but it is understood that the faculty, the frats, and all engineering teams would be met—and gladly—by the writers.

With no definite schedule having been arranged and with the purpose in mind of discovering the best talent for the newspaper team, a preliminary game, or games, between the Sports and College staffs has been decided upon. The when and where of this game is also indefinite.

Line-Ups

Jim Collins, former Archmere Academy athlete is expected to be the star of the College Staff's quintet. He will be aided and abetted by such stalwarts as John J. Harrington, Tom Doyle, Tony Liscio and Murray Zealor. Other material, although probably not of as high a calibre, is available.

As to their mainstay of attack, the sports scribes intend to floor a team composed, among others, of Harry Mazzei, Phil Dunn, Bill Carey, Joe Barnes and Bob Funabashi. Realizing that there is much more material available, how ever, they have restrained from selecting a starting five.

WOE

Villanova's ace back, Nick Basca, has been given mention on so many "All" teams this year that he will surely be the man that opponents will watch next season. (The woes of publicity, Chapter One.)

AMERICA POLL ECHOES VILLANOVA'S OPINIONS

Thirty-two states and the District of Columbia, participating in the national Catholic intercollegiate war poll sponsored by America, national Catholic weekly, have testified the same sentiment as that revealed through the tabulation of a similar war poll representing student opinion at Villanova.

Ninety percent of the universities and colleges invited to participate sent in replies to the authorities; from this number it was learned that approximately 54,000 students voiced their feelings on the question concerning our entrance into the present European conflict and on the less important issues concerning the different elements which would arise if we were actively engaged in the war.

The men and women of our Catholice colleges agreed with one another on all the questions except the fourth and fifth. The men aspire more than their girl friends to the referendum issue, while the fairer sex favor the volunteer movement more than we brawny specimens.

BELLE AIR TO HAVE THREE INNOVATIONS

Annual to Feature College History, Student's Progress, and Color Plates

Three new features intended to make the 1940 edition of the Belle Air an outstanding one are now being worked upon, according to Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief of the book.

A complete history of the first 25 years of Villanova College, embodying many pictures, is one of these new features.

A special section entitled, "The Making of a Villanova Student," will be another innovation. This group of photographs will show the activities of students on the campus from the time of their registration to the day that they receive their degrees.

The third feature will consist of four beautiful scenes of the campus in four colors.

Due to the extra expense involved in these innovations, the price of the annual will be $7.50 a copy to all those who have not subscribed to the Belle Air through their matriculation fee. However, the price to those who order their copies between now and March 1 will be only five dollars per copy. Students are warned that only a few copies will be available after the date of publication.

Last year many students ordered several copies of the Belle Air for presentation to their parents and friends as a pictorial memory of their days at Villanova. Any intending to do so this year are advised to order their copies early.

Senior Socials Due Friday And Saturday Of This Week; Fountain Scene Gives Way To Winter Setting At Ball

Teagarden, Noted Trombonist, Brings Orchestra to Philadelphia For First Time

On Friday evening, January 12, in the Field House, Jackson Teagarden will provide the melodic rhythms for the annual Belle Air Ball. This noted trombonist brings his 16 men and a girl to the campus for his initial appearance in Philadelphia. With him will be Kitty Kallen, well-known local songstress, who will warble the tunes for this popular musical aggregation, only recently gaining the prestige it deserves.

Numerous innovations will be introduced at the dance, according to Robert G. Wilderotter, chairman. The novel presentation of the evening will take place during the grand march. Each senior and his date will walk stageward, according to alphabetical arrangement, and their names will be announced the moment they reach the bandstand on the stage.

For the first time in recent years, the decorations will deviate from the usual fountain scene. The snowy beauty of winter will be emphasized by two realistically frozen ponds surrounded by winter shrubbery, upon which vari-colored spotlights will play. At different places around the floor will be fireplaces surrounded by comfortable furniture.

Another touch of formality will be added by the erection of a marquee and the presence of a doorman. The marquee will open into a lavishly decorated foyer from which the couples will proceed to the exotic atmosphere of the ballroom.

A wide assortment of refreshments will be served in the blue room.

Advance ticket sales are very good, but tickets may still be purchased either in the reception room of Mendel hall, from 12:30 to 1:30 P. M. of any day, or at the entrance to the dance.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Club Members to Discuss Business Problems; Plan Regular Meetings

The International Relations Club, under the guidance of Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., will hold its first meeting of the new year this Thursday at 1:00 in Room 111, Mendel hall.

Some of the business problems of the society will be discussed. It is hoped that a regular meeting date which is agreeable to everyone will be decided upon.

Some new books were donated to the club's library by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Included among these are: "Poland, Key to Europe," Buell; "Denmark, a Social Laboratory," Manniche; "Liberality and Civilization," Murray. There are also two pamphlets of the International Conciliation series.

"Alumnus" Appears In Winter Issue

With its December issue, the Villanova "Alumnus," official publication of the Alumni Association, adds another feature, "Personality Portraits," to its contents, picking as its first subject Walter E. Alessandroni, '35, newly-appointed secretary to Mayor Lamberton of Philadelphia.

Candid camera shots of the spectators at the homecoming Arkansas football game are included, together with a motion picture view of Nick Basca's deciding run in the Temple-Villanova game.

Included in the recent issue is an article on Communism by Rev. C. J. McFadden, O. S. A., Ph. D., an article on the basketball team, messages from Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., and Marty McLaughlin, president of the Alumni Association, and a discussion by William G. Slaughter on the improvements of the dining hall and of Simpson hall.

ASCE INVITED TO ATTEND "PENNSYLVANIA TURNPIKE"

Local Group to Hear Discussion at Philadelphia Chapter of Society

Members of the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers have been invited to attend a discussion of "The Pennsylvania Turnpike" tonight at the regular meeting of the Philadelphia chapter of the ASCE.

The discussion, in which five speakers of engineering and construction note will participate, will be illustrated with slides. Different aspects of the problems of highway construction in Pennsylvania will provide material for the speakers.

Dinner, for which a charge of 50 cents will be levied, is scheduled for 6:00 P. M., to be followed by the speeches, a general discussion, and refreshments.

JUNIOR APPOINTEE SELECTED TO HOLD MOTHER'S DAY POST

Class President Keating to Announce Other Chairmen in Near Future

Murray F. Zealor, junior commerce student, was appointed chairman of the Mothers' Day committee, according to an announcement made late yesterday by Daniel J. Keating, president of the junior class.

Zealor, who will select the committee to serve under him, will have charge over the activities held on Mothers' Day, May 6, as part of Junior Week.

The newly-appointed chairman is qualified for his position: known as one of the most active men on the campus, he engages in numerous activities and holds leading posts on many of them.

In his freshman year, Zealor was president of the freshman debating team, a writer on the VILLANOVAN staff, and played the part of "Garth" in the annual Belle Masque play, "Winterset."

Elected president of the sophomore class, he served on student council and the orientation committee in that year. In that year also, he was literary editor of the VILLANOVAN, president of the Philadelphia division of the National Federation of Catholic College Students, chairman of the International Relations Club, and a member of Beta Gamma and Belle Air.

This year, besides his new appointment, Zealor is active as manager of Beta Gamma, secretary-treasurer of student council representing the junior class, a member of the orientation committee, a

David vs. Goliath

MIGHTY RUSSIA, the dark horse of the Old World, the formerly unanswered question in Europe's muddled affairs now unmasked, is being humbled before the eyes of the world by peace-loving Finland. The hammer and sickle, the clenched fist of the Reds is being rebuffed by the Finns. Statistically, theoretically, and according to military experts, this is impossible, but in all their figuring they failed to take account of the spirit of the defenders of Helsinki who are fighting for the freedom they cherish beyond life itself, while the Communists fight for a ideology that is empty and barren, that does not satisfy the hearts of the soldiers and the people.

The world owes little Finland a debt of gratitude, no matter what the outcome of the conflict may be: first, for showing up Russia for the big empty fake that it is, thus reducing former admiration that many had to scorn, and, secondly, for being plucky enough and confident enough not to capitulate before the onslaught of a supposedly mightier country, thus setting an admirable example for other small nations in the path of ruthless aggressors.

But to come to the point. Russia attacked Finlad for no apparent cause. Russia is being thrown back. Although an ocean separates these events from our own land, they can be tied up with certain conditions here.

They blast to pieces the repeated statements of American Communists who said that Communism was synonymous with peace. They have opened the eyes of the general public to a great menace who, with this realization, will encourage steps to hinder the spread of Stalinism in this country. Finally, this demonstration of the fundamental weakness of the Russian system will shake the faith of many Americans who have been confused and enraptured by the Utopian promises of the Red propagandists.

For these and other reasons Americans should be thankful that a certain little David in Europe is defeating a mighty Goliath.

At Long Last

RECENTLY Mr. Roosevelt appointed Myron C. Taylor, a prominent Episcopalian, as ambassador without portfolio to the Vatican. This came as heartening news to the millions of Catholics in the United States who have wanted governmental recognition of the Vatican as an independent nation. Although Mr. Taylor will not act in the same capacity as an official ambassador, the fact that the President has taken such a step points to the future probability of opening relations between the Vatican city and this country.

It is a sign of the realization on the part of the non-Catholic world of the importance of the position the Holy Father should hold in international affairs and the influence he could wield with the proper and Christian cooperation of other nations.

In a time when all principles of social justice and charity are being trampled down in other parts of the world, a step in the right direction for future World Peace was made by this move when Mr. Roosevelt turned to the Holy See, from which have come the encyclicals "Rerum Novarum" and "Quadragessimo Anno", at last being recognized as two documents embodying princples which would offer the world a chance to rehabilitate itself if they were universally accepted.

As Catholic students we congratulate the President on his decision and extend our thanks.

Rise Of Tolerance

THIS WEEK at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia there will be held the annual meetings of various denominational educational groups. The committees attending the meetings will be representative of most Church-related colleges and universities, of Church Boards of Education, and Church workers with college students. The general theme of the affairs will be "Christian Education and American Democracy.

Years ago when the flames of predjudice and intolerance were aflame in this country such things could not go on, but now it seems that in America we are reaching the enviable goal of racial and religious tolerance to a degree never before known, for here we find an instance when Catholic and non-Catholic educational groups, both interested in the welfare of our nation, are meeting on common grounds to consult on problems facing Christian education in the United States.

This conglomeration of groups brings to mind the sorry state of affairs of Christian education, which atheistic elements have been trying to erase from the American school systems, but it is hoped that, as long as groups of people like those attending the meetings in Philadelphia work together and harmoniously, the future of Christian education in the United States will be safeguarded, thus realizing to a fuller extent the ideals of true American Democracy.

A WORD TO THE GODLESS

"When God is left out of human reckoning the loss acts upon the intellect like the deadly fumes of gas. It creeps into the unwary mind, poisoning those who are not immuned by their faith in a just foundation of things human. Despair is one of its noxious products."

—Goldstein and Avery

FACULTY COMMENTS

The Problem of Fixing Historical Responsibility

Truth About Wars Does Not Appear on Surface

By HAROLD F. HARTMAN, Ph. D.

Assistant Professor, Social Sciences

IN THIS contemporary era of political and social confusion, the problems of the professional historian have become acutely perplexing. Activities characterized by movements of political aggression and social upheaval have produced a multiplicity of historical facts. Since the operation of these facts have profoundly affected the "progress" of modern civilization, they immediately become the products of categorical investigation.

For the historian is principally concerned with the declaration of conclusions. In essence, these conclusions are produced through the functioning of the processes of academic investigation. If they are to merit any degree of permanent historical value, the student must have completely exhausted all of the facts available. Indeed, if one intentionally ignores a single fact or a combination of facts resulting from a movement or a trend toward which there exists no personal sympathy, the ethics of the profession itself will have been violated. The consideration needs no explanation in admitting the difficulties confronting the historian of the present day in an analysis of pertinent facts.

Undoubtedly, one of the most difficult problems penetrating man's mind today is the faxing of responsibility. This problem has traditionally plagued the rational faculties of the historian. Today, probably as never before, matters affecting the placing of responsibility for an occuring fact are regulated by personal considerations. The problem is essentially one of interpretation. Truly it may then be said that in this field of scholastic endeavor every man is his own historian.

Scarcely had the work of individuals and conventions been commenced in order to fiv the responsibility for World War Number One than the operation of certain other factual developments produced World War Number Two. Accordingly, once again, facts must be analyzed in order to determine responsibility for another World War. In encountering this problem, the student will also be approached with queries suggesting culpability and justification. Typical of the questions which he will be compelled to answer before arriving at definite conclusions are the following:

Was the German government totally responsible for the acts of aggression, committed last August, which violated the political integrity of Poland?

Assuming responsibility for the acts of the German government which constituted aggression, was that government justified?

Were the allied governments (England and France), in the period of diplomatic maneuvring preceding the outbreak of military activity of World War Number Two, justified in their actions?

To the individual burdened with an uninquiring mind, the above questions present no difficulties. This one is able to fix to his satisfaction the responsibility for the occurring activity very easily. No special mental penetration on his part is required in order to justify the act. In short, this individual's investigation of the facts which have engendered the activity in question is "gone with the wind."

But to the discerning mind, these same questions present a multitude of difficulties. The individual so fortunately endowed will proceed to analyze carefully and meticulously the facts before proceeding. Questions affecting responsibility and justification for an activity will be positively distinguished. Moreover, matters involving different types of responsibility will be differentiated. As, for instance, this student will be compelled to treat of matters relating to the fixing of simple factual responsibility and those bearing on the discovery of moral responsibility.

In conclusion, I would like to mention a few words of admonition to the Catholic student of history. While historians are generally agreed on questions of factual responsibility, they are rather hesitant to deal with matters involving the fixing or moral responsibility. Quite frequently when attempts

Father Lozano, Home From Visit To Spain, Says Nation Is Rebuilding Under Franco

By HARRY GOODMAN

SPAIN OF today is in the process of reconstruction; it is a nation awakening to a new dawn after a long, horrible night. Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., M. A., who has returned to Villanova with much information about Franco's new nation after completing a summer visit to Spain, continued, "Franco is well loved by his people. His popularity can be compared to that of Washington, for, to the Spaniards, he is 'first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his country-men.'"

Fr. Lozano added that, "reconstruction is progressing at such a rapid rate because of the popularity of the Generalissmo. The Spanish people are willing to cooperate with the government's plan of material, moral, and spiritual reconstruction."

Council Appointed

In order to facilitate the reconstruction, a National Council of seventy-five members was appointed by Franco. The task of reconstruction is regulated by a law, put into effect May 16, 1939, declaring that all men between the ages of eighteen and fifty residing in Spain must work a total of fifteen days on a reconstruction project for the state. Those who are unable to assist must pay the state a fine equivalent to the wages paid to a worker over the 15-day period.

The National Council has branches in all the large cities of Spain. These local branches are made up of a great number of bureaus, each of which has some particular phase of the reconstruction under its jurisdiction.

Towards Rehabilitation

That part of the local branch of the National Council which is concerned with rehabilitation is known as the National Home Bureau. Fr. Lozano himself saw the wonderful work being done by this organization. All the modern conveniences are in every building, whether it be a tenement or a private home.

Where rehabilitation is under way, the men must work three days each week on the project. Because the men themselves supply the necessary labor, rent amounts to a mere $1.80 per month.

Throughout Spain a total of 200,000 homes, both tenament and private, are being built.

Farmers Aided

The National Agricultural Board is established to aid the farmer. The government has placed a total of 300 million pesetas in private banks throughout the nation, and farmers may borrow up to 25,000 pesetas for farm improvement. Those land-owners who refuse to cultivate or improve their lands are fined accordingly.

The National Education Board provides convient and appropriate education for all Spanish children. The government offers scholarships to those meritorious high-school graduates who desire the higher learning of the universities. Religion and Christian education are prescribed courses in both the high schools and the universities. All Spanish students are obliged to study Latin for six years and must pursue Greek for a three year period.

The Family Wage Law of July 18, 1939, is the most popular of Franco's innovations. This law helps the working father to provide for his family. A subsidy of 15 pesetas per month is paid to the father of two children. A sum of 145 pesetas per month is paid by the government to the father of 12 children with an additional 25 pesetas per month for each child above that number.

These are just a few of the innovations introduced by Franco under the National Council.

Franco's Policies

Franco's government is founded on the policies of one of Spain's political parties, the Tradictionalist Phalanx. The platform of this political party has been written into the constitution of the Spanish government. Before drawing up the new constitution, Franco called a meeting of representatives of the different political parties in Spain, and from the different plans proffered by the various parties he chose the principles of the Tradictionalist Phalanx. Having agreed upon the foundation of the new government, all political parties dropped their differences to aid Franco with his task of rebuilding Spain.

"In order to show the American people that the new Spanish government is not Fascist nor tyrannical," stated Fr. Lozano, "I deem it best to present parts of the constitution itself. Of the twenty-six articles which make up the Spanish constitution, the eighteenth, nineteenth, and twenties contain the most convincing proof."

The Convincing Articles

The eighteenth article of the Spanish constitution states: "Our state will be an authoritarian instrument for the service of the integrity of the nation."

The nineteenth article propounds that, "man's dignity, man's integrity, and the man's right to liberty are eternal and intangible values of the new state of Spain."

The twentieth article contains the fact that "the National Syndicate State will permit any private enterprise compatible with the common welfare, and will protect any other enterprise which contributes to this purpose."

A Representative Cabinet

Having finally decided upon the constitution for his National Syndicate State, Franco then sought out the proper men to fill the positions in his cabinet. Last August, Franco completed his cabinet, consisting of representatives of the different political parties and representing the different sectors of Spain.

Franco and his workers are striving to bring back the glorious Spain of the sixteenth century, and the entire process of reconstruction hinges around this ideal: "Spain, united and free."

"Viva Franco! Arriba Espana!"

Al Bongiovanni, Mendel "Bulletin" Editor, Honor Man, Includes Many Activities On His List Of Merit Awards

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

SAY, BUD, this is just between you and me but that fellow there is what you might call "a bit all right." Yes, that's right, the one with the curly hair and that twinkle in his eye. You've heard of him? Well, who hasn't? . . . What's that? . . . Oh, I see, you're one of those skeptics who come from Missouri and want to be shown. Well, I'll tell you about him and, even though it may sound like a fairly tale from Grimm or Anderson, you can bet your life that it's all true, although it may sound like one human being could not do all that in one lifetime.

Seems to me it was one September 22, 1921, that a wailing, bawling bit of bounce came to brighten the life of Mr. and Mrs. Bongiovanni, two eminent pharmacists. His life prior to starting school was filled with various escapades, not least among which was chloroforming the cat (probably showing, even at that tender afe, his tendencies toward science.)

During this time, he attended Comb's Conservatory of Music and soon was tickling the keys of the piano as well as any neophytic virtuoso. Not content with the piano, he took to the organ also and for several years played for St. Rita's Church at Broad and Ellsworth St.

Entering South Philadelphia High School in 1932, he soon made himself known throughout the school by his high scholarship and extracurricular activities. He joined the German Club, the Literary and Debating Society and the Dramatics Club and participated in the Senior Play. Not content with limiting his talents as a Thespian to school only, he took the part of St. John in the Passion Play given by St. Rita's in 1935. But to show you what kind of a fellow he really is and the kind of stuff he's made of, I'll tell you that, though he was ill for some three months while a junior in high school, he came back and again rated high honors.

Choosing Villanova as the college of colleges (and he made no mistake) he came here in 1936 and immediately got his nose into a mess of things, including the Freshman Debating Team, of which he was the manager, the German Club, the International Relations Society; in addition he played the organ for the students at retreats. Later in his Freshman year, he was admitted into the Lamda Kappa Delta Fraternity; and, as though this weren't enough, at the end of the year he was rated third in his class.

In his sophomore year, in addition to his other activities, he began to write for the Mendel Bulletin and, during the week of orientation, had plenty of fun at the expense of the very verdant freshman, the new illustrious juniors. But what was now fast becoming a habit rather than anything extraordinary was his coming out first in class; this he continued doing up to now, rating top honors.

In his junior year, he answered the call of journalism and became staff writer for the VILLANOVAN, in addition to the Mendel Bulletin.

Gains Editorship

As a reward for his faithful and sincere services, in his senior year he was appointed Editor of the Mendel Bulletin and Co-Chairman of the Research Seminar, in which he had faithfully served. He was also appointed member of the Student Council under authority of the L. K. D.

So you see, he really is "a bit of all-right." But that isn't all, because what's all that without a character to tie it together and make it worth something?—and he isn't lacking in that by a long shot. As some eloquent orator might put it—"He is a man of integrity, and honor—a gentleman and a scholar"—The possesor of a beaming personality that has made him welcome everywhere and has won for him a host of true and loyal friends. A conversationalist on a myriad of subjects, he likes most of all to talk of music and the great masters—a fitting relaxation for an agile, never-sleeping mind.

INTRODUCING—A new year, a new columnist and (I hope), new jokes.

Shortly after the holidays, Fedigan's "Poet Laureate" received this note of fidelity and lovingness from his one and only:

By the time you swear your're his
Shivering and sighing,
And he vows his passion is
Infinite, undying;
Mister, make a note of this—
One of you is lying!

By way of reply, our hero sat himself down and, when the mood struck him, feverishly dashed off this next Pulitzer Prize winner:

She's crazy for my company,
She's longing for my kiss,
She claims her love -s all for me,
She said our love is bliss.

She said she thinks I'm just the stuff,
And that I'm all she'll ever want,
She says she doesn't treat me
rough,
Because I'm just a runt!

I say that I believe her too,
For I can trust her now, all right,
But still I sometimes feel so blue,
I think she's "nuts" and I know
I'm right!

Fedigan Hall sends its sympathies to Harry's girl friend.

Rubbing it in:

Repercussions from badly chosen Christmas presents are still occurring, it seems. Take the example of what happened to Bill Way:

A bottle of perfume that Willie sent
Was highly displeasing to Millicent.
Her thanks were so cold
They quarreled, I'm told
Through that silly scent Willie sent Millicent.

From the Ferris Torch we learn that, in the early days at the University of Arkansas, the faculty found it necessary to make a special ruling to force the students to leave their shootin' irons at home. No wonder Clipper's boys had to "shoot the works" to win.

There might be 'Moore' from me later, but looks like the war in Europe has come to the Finnish.

Love's Mystery

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

Who looks for love as something
Devoid of things of pain
Knows not the rose is reddened
Because of stinging rain;

Knows not that every cedar
Is stronger for the storm,
That the thick snows of winter
Keep roots and tendrils warm.

Oh, it were better, wiser
To shut no sorrow out
To take the richest moments
Along with those of doubt;

To blend the high and noble
With less deserving stuff—
If love were white perfection
Love would not be enough.

Such conclusions should always be rejected if they are deduced from the employment of false principles and erroneous standards of Catholic morality. As before mentioned, "every man is his own historian." This is particularly true of the Catholic student of history when confronted with the problem of fixing the moral responsibility for an occurring activity of historical significance.

MARTIN SPEAKS ON 'STUDY OF POLLEN' TO RESEARCH GROUP

Seminar Learns Results of Student's Work With Fertilization of Flowers

Richard J. Martin, senior science student, addressed the Research Seminar at its last meeting on Dec. 20, 1939. His discussion concerned the "Study of Pollen" and embodied experiments which he is conducting.

The speaker first gave an historical review of pollen which of a necessity was contemporary with the discoveryof the microscope by Leewonhoek. Grew and Malpighi were the first to describe pollen.

His subject matter concerned the pollen proper. Its structure was described and the method of plant fertilization was discussed at length. The object of his experiments, Martin explained, was to study artificial stimulation of the pollen so that it will begin to undergo the processes peculiar to it in plant fertilization. The artificial stimulant was provided by using sugar solutions of various strengths and observing the results. Many species of pollens were used but that proving most successful was the pollen of the Azalea, which produced a pollen tube in almost all trials. Results were also obtained from pollen grains of Forsythia, and Pruni Virginiana. Results were negative with Butterup pollen, Dandelion, and Maple.

Martin's work has just begun and it is hoped that more results will be forthcoming as interesting and as startling as the results which he has already revealed.

At the next meeting of the seminar, a paper will be presented on Biological Assaying, the method of drug standardization on animals. In it, there will be discussed digitalis, ergot, pituitary and adrenalin. The paper will be presented by Joseph M. Gambescia.

AMATEUR NIGHT WON BY AUSTIN'S "GAY-NINETIES"

Fedigan, Alumni, Day Hops, Mendel Follow Closely in Talent Honors

It was Austin Hall this year that came out on top in the boisterous, uproariously funny, delightfully comic, facetious night of nights, the Villanova Amateur Night, held on Wednesday, Dec. 13, 1939.

Austin clinched the prize with a unique Gay-Nineties presentation, including strong man stuff, the Flora-Dora gals, and a blood-curdling melodrama.

Following the victor, in the following order, were Fedigan, with Hare-lip McNamara as their master of ceremonies, Alumni and their baby party, the day hops with their interpretation of Hitler's peace conference, and the Mendel residents with a conglomeration of this and that.

AIEE TO VISIT CONOWINGO

Senior electrical engineers of the Villanova branch of the A. I. E. E. are planning a trip in the near future to Conowingo, Md., to study the Conowingo Power Plant there.

Many interesting trips for the second semester are being planned by the society's trip chairman, John J. Raney, who expressed the desire that all the members will endeavor to attend.

Maher, who were reappointed photography editor and edvertising manager, respectively.

John T. Gallagher, who has been reappointed business manager for the coming year, will act in the capacity of toastmaster, introducing the speakers and new staff editors.

Following the announcement of the new staff, keys will be presented to many of the retiring senior members of the staff as a reward for their outstanding and faithful work. These keys are modeled after the typesetters' keys and will be engraved with the student's name and the position which he occupied on the staff.

Those who will receive keys include John J. Harrington, retiring editor-in-chief; Philip M. Dunn, retiring sports editor; Joseph N. Bongiovanni, retiring copy editor; Joseph A. Cirelli, retiring circulation manager; Bernard A. Bellew, writer of the "Cats Meow"; William F. Garrity, writer of "College Chatter"; Henry A. Mazzei, writer of "Here and There," and Justin G. Rubin, Saul A. Wallach, and Francis M. Fitzpatrick, staff writers.

Following the announcements of appointments and the awarding of keys, there will be dancing to the music of Hayes Watson and his orchestra for the members of the VILLANOVAN staff and their guests.

N. B., JOURNALISTS

John J. Harrington, ex-editor of the VILLANOVAN, will hold informal classes in journalism once a week in room 106, Mendel hall, on a day next week yet to be determined.

These classes are intended to give new reporters on the publication a better knowledge of their work and to aid the improvement of their writing.

The class, however, will not be limited to those writing for the paper at present. All those who wish to join the staff of the weekly are invited to attend.

The day of the classes will be determined by the students themselves. Those interested should consult Harrington and tell him of their preference.

VILLANOVANS TO PLAY AT DINNER - DANCE SATURDAY

The Villanova College dance orchestra will be featured at the Senior Dinner-Dance to be held Saturday night following the Senior Ball.

Joseph York and Frederick Kull, both members of the Senior Class, will be substituted for during the evening, but Joseph Rozum, leader of the organization, promises to provide an exceptional program, featuring such arrangements as Glenn Miller's "In the Mood" and "Careless."

The orchestra has been contacted for a sorority dance to be held on Feb. 3 at the Germantown Cricket Club and for several other dances toward the end of the month.

LOST OR FOUND

The VILLANOVAN will be glad to furnish space to the advertisement of any article which students either lose or find around the campus.

Choral Combines To Give Recital

Conference of Church Related Colleges Constitutes Audience

Upon the invitation of the National Conference of Church-related Colleges the Villanova-Rosemont Chorus will give a recital at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel on Wednesday night, January 10, in the Crystal Ball Room at 8:00 o'clock.

Although primarily for the entertainment of the conference members this recital will be open to the public.

The chorus will present a half hour program which will include the following numbers; "Hallelujah Chorus", "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place", "Tales From Vienna Woods", "Sorrow", "The Nightingale", and two numbers by the Villanova Quartet.

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., will conduct and Mr. Eugene Sullivan will be the accompanist.

BAND-GLEE CLUB CONCERT WILL FEATURE SYMPHONY

Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., faculty moderator of the college band, announced yesterday his intention of inaugurating a symphony orchestra to appear at the annual Band-Glee Club Concert to be held at the Field House on February 20th.

Father Handran plans to construct his newly formed organization about a limited number of students from the band which played for all the football games. A string section will be introduced.

The number of musicians will probably be set at forty.

Combined with the glee club, also under Father Handran's direction, the symphonic band will be featured at a musical concert in February. At the present date, the program has not been made official, but it is said to cover a varied program of classical music.

DEBATE SEASON TO OPEN

The Villanova varsity debate season opens immediately after the mid-year examinations, and preparation for the season commences today at a meeting of Beta Gamma in room 110, Mendel Hall.

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, director of public speaking, is seeking new candidates for the varsity debating team. With the season still young and not yet underway, the schedule demands that more candidates come forth to take some of the burden off the present teams.

DR. DANGEL SPEAKS

At the weekly Science Seminar, held last Thursday in the Mendel Amphitheatre, Dr. Dangel, a member of the American Medical Mission's Society of Nuns, recounted to a capacity audience the extent and nature of the Society's work in foreign fields. Principally, her remarks concerned India, in which she has had many interesting and adventurous experiences during the seventeen years of her labors there.

REST FOR NETMEN

The VILLANOVAN basketball team will resume training for its forthcoming debut into the realm of sport shortly after the annual retreat. Preseason training has uncovered a wealth of unexpectedly good material with which to wage the coming campaign. Though no games have yet been definitely scheduled, several are "on the fire."

member of the Belle Air staff, and managing editor of the VILLANOVAN.

Mothers' Day, which is annually held on the first day of Junior Week, is intended to express the high esteem which all Villanova students have for their mothers. Under Zealor's direction, a program will be worked out this year which will fittingly carry out this sentiment. Last year, the mothers were entertained by a musicale, a play and had luncheon in the college cafeteria.

The reason for the early appointment of this chairmanship was to insure the success of the event. Zealor and the committee which will aid him will attempt "to surpass, if possible, the standard set last year by the class of '40," to use his own words.

The first appointment, and only other one made so far, by Keating was that of chairman of the Junior Promenade. This post was awarded to George W. Coupe, junior commerce student.

Other appointments of positions for Junior Week are expected to be made in the near future. Chief among these will be the post of chairman of Junior Week, a position that concerns itself with the general direction of every event held during the week.

Chairmen for the two other junior dances are soon to be named. These chairmanships are those of the Blazer Ball and the Junior Dinner-Dance.

HARRINGTON DISCUSSES INDIVIDUAL IN SOCIETY

When the Philosophy Seminar met Wednesday, John J. Harrington presented a paper on the function of the individual in society.

The greater part of the paper was concerned with the metaphysical background necessary for an intelligent study of the question. Harrington showed that totalitarianism is wrong because it overlooks the person. To show this point clearly it was necessary to refute certain phases of German Idealism.

As time did not permit of a complete treatment of the question, Joseph N. Bongivanni Jr., volunteered to present another paper on the same subject at the following meeting which will be held tomorrow.

RING ADJUSTMENTS MADE

Frank Abbott, chairman of the Junior ring committee, will be in the Mendel Hall reception room on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, January 10th and11th Those who have rings with flaws that must be corrected, or who wish to register complaints about their rings should see him at this time.

All rings or complaints must be turned in before Friday, as Abbott is sending the rings to the jeweler on that date.

TO THE EDITOR

The VILLANOVAN will print letters sent to it on pertinent matters, if the writers so intend, provided that they are signed. If a correspondent does not wish to have his name appear in print, he merely has to indicate that intention below his signature.

E.P.T. Sets Date of Inaugural Smoker; Garrity Chairman

Pledgees To Be Admitted Into Fraternity at January 19 Affair

Epsilon Phi Theta, revived fraternity of the combined School of Arts and Education, will inaugurate its intial activity of the year with a smoker in the blue room of the Field House on Friday evening, Jan. 19.

William F. Garrity has been appointed chairman of the smoker, and, since the inception of the plan, a varied program of speeches and entertainment has been arranged under his direction. The committee which has been appointed to assist the chairman include Frank X. Moynihan and James B. Scott, senior artsmen; James Fockin, junior arts; and Andrea J. D'Angelo, junior in the education school.

Frank Fitzpatrick and Arthur E. Fanning, co-chairmen of the committee on pledges, have announced that the members of the sophomore class who have been pledged will be received into the fraternity on this occasion. Therefore, the sophomores who desire to enter the fraternity are urged to contact either of the chairmen before this date in order to make possible their consideration for acceptance into the society.

William J. Romanowski, James F. Donovan, Paul W. Fitzmaurice, and John J. Cleary have been selected to aid the co-chairmen. Members of both schools are requested to take interest in this affair, the first social function of the revived organization.

MATH CLUB CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY AT DINNER

As celebration of its first year of existence, the Mathematics club held its annual dinner at the Conestoga Mill on Dec. 14, 1939.

One year ago, the club was founded by Emil Amelotti, M. S., assistant professor of the mathematics department; since then, it has been primarily devoted to those mathematics students who show exceptional interest in the subject.

Those who attended, 73 members and associate members, were entertained by several short after-dinner speeches, chief among which were those by Professor J. Stanley Morehouse, M. E., acting dean of the School of Engineering, and Alan Hazeltine, M. E., A. M., So. D., professor of physical mathematics at the Stevens Institute of Technology.

Professor Hazeltine, introduced by Professor Morehouse, delivered a speech on the "Visual Aspects of Geometry" and illustrated the talk on a small blackboard set up in the dining hall.

Vincent Gordon, sophomore engineer, president of the club, expressed his satisfaction over the success of the banquet.

A. S. M. E. HEARS MAXWELL

Maxwell G. Maxwell, under the sponsorship of the Villanova branch of the ASME, gave a lecture on " Materials Handling" last Wednesday, Jan. 3, in the Mendel hall amphitheatre.

The lecture was made visual with sound pictures of various types of trucks, jacks, and lifts, as well as silent pictures on the use of these machines in numerous factories. The machines pictured are used in different plants to move and to handle the materials that the factories utilize.

WILLIAM LEAHY TO COACH SWIM TEAM; ED LEAHY CAPTAIN

"Brother Act" to Guide Destinies of Wildcat Tankmen

SIX MEETS SCHEDULED

Coach Bill Leahy will take his first dip in the coaching league when he stacks his newly acquired pupils against the Blue Hens of the University of Delaware in the campus natorium this Friday.

Leahy, who wore the Blue and White in '35, '36 and '37, will lead a squad that lost only one man from last year, W. Booth. This new aggregation is built around three standout tankmen, Ed Leahy, Walt Kelly and Bill Hooper.

Kelley Back

Ed, who is a brother of the coach and newly elected captain, will handle the backstroke work. Kelly, former West Catholic and Hun School star, will again swim the 50 and 100 yard events. He is United States Junior champion in the former distance and last year was undefeated in the latter, defeating such men as Williams of Penn, Ivy League champion. Hooper is world's school boy recordholder for the 440 yards and was chosen on the all scholastic swimming team while at Mercersburg Academy. Undefeated in freshman ranks, he comes up prepared to defend the local colors in the 220 and 440 yards events.

These are the only spots filled thus far, but the new mentor has a wealth of material to pick from, including Charley Timmins, diving; John Pholeric, goliath sprint man; Paul Fitzmaurice and Johnny Maher, both backstrokers, and a host of others. Over sixty candidates answered the first call, but Leahy intends to cut the group to twenty-five.

New Coach

The new coach was appointed shortly after the Christmas vacation began, but feels he has had sufficient time to whip his squad into shape. During his three years' stay at Villanova, Leahy swam the 220 and 440, breaking the pool record in both distances. Leaving here he went to the Penn A. C. where he captained the team in '37. He also holds the Middle Atlantic record for the above events.

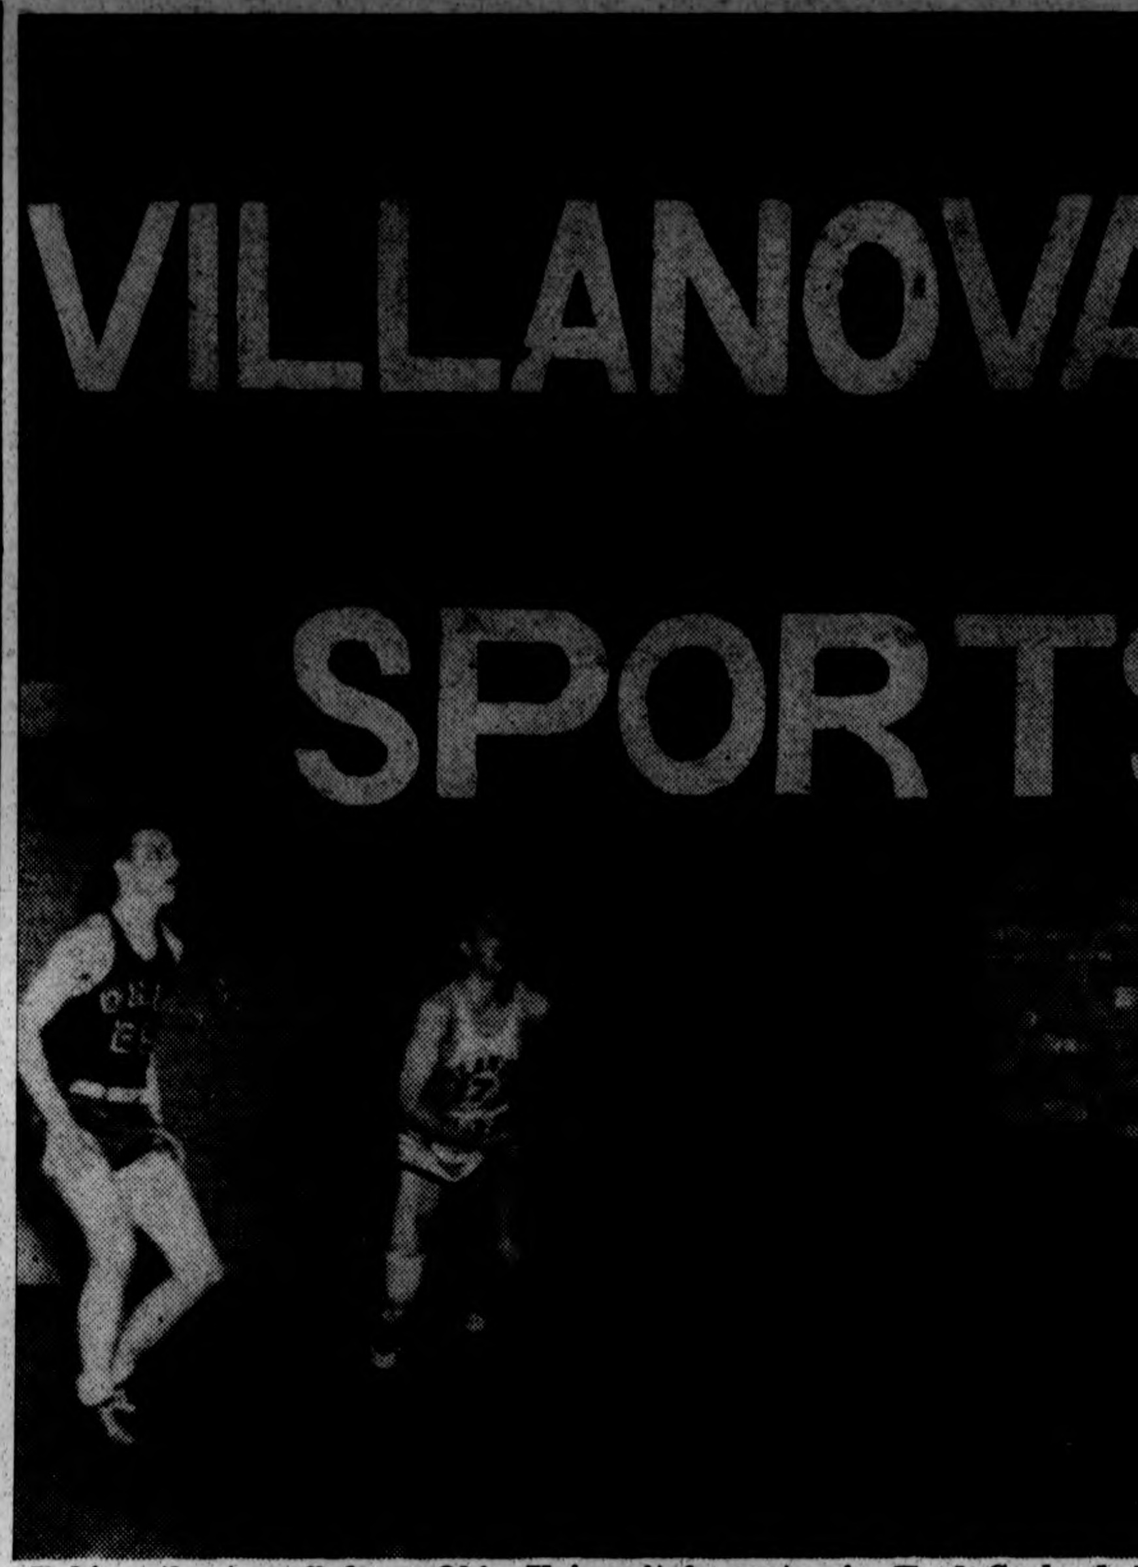
Negotiations with several other schools seem to have fallen through and the above schedule is final unless a last minute change is made. A meet with Temple may be arranged if the Owls are willing.

All home meets will be held in the Field House swimming pool as in past years.



Taking the tap-off from Ohio University's center is Fred Gerland, Villanova pivotman. In the background is Lloyd Rice, Wildcat forward, coming in fast to take the ball from Gerland. Villanova won the game after one of the most thrilling hours of action ever seen in the Field House. The game was played last Friday night.

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY HOST TO BLUE FIVE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Game With Engineers Is Week's Only Test for Wildcat Quintet

COX LEHIGH THREAT

By BOB FUNABASHI

Lehigh's engineers "The Mystery Team" will be host to the Wildcat winning quintet tomorrow night at Bethlehem in the seventh game of the series between the two schools since 1907.

The 1940 season for the Brown and White quintet promises to be one of the best in recent history, with a full-blended quality and quantity of veterans upholding starting positions. The only loss caused by graduation was that of John Hankins, honorable mention All-Pennylvania guard last winter.

Coached by Paul Calvert, a graduate from Purdue University, the Engineers have a large squad of candidates from which to choose a first-class unit. Most probable starting combination will find Captain Charles Griffiths and Alfred Cox at forwards; Benard Briody at center; and Herbert Feucht and Gordon Brandt at guards.

Tight Last Year

Last year at the Main Line gym, Lehigh was nipped 32-30 in the final seconds of play when Jim Montgomery dropped a long one from midcourt. Their defensive ability put a check on the Wildcat's scoring, holding them scoreless in the first ten minutes of play.

To date, the engineers have been successful in two engagements, while losing two. Princeton and the Penn Athletic club have defeated Lehigh, while Upsala and Stevens have fallen in defeat before the Lehigh attack.

The Brown and White schedule is more formidable this year than in previous seasons. As a member of the Little Three conference, they face Lafayette and Rutgers, presumably their oldest rivals on the court. A fifteen game schedule will send the engineers away on foreign courts to oppose teams whose rankings of the past several years have been much higher than Lehigh's.

Engineers Speedy

Although the Engineers lack height, Coach Calvert will emphasize speed, ball handling and defensive strength as the major portion of Lehigh's game. The tallest man on the team, Herb Feucht, only reaches 6 ft. 1 in., and only four others are 6 ft., out of a squad of nineteen.

There have been six games played between Villanova and Lehigh with the Wildcats capturing four victories and losing two. The first game was played in 1907 with Lehigh trouncing the Blue and White 56-5. Last year's game was the sixth game since 1907.

Freshmen Sport Win Streak

During the holiday season the Frosh quintet added four more games to their victory column. They took over Salesianum high, Camden Catholic high, and West Catholic high with no trouble at all, and last Friday night scored an impressive win over the Brookline C. C. five from the fast stepping Main Line league.

In the Salesianum game the "Kittens" triumphed, 52-35. "Lanky Bob" Kelty led the scoring for both sides with fourteen points.

Camden Easy

The Camden Catholic affair was but an easy workout for the Frosh. After holding a 25-4 lead at halftime they coasted on to win. Spector, Woods, and Pryzycki together amassed 41 points.

In the preliminary to the Varsity's tussle with Indiana they had little trouble in downing a game but outclassed West Catholic high five, 42-13. Fast and clever ball handling featured in this game.

Frosh Superior

The Frosh really showed their superiority against the Brookline team on Friday night. This was one of their toughest games so far, but they came through in grand fashion. Trailing at half-time 26-21, the "Kittens" came back in the second period with an offensive that Brookline, try as they might, could not stop.

Led by Art Spector who caged 14 points, they took the lead after the first five minutes of play and were

ANDY KERR'S "All-East" team which journeyed way out to San Francisco for little more than a train ride (to say nothing of a terrific lacing from their "All-Western" opponents) put up quite a sorrowful battle according to eyewitness reports that this writer has heard.

We can't help but let loose a long snicker at this. As the kids in the back alley would say, "it served him right." The game was played in San Francisco on New Year's Day, reportedly for charity but it is our opinion that the fans who laid their cash in the box office weren't doing so from a purely charitable motive. John Q. Public wants football when he lays his dollars on the line and deservedly so. In Frisco he didn't get it.

Andy Kerr, head coach at Colgate University, is commissioned to help coach the eastern aggregation and to pick the fifty percent of its material coming from the Atlantic coast. The trust placed in Kerr by the Shriners Association, sponsors of the fray, commissions him to pick the best available material without personal bias one way or the other. In our opinion Kerr did not live up to this assignment.

The line-up of the eastern aggregation looked like anything but an all-eastern ensemble. We could name many players who stayed home and listened to the radio who should have been out in Frisco and in that ball-game.

Villanova has three such players—Andy Chisick, Walt Nowak, and Harry Mazzei—not one of them was extended an invitation by Mr. Kerr. Chisick especially rated serious consideration. In the opinion of most eastern fans Andy was rated either best or very close to it among eastern pivotmen. Kerr ignored him, probably because the Colgate coach wanted an "All-Kerr" team not an "All-East" club.

It's too late now to do anything about this year's selections but when it becomes time to pick an eastern coach next Fall it is hoped that Mr. Kerr's many faults and distinct failures will be given due consideration. The same goes for Carl Snavely who took a very synthetic "All-North" team down to Dixie to play the south's best.

Runners Active In Gymnasium

After a three weeks' rest from the hill and dale workouts, the Blue and White trackmen are now turning their attention to the indoor season.

Stepping over the cross-country course in the latter part of the Fall was merely the preparation for what is expected to be a vigorous but successful season. Although the indoor meets are not far away, no definite schedule has been released. It is expected, however, that the Wildcats will do their running against practically all of last year's opposition and, possibly, one or two more.

Veterans Return

Answering the call of Jumbo Elliot, track mentor, were veterans Bellew and Guiteras, middle-distance stars, along with Johnny Maher, co-holder of the world record for the 50-yard dash. Elliot also has other promising men anxious to don the short spiked shoes.

It will also be wise to keep your eyes peeled open for a few frosh sensations. These frosh looked especially good in the Fall and are displaying plenty of enthusiasm in their daily workouts in the Fieldhouse.

After a few more days in the Gym the men will venture outdoors and brave the icy-blasts of Old Man Winter, for the board track behind the stadium is now being cleared of our recent snowfalls. Within a few weeks Jumbo expects to have his full schedule intact, and he promises all top-flight competition.

Ohio Bobcats Submerged As Blue Quintet Rebounds

A quick recovery from the season's first defeat at the hands of Indiana University was had last Friday night when Severance's basketball Wildcats came out of the most thrilling game of the season thus far with a 49-44 victory over Ohio University's famed high-scoring Bobcats.

Little Mike Lazorchak again led the scoring parade for the Villanovans and boosted himself higher into the scoring lead of the Philadelphia district. Mike racked up sixteen points and was followed closely by "Duke" Duzminski, possessor of fourteen points.

Baumholtz Sensation

Widely-heralded Frankie Baumholtz, sensational junior forward on the Ohio five lived up to his press notices and split the Villanova cords for seven field goals and four fouls, netting eighteen points. Carl Ott, a slick guard, wasn't very far behind his great teammate. Ott snared five twin-counters and four free-throws for fourteen points.

Villanova held a 23-17 lead at halftime, but the Bobcat crew poured on the heat in the second half and kept the fire going until the final whistle blew.

The defeat at the hands of Indiana on December 28th put the damper on the success of the first third of Villanova's schedule. However, the Big Ten team had plenty of trouble squelching the Wildcats. Villanova held the lead at halftime and it was not until the second half that the Indiana crew pulled ahead and scuttled the Villanovans. Their success was attributed to superior reserve players.

Crush Tulane

The Indiana defeat followed a crushing defeat for Tulane University at the hands of the Wildcats. Villanova was definitely "on" and made the "Green Wave" look like a ripple on a creek. Lazorchak, Nugent, and Duzminski, along with "Chuck" Yund, were superb against the southerners.

Alumni To Honor Gridmen At Penn A. C., Jan. 17th

Villanova's men of the gridiron will receive a just reward for their successful season when they are guests of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia at the 18th Annual Football Dinner in the ballroom of the Penn Athletic Club on Wednesday, January 17.

Several hundred guests are expected including representatives from every Villanova Club in eastern United States. Several clubs are planning on special delegations by bus and train to honor Clipper Smith, Vince McNally and their greensward pupils.

Bowes Invited

Among the guest speakers invited are Major Edward Bowes, nationally-known radio personality; Lew Lehr, Fox Movietone funny man; Bill Stern, NBC sports announcer; Francis Wallace, football expert and writer for the Saturday Evening Post; John Kieran, of the New York Times and star of "Information Please"; Tommy Richardson, noted wit and president of the Eastern Baseball League and a host of prominent newspaper sports writers, commentators and figures in the sports world. Alumni Preident Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, will act as toastmaster.

Besides the all-star program of speakers and entertainment, the dinner will feature the conferring of the Loyalty Award, one of the highest individual honors in Villanova Alumni circles. The selection is made by the Board of Governors upon recommendation of the various local clubs. Last year the award went to M. Eugene Eichmann of the Philadelphia Club.

Motion Pictures

Motion pictures of several of this season's outstanding football highlights will be shown along with remarks by Coaches Smith and McNally. The Alumni organization is also planning to take motion pic-

FEDIGAN CHAMPIONS WIN SECOND HALF OPENER; C&F VICTOR

Mendel Resident Also Snare Victory; M. D. S., Austin, Alumni Lose

The second half of the intramural basketball season was inaugurated last Thursday when the two day-student teams, C&F and Mendel, battled away to a 46-39 victory by the C&F team. The game was even all the way, Mendel only being two baskets behind at the half. But the C&F team was plugging all the way and outscored their opponents by three points in the second half to win by seven points. Dalina was high scorer with 15 points.

The champion Fedigan team met its arch rival, Austin Hall, and emerged the victors once more by a 36-27 score. This game also was a thriller with neither team leading by more than three baskets at any time. Daly took the scoring honors with ten points.

Alumni Loses

The Greenies from Alumni were turned back in the biggest upset of the first round. Alumni who finished second in the first half dropped a close game to the Mendel Residents, who finished last in the first round. The Mendel boys had quite a job on their hands when they met Alumni and they met the job excellently, taking a five point lead at the half and holding a smaller lead throughout the final period. The real action came in the closing minutes when Alumni had cut Mendel's lead to one point. But the residents held the Greenies back and scored another basket to win, 35-32. King was high scorer with 14 points.

This afternoon the C. & F. Day-hops will meet Austin Hall. Fedigan meets the Mendel Residents and Alumni faces Mendel Day-hops this evening in games which have a decided bearing on the second-half title chase.

Fedigan Meets C&F

Thursday afternoon brings Fedigan and C. & F. in what is expected to be the week's best battle. On teh same day Austin meets Alumni and the "battle of Mendel Hall"—the Residents versus the Commuters—is carded.

MICHAELS "ALL - PRO"

Eddie Michaels, former "All-American" at Villanova, was chosen for the American Association "All" league tam. Michaels is not a new figure before the eyes of the sporting world. While attending Villanova a few years ago, Eddie was mentioned on many All-American teams. Since then, he has played with the Chicago Bears and the Washington Redskins of the National League.

Two years ago he returned to his home town where he became playing assistant coach with the Wilmington Clippers. Last season was the first time in the new pro league for the Clippers.

BOND TRANSFERRED

Bob Bond, member of the class of '39, and former first baseman on the varsity baseball team, has been transferred by the Phillies to Chattanooga of the Southern Association. Last year he played with Mayodan of the Bi-State League.

LATTANZA ON SECOND TEAM

Howard Lattanza, sophomore halfback on the Villanova 150-pound team was recently placed on the All-American 150 team picked by members of the Intercollegiate League. Lattanza was picked as second-team halfback. Don McGurk, first team end on the "All" team last year failed to repeat.

"Mike" Tops Scorers

Mike Lazorchak, diminutive forward for the Wildcat five, leads the team in scoring with 87 points. This total also gives him individual scoring honors in the Philadelphia College district. In eight games Mike has garnered 35 field goals and has sunk 17 free throws for his total.

In team scoring "Luke" Duzminski is second with 78 points on 31 field goals and 14 fouls. As a result of his performance in the Ohio game the "Duke" is now second in district scoring too. Paul Nugent is third in team scoring and fourth in the district.

The statistics show that the Wildcats are well represented in the scoring column, and are the leading scoring team of the city.

SPORTSWRITERS NEEDED BY COLLEGE NEWSPAPER

Due to the retiremena of senior members of the VILLANOVAN there are several positions open on the sports staff. Students desiring to take part in this extra-curricular activity are invited to report to the Sports Editor in the Villanovan office any afternoon this week. Best time to call is between one and one-thirty in the afternoon.

The Villanovan office is located in Room 119 Mendel Hall. Both sportswriters and cartoonists are needed.

GRID CARD RUMORS SWAMP VILLANOVA; NEW FOES LISTED

Duquesne, Florida, Southwestern Reported "Certain" Opponents for 1940 Team

By HARRY MAZZEI

(Quarterback on last year's football team and former columnist on the VILLANOVAN).

Now that the various Bowl games, including the Finnish, have been decided (in the case of the latter it has been decided not to be played), the prospective 1940 grid schedule is once again the topic of local conversation. For definite information we suggest consulting a recognized Swami, Yogi, or some other practicioner of legerdermain, or better yet, place the names of 40 colleges in a hat, apply a blindfold, and pick nine.

No Texas Game

But to get back to some tall guessing supplemented by connings from the local journals let us hazard a few inexpert comments about the distant fall. One point we feel fairly certain of is that the hard riding bronco-busters from Texas A. and M. will not be met.

Old Standbys

Old standbys are expected to include Auburn, Temple the perenially tough Detroit Titans, and Manhattan's thwarted Jaspers. This quartet is expected to form the nucleus of the pending array of contests. From the wide open Southwest is supposed to come the vaunted Baylor eleven. Exponents, of the hard-running, aerial bombing game of that section of the country, the lads from Waco, Texas should prove a valuable addition to the Wildcat's list of foes.

Others who are supposed to grace the Blue's sked are Southwestern from Memphis, Tennessee, Kansas University from the Jayhawk State, the 'Gators from Florida University, and Coach Aldo Donelli's undefeated Duquesne Dukes from the "Smoky City" of Pittsburgh.

Boston Posibility

If any of these contests fail to materialize you may once again dip into the hat and if you come out with North Carolina State, known below the Mason-Dixon line as Doc Newton's victory-starved Wolfpack and Boston College's Cotton Bowl Eagles you will have a better than average chance of being correct.

As have been reported in A. P. wires, negotiations are under way to play Oregon State's Aggies in 1941 and 1942. These frays will be contested under a home and home agreement.

Tribute to Mazzei

Ohio Bobcats Strong

Better Than Indiana

Duffy Bowl Usher

By JIM HAUGHTON

AS WE move in as tenants in this corner it's with a bit of pardonable pride that we admit we're replacing a great "little man," Harry Mazzei. Our only hope is that our sports logic and readers interest continues in the same fine vein that he set.

From out of the land of big corn and flying dust have been coming scantily clad, lanky youngsters who have been making life colder than a dowager's left shoulder for the Eastern court fraternity, our own Al Severance included. But last Friday's torrid affair with the Ohio Bobcats came as a bit of a sedative after the recent Indiana illness.

Jim Haughton

The event proved to be such a torrid affair that even that garrulous and amiable guy, Al Severance, was at a loss for words as we stood in the crowded dressing room. Gaining his composure, he did manage to sound the tocsin for both the Bobcats and Wildcats.

"Why Ohio was better than Indiana. They used only seven men while Indiana had to count on 12. Considering they played four games in as many days, they really kept stepping. Why those kids were running just as fast ending up as in the first quarter.

"Indiana was much slower in moving the ball but would suddenly let loose one man who'd dribble the length of the floor. But these babies used a 'corner cut' and kept moving more. You'll hear more of them cause they'll make it plenty tough in the Midwest, although they're not a member of the Big Ten, Yes, we expect to play both Ohio and Indiana next year."

Only last week, the Ohians trounced the strong Baltimore U. team by 22 points and the best Oregon could do against the Southerners was a nine point margin. Incidentally, the locals will tangle horns with this same Maryland outfit that is causing consternation in Dixieland and have been responsible for the introduction of double-header ball in the South.

Travel note: Bill Duffy, while spending the Xmas days in Florida was kind enough to usher Orange Bowl patrons at $2 per and a swell suntan. He's still in raptures about the

Court Comment

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

With one third of the basketball schedule now history and the ledger carrying the record of one on the offside and seven on the pleasant side, certain definite facts have crystallized. In the sport of the wooden way, names mean nothing. Or, to put it in another light, so aptly expressed by the leading scorer of the "Wildcats" and the Philadelphia area, "Dynamite Mike" Lazarchak, there are only five other men on the floor at one time.

Wittenburg, Indiana, Ohio, all swept through their Eastern opposition. The first mentioned playing nine games in ten days and coming out of this gruelling test with seven on the win side of the ledger. Indiana moved along with a clean slate and the last mentioned, who, incidentally, were not given much time by the so-called smart boys who know all the answers, scored the amazing total of two hundred and ninety-eight points in five games, knocking off Baltimore U., note the latter is given a very conspicuous place in Eastern basketball circles and St. Joseph's College, the former 67 to 44, the 59 to 39.

With the above salient facts in our mind, we would suggest that you note the progress of the remaining threats, Brown University, Baltimore University, St. John's of Brooklyn, Waynesburg of Pittsburg fame, who have a happy faculty of not believing in big name psycologists.

There are many who, noting the loss of practically a complete contingent, namely Montgomery, Krutulis, Vigilante, and Dubino, all having gone the way of graduation, were a little apprehensive of the present edition of the "Wildcats." This was a justified reaction, for, when four tested, veteran players of the above-mentioned calibre are lost to a quintet and sophomores must carry the load, psychological factors of experience and coolness under fire must be taken into consideration.

Taking all the above into consideration plus the fact that lady luck has not been as generous to Villanova as we would desire, this in the matter of injuries, this year's contingent has demonstrated that it does merit passing consideration. Spirit plays a great part in any undertaking, and the present edition has this quality to the nth degree.

With one hundred percent cooperation from the board of athletics and with their fine appreciation of the problems facing the team, it was apparent from the opening gun that this team was not taking anything for granted and that they were conscious of the constructive and deep interest of the student body and college authorities in their work, hence a team, whether victorious or defeated, one that embodies the fine traditions of a Villanova contingent. One that any student body or institution can respectfully refer to as representative.

INTRAMURAL BOXING SHOW POSTPONED

Students' Requests Cause Change of Date for Annual Meet

The intramural boxing carnival, originally scheduled for next Monday night, has been indefinitely postponed. A date will be set later, probably sometime in March.

The postponement was due to requests of many of the scheduled participants. Reasons given were proximity of the set date to the Christmas vacation, the Mid-year exam period, and the Senior Ball.

New Entrants

Change of the date makes it possible for new entrants into the tournament. Primary requisite of participants is that they be adequately trained. This training will be continued every afternoon at the Field House as before the postponement. Ray Gadsby, Bob Mentzinger, Bill Duffy, and Eddie Kirk will continue as trainers.

Students who have not as yet enrolled and are desirous of doing so are invited to report to the gym as soon as possible. Training sessions usually begin at 3 P. M. daily.

NAVY INVITES RAY GADSBY TO JUDGE RING MEET

Selection Roy's First Assignment in Intercollegiate Ring Circles

Captain E. W. McKee, U. S. N., Director of Athletics at the United States Naval Academy, recently extended an invitation to Ray Gadsby, of Villanova, to act as judge at the Navy-Cornell boxing meet to be held on January 13 at the Naval Academy.

Gadsby coached Villanova's boxing team with great success until it was suddenly disbanded after the close of a successful 1939 campaign. Ray is also trainer for Villanova athletic teams. This will be his first assignment in intercollegiate boxing officiating.

The appointment of Gadsby is part of a move to pick the "cream of the crop" for boxing officials.

Orchids are rated by Al Severance's Blue basketball club. Many are wont to rate them below former Villanova aggregations.. In our opinion they, on the basis of work done thus far, rate on a par with any Villanova five we have ever watched. Mike Lazorchak and Duke Duzminski are far surpassing high expectations and Paul Nugent is amazing the most bizarre predictors of greatness. Ranking fourth in Philadelphia District scoring Nugent improves with each game and before the season ends he will probably force the attention which he deserves.

Spector was ably supported by Kelty and Stanton who scored ten points apiece, and Woods and Pryzycki with nine apiece. Maguire, Spaide, and Uber were standouts for the losers. The final result was 53-42.

FEDIGAN CHAMPIONS WIN SECOND HALF OPENER; C&F VICTOR

Mendel Resident Also Snare Victory; M. D. S., Austin, Alumni Lose

The second half of the intramural basketball season was inaugurated last Thursday when the two day-student teams, C&F and Mendel, battled away to a 46-39 victory by the C&F team. The game was even all the way, Mendel only being two baskets behind at the half. But the C&F team was plugging all the way and outscored their opponents by three points in the second half to win by seven points. Dalina was high scorer with 15 points.

The champion Fedigan team met its arch rival, Austin Hall, and emerged the victors once more by a 36-27 score. This game also was a thriller with neither team leading by more than three baskets at any time. Daly took the scoring honors with ten points.

Alumni Loses

The Greenies from Alumni were turned back in the biggest upset of the first round. Alumni who finished second in the first half dropped a close game to the Mendel Residents, who finished last in the first round. The Mendel boys had quite a job on their hands when they met Alumni and they met the job excellently, taking a five point lead at the half and holding a smaller lead throughout the final period. The real action came in the closing minutes when Alumni had cut Mendel's lead to one point. But the residents held the Greenies back and scored another basket to win, 35-32. King was high scorer with 14 points.

This afternoon the C. & F. Dayhops will meet Austin Hall. Fedigan meets the Mendel Residents and Alumni faces Mendel Day-hops this evening in games which have a decided bearing on the second-half title chase.

Fedigan Meets C&F

Thursday afternoon brings Fedigan and C. & F. in what is expected to be the week's best battle. On teh same day Austin meets Alumni and the "battle of Mendel Hall"—the Residents versus the Commuters—is carded.

MICHAELS "ALL - PRO"

Eddie Michaels, former "All-American" at Villanova, was chosen for the American Association "All" league team. Michaels is not a new figure before the eyes of the sporting world. While attending Villanova a few years ago, Eddie was mentioned on many All American teams. Since then, he has played with the Chicago Bears and the Washington Redskins of the National League.

Two years ago he returned to his home town where he became playing assistant coach with the Wilmington Clippers. Last season was the first time in the new pro league for the Clippers.

BOND TRANSFERRED

Bob Bond, member of the class of '39 and former first baseman on the varsity baseball team, has been transferred by the Phillies to Chattanooga of the Southern Association. Last year he played with Mayodan of the Bi-State League.

LATTANZA ON SECOND TEAM

Howard Lattanza, sophomore halfback on the Villanova 150-pound team was recently placed on the All-American 150 team picked by members of the Intercollegiate League. Lattanza was picked as second-team halfback. Don McGurk, first team end on the "All" team last year failed to repeat.

"Mike" Tops Scorers

Mike Lazorchak, diminutive forward for the Wildcat five, leads the team in scoring with 87 points. This total also gives him individual scoring honors in the Philadelphia College district. In eight games Mike has garnered 35 field goals and has sunk 17 free throws for his total.

In team scoring "Luke" Duzminski is second with 78 points on 31 field goals and 14 fouls. As a result of his performance in the Ohio game the "Duke" is now second in district scoring too. Paul Nugent is third in team scoring and fourth in the district.

The statistics show that the Wildcats are well represented in the scoring column, and are the leading scoring team of the city.

GRID CARD RUMORS SWAMP VILLANOVA; NEW FOES LISTED

Duquesne, Florida, Southwestern Reported "Certain" Opponents for 1940 Team

By HARRY MAZZEI

(Quarterback on last year's football team and former columnist on the VILLANOVAN).

Now that the various Bowl games, including the Finnish, have been decided (in the case of the latter it has been decided not to be played), the prospective 1940 grid schedule is once again the topic of local conversation. For definite information we suggest consulting a recognized Swami, Yogi, or some other practicioner of legerdermain, or better yet, place the names of 40 colleges in a hat, apply a blindfold, and pick nine.

No Texas Game

But to get back to some tall guessing supplemented by connings from the local journals let us hazard a few inexpert comments about the distant fall. One point we feel fairly certain of is that the hard riding bronco-busters from Texas A. and M. will not be met.

Old Standbys

Old standbys are expected to include Auburn, Temple the perenially tough Detroit Titans, and Manhattan's thwarted Jaspers. This quartet is expected to form the nucleus of the pending array of contests. From the wide open Southwest is supposed to come the vaunted Baylor eleven. Exponents, of the hard-running, aerial bombing game of that section of the country, the lads from Waco, Texas should prove a valuable addition to the Wildcat's list of foes.

Others who are supposed to grace the Blue's sked are Southwestern from Memphis, Tennessee, Kansas University from the Jayhawk State, the 'Gators from Florida University, and Coach Aldo Donelli's undefeated Duquesne Dukes from the "Smoky City" of Pittsburgh.

Boston Posibility

If any of these contests fail to materialize you may once again dip into the hat and if you come out with North Carolina State, known below the Mason-Dixon line as Doc Newton's victory-starved Wolfpack and Boston College's Cotton Bowl Eagles you will have a better than average chance of being correct.

As have been reported in A. P. wires, negotiations are under way to play Oregon State's Aggies in 1941 and 1942. These frays will be contested under a home and home agreement.

Tribute to Mazzei

Ohio Bobcats Strong

Better Than Indiana

Duffy Bowl Usher

By JIM HAUGHTON

AS WE move in as tenants in this corner it's with a bit of pardonable pride that we admit we're replacing a great "little man," Harry Mazzei. Our only hope is that our sports logic and readers interest continues in the same fine vein that he set.

From out of the land of big corn and flying dust have been coming scantily clad, lanky youngsters who have been making life colder than a dowager's left shoulder for the Eastern court fraternity, our own Al Severance included. But last Friday's torrid affair with the Ohio Bobcats came as a bit of a sedative after the recent Indiana illness.

Jim Haughton

The event proved to be such a torrid affair that even that garrulous and amiable guy, Al Severance, was at a loss for words as we stood in the crowded dressing room. Gaining his composure, he did manage to sound the tocsin for both the Bobcats and Wildcats.

"Why Ohio was better than Indiana. They used only seven men while Indiana had to count on 12. Considering they played four games in as many days, they really kept stepping. Why those kids were running just as fast ending up as in the first quarter.

"Indiana was much slower in moving the ball but would suddenly let loose one man who'd dribble the length of the floor. But these babies used a 'corner cut' and kept moving more. You'll hear more of them cause they'll make it plenty tough in the Midwest, althougn they're not a member of the Big Ten, Yes, we expect to play both Ohio and Indiana next year."

Only last week, the Ohians trounced the strong Baltimore U. team by 22 points and the best Oregon could do against the Southerners was a nine point margin. Incidentally, the locals will tangle horns with this same Maryland outfit that is causing consternation in Dixieland and have been responsible for the introduction of double-header ball in the South.

Travel note: Bill Duffy, while spending the Xmas days in Florida was kind enough to usher Orange Bowl patrons at $2 per and a swell suntan. He's still in raptures about the

Court Comment

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

With one third of the basketball schedule now history and the ledger carrying the record of one on the offside and seven on the pleasant side, certain definite facts have crystallized. In the sport of the wooden way, names mean nothing. Or, to put it in another light, so aptly expressed by the leading scorer of the "Wildcats" and the Philadelphia area, "Dynamite Mike" Lazarchak, there are only five other men on the floor at one time.

Wittenburg, Indiana, Ohio, all swept through their Eastern opposition. The first mentioned playing nine games in ten days and coming out of this gruelling test with seven on the win side of the ledger. Indiana moved along with a clean slate and the last mentioned, who, incidentally, were not given much time by the so-called smart boys who know all the answers, scored the amazing total of two hundred and ninety-eight points in five games, knocking off Baltimore U., note the latter is given a very conspicuous place in Eastern basketball circles and St. Joseph's College, the former 67 to 44, the 59 to 39.

With the above salient facts in our mind, we would suggest that you note the progress of the remaining threats, Brown University, Baltimore University, St. John's of Brooklyn, Waynesburg of Pittsburg fame, who have a happy faculty of not believing in big name psycologists.

There are many who, noting the loss of practically a complete contingent, namely Montgomery, Krutulis, Vigilante, and Dubino, all having gone the way of graduation, were a little apprehensive of the present edition of the "Wildcats." This was a justified reaction, for, when four tested, veteran players of the above-mentioned calibre are lost to a quintet and sophomores must carry the load, psychological factors of experience and coolness under fire must be taken into consideration.

Taking all the above into consideration plus the fact that lady luck has not been as generous to Villanova as we would desire, this in the matter of injuries, this year's contingent has demonstrated that it does merit passing consideration. Spirit plays a great part in any undertaking, and the present edition has this quality to the nth degree.

With one hundred percent cooperation from the board of athletics and with their fine appreciation of the problems facing the team, it was apparent from the opening gun that this team was not taking anything for granted and that they were conscious of the constructive and deep interest of the student body and college authorities in their work, hence a team, whether victorious or defeated, one that embodies the fine traditions of a Villanova contingent. One that any student body or institution can respectfully refer to as representative.

INTRAMURAL BOXING SHOW POSTPONED

Students' Requests Cause Change of Date for Annual Meet

The intramural boxing carnival, originally scheduled for next Monday night, has been indefinitely postponed. A date will be set later, probably sometime in March.

The postponement was due to requests of many of the scheduled participants. Reasons given were proximity of the set date to the Christmas vacation, the Mid-year exam period, and the Senior Ball.

New Entrants

Change of the date makes it possible for new entrants into the tournament. Primary requisite of participants is that they be adequately trained. This training will be continued every afternoon at the Field House as before the postponement. Ray Gadsby, Bob Mentzinger, Bill Duffy, and Eddie Kirk will continue as trainers.

Students who have not as yet enrolled and are desirous of doing so are invited to report to the gym as soon as possible. Training sessions usually begin at 3 P. M. daily.

NAVY INVITES RAY GADSBY TO JUDGE RING MEET

Selection Roy's First Assignment in Intercollegiate Ring Circles

Captain E. W. McKee, U. S. N., Director of Athletics at the United States Naval Academy, recently extended an invitation to Ray Gadsby, of Villanova, to act as judge at the Navy-Cornell boxing meet to be held on January 13 at the Naval Academy.

Gadsby coached Villanova's boxing team with great success until it was suddenly disbanded after the close of a successful 1939 campaign. Ray is also trainer for Villanova athletic teams. This will be his first assignment in intercollegiate boxing officiating.

The appointment of Gadsby is part of a move to pick the "cream of the crop" for boxing officials.

Auburn University's footballers, conquerors of Villanova by a 10-9 score last fall picked four members of the Villanova team on their "all-opponent" aggregation. Walt Nowak, George Kamen, "Buzz" Howlett, and Harry Mazzei were the honored Wildcats.

The Tigers, who played some of the nation's best elevens during the recent season, including Tennessee, picked the Villanova club as the best team they faced all year.

Orchids are rated by Al Severance's Blue basketball club. Many are wont to rate them below former Villanova aggregations. In our opinion they, on the basis of work done thus far, rate on a par with any Villanova five we have ever watched. Mike Lazorchak and Duke Duzminski are far surpassing high expectations and Paul Nugent is amazing the most bizarre predictors of greatness. Ranking fourth in Philadelphia District scoring Nugent improves with each game and before the season ends he will probably force the attention which he deserves.

never headed thereafter, although long set shots by the Brookline guards made the margin thin at times. Spector was ably supported by Kelty and Stanton who scored ten points apiece, and Woods and Pryzycki with nine apiece. Maguire, Spaide, and Uber were standouts for the losers. The final result was 53-42.

"Bulletin" Describes Research Work Done At Woods Hole Laboratory

By ROBERT W. KILEY

The Mendel "Bulletin," quarterly publication of the School of Science, recently made its first appearance of the present scholastic year under the guidance of Alfred M. Bongiovanni, senior science student and chairman of the board of editors.

Featured in the present issue of the publication is an article by Peter E. Hanlon, senior science student, entitled "Villanova College Research Laboratories at Woods Hole." This article discusses the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., from its beginning to the present time.

The Laboratory began in Annisquam, Mass., in the 1880's, and later was moved to its present position at Woods Hole. Great aid in getting it started on an independent basis was given it by gifts from many persons, especially by Mr. Charles R. Xrane, and Mrs. Frank R. Lillie, a convert to the Catholic faith. Mrs. Lillie donated a home, known as Mendel House, for the residence of Catholic priests who come to Woods Hole for research purposes.

The Science Department at Villanova recently instituted a policy whereby professors at Villanova College go to Woods Hole during the summer months and engage in research there. Numerous investigations were carried out there last summer by Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D., and Rev. Francis W. Ludwig, O. S. A., M. A., under the sponsorship of the Villanova College Science Department. They were assisted in their work by John C. Urie, a graduate of the class of '39, and Miss Mary Donovan of the Biology Department of Rosemont College. One paper has been written by Fr. Donnellon on the work done to date, and was published in the October, 1938, issue of "Physiological Zoology."

Among the many other interesting papers presented were articles by Richard J. Martin and Edward S. Steinhardt, students in the science school, entitled respectively, "Wood Pussy" and "Jenner and Smallpox."

ACTORS WANTED

Mr. Anothony J. Frayne, director of dramatics, announced today that the Belle Masque will open its present season with a call for new members and a request for try-outs for the coming annual dramatic presentation. A meeting will be held at 1:00 P. M. on Friday, January 12, room 110, Mendel hall.

NOTICE TO SENIORS

Charles G. Martin, treasurer of the class, announces that no more senior assessments will be taken unless paid by Thursday, January 11, at noon. Also, tickets for the Belle Air Ball will not be sold after Thursday at noon except at the window the night of the dance.

MEETING

Both the college and sport staffs will hold important meetings today at 1 P. M.

"ENGINEER" APPOINTMENT

John F. McKinney, junior engineer, has been appointed associate editor of the Villanova "Engineer." The filling of this position, second only to that of editor-in-chief, completes the list of appointments of the publication.

U. S. S. BENSON

On November 15, 1939, the U. S. S. Benson, a destroyer of 1500 tons, was launched at Quincy, Mass. The sponsor of the launching was Mrs. William Shepperd Benson, after whose husband, Rear Admiral William Shepperd Benson, U. S. N., the new warship was named. It is interesting to note that this is the same Admiral Benson who received an Honory Doctor of Laws Degree at Villanova College in 1915.

NOTICE

Due to the retirement of senior members there are several positions open for writers on the VILLANOVAN staff. Students desirous of membership on the college paper are requested to apply at the VILLANOVAN office, 119 Mendel Hall, on Tuesday or Wednesday of this week between 1 P. M. and 1:30 P. M.

STUDENTS' RETREAT TO FOLLOW EXAMS; BEGINS JANUARY 30

Rev. Charles McCarron, O. S. A. and Rev. Joseph Henry, O. S. A., Retreat Masters

SURVEY TO BE RESUMED

Following immediately the semester examinations, the annual retreat will be held in the college chapel, commencing Monday evening, January 30, at 8 P. M. and closing on Friday morning, February 3, at 8:30 A. M.

Rev. Charles I. Boyle, O. S. A., Chaplain, announced that separate services will be held as usual for the resident and non-resident students. They will consist of morning Mass, conference throughout the day, and closing prayers and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Confessions will be heard at convenient times between the services.

RETREAT SCHEDULE

Residents

7:30 A. M.—Mass and Conference.
9:30 A. M.—Conference.
11:30 A. M.—Conference.
4:30 P. M.—Prayers.
7:00 P. M. — Conference and Benediction.

Non-Residents

10:30 A. M.—Conference.
12:30 P. M.—Conference.
1:00 P. M.—Prayers.
2:00 P. M. — Conference and Benediction

Confessions will be held at convenient times during the day.

Rev. Charles McCarron, O. S. A., and Reverend Joseph E. Heney, O. S. A., will act as retreat masters. Long active in Augustinian missionary work, their experience qualifies them as reputable instructors and orators. At present, both are on leaves of absence, the former remaining on the campus, while the latter is stationed in New York.

During the course of the retreat, it has been suggested to revive the Religious Survey, an annual poll held six or seven years ago. The survey is a simple, detailed report concerning the religious program at the college, leaving the student to express his criticisms and suggestions for improvement. Student reaction will be carefully measured in this questionnaire, as it was previously an integral part of the religious program.

FROSH ORIENTATION PROGRAM DISCUSSED IN STUDENT COUNCIL

Members Propose Rule to Bar Recalcitrant Freshmen From Campus Organizations

The orientation of freshman was the main topic of discussion at the last regularly scheduled meeting of this year's Student Council.

After discussion, led by J. Bradley McManus, chairman, the council resolved that they before their dismissal should lay down a program and formulate rules which will create more spirit and less dissatisfaction in the orientation of future freshman classes.

Among the various suggestions purposed by members, the council favors the prevention of freshmen from becoming members of any campus organization unless he fulfills all requirements in the handbook, declaring that anyone who seriously wants to belong to an organization would be man enough to obey a few simple rules.

McManus, commentating on the orientation problem, stated, "Freshman in their first few days at Villanova are literally lost. It is the duty of the orientation committee to see that they become acquainted with the rules and regulations and start off on the right foot.

"The Student Council wishes to impress upon all upperclassmen that, being acquainted with the rules, they should feel free to do their part, for those few on the committee surely can not handle the freshmen, a much larger group, and do the job thoroughly."

Among the other business taken up by the Council in its meeting was a suggestion by Peter Hanlon, president of the senior class, that a special table or similar rack be provided in the dining hall to hold

The Very Reverend Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., College, was elected president of the Association of American Colleges at its twenty-sixth annual meeting, Friday, January 12.

Other newly elected officers of the Association are vice-president, Rerusen D. Bird, President of Occidental College, and treasurer, Leroy E. Kimball, Comptroller of New York University.

Among the members added to the Board of Directors are Conrad J. Bergendorf, President of Augustana College; Dr. James B. Conant, President of Harvard University; Charles E. Diehl, President of Southwestern University; and Mildred H. McAfee, President of Wellesley College.

The first Catholic, lay or clergical, ever to hold this position, Fr. Stanford previously served in the capacity of vice-president, and was a member of the board of directors from 1936 to 1938.

The Association of American Colleges is composed of the presidents and vice-presidents of over 550 colleges throughout the nation. It includes representatives of such educational institutions as Harvard, Southwestern, the University of Pennsylvania, N. Y. U., Wellesley, Hobart, and many others.

Announcement of Father Stanford's election came at the end of a week-long series of conventions of various educational groups held at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia. Included among these groups were the Council of Church Boards of Education, the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, and the Conference of Church Workers With Students at Colleges and Universities. The general theme of these meetings was 'Christian Education and American Democracy.' Symposia on subjects related to this theme were held by each individual group and addresses were given by such men as Frank W. Stephenson, Executive Secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Protestant Church, Rees Edgar Tulloss, President of Wittenberg College, and other prominent figures in this field.

Several colleges have already been scheduled, including Brown, Mount St. Mary's, Misericordia, Juniata, Marquette, Good Council, Upsala, and New York University.

The men who will probably compete in these debates are Robert G. Wilderotter, Robert E. O'Brien, Joseph M. McNamara, John J. Harrington, Murray P. Zealor, Robert J. McIntyre, and John J. Raney. Other candidates may register at the meetings of the group on Tuesdays and Fridays.

To members of Beta Gamma will be restricted competition in the annual oratorical contest for a gold medal. Pins will also be awarded to seniors outstanding in debate.

JUNIOR POSTS

Daniel J. Keating, president of the junior class, announced that no more class appointments will be made until the conclusion of the examinations and retreat.

World Happenings To Be Considered By Relations Club

Revived Study Group Adopts Tentative Program Schedule

A select group met last Thursday to discuss the plans of the International Relations Club for the coming term.

Among the many things decided upon at this meeting was to use "The Syllabus," published by the Catholic Association of International Peace, as a discussion guide.

"Church and Peace Efforts," was announced as the topic to be discussed at the coming meeting this Wednesday at 3:15 P. M., room 111, Mendel hall.

The Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., moderator of the club, said that the lookout for the coming term is very hopeful.

Approximately a dozen students have joined the organization at the present time. However, although a small group is more in harmony with the club's work, additional members will be welcomed.

NO VILLANOVANS

Due to the holding of the semester examinations and the annual retreat, the VILLANOVAN will not be published for three weeks. The next issue to appear, therefore, will be that of Tuesday, February 6.

Merely One of a Reporter's "Tasks": Interview With Lovely Kitty Kallen

By JOSEPH V. McCABE

Amid the splendor of a winter fairyland, with gay couples dancing to the torrid strains of that "man who plays the blues"—Jack Teagarden—Miss Kitty Kallen, a diminutive package of feminine loveliness, added that extra bit of color and life to a very successful evening.

The opportunity to speak to the featured vocalist of the band came rather late in the evening, and it was with trepidation that I approached, during an intermission, and asked the lovely young lady if she would help a struggling reporter to obtain a story. With a smile that could not help but warm the heart, she readily agreed, even though the hour was approaching the witching one.

Safely ensconced on portable steps backstage, we began the interview with that rather stock question having to do with origin. To the surprise of this reporter Kitty answered, "Philadelphia is my home and I've seen quite a few people here this evening whom I know." Well, with this sort of a start it was not long before a friendly little chat was in progress.

"How long have you been singing with the band?"

"I've been with Jack ten months; prior to that time I sang over WCAU and made appearances with Clem Williams' and Gil Fitch's bands. It was while with Gil Fitch that I sang at several dances given by local colleges."

Discovering that the object of our attention was no older than the majority of girls present, we wondered why she had chosen a career so trying at so early an age. To this she replied: "I love to sing."

"Since you sing so many songs during the course of an evening there must be one that you like better than all the rest."

"Yes, there is one song which I think is the most beautiful ever written; it's "All the Things You Are," and I might say that anything written by Jerome Kern is tops."

Knowing, or rather realizing, that girls, no matter how young or old, possess a fondness for the opposite sex, we inquired along these lines of our guest. To which she replied with a wry smile: "I have a new 'beau' every week, but at the present time my love life is sadly neglected" . . . we just looked hopefully before we left.

Confessions Of Retiring Editor Reveal Advantages Of Position

By JOHN J. HARRINGTON

Your new editor-in-chief has asked me to write an article for the paper on my retirement from the capacity he now holds. My thoughts at this time concerning my retirement are long thoughts, reaching into the years past and looking forward into the years to come. As a new cycle in my life approaches, I naturally look into what preparation for Commencement my activity in connection with the VILLANOVAN has afforded me.

One advantage directly from the paper which is full of promise for the future is the friendship I formed among several of my coworkers. Here is one extra-curricular activity when an observant boy can see his companions' character revealed in their work and jlay! By the way, the VILLANOVAN, hobby though it may be, means inescapable work for anyone who wishes to remain a member.

When I became editor-in-chief, I thought I never met so many people in my life I had to talk to so many people! If I didn't, I'd miss the stories. I was struck by the sensitivity of the individuals and the fact that they had all to be handled differently. I seldom think of that any more. I suppose I have acquired an easier adjustability to individual differences.

People in positions such as have been recently filled on our managing board should develop an appreciation of the good in their fellowmen. They do, as I did when managing this paper, find difficulty in translating their ideals into action. The knowledge of limitations impressed on me by forces I could not always surmount made me judge other men lass harshly and honor forward actions in others.

There is room for considerable expression of individual talents in the production of the VILLANOVAN. There is room for loosening of artistic capabilities through photography and cartooning. Business management, the art of make-up, and good writing all are demanded. In editorials and selection of stories one must apply what he learns in class, follow and analyze current events, and take a keen interest in the school.

First important of all these from the standpoint of getting the

Friend or Enemy?

WHO IS fighting whom in Europe? To us the muddled affairs of the Europe seem literally muddled beyond our feeble attempts at comprehension. Theoretically we know that the Allies are fighting the Nazis and the Reds on the Western Front, but on other battlefields they seem to be working hand in hand for the same cause. This is an inexplicable enigma for, idealistically minded as we are, we were prone to believe that when a nation fought for a principle, it alone was the goal on all fronts.

But contrary to this text-book platitude we find when reviewing the situation abroad that: the French are delivering German-made war materials to China because the barter agreement went into affect before war was declared between France and Germany; the French are aiding the Russians to equip the Chinese army with German munitions; Russia is supposed to be a deadly foe to France; the United States is a potential ally of the European democracies, at least economically, and at the same time supplies Japan with scrap-iron, steel, and oil. In Europe, Russia and Germany are fighting against England, France, and Finland; in the Orient we find France, Germany, and Russia substantially supporting China.

This is probably the greatest parodox of all time. We make no attempt to understand or decipher it. It's all Greek to us.

A Practical Study

LAST WEEK the International Relations Club, long lying dormant on the campus, was revived at a meeting, during which an ambitious program for the ensuing semester was discussed. It was heartening to note the enthusiastic response of those who joined the organization because it shows that there are students in the college who believe that a study of international relations would prove beneficial to them, as has been repeatedly pointed by the editorial policy of the VILLANOVAN in the past year.

There is no more opportune time for a conscientious study of world conditions and efforts at peace than at the present, when a great part of the globe finds itself in the throes of strife, discontent, and discord. The advantages of scrutinizing international affairs through the eyes of Catholic teachings on the subject, especially with respect to the Church's attempts at conciliation and World Peace, are too numerous to mention and quite obvious to young men steeped in Catholic tradition.

Hence, the revival of such a group as this should be welcomed by all the sincere students on the campus who are anxious to insure for themselves a well-rounded background, for the vital questions to be discussed will be reviewed not only theoretically but also practically, and in the light of what Catholicism can do to help foster the rehabilitation of the world.

The handful of members now in the organization are determined to prove that the club will remain an active issue on the campus, and extend an invitation to other students interested to attend tomorrow's session.

Build Your Cathedral

WITH examinations next week it would be well to pause and consider for a moment the significance of the old medievalism which compared the institution of learning to a cathedral.

The erection of a cathedral and the acquirement of learning and wisdom are both slow and tedious processes, processes which require thought and detailed consideration. These are not obtained in a day, a week, a year—rather years—years of perserverance, determination, strength of mind, heart and soul, and courage. Years in which slowly but certainly the efforts expended begin to take form and shape themselves into the fruits of those efforts,—a cathedral of learning.

Examinations are integral parts of that building. They are the instruments by which that extra dab of paint is applied, that stone righted, the window aligned so that instead of a hastily built, weak structure we may have a structure of strength and power, a structure that will impress the world and so beat a path to your door.

The makings of your cathedral is in your hands. You have the final word as to whether or not it will be a tall, massive structure, awe-inspiring, imposing and beautiful lavished with fruits of years or whether it will be a small anemic, sickly structure that lacks even a firm foundation.

Pause and consider a moment. Look at your cathedral. Is it small, just ordinary? Then get to work and build a cathedral that you can be proud of.

The answer is in your hands.

"The Christian Front" magazine, formerly published on the Villanova campus by Richard L.-G. Deverall, '38, is not to be identified with the movement of which 18 members were recently arrested by the F. B. I. for un-American avtivities. Deverall, who moved his offices to Detroit during the Summer, had changed the name of the magazine last August when he heard of the activities of the group which falsely assumed the name; he wrote an editorial explaining the change of name and bitterly denouncing the society.

General Statistics On College Student Mortality

Power and Will to Succeed Are Absolute Requisites

By PAETRUS F. BANMILLER
Registrar of Villanova College

MORE than one-quarter of a million Freshmen entered colleges and universities in the United States this year. If previous statistics on student mortality hold true, fully 60 percent of these students will fail to complete their courses of study.

A large number of these students will be forced to discontinue their studies because of reasons outside their immediate control, such as financial difficulties, sickness, death in the family, and the like. However, the largest percentage will leave college because of academic failure. Making due allowances for those not having an adequate high school preparation or sufficient mental ability, there still remains a very large percentage who will fall by the wayside because of indifference and negligence.

In limiting our view to the individual failure, we are inclined to lose sight of the seriousness of this situation. Considered 'en masse,' the picture is quite imposing. Annually, thousands of opportunities are wasted and thrown away. The economic loss to students, parents and schools runs into millions of dollars. Parental sacrifices and fond hopes of success are lost, sometimes never to be regained—all because of a lack of application brought on by neglect, laziness, and indifference.

It is interesting to note, at this point, that academic failures are relatively lower in privately controlled institutions than in publicly controlled institutions. Of course, one would expect this in view of the large enrollments, larger classes, and the limitations of opportunities for individual contact with instructors in most publicly controlled institutions of higher learning.

I suppose that Villanova will have its normal share of such failures, in spite of our small classes and frequent student-faculty contacts. An advisory system, such as that functioning so effectively in our School of Engineering, should cut down such failures to a reasonable minimum. However, no efforts of the college or individual professors can overcome the difficulties that arise through will or lack of will on the part of some students.

No college, no system, no dean or no professor can prevent the failure of a student who deliberately loses sight of the primary reasons for undertaking college work—to receive a maximum and thorough education in the ground work of the profession or occupation he hopes to enter and to complete his courses with an appropriate degree.

Success in college demands a reasonable amount of common horsesense, with initiative, self-reliance, and the determination to make the most of one's capacities and opportunities. It demands a determined and consistent application to studies.

Knowledge is in books, to be sure, but so is food in a warehouse. It is not enough to impart knowledge; it is not enough to swallow food. Both have to be assimilated into the fibre of being by use. So it is with a college education.

College success also requires that an intelligent balance be maintained between curricular and extra-curricular activities. No general rule can be established for this important requirement. Some students can maintain a very satisfactory scholastic average while participating in two or more extracurricular activities. Others are barely able to carry their regular class work, yet alone engage in any outside activity. For this reason, it is extremely important that the student recognize, as clearly as possible, his capabilities and limitations along these lines. When he has acquired this self-knowledge, it will be possible to chart a more intelligent course at college. If he has done this to the best of his ability, then the interruption of his course, whatever the reason, will not be something for which he can be blamed.

I have outlined, briefly and, possibly, very crudely, the highest contributing factors which are pitfalls for so many thousands of promising college students. Regard them seriously and make an honest effort to avoid them at all cost. Con-

Summer Fantasy

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

I seem to remember now those days of yore
When you and I were wont to stroll the shore,
Hand in hand, two hearts then strangely one,
And gaze far off into the evening sun.
How sweet and fair that first young love of ours
That grew with all the summer's bloss'ming flowers.
I recall those days when you did bid me say
How much and why I loved you and in what way,
But now, my sweet, all this seems to be gone
Just like the last few rays of a dimming sun,
And in its place is left a feeling come with age
Which does not rouse into the jealous rage
Which was wont to stir when you did vent your smile
Upon a lad, and there let it linger a while.

MR. WEBB, caretaker of St. Mary's Hall, is one of the landmarks of Villanova College. Born in Tipperary, Ireland, in the year 1872, he spent most of his boyhood in that famous Irish province. At the age of 26, he embarked for America and first came to Villanova College in the year 1898, where he was received into the Catholic Church in Villanova's chapel on the same morning that Father Tourcher offered his first low Mass.

On two occasions, he has crossed the Atlantic to Ireland, and he has visited England twice. On his last trip to Ireland in 1932 Mr. Webb attended the Eucharistic Congress, then being held at Dublin.

A self-cultivated man, Mr. Webb enjoys reading historical books and plays during his leisure, Winston Churchill being one of his favorite authors. He admits a weakness for old Irish plays that deal with Ireland's trials and tribulations during her seven hundred years of domination by England. He regards his attendance at the first play ever given in the Abbey theatre, Dublin, Ireland, as one of the highlights of his career.

Mr. George Harris, who takes charge of the college trucks, has rounded out 30 years of work at Villanova. When he first came here, the school raised its own livestock and some garden produce. In those days it required a working day to make the journey into Philadelphia with the laundry, and return by means of a horse and wagon. When the United States become embroiled in the first World War, Mr. Harris, taking a leave of absence from Villanova, joined the U. S. armed forces abroad, serving in the infantry. Fortunately, Mr. Harris came out of that great conflict unscathed. Re-enlisting n the U. S. Army on his return to America, Mr. Harris became a baker and, on his return to Villanova College, served in that capacity. When the college gave up baking its own bread, he was placed in charge of the trucks, in which capacity he now serves. His home is in Oakmont, and his chief hobby is turkey raising.

Mr. Joseph Frischoltz is the college gardener and responsible for the well kept gardens and flower beds that enhance Villanova's natural beauty in the late spring and summer. Keeping abreast of current world events occupies most of his leisure, and he is an eager reader of newspapers and magazines that are noted for their attempts to give true accounts of such information.

Mr. Marvin Carver has been working for the college for ten years and at present is the janitor in charge of Austin and Alumni Halls. He is noted for his devotion to the American flag and every day on his own account he raises the flag in the morning and lowers it in the evening. Not a day goes by, even on his days off, and holidays, that he neglects "Old Glory."

AFTER a strenuous four-hour stretch of purely unadulterated class, Dan Day-Hop wearily wends his way pie-shopward where he may lounge and eat in peace, concentrating on how much he didn't learn from his classes.

There, comfortably situated in the center of the floor, is a huge, mahogany-finished, brightly illuminated machine, better known as a dispenser of recorded music.

While partaking of his victuals, he listens to the red hot swing of the jive-artists (on somebody else's nickel) and rhythmically taps his feet in accompaniment. Occasionally, if three of four of his frosh hep-cat friends get together, they put on a jam session in pantomine; truly a novel demonstration.

Despite the cannibalistic tendencies of these alligators, their antics, combined with the music of the wax-disc artists, tend to ease the mind of any worries, scholastic or otherwise.

To the prospective student anticipating the splurge of a buffalo head, an inviting list of 24 records includes the best of the recent orchestrations.

Until recently removed, Charlie Barnet's "Cherokee" was tops in popularity because of its outstanding sax work and terrific rhythm section.

Following closely in popularity is the ace bandleader of the year, Glenn Miller, with "In the Mood" a plastic disc worthy of being voted one of the year's best.

A band only recently reorganized, but at present near the top, is Jan Savitt. This is evidenced by his swell arrangements of "720 in the Books," "It's a Wonderful World," and "Honestly." Bon-bon's vocals greatly aid in their popularity.

The Dorsey brothers' individual musicrews contribute four numbers to the library of musical knowledge on the campus. Jimmy, perhaps the lesser known of the two, has waxed the haunting "On a Little Street in Singapore" disc, assisted vocally by Bob Eberle, and "I Didn't Know What Time It Was," sung by the sweetheart of the air-lanes, Helen O'Connell. Brother Tommy has grooved two outstanding numbers in "Indian Summer,' warbled by Jack Leonard, and "Baby, What Else Can I Do," well taken care of by Edythe Wright.

Benny Goodman, former king of swing, really gives out once more on "Faithful Forever," ably assisted by Mildred Bailey.

There you are, jitterbugs, hep-cats, alligators, rug-cutters, ets., your "must play" list of the week. Hear your favorite orchestra play your favorite tune for the small sum of one nickel. Just visit the Pie Shop in the basement of Mendel Hall at any time of day or night where quality music is available at bargain prices.

THEATRE

Legitimate and Otherwise: Latest proof that Philadelphia is a tough stop for road shows came last week when "Mamba's Daughters," with Ethe. Waters, didn't draw enough theatre-goers to overflow the balcony. Down-stairs seats were empty at most performances. Play got rave notices on Broadway last season.

A disgusted movie fan approached us last week and proceeded to condemn European movie technique. About "Harvest" he said: "They claim it's the best European picture of 1939.

Hispanic Room In Library Of Congress Product Of Work Of Augustinian Father

Literary Monument Is Tribute to Spain and Latin-America

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

One of the most recent noteworthy additions to the Library of Congress in Washington D. C. has been the beautiful Hispanic Room, which has few rivals and still fewer peers.

The Hispanic Foundation owes its origin to the establishment, in 1927, of a fund of $100,000 and, a year later, of $50,000 by Mr. Archer M. Huntingdon of New York for the pursuit of studies in Spanish, Portugese and Latin-American culture. Because of the supreme generosity of Mr. Huntingdon, the cause of civilization has been once more championed and the preservation of one more phase of past culture has been guided into safekeeping.

The collection, at the present date, consists not only of the present-day culture but also of age-yellowed, musty manuscripts of the glorious days of Hispanic countries exhibited in histories and in literature.

One of the most prized of manuscripts is that by Juan Pablos, a Christian Doctrine for the first bishop, Fray Juan de Zumarrga, dating back to 1544. A catechism published in Spanish and two Indian dialects are also among the treasured books, these dating back to 1585.

Among the more isolated and relatively unknown special collections of the Library are the Ladino Books in the Division of Semetic and Oriental literature. This material is written in the Judaeo-Spanish vernacular of the Sephardic Jews who were expelled from Spain in the fifteenth century.

The great work and the tremendous strides which have been made by the Hispanic Foundation is due, for the greater part, to Dr. David Rubio, O. S. A., of the Catholic University of America. His tireless work and love for the project, coupled with a great and brilliant mind has contributed more to the

Imposing Edifice Contains Many Volumes of Rare Books

Foundation than can be measured materially. His moral support and indispensable direction have been the real mainstay of the Foundation.

To broaden the activity and to provide more adequately the elements for the study and appreciation of Hispanic culture, both of the mother countries, Spain and Portugal, and the Hispanic Americas have created the Hispanic Room. The plan of the room is that of the late Spanish Rennaisance and few, if any, surpass its beauty of line, its soft mellowness of blended hues, and its peace-inspiring atmosphere. The ceiling is vaulted and finished in a textured plaster giving the effect of a Spanish monastery, one of Spain's claims to architectural immortality. Baroque cartouches surround the high arches of the windows, leaving for posterity a gentle reminder of the Hispanic great in literature and history. Included are Cervantes, Magellan, Columbus, Dias and Bolivar — names which have bedecked gloriously the names of texts for scores of years. There are curtains of golden brocade at the windows and about the alcoves and balconies of fine wrought iron, which are a lasting tribute to the art of the craftsman who designed them. A marble tablet commemorating the circumstances of the erection of the Foundation stands between two doors of Spanish design leading to the administrative offices.

The Hispanic Foundation in the Library of Congress is still a very youthful organization. Its purpose is just becoming known throughout the Americas. With the proper support from the people of this country and those of the Hispanic world, with their sympathy and participation in its work, it should come to be one of the principle forces for the preservation and dissemination of Hispanic culture.

the 'CATS' MEOW!

EDITORIAL COMMENT — An editorial in a recent issue of the Temple University 'News' informs us that "Howdy Week," which was conducted there a short time ago, was a dismal failure. During the week set aside and specially designated as "Howdy Week," each student is expected to greet everyone he meets on the campus. Villanovans will recognize this as an abbreviated form of the "Hello Habit" that we Main Liners prize as one of our traditions. The difference is mostly that we practice it all year. We would like to suggest to the Owls that they too adopt the "Hello Habit." The spirit of friendliness which this practice can generate can only be appreciated when one has walked along the halls of institutions where everyone is as indifferent as the proverbial New Yorker and contrasted it with the friendly attitude usually found in smaller schools. More than one benefit might result: for example, think how much easier it would be to get acquainted with pretty co-eds!

Exams will soon be with us again (without invitations) and, from the Michigan State News, we take this thought—

I crave an exam
I think they're fun
I never cram
And I won't flunk one—
I'm the teacher.

During the Christmas holidays the sunset colored American Student union held its national convention. A resolution to condemn the Russian invasion of Finland was squelched by an overwhelming majority. Naturally, they are free to express their opinions, but if they continue in the same vein it might be a good idea for them to change the name of the organization, because I don't think they would be expressing the sentiments of enough Americans to have such a high sounding name.

During election years, one is likely to hear numerous uncomplimentary remarks by the various political parties. A possible Republican slogan suggested by the Minnesota "Daily" is this: "Do your Christmas shopping early. Who knows? Tomorrow may be Christmas!

There has been no Russian invasion of this vicinity, but I'll bet there aren't many Finns ($ $) left about the campus after last week end's socials!

Friend or Enemy?

WHO IS fighting whom in Europe? To us the muddled affairs of the Europe seem literally muddled beyond our feeble attempts at comprehension. Theoretically we know that the Allies are fighting the Nazis and the Reds on the Western Front, but on other battlefields they seem to be working hand in hand for the same cause. This is an inexplicable enigma for, idealistically minded as we are, we were prone to believe that when a nation fought for a principle, it alone was the goal on all fronts.

But contrary to this text-book platitude we find when reviewing the situation abroad that: the French are delivering German-made war materials to China because the barter agreement went into affect before war was declared between France and Germany; the French are aiding the Russians to equip the Chinese army with German munitions; Russia is supposed to be a deadly foe to France; the United States is a potential ally of the European democracies, at least economically, and at the same time supplies Japan with scrap-iron, steel, and oil. In Europe, Russia and Germany are fighting against England, France, and Finland; in the Orient we find France, Germany, and Russia substantially supporting China.

This is probably the greatest parodox of all time. We make no attempt to understand or decipher it. It's all Greek to us.

A Practical Study

LAST WEEK the International Relations Club, long lying dormant on the campus, was revived at a meeting, during which an ambitious program for the ensuing semester was discussed. It was heartening to note the enthusiastic response of those who joined the organization because it shows that there are students in the college who believe that a study of international relations would prove beneficial to them, as has been repeatedly pointed by the editorial policy of the VILLANOVAN in the past year.

There is no more opportune time for a conscientious study of world conditions and efforts at peace than at the present, when a great part of the globe finds itself in the throes of strife, discontent, and discord. The advantages of scrutinizing international affairs through the eyes of Catholic teachings on the subject, especially with respect to the Church's attempts at conciliation and World Peace, are too numerous to mention and quite obvious to young men steeped in Catholic tradition.

Hence, the revival of such a group as this should be welcomed by all the sincere students on the campus who are anxious to insure for themselves a well-rounded background, for the vital questions to be discussed will be reviewed not only theoretically but also practically, and in the light of what Catholicism can do to help foster the rehabilitation of the world.

The handful of members now in the organization are determined to prove that the club will remain an active issue on the campus, and extend an invitation to other students interested to attend tomorrow's session.

Build Your Cathedral

WITH examinations next week it would be well to pause and consider for a moment the significance of the old medievalism which compared the institution of learning to a cathedral.

The erection of a cathedral and the acquirement of learning and wisdom are both slow and tedious processes, processes which require thought and detailed consideration. These are not obtained in a day, a week, a year—rather years—years of perserverance, determination, strength of mind, heart and soul, and courage. Years in which slowly but certainly the efforts expended begin to take form and shape themselves into the fruits of those efforts,—a cathedral of learning.

Examinations are integral parts of that building. They are the instruments by which that extra dab of paint is applied, that stone righted, the window aligned so that instead of a hastily built, weak structure we may have a structure of strength and power, a structure that will impress the world and so beat a path to your door.

The makings of your cathedral is in your hands. You have the final word as to whether or not it will be a tall, massive structure, awe-inspiring, imposing and beautiful lavished with fruits of years or whether it will be a small anemic, sickly structure that lacks even a firm foundation.

Pause and consider a moment. Look at your cathedral. Is it small, just ordinary? Then get to work and build a cathedral that you can be proud of.

The answer is in your hands.

"The Christian Front" magazine, formerly published on the Villanova campus by Richard L.-G. Deverall, '38, is not to be identified with the movement of which 18 members were recently arrested by the F. B. I. for un-American avtivities. Deverall, who moved his offices to Detroit during the Summer, had changed the name of the magazine last August when he heard of the activities of the group which falsely assumed the name; he wrote an editorial explaining the change of name and bitterly denouncing the society.

General Statistics On College Student Mortality

Power and Will to Succeed Are Absolute Requisites

By PAETRUS F. BANMILLER
Registrar of Villanova College

MORE than one-quarter of a million Freshmen entered colleges and universities in the United States this year. If previous statistics on student mortality hold true, fully 60 percent of these students will fail to complete their courses of study.

A large number of these students will be forced to discontinue their studies because of reasons outside their immediate control, such as financial difficulties, sickness, death in the family, and the like. However, the largest percentage will leave college because of academic failure. Making due allowances for those not having an adequate high school preparation or sufficient mental ability, there still remains a very large percentage who will fall by the wayside because of indifference and negligence.

In limiting our view to the individual failure, we are inclined to lose sight of the seriousness of this situation. Considered 'en masse,' the picture is quite imposing. Annually, thousands of opportunities are wasted and thrown away. The economic loss to students, parents and schools runs into millions of dollars. Parental sacrifices and fond hopes of success are lost, sometimes never to be regained—all because of a lack of application brought on by neglect, laziness, and indifference.

P. F. BANMILLER

B. S. in Electrical Engineering, Villanova College. Secretary-Treasurer of the National Alumni Association (1935-1939); member of the American Alumni Council (1938, 1939); member of the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars, Vice-President, 1938; President, 1939; member of American Association of Collegiate Registrars. Has written several papers for educational journals, mainly dealing with college admissions; serves on various project committees of educational and accrediting groups and state education departments.

It is interesting to note, at this point, that academic failures are relatively lower in privately controlled institutions than in publicly controlled institutions. Of course, one would expect this in view of the large enrollments, larger classes, and the limitations of opportunities for individual contact with instructors in most publicly controlled institutions of higher learning.

I suppose that Villanova will have its normal share of such failures, in spite of our small classes and frequent student-faculty contacts. An advisory system, such as that functioning so effectively in our School of Engineering, should cut down such failures to a reasonable minimum. However, no efforts of the college or individual professors can overcome the difficulties that arise through will or lack of will on the part of some students.

No college, no system, no dean or no professor can prevent the failure of a student who deliberately loses sight of the primary reasons for undertaking college work—to receive a maximum and thorough education in the ground work of the profession or occupation he hopes to enter and to complete his courses with an appropriate degree.

Success in college demands a reasonable amount of common horsesense, with initiative, self-reliance, and the determination to make the most of one's capacities and opportunities. It demands a determined and consistent application to studies.

Knowledge is in books, to be sure, but so is food in a warehouse. It is not enough to impart knowledge; it is not enough to swallow food. Both have to be assimilated into the fibre of being by use. So it is with a college education.

College success also requires that an intelligent balance be maintained between curricular and extra-curricular activities. No general rule can be established for this important requirement. Some students can maintain a very satisfactory scholastic average while participating in two or more extracurricular activities. Others are barely able to carry their regular class work, yet alone engage in any outside activity. For this reason, it is extremely important that the student recognize, as clearly as possible, his capabilities and limitations along these lines. When he has acquired this self-knowledge, it will be possible to chart a more intelligent course at college. If he has done this to the best of his ability, then the interruption of his course, whatever the reason, will not be something for which he can be blamed.

I have outlined, briefly and, possibly, very crudely, the highest contributing factors which are pitfalls for so many thousands of promising college students. Regard them seriously and make an honest effort to avoid them at all cost. Con-

Summer Fantasy

By ANDREA J. D'ANGELO

I seem to remember now those days of yore
When you and I were wont to stroll the shore,
Hand in hand, two hearts then strangely one,
And gaze far off into the evening sun.
How sweet and fair that first young love of ours
That grew with all the summer's bloss'ming flowers.
I recall those days when you did bid me say
How much and why I loved you and in what way,
But now, my sweet, all this seems to be gone
Just like the last few rays of a dimming sun,
And in its place is left a feeling come with age
Which does not rouse into the jealous rage
Which was wont to stir when you did vent your smile
Upon a lad, and there let it linger a while.

MR. WEBB, caretaker of St. Mary's Hall, is one of the landmarks of Villanova College. Born in Tipperary, Ireland, in the year 1872, he spent most of his boyhood in that famous Irish province. At the age of 26, he embarked for America and first came to Villanova College in the year 1898, where he was received into the Catholic Church in Villanova's chapel on the same morning that Father Tourcher offered his fiirst low Mass.

On two occasions, he has crossed the Atlantic to Ireland, and he has visited England twice. On his last trip to Ireland in 1932 Mr. Webb attended the Eucharistic Congress, then being held at Dublin.

A self-cultivated man, Mr. Webb enjoys reading historical books and plays during his leisure, Winston Churchill being one of his favorite authors. He admits a weakness for old Irish plays that deal with Ireland's trials and tribulations during her seven hundred years of domination by England. He regards his attendance at the first play ever given in the Abbey theatre, Dublin, Ireland, as one of the highlights of his career.

Mr. George Harris, who takes charge of the college trucks, has rounded out 30 years of work at Villanova. When he first came here, the school raised its own livestock and some garden produce. In those days it required a working day to make the journey into Philadelphia with the laundry, and return by means of a horse and wagon. When the United States become embroiled in the first World War, Mr. Harris, taking a leave of absence from Villanova, joined the U. S. armed forces abroad, serving in the infantry. Fortunately, Mr. Harris came out of that great conflict unscathed. Re-enlisting n the U. S. Army on his return to America, Mr. Harris became a baker and, on his return to Villanova College, served in that capacity. When the college gave up baking its own bread, he was placed in charge of the trucks, in which capacity he now serves. His home is in Oakmont, and his chief hobby is turkey raising.

Mr. Joseph Frischoltz is the college gardener and responsible for the well kept gardens and flower beds that enhance Villanova's natural beauty in the late spring and summer. Keeping abreast of current world events occupies most of his leisure, and he is an eager reader of newspapers and magazines that are noted for their attempts to give true accounts of such information.

* * * * *

Mr. Marvin Carver has been working for the college for ten years and at present is the janitor in charge of Austin and Alumni Halls. He is noted for his devotion to the American flag and every day on his own account he raises the flag in the morning and lowers it in the evening. Not a day goes by, even on his days off, and holidays, that he neglects "Old Glory."

Mr. Phillip Chicaetta, the college fireman, is a pipe stem collector. In the summer time he takes jaunts out into the woods to get wild cherry branches, removes the pulp from the branches and makes pipe stems.

AFTER a strenuous four-hour stretch of purely unadulterated class, Dan Day-Hop wearily wends his way pie-shopward where he may lounge and eat in peace, concentrating on how much he didn't learn from his classes.

There, comfortably situated in the center of the floor, is a huge, mahogany-finished, brightly illuminated machine, better known as a dispenser of recorded music.

While partaking of his victuals, he listens to the red hot swing of the jive-artists (on somebody else's nickel) and rhythmically taps his feet in accompaniment. Occasionally, if three of four of his frosh hep-cat friends get together, they put on a jam session in pantomine; truly a novel demonstration.

Despite the cannibalistic tendencies of these alligators, their antics, combined with the music of the wax-disc artists, tend to ease the mind of any worries, scholastic or otherwise.

To the prospective student anticipating the splurge of a buffalo head, an inviting list of 24 records includes the best of the recent orchestrations.

Until recently removed, Charlie Barnet's "Cherokee" was tops in popularity because of its outstanding sax work and terrific rhythm section.

Following closely in popularity is the ace band-leader of the year, Glenn Miller, with "In the Mood," a plastic disc worthy of being voted one of the year's best.

A band only recently reorganized, but at present near the top, is Jan Savitt. This is evidenced by his swell arrangements of "720 in the Books," "It's a Wonderful World," and "Honestly." Bon-bon's vocals greatly aid in their popularity.

The Dorsey brothers' individual musicrews contribute four numbers to the library of musical knowledge on the campus. Jimmy, perhaps the lesser known of the two, has waxed the haunting "On a Little Street in Singapore" disc, assisted vocally by Bob Eberle, and "I Didn't Know What Time It Was," sung by the sweetheart of the air-lanes, Helen O'Connell. Brother Tommy has grooved two outstanding numbers in "Indian Summer," warbled by Jack Leonard, and "Baby, What Else Can I Do," well taken care of by Edythe Wright.

Benny Goodman, former king of swing, really gives out once more on "Faithful Forever," ably assisted by Mildred Bailey.

There you are, jitterbugs, hep-cats, alligators, rug-cutters, ets., your "must play" list of the week. Hear your favorite orchestra play your favorite tune for the small sum of one nickel. Just visit the Pie Shop in the basement of Mendel Hall at any time of day or night where quality music is available at bargain prices.

THEATRE

Legitimate and Otherwise: Latest proof that Philadelphia is a tough stop for road shows came last week when "Mamba's Daughters," with Ethel Waters, didn't draw enough theatre-goers to overflow the balcony. Down-stairs seats were empty at most performances. Play got rave notices on Broadway last season.

A disgusted movie fan approached us last week and proceeded to condemn European movie technique. About "Harvest" he said: "They claim it's the best European picture of 1939.

Hispanic Room In Library Of Congress Product Of Work Of Augustinian Father

Literary Monument Is Tribute to Spain and Latin-America

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

One of the most recent noteworthy additions to the Library of Congress in Washington D. C. has been the beautiful Hispanic Room, which has few rivals and still fewer peers.

The Hispanic Foundation owes its origin to the establishment, in 1927, of a fund of $100,000 and, a year later, of $50,000 by Mr. Archer M. Huntingdon of New York for the pursuit of studies in Spanish, Portugese and Latin-American culture. Because of the supreme generosity of Mr. Huntingdon, the cause of civilization has been once more championed and the preservation of one more phase of past culture has been guided into safekeeping.

The collection, at the present date, consists not only of the present-day culture but also of age-yellowed, musty manuscripts of the glorious days of Hispanic countries exhibited in histories and in literature.

One of the most prized of manuscripts is that by Juan Pablos, a Christian Doctrine for the first bishop, Fray Juan de Zumarrga, dating back to 1544. A catechism published in Spanish and two Indian dialects are also among the treasured books, these dating back to 1585.

Among the more isolated and relatively unknown special collections of the Library are the Ladino Books in the Division of Semetic and Oriental literature. This material is written in the Judaeo-Spanish vernacular of the Sephardic Jews who were expelled from Spain in the fifteenth century.

The great work and the tremendous strides which have been made by the Hispanic Foundation is due, for the greater part, to Dr. David Rubio, O. S. A., of the Catholic University of America. His tireless work and love for the project, coupled with a great and brilliant mind has contributed more to the

Foundation than can be measured materially. His moral support and indispensable direction have been the real mainstay of the Foundation.

To broaden the activity and to provide more adequately the elements for the study and appreciation of Hispanic culture, both of the mother countries, Spain and Portugal, and the Hispanic Americas have created the Hispanic Room. The plan of the room is that of the late Spanish Rennaisance and few, if any, surpass its beauty of line, its soft mellowness of blended hues, and its peace-inspiring atmosphere. The ceiling is vaulted and finished in a textured plaster giving the effect of a Spanish monastery, one of Spain's claims to architectural immortality. Baroque cartouches surround the high arches of the windows, leaving for posterity a gentle reminder of the Hispanic great in literature and history. Included are Cervantes, Magellan, Columbus, Dias and Bolivar — names which have bedecked gloriously the names of texts for scores of years. There are curtains of golden brocade at the windows and about the alcoves and balconies of fine wrought iron, which are a lasting tribute to the art of the craftsman who designed them. A marble tablet commemorating the circumstances of the erection of the Foundation stands between two doors of Spanish design leading to the administrative offices.

The Hispanic Foundation in the Library of Congress is still a very youthful organization. Its purpose is just becoming known throughout the Americas. With the proper support from the people of this country and those of the Hispanic world, with their sympathy and participation in its work, it should come to be one of the principle forces for the preservation and dissemination of Hispanic culture.

BOOK CLUB REVIVED TO INCITE INTEREST IN CURRENT WORKS

Modern Authors Read by Club Members; Seminars Held in Simpson

Literary enthusiasts will welcome the revival of the Book Club, the latest innovation in the endeavor to incite an interest among the student body in current books, by the Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., and Arthur S. Somers, junior commerce student.

The popularity of this movement is evident in the announcement that the limited membership of the club has already been completed. This, however, does not mean that reception into the club will be restricted for all time, nor to any specific student. When the organization has developed and increased its circulation, new members will be admitted.

The club has certain financial requisites which are necessary for its maintenance, and which are essentially to the interest of the student body.

A fee of fifty cents is required for entrance into the club. This sum entitles the members to the privileges of the club for a period of one year. With the amount received, new books will be purchased. These will be rented to the members for two cents a day. When the entire club has finished the books, they will be placed on reserve in the library and circulated to the student body at the rate of five cents a day.

During the year, the club will hold regular seminars in Simpson Hall. Current authors will be invited to attend these meetings for the purpose of further stimulating an interest and appreciation in periodical literature. Members of the club will, on these occasions, present papers depicting the setting and movement of the books, in order that all may have a broad knowledge of the works in circulation.

Current books which are now in the college library and which will be placed on reserve for the use of the club members include: "Inside Europe," and "Inside Asia," by Gunther; Rauschning's "Revolution of Nilhilism;" Patridge's "Country Lawyer;" "Autobiography with Letters," by William L. Phelps; "The Dark Wheel," by S. M. C.; and H. White's, "To the End of the World." These may serve as an illustration of the types of books the club is contemplating purchasing.

MASQUE CONSIDERS SELECTION OF PLAY

Dates for Annual Production Set; Drama To Be Chosen Shortly

Dates for the annual Belle Masque production have been set at April 17, 19, and 20. Though no play has been definitely determined upon, several are under consideration.

Dramas being considered as the annual play include, "Night Must Fall," "The Petrified Forest," "Busman's Holiday," and "Moon Over Mulberry Street." A decision is expected within a few days.

Inasmuch as there are female roles in all of these shows, Belle Masque will probably issue a call, as in past years, for girls from Rosemont. Patricia Rice, now a sophomore there, had one of the leading roles in last year's production, "Room Service."

Among those expected to return to the boards for this year's play are such veterans as Robert E. O'Brien, Robert G. Wilderotter, Joseph V. McCabe, Joseph M. McNamara, Murray P. Zealor, John T. Gallagher, Robert J. McIntyre, and James F. Donovan.

Officers of Belle Masque appointed for this year are: Joseph M. McNamara, student director; J. Bradley McManus, business manager; John T. Gallagher, stage manager; and Robert Dooley, chief electrician.

The society is still accepting candidates and invites interested students to attend a meeting next Friday, Jan. 19, at 1:00, in room 110, Mendel.

TESTING OF DRUGS DISCUSSED BEFORE RESEARCH SEMINAR

Standardization of Potency and Purity by Assay Stressed by Gambescia

"Often overlooked by the majority, the standardization of drugs as to their potency and purity will always be one of prime importance as long as drugs are used in the treatment of pathological conditions."

With this statement, Joseph M. Gambescia, freshman science student, introduced his topic of "Biological Assay" to the members of the research seminar at their meeting last Wednesday.

He explained that two types of drug assay exist, a chemical and a biological one. Since, due to certain factors, chemical assay, the easier of the two, is not possible in all cases, biological assay, the testing of the drug on animals, is resorted to.

Several methods are used, the toxic methods divided into minimum systolic and minimum lethal dose methods, the methods of testing the physiological action on the live animal and the testing of the drug on an isolated organ.

The most important drugs used include digitalis, aconite, ergot, epinephrine, posterior pituitary and the vitamins.

Gambescia concluded his lecture by citing once more the importance of assays, showing that failure in assaying drugs would present a danger almost insurmountable in that impurities and potencies would vary enough to imperil human life.

No meeting of the group will be held this week because of the proximity of examinations.

Seniors Offered Law Scholarships

Graduate Grants in International Studies Given by School in Massachusetts

Villanova seniors who intend continuing their studies upon graduation are invited to apply for scholarships, assistanceships, and fellowships offered by the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Medford, Mass.

Two Fletcher Fellowships are offered, each with a value of one thousand dollars, along with a limited number of grants of values of from two hundred to seven hundred and fifty dollars.

These awards, determined on a basis of intellectual ability, character, and intelligence, as well as sound preparation in history, political science, economics, and modern foreign languages, are offered to those who wish to study for the degrees of Master of Arts, Master of Arts in Law and Diplomacy, and Doctor of Philosophy.

Those selected to hold the grants are given courses of advanced study and research in international law and administration, diplomatic history and international politics, and international economic relations.

Requests for bulletins, application forms, and other information should be addressed to the Dean, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Medford, Mass.

With the Villanovan Dinner-Dance on January 9, senior members of the staff retired from the weekly's service. Joseph N. Bongiovanni, Jr., left, copy editor, completed four years of staff work, as did Joseph A. Cirelli, right, former circulation manager. Frank M. to the presidency of this organization climaxes a series of many similar successes. In addition to the honors previously accorded him by the Association of American Colleges, Father Stanford has served as both president and vice-president of the The National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, as a member of the Executive Committee of the National Catholic Educational Association, as president of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania, as vice-president of the Catholic Educational Association of Pennsylvania, and has occupied a prominent position in the affairs of numerous other educational groups.

The convention of the Association of American Colleges was held on January 11 and 12, immediately after the other meetings, and had as its theme "A Free College in a Free State." The first day's program featured a discussion of "The Relations Between the Liberal Arts College, The Junior College, and the Professional School," the reports of numerous commissions concerned with related subjects, and an address "Union Now" by Clarence K. Streit.

The program of the morning session following included talks on "Religious Freedom," by President Charles E. Diehl, of Southwestern; "Freedom as Affected by Finances," by Financial Vice-President J. W. Lowes, of Harvard University; "Freedom in Legislation," by President Fred Corson, of Dickinson College; and several committee reports.

COMBINED MEETING HELD BY SOCIETIES

Villanova, Haverford, and St. Joseph's Chemical Groups Met Last Night

Student and faculty members of the St. Joseph's College and Haverford College Chemical Societies attended the first evening meeting of the Villanova Chemical Society.

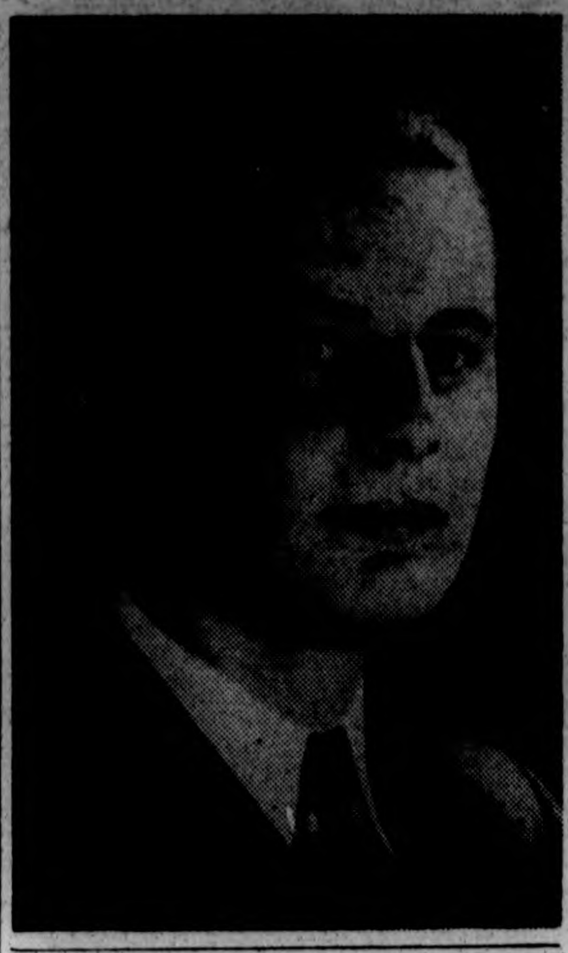
Speaker at the meeting, held last night in the Mendel Amphitheatre, was Mr. Dexlin of the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company.

His lecture dealt with the practical industrial application of optical instruments, and the role of chemical, mechanical, and metallurgical engineering within the plant.

Mr. Wexlin told of the relation of educational background as applied to practical use within the plant. Emphasis was placed on the application of optical instruments to fine measurements, inspection, control, and process control. Lantern slides were used to illustrate the lecture.

In addition, the solution to problems met in industry were demonstrated by the actual use of three or four pieces of apparatus. A polarizer was shown and used, along with an ultra-microscope.

After the meeting, refreshments were served in the reception room of Simpson hall. Light music was provided by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A.



INTERCLASS DEBATES END SPEECH CLASSES HELD

Concluding the series of interclass debates under the auspices of Beta Gamma, a team of junior commerce students will compete against a team of sophomore artsmen today at 3:00 P. M. in the Mendel Amphitheatre on the isolation question.

The junior commerce team will be composed of James Brady, Edward J. McKay, and Vincent J. Murphy.

Howard A. McCall, William E. Schubert, and David Daly will make up the sophomore arts team.

Chairman of the debate will be Robert E. O'Brien, senior in the commerce school..

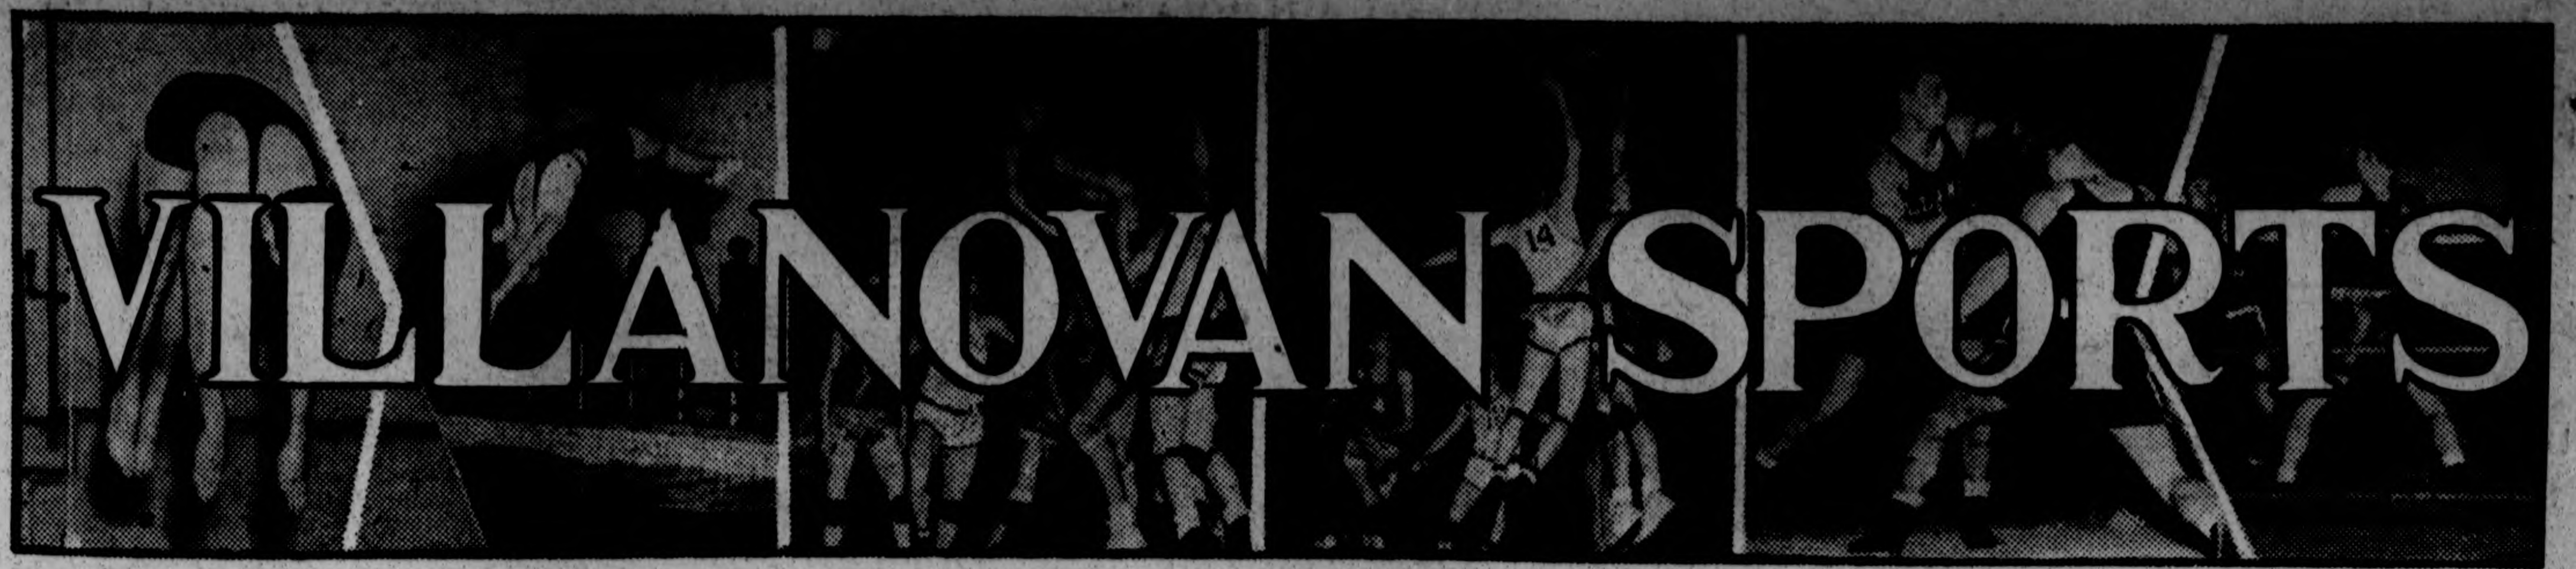
MUSIC GROUP ENDS TERM PROGRAM

Selections From Tschaikowsky Conclude Half-Year of Seminars on Masters

With the presentation of music by Tschaikowsky, Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the music seminar, brought to a close the first half of the 1939-1940 series of seminars on the music of the masters.

In the final seminar, presented Wednesday, Jan. 10, the program was opened with an orchestration by Leopold Stokowski of Bach's organ composition, "Toccata and Fugue in D minor." Then, after a short biography of Peter Tschaikowsky was delivered by Fr. Vrana, the members heard his "Pathetique—Symphony No. 6," conducted by Sergei Kamilikoff, and the "Nutcracker Suite," conducted by Leopold Stokowski.

Although no plans have been made regarding the nature of the programs to be presented during the second semester, Fr. Vrana announced that he would attempt to enlist the services of Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., to give another piano-lecture similar to the one he gave before the members of the seminar on the night of December 6, 1939.



VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Lions, Cadets On Week's Court Card

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes
Sports Editor

CENTER column of this page today features the Irish countenance of one Phillip M. Dunn, for the past 12 months sports editor of this publication. Mr. Dunn, who receives his sheepskin from Villanova's commerce school this June, retired from the head-man position of pages five, six, and seven at the VILLANOVAN banquet Tuesday night and thus ended a memorable career of Villanova journalism. We know not whether this career will be extended professionally in the future, but if it is you can rest assured that it will be successful.

JOE BARNES

Best tribute to Phil was paid at the banquet by Father McKee who acclaimed his celerity in getting and printing the news and decried the Irish humility which made him shove the credit for it onto the shoulders of another. Regardless of Phil's remarks to the contrary 100% of the credit for the great improvement of these pages during the '39 term belongs squarely with Harrisburg's Phil Dunn.

—V—

Also retired from journalistic duty were Saul Wallach, a veteran of four years, and Harry Mazzei, writer of the always informative Here and There Column. Both were of the best and you can believe one who knows when this writer says that the spaces vacated by them are very hard to fill. The absence of Dunn, Wallach, and Mazzei makes us feel like a football coach watching his "all-American" backfield receiving their degrees!

—V—

Competition for Villanova's freshman basketball team seems hard to get. To date most of the opposition has been very soft for the top-notch yearling squad, for evidence witness the top-heavy scores. Either we have the best freshman team ever enrolled or else all the teams played thus far are having "off-years," which would seem odd. True test of the Frosh ability will probably be withheld until late in the season when they meet up with the always-strong Brown Prep five.

Incidentally Art Spector and Bill Woods, frosh stars, are alumni of the Preppers' championship squad of a recent year. Two other members of that teams are on the Temple freshman club. We doubt that the foursome will meet this year, but next winter should bring them together in the hoped-for resumation of the traditional Temple-Villanova series.

—V—

Speaking of the Owl-Wildcat affair, the thing that kept it from being played this year—Temple's policy of playing all big home games in the Convention Hall doubleheaders and Villanova's refusal to do so—seems to be on its last legs. Double-header basketball is definitely not an attractive dish for Philly sport fans, mainly because of the lack of collegiate color and also because of the high admission price. Philadelphians will pay heavy for their football but they want basketball at cheaper rates, thus teh vastamount of empty seats at Convention Hall. From what we hear the success of the double-headers in New York is the only thing keeping the Philly affair going.

51-24 Score of One - Sided Meet; Hooper Cracks Pool Record

By BILL EPIFANIO

The "Wildcats" varsity swimming team, under the capable guidance of their new coach Bill Leahy, gave what the new coach wanted as a sort of a gift—a victory for his initial endeavor. Bill Leahy's men sank the University of Delaware mermen by the score of 51 to 24, repeating last years victory but being a bit more decisive. The Wildcats natators chalked up seven first places and four seconds.

Bill Hooper, formerly of Mercersburg Academy, took two first places, one in the 440 yard free style and he broke the pool record in the 220 yard free-style. Bill was clocked at 2.26.4, clipping the old record formerly held by the present coach Bill Leahy by .2 of a second.

Kelly Takes Two

Walt Kelly came through with two first places. He took the honors in the 50 yard free-style at .24.4 and the one hundred yard free style in .55.2. Lamlein of Delaware came through with top honors in the fancy diving. His work was done with great dexterity and he took 84.8 points.

The initial race was a 300 yard medley relay which was taken by Villanova; the trio who captured top honors were captain Ed Leahy, Paul Fitzmaurice and Bob Koness.

The 220 yard free style was all Hooper's; he took it with plenty to spare. Following him were Pholeric of Villanova and Neese of Delaware.

Kelly Again

Walt Kelly again took the 50 yard free style with his side-kick Charley Barrett a close second and Marshall of Delaware third.

The fancy diving was Delaware's—much to everyone's surprise. Carrying off the honors were Lamlein, and on his heels was his teammote Paul who was followed by Timmins. Lamlein throughout his exhibition gave the spectators quite

SAUL WALLACH MOULDING SPRING TENNIS SCHEDULE

Six Meets Scheduled for Blue Netmen; More To Be Released

Saul Wallach, playing manager and former captain of Villanova's tennis team, has been working on next spring's net schedule for the past few weeks. The card is shaping up as one of the best arranged for the Blue netmen for several years.

The schools with which agreements have already been made are St. John's of Brooklyn, Manhattan, Temple, Rider, Loyola of Baltimore, and Fordham University. All six schols have been met before on the court. St. John's, Temple, and Fordham have always provided the toughest sort of competition.

Release of the full schedule with dates is expected in the near future, depending upon the completion of details.

FRANKLIN AND MARSHALL NEXT FOE FOR BLUE TEAM

Swimmers Meet Diplomats in Home Pool Thursday Afternoon

Next opposition for the varsity swimmers will be furnished Thursday afternoon by Franklin and Marshall College of Lancaster, Pa. The meet will be contested in the Fild House Pool beginning at 2:30 P. M.

The Diplomats have a habit of producing top-notch tank aggregations and this year seems to be no exception. Thus far their record has been outstanding, especially from the standpoint of individual feats.

Last year the F. & M. natators found the Villanova mermen to their liking and swam to a 49-26 win in their home pool at Lancaster.

Gadsby's Life Continual Struggle For Success

By JOCK MAUCH

Ray Gadsby's story of success is one that even outshines the triumphs of the characters of Horatio Alger's fiction. It is the story of one who was not daunted when drawn down to the depths of disappointment and despair, and who when he finally had a chance to become a light in the public eye as a pugilist, turned down all offers in order to get what to most of us comes without much thought or worry—the opportunity of obtaining a good education. It was this that led him to quit the ring after a successful career as a professional in which he lost only two of 55 bouts. As a result of this we now find him in his third year of the Education school here at Villanova. He may be better known here as the man who keeps our athletes in top condition.

Native Philly

Ray is a native Philadelphian. His father died when he was 13, so after finishing the eighth grade of school he obtained a job in a mill. It was about this time that he began to take an interest in the pugilistic art. At the age of 15 through the urging of a friend, he entered the Knights of Columbus tournament and won the city championship in his division. From that time on he won a number of bouts and numerous championships while still holding down his job in the mill. He fought eleven times in Madison Square Garden.

Finally, in 1928 at Boston he was among the number chosen to rep-

Chester "Cadets" To Be Met Away; Feature New Coach, System

By BOB FUNABASHI

The midway mark of Wildcat court combats will be climaxed tomorrow night at the Field house gym when the Severance sharp-shooters, in quest of their ninth victory, will aim their attack on the trespassing Lions from Reading. Saturday night, the Blue will travel to Chester on a one-stop flight to renew their annual clash with Pennsylvania Military College, as the "West Point of the Keystone state" will attempt a "coup de'etat" of Villanova's offense.

Albright's squad will be congruent to the one of last season, with nine veterans returning and a sizable group of yearlings who express themselves in speed and elusiveness. With only one regular gone from the ranks, Coach Neal Harris' choice of a starting five will probably find the sharpshooting Hen Czaikoski, third leading scorer of the Eastern Intercollegiate league last year, and Petrucka at forwards; either Bill McKinney or Ray Thorpe at center; and Captain Steve Hydock and Ray McCrann at guards.

Nineteen Games

Harris's array of dribblers face a nineteen game schedule this season including twelve contests of the league and seven non-league games with Villanova as one of those. Albright compiled nine victories last winter while dropping ten, but the majority were sophomores who were attempting starting berth for the first time.

Villanova opened the Lion's schedule last winter by defeating them 39-22 at the Main Line gym

BOOK CLUB REVIVED TO INCITE INTEREST IN CURRENT WORKS

Modern Authors Read by Club Members; Seminars Held in Simpson

Literary enthusiasts will welcome the revival of the Book Club, the latest innovation in the endeavor to incite an interest among the student body in current books, by the Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., and Arthur S. Somers, junior commerce student.

The popularity of this movement is evident in the announcement that the limited membership of the club has already been completed. Bill Hooper, formerly of Mercersburg Academy, took two first places, one in the 440 yard free style and he broke the pool record in the 220 yard free-style. Bill was clocked at 2.26.4, clipping the old record formerly held by the present coach Bill Leahy by .2 of a second.

Kelly Takes Two

Walt Kelly came through with two first places. He took the honors in the 50 yard free-style at .24.4 and the one hundred yard free style in .55.2. Lamlein of Delaware came through with top honors in the fancy diving. His work was done with great dexterity and he took 84.8 points.

The initial race was a 300 yard medley relay which was taken by Villanova; the trio who captured top honors were captain Ed Leahy, Paul Fitzmaurice and Bob Koness.

The 220 yard free style was all Hooper's; he took it with plenty to spare. Following him were Pholeric of Villanova and Neese of Delaware.

Kelly Again

Walt Kelly again took the 50 yard free style with his side-kick Charley Barrett a close second and Marshall of Delaware third.

The fancy diving was Delaware's—much to everyone's surprise. Carrying off the honors were Lamlein, and on his heels was his teammote Paul who was followed by Timmins. Lamlein throughout his exhibition gave the spectators quite

SAUL WALLACH MOULDING SPRING TENNIS SCHEDULE

Six Meets Scheduled for Blue Netmen; More To Be Released

Saul Wallach, playing manager and former captain of Villanova's tennis team, has been working on next spring's net schedule for the past few weeks. The card is shaping up as one of the best arranged for the Blue netmen for several years.

The schools with which agreements have already been made are St. John's of Brooklyn, Manhattan, Temple, Rider, Loyola of Baltimore, and Fordham University. All six schols have been met before on the court. St. John's, Temple, and Fordham have always provided the toughest sort of competition.

Release of the full schedule with dates is expected in the near future, depending upon the completion of details.

FRANKLIN AND MARSHALL NEXT FOE FOR BLUE TEAM

Swimmers Meet Diplomats in Home Pool Thursday Afternoon

Next opposition for the varsity swimmers will be furnished Thursday afternoon by Franklin and Marshall College of Lancaster, Pa. The meet will be contested in the Fild House Pool beginning at 2:30 P. M.

The Diplomats have a habit of producing top-notch tank aggregations and this year seems to be no exception. Thus far their record has been outstanding, especially from the standpoint of individual feats.

Last year the F. & M. natators found the Villanova mermen to their liking and swam to a 49-26 win in their home pool at Lancaster.

Gadsby's Life Continual Struggle For Success

By JOCK MAUCH

Ray Gadsby's story of success is one that even outshines the triumphs of the characters of Horatio Alger's fiction. It is the story of one who was not daunted when drawn down to the depths of disappointment and despair, and who when he finally had a chance to become a light in the public eye as a pugilist, turned down all offers in order to get what to most of us comes without much thought or worry—the opportunity of obtaining a good education. It was this that led him to quit the ring after a successful career as a professional in which he lost only two of 55 bouts. As a result of this we now find him in his third year of the Education school here at Villanova. He may be better known here as the man who keeps our athletes in top condition.

Native Philly

Ray is a native Philadelphian. His father died when he was 13, so after finishing the eighth grade of school he obtained a job in a mill. It was about this time that he began to take an interest in the pugilistic art. At the age of 15 through the urging of a friend, he entered the Knights of Columbus tournament and won the city championship in his division. From that time on he won a number of bouts and numerous championships while still holding down his job in the mill. He fought eleven times in Madison Square Garden.

Finally, in 1928 at Boston he was among the number chosen to rep-

Chester "Cadets" To Be Met Away; Feature New Coach, System

By BOB FUNABASHI

The midway mark of Wildcat court combats will be climaxed tomorrow night at the Field house gym when the Severance sharp-shooters, in quest of their ninth victory, will aim their attack on the trespassing Lions from Reading. Saturday night, the Blue will travel to Chester on a one-stop flight to renew their annual clash with Pennsylvania Military College, as the "West Point of the Keystone state" will attempt a "coup de'etat" of Villanova's offense.

Albright's squad will be congruent to the one of last season, with nine veterans returning and a sizable group of yearlings who express themselves in speed and elusiveness. With only one regular gone from the ranks, Coach Neal Harris' choice of a starting five will probably find the sharpshooting Hen Czaikoski, third leading scorer of the Eastern Intercollegiate league last year, and Petrucka at forwards; either Bill McKinney or Ray Thorpe at center; and Captain Steve Hydock and Ray McCrann at guards.

Nineteen Games

Harris's array of dribblers face a nineteen game schedule this season including twelve contests of the league and seven non-league games with Villanova as one of those. Albright compiled nine victories last winter while dropping ten, but the majority were sophomores who were attempting starting berth for the first time.

Villanova opened the Lion's schedule last winter by defeating them 39-22 at the Main Line gym

COMMERCE DAYHOPS HOLD MURAL LEAD; FEDIGANITES LOSE

Unbeaten Commuters Have Slight Lead Over Alumni and Gigolo Clubs

By WALT BROWN

With the second half little more than underway, we find the competition getting keener as the teams are battling it out for the second half crown. So far this half C & F has set the pace with two victories and no defeats, but Alumni and the Mendel Residents are right behind and tied for second with two victories and one defeat each.

Last Tuesday's contests were all decided by at least seven points in each instance. In the first game Tuesday afternoon C & F downed the Austinites by a score of 31-21. In this game Austin sadly missed the work of Keating and Daly.

Leading at the half by a score of 7-6, the Businessmen came out in the third quarter and built up a comfortable lead so that they only had to coast through the last quarter. The game was extremely tough in which the Day Students used eleven men and in which twenty-five fouls were committed; fourteen by Austin and eleven by C & F.

Fedigan Beaten

Tuesday night in the first game the Mendel Residents defeated Fedigan 28-21 and in the wind-up Alumni trounced the Mendel Day Students 34-26. In the first game the Mendel Residents got away to a fast start and led 13-9 at half time. In the second half they kept Fedigan off balance and won easily. The winners were paced by Martin with five field goals and one foul for the losers.

In the second game Alumni, leading at the half 18-10 and using 13 players, beat a scrappy Mendel Day Student team. Brown got five field goals for the residents and Depersio led the commuters with four and three for a total of eleven.

Fedigan Game Colled

On Thursday the game between C&F and Fedigan was called because several seniors on the Fedigan team found it impossible to play. However, Austin tangled with Alumni and received their third defeat this half, while the Mendel Residents lost a heartbreaker to the Mendel Day Students. Alumni had a game on its hands the first half and only led at half time 14-10, but in the second half Austin folded up and Alumni won easily 35-27. Again in this game Brown led Alumni, getting 14 of his team's points, while Moore, Daly, and Halpin tallied six each for the last place Austinites.

However, the second game proved to be a thriller with the Mendel Day Students emerging victorious, 35-32. The commuters got away to a poor start in the first half and trailed 20-14, but the second was all theirs with Depersio and Dalina taking turns in scoring field goals. It was a hard clean game in which the lead changed hands several times and in which only six fouls were committed, five of which came in the heated second half. Heckler scored five and one for a total of eleven points to pace the losers but Depersio copped scoring honors for the week with 15 points; seven field goals and a foul.

LEHIGH VICTIM OF WILDCAT COURTMEN

Last Period Rally Puts Blue "In Van" With 49-40 Conquest

Traveling to Lehigh last Wednesday night, the Wildcat quintet stormed to its eighth victory of the season to the tune of 49 to 40.

A close battle all the way and with the lead changing hands several times, the Blue and White scored 20 points in the last eight minutes to blast the engineers from the undefeated ranks.

Throughout the fracas the spectators got a glimpse of some fancy shooting from the high-scoring twins of Villanova, Duke Duzminski and diminutive Mike Lazorchak, leading scorer of the Philadelphia district. . The Duke led both teams with four field goals, while dropping seven fouls through the net for a grand total of 15 points. Right behind him was Mike with a five and one average, amounting to 11.

Brandt Leads

Brandt, Feucht, and Cox led the Lehighmen with 9, 8, and 7 respectively.

Previous to the encounter with the Wildcats, the Engineers had run up a string of six consecutive victories, and seemed certain of another until the waning minutes, when the Blue sharp shooters went to work.

Bombarding the nets from every conceivable angle, and being able to stay right up and there when things got hot kept the Wildcats from suffering a second setback. With Loyd Rice sparking the team they coasted to a nine point margin of victory.

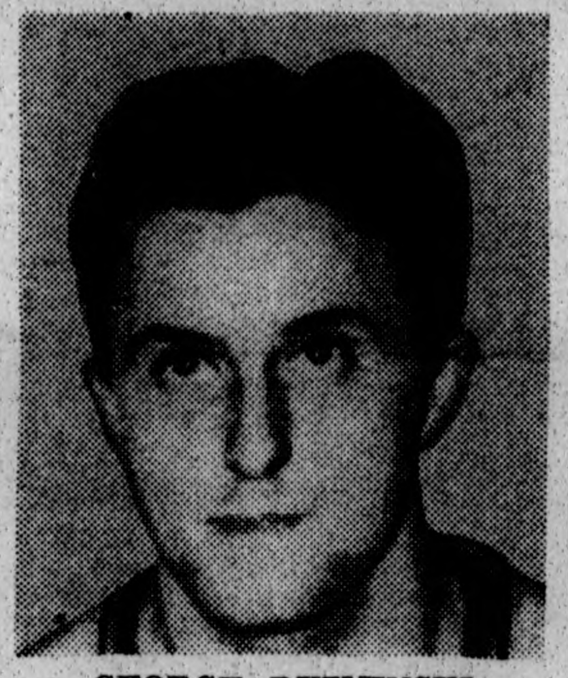
INDOOR TENNIS LEAGUE

Several varsity tennis players are making up a team to play in the Philadelphia Inter-Club League. This league is made up of several tennis clubs from the Greater Philadelphia Area. The matches will be played at the Cheltenham Tennis club. All veterans from last year will play, plus several prospects for the varsity.

Duzminski Cuts Lazorchak Scoring Lead With Spree Against Lehigh

Still leading the Philadelphia district and his own team in points scored is Mike Lazorchak, sharpshooting forward. He's played in nine games, bucketing 40 field goalsand completing 18 foul shots.

Mike's side kick, Duke Duzminski again holds second place in both city and team activities. The Duke has gained one-fifth of a point on Mike in average points per game. Duzminski has hooped 35 field goals and 21 fouls for 91 points and an average of 10.1. Paul Nugent dropped .7 in his average only scoring 3 points during the week. His average is 7.7.



GEORGE DUZMINSKI

Chuck Yund remained stationary in position and average as Lloyd Rice displaced Garland for fifth place after once more returning to the line up, but Gerland still has scored more points since he has played in more games than Lloyd.

The statistics are as follows:

	Ga.	G.	F.	P.	Ave.
Lazorchak	9	40	18	98	10.9
Duzminski	9	35	21	91	10.1
Nugent	9	28	14	70	7.7

Juniors Play Regular

Of the three juniors on the present basketball squad, two have clinched varsity starting posts. Only Ernie Robinson has failed to break into the line-up at whistletime so far. Paul Nugent and Chuck Yund, the other two '41 men, have played the majority of the time in all games thus far.

Cassions Sign Krutulis

Johnny Krutulis, '39, forward on last year's basketball five signed last Saturday to play with the Harrisburg Cassions, a leading up-state pro club. Krutulis assumed a starting post immediately after joining the Cassions.

Krutulis has been playing with Flinchburg, a professional five from near York, Pa. Last year John was known as the "steadiest" player on Al Severance's five.

NO INTRAMURALS

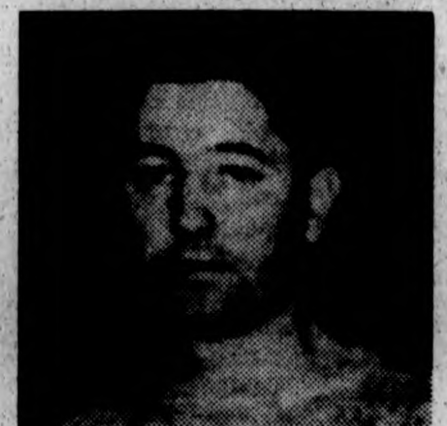
No Intramural Basketball games are to be played during the Examination or Retreat periods. After Thursday's games there will be no more until Tuesday, February 6.

Court Comment

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

With each passing week of the basketball season, followers of Villanova's court aggregation are acquainted with the fact that the Blue and White edition is still wandering around in the wilds of basketball. This is a result of not participating in double-header basketball under what is slowly becoming a three ring circus, as far as the Quaker City part of the show is concerned.

Some, who should know better, or at least can secure the information as to the reasons for the staging of the games on the home floor, evpress amazement that the "Wildcats" are not performing before a "family gathering" as noted from the opening paragraph of a story in a local paper.



Teams whose records to date indicate the calibre of basketball they are worthy of and who grace the "Wildcat" roster are given the silent treatment, or classed as not worthy of mention. However, if you will "look at the record" as the former Governor of New York would say, you will find that Wittenburg, Indiana, Ohio, Baltimore, Brown, and St. John's are giving a pretty good account of their activity, and though they may not carry such high sounding handles as Texas and New Mexico (note the latter wac indicative of big time opposition, both in Philadelphia and New York), they still hover around that top rung when the chips are down.

So much for the competition. There has never been a more enthusiastic and co-operative following than those that are attending the Main Line field house this year, both among the general public and the student body, and note that the latter are not seated out of the league at 50 cents per head additional, but occupy their proper place in the sphere of college basketball, where organized college

"What Happened?"

Doubleheader Fadeout

Penn Takes Advantage

Mentzinger's Hand

By JIM HAUGHTON

A FEW editions ago one of Red Smith's pseudo-characters aswered the question "What happened to Villanova's basketball team?" with "It's doing all right, but they don't get much attention this year because they moved out of the major league. For when they pulled out of Convention Hall they moved out of Philly."

We hate to put a crimp in the character's dreams but it looks now if both Convention Hall double-headers and Philly will shortly fade out of the basketball horizon. For the crowds taking care of the pews have plenty of space to place their coats.

But let's answer the question with a few conjectures on the situation. Nothing has happened to the present edition of the Wildcats as no doubt many of their recent rivals will admit. As to moving out of the municipal playground, that brings with it a long tale.

Jim Haughton

For the past few semesters the local quintet journeyed into town every week or so to do battle with the "cream of the nation," as Mr. Claire Hare's publicity sheets call them. Only to be accompanied by some fifty to sixty students. The rest of the student body viewed the proceeding via the morning edition. With crowds ranging from four to seven thousand naturally the financial return for the locals should have been a bit flush. Alas, such was not the case. For they could do just as well entertaining in the campus cage house.

All this set the college authorities to thinking. Why, when the financial return is so low and so few students view the game, play in Convention Hall? Thus it was decided that the locals should gather together their retinue and hustle back to make themselves comfy in the local playground with a very nicely balanced bunch of playmates.

With the result that things have been coming along very well for all concerned. The enthusiasm for season ducats was amazing and while they don't bring large returns still the coffers get a start. Among the student new interest has been created with all the campus quarterbacks hieing themselves to the scene of the court pyrotechnics several times weekly.

But what does the future hold for Coach Al Severance's dream of a star-studded schedule as an attraction on the local acreage? In this writer's opinion double header ball in Philly is on it's tottering legs with only Temple Sophomore team, which our Frosh clipped, offering it any support. As to St. Joe's and LaSalle, well they'll have to wait for the Republicans if they can't get a grant off the Roosevelt Administration for new teams. Philadelphia fans who want good court encounters just won't go to see one good local team play, but want two good games. Thus Penn is taking advantage of the opportunity by booking several classy outfits.

As to the Garden double-headers, everybody knows New Yorkers like good basketball, get it and support it. But such is not the case in Quakertown. Even today the Hare-Irish dream is being punctured a bit by the N. C. A. A.'s plan of running a post season tournament with their own members. And so several leagues like the Big Ten are now planning to shy away from the double dessert court menu.

Whether or not Villanova authorities have taken the right step remains to be seen but with things going at their present clip all look fine for some banner years ahead on the home range.

Gadabout: Bob Mentzinger's bandaged hand is the result of finding Bill Duffy's scalp in the way during a recent spar session. X-rays will soon tell whether it's broken. Reds McGarey, campus sports sage, is inclined to believe the New Mexico Aggies flopped because they saw too much of the "big town" before instead of after the game.

cheering and activities have their rightful domain.

Whether accepted or not by those who believe that college activities can be conducted under the Barnum and Bailey pennants, it still remains a salient fact that college basketball is only a necessary part of the general collegiate atmosphere. Artificial inflation and exaggeration of its proper sphere can only weaken, and eventually destroy, this fine American winter sport. It is my hope that it will always remain first an integral part of college life and that the atmosphere surrounding it will be sincere and honest to the general public.

Albright

with plenty of fast action displayed the Reading group.

Led by Captain Steve Hydock, who was chosen for his steady and consistent performances, Albright has a startink squad composed of three New Jersey boys and an equal number from the Keystone state. McCrann, Czaikoski and Thorpe hail from across the border and in that trio lies the offensive punch, while Hydock, Petrucka, and McKinney, excel in the art of gathering in rebounds from the enemy backboard.

Blue Winner

Last winter, the P. M. C. team with a large group cadet adherents put the heat on for the Wildcats; It was only until the deciding minutes that the Blue found a way to stop the Cadet star, Rex Gardecki and go on to win 37-31.

Throughout the 1938-39 season the Cadets were victorious in six of their sixteen games which marked the inaugural for Coach Howard "Ziddie" Trautwein. Trautwein, a star in his days at Temple, is a Philadelphia product, attending Central High and graduating from Temple in 1929. Upon his graduation he turned to professional ball playing with the Old Jaspers and Wilkes Barre. With eleven years of coaching experience and playing of pro ball he came to PMC last season to take over the reins in the court sport. Trautwein is aided by Bob McNamara, former All-American guard at the university of Pennsylvania.

Four Veterans

Four veterans of last year's campaign return for the 1940 season and Coach Trautwein is faced with the prospects of completely rebuilding his varsity to face a tough 19-game schedule that started the first week in January and closes the first week in March.

The Cadet mentor will continue to rely upon his Allentown trio of veterans, Al Boandl, Inny Biasiotto and Willie Piff with Larry Miller, George Burton, Tommy Merendino and Bill Butts carrying the remainder of the burden.

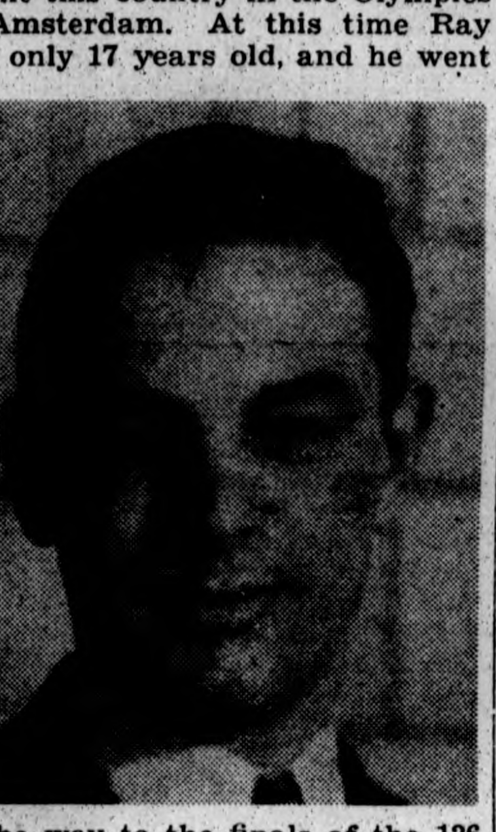
resent this country in the Olympics at Amsterdam. At this time Ray was only 17 years old, and he went all the way to the finals of the 126 lb. division.



On his return from Europe, Ray turned professional and, as already mentioned, after a successful career quit to get an education. As Ray expresses it, "I never had any intention of boxing for a living. It was only a means to an end."

Scholarship Offer

He was offered a scholarship to Temple high school by Earl Yeomans, present head of athletics at Temple University. Afterwards he went to Radnor high. During this time he held down the position of trainer for the German-American soccer team—1934-'35. Also in '34 through his friend Elmer A. Schroeder, president of the U. S. Football Association, he made his second trip to Europe as trainer of the All-American soccer team.

Our Main Line institution first laid eyes on Ray in 1936 when he came as boxing coach and athletic trainer. For a while he went to Villanova night school and then past three years he has turned out boxing teams of which the "Wildcats" may always be proud. He has been partly responsible for the success of such men as Tony Sala, Intercollegiate light - heavyweight champ three successive years, and Jonny Nojunas who last year fought in the Lithuanian Olympics. Ray also gives credit for the boxing successes to Bill Duffy, 145 pounder who has lost only one bout in three years, Eddie Kirk, and Bob Metzinger. Another job he has held for the past three years is that of trainer for the Eastern All-Star football team sponsored by the Philadelphia Inquirer.

No Plans

Ray has no definite plans for the future. He has received various offers from schools, clubs, and friends in business. One thing he will always have to fall back on besides his vast store of all-around knowledge and ability to fill many jobs is the coaching and teaching profession.

Ray has a particular hobby. It is people. This may seem strange to some, but when we consider the great number of people he has met through his many jobs and various travels we can easily see that it is a hobby well worth cultivating. Ray numbers among his friends many well known athletes and scholars. He says, "People have done so much for me and helped me in so many ways to achieve my ambition. That is why they are my hobby. I am grateful to these people and would like to do something for them and for others."

However, Austin tangled with Alumni and received their third defeat this half, while the Mendel Residents lost a heartbreaker to the Mendel Day Students. Alumni had a game on its hands the first half and only led at half time 14-10, but in the second half Austin folded up and Alumni won easily 35-27. Again in this game Brown led Alumni, getting 14 of his team's points, while Moore, Daly, and Halpin tallied six each for the last place Austinites.

However, the second game proved to be a thriller with the Mendel Day Students emerging victorious, 35-32. The commuters got away to a poor start in the first half and trailed 20-14, but the second was all theirs with Depersio and Dalina taking turns in scoring field goals. It was a hard clean game in which the lead changed hands several times and in which only six fouls were committed, five of which came in the heated second half. Heckler scored five and one for a total of eleven points to pace the losers but Depersio copped scoring honors for the week with 15 points; seven field goals and a foul.

LEHIGH VICTIM OF WILDCAT COURTMEN

Last Period Rally Puts Blue "In Van" With 49-40 Conquest

Traveling to Lehigh last Wednesday night, the Wildcat quintet stormed to its eighth victory of the season to the tune of 49 to 40.

A close battle all the way and with the lead changing hands several times, the Blue and White scored 20 points in the last eight minutes to blast the engineers from the undefeated ranks.

Throughout the fracas the spectators got a glimpse of some fancy shooting from the high-scoring twins of Villanova, Duke Duzminski and diminutive Mike Lazorchak, leading scorer of the Philadelphia district. The Duke led both teams with four field goals, while dropping seven fouls through the net for a grand total of 15 points. Right behind him was Mike with a five and one average, amounting to 11.

Brandt Leads

Brandt, Feucht, and Cox led the Lehighmen with 9, 8, and 7 respectively.

Previous to the encounter with the Wildcats, the Engineers had run up a string of six consecutive victories, and seemed certain of another until the waning minutes, when the Blue sharp shooters went to work.

Bombarding the nets from every conceivable angle, and being able to stay right up and there when things got hot kept the Wildcats from suffering a second setback. With Loyd Rice sparking the team they coasted to a nine point margin of victory.

INDOOR TENNIS LEAGUE

Several varsity tennis players are making up a team to play in the Philadelphia Inter-Club League. This league is made up of several tennis clubs from the Greater Philadelphia Area. The matches will be played at the Cheltenham Tennis club. All veterans from last year will play, plus several prospects for the varsity.

Duzminski Cuts Lazorchak Scoring Lead With Spree Against Lehigh

Still leading the Philadelphia district and his own team in points scored is Mike Lazorchak, sharpshooting forward. He's played in nine games, bucketing 40 field goalsand completing 18 foul shots.

Mike's side kick, Duke Duzminski again holds second place in both city and team activities. The Duke has gained one-fifth of a point on Mike in average points per game. Duzminski has hooped 35 field goals and 21 fouls for 91 points and an average of 10.1. Paul Nugent dropped .7 in his average only scoring 3 points during the week. His average is 7.7.

GEORGE DUZMINSKI

Chuck Yund remained stationary in position and average as Lloyd Rice displaced Garland for fifth place after once more returning to the line up, but Gerland still has scored more points since he has played in more games than Lloyd.

The statistics are as follows:

	Ga.	G.	F.	P.	Ave.
Lazorchak	9	40	18	98	10.9
Duzminski	9	35	21	91	10.1
Nugent	9	28	14	70	7.7
Yund	9	22	18	62	6.9

Juniors Play Regular

Of the three juniors on the present basketball squad, two have clinched varsity starting posts. Only Ernie Robinson has failed to break into the line-up at whistle-time so far. Paul Nugent and Chuck Yund, the other two '41 men, have played the majority of the time in all games thus far.

Cassions Sign Krutulis

Johnny Krutulis, '39, forward on last year's basketball five signed last Saturday to play with the Harrisburg Cassions, a leading up-state pro club. Krutulis assumed a starting post immediately after joining the Cassions.

Krutulis has been playing with Flinchburg, a professional five from near York, Pa. Last year John was known as the "steadiest" player on Al Severance's five.

NO INTRAMURALS

No Intramural Basketball games are to be played during the Examination or Retreat periods. After Thursday's games there will be no more until Tuesday, February 6.

Court Comment

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

With each passing week of the basketball season, followers of Villanova's court aggregation are acquainted with the fact that the Blue and White edition is still wandering around in the wilds of basketball. This is a result of not participating in double-header basketball under what is slowly becoming a three ring circus, as far as the Quaker City part of the show is concerned.

Some, who should know better, or at least can secure the information as to the reasons for the staging of the games on the home floor, evpress amazement that the "Wildcats" are not performing before a "family gathering" as noted from the opening paragraph of a story in a local paper.

Teams whose records to date indicate the calibre of basketball they are worthy of and who grace the "Wildcat" roster are given the silent treatment, or classed as not worthy of mention. However, if you will "look at the record" as the former Governor of New York would say, you will find that Wittenburg, Indiana, Ohio, Baltimore, Brown, and St. John's are giving a pretty good account of their activity, and though they may not carry such high sounding handles as Texas and New Mexico (note the latter wac indicative of big time opposition, both in Philadelphia and New York), they still hover around that top rung when the chips are down.

So much for the competition. There has never been a more enthusiastic and co-operative following than those that are attending the Main Line field house this year, both among the general public and the student body, and note that the latter are not seated out of the league at 50 cents per head additional, but occupy their proper place in the sphere of college basketball, where organized college

"What Happened?"

Doubleheader Fadeout

Penn Takes Advantage

Mentzinger's Hand

By JIM HAUGHTON

A FEW editions ago one of Red Smith's pseudo-characters aswered the question "What happened to Villanova's basketball team?" with "It's doing all right, but they don't get much attention this year because they moved out of the major league. For when they pulled out of Convention Hall they moved out of Philly."

We hate to put a crimp in the character's dreams but it looks now if both Convention Hall double-headers and Philly will shortly fade out of the basketball horizon. For the crowds taking care of the pews have plenty of space to place their coats.

But let's answer the question with a few conjectures on the situation. Nothing has happened to the present edition of the Wildcats as no doubt many of their recent rivals will admit. As to moving out of the municipal playground, that brings with it a long tale.

Jim Haughton

For the past few semesters the local quintet journeyed into town every week or so to do battle with the "cream of the nation," as Mr. Claire Hare's publicity sheets call them. Only to be accompanied by some fifty to sixty students. The rest of the student body viewed the proceeding via the morning edition. With crowds ranging from four to seven thousand naturally the financial return for the locals should have been a bit flush. Alas, such was not the case. For they could do just as well entertaining in the campus cage house.

All this set the college authorities to thinking. Why, when the financial return is so low and so few students view the game, play in Convention Hall? Thus it was decided that the locals should gather together their retinue and hustle back to make themselves comfy in the local playground with a very nicely balanced bunch of playmates.

With the result that things have been coming along very well for all concerned. The enthusiasm for season ducats was amazing and while they don't bring large returns still the coffers get a start. Among the student new interest has been created with all the campus quarterbacks hieing themselves to the scene of the court pyrotechnics several times weekly.

But what does the future hold for Coach Al Severance's dream of a star-studded schedule as an attraction on the local acreage? In this writer's opinion double header ball in Philly is on it's tottering legs with only Temple Sophomore team, which our Frosh clipped, offering it any support. As to St. Joe's and LaSalle, well they'll have to wait for the Republicans if they can't get a grant off the Roosevelt Administration for new teams. Philadelphia fans who want good court encounters just won't go to see one good local team play, but want two good games. Thus Penn is taking advantage of the opportunity by booking several classy outfits.

As to the Garden double-headers, everybody knows New Yorkers like good basketball, get it and support it. But such is not the case in Quakertown. Even today the Hare-Irish dream is being punctured a bit by the N. C. A. A.'s plan of running a post season tournament with their own members. And so several leagues like the Big Ten are now planning to shy away from the double dessert court menu.

Whether or not Villanova authorities have taken the right step remains to be seen but with things going at their present clip all look fine for some banner years ahead on the home range.

Gadabout: Bob Mentzinger's bandaged hand is the result of finding Bill Duffy's scalp in the way during a recent spar session. X-rays will soon tell whether it's broken. Reds McGarey, campus sports sage, is inclined to believe the New Mexico Aggies flopped because they saw too much of the "big town" before instead of after the game.

cheering and activities have their rightful domain.

Whether accepted or not by those who believe that college activities can be conducted under the Barnum and Bailey pennants, it still remains a salient fact that college basketball is only a necessary part of the general collegiate atmosphere. Artificial inflation and exaggeration of its proper sphere can only weaken, and eventually destroy, this fine American winter sport. It is my hope that it will always remain first an integral part of college life and that the atmosphere surrounding it will be sincere and honest to the general public.

with plenty of fast action displayed the Reading group.

Led by Captain Steve Hydock, who was chosen for his steady and consistent performances, Albright has a startink squad composed of three New Jersey boys and an equal number from the Keystone state. McCrann, Czaikoski and Thorpe hail from across the border and in that trio lies the offensive punch, while Hydock, Petrucka, and McKinney, excel in the art of gathering in rebounds from the enemy backboard.

Blue Winner

Last winter, the P. M. C. team with a large group cadet adherents put the heat on for the Wildcats; It was only until the deciding minutes that the Blue found a way to stop the Cadet star, Rex Gardecki and go on to win 37-31.

Throughout the 1938-39 season the Cadets were victorious in six of their sixteen games which marked the inaugural for Coach Howard "Ziddie" Trautwein. Trautwein, a star in his days at Temple, is a Philadelphia product, attending Central High and graduating from Temple in 1929. Upon his graduation he turned to professional ball playing with the Old Jaspers and Wilkes Barre. With eleven years of coaching experience and playing of pro ball he came to PMC last season to take over the reins in the court sport. Trautwein is aided by Bob McNamara, former All-American guard at the university of Pennsylvania.

Four Veterans

Four veterans of last year's campaign return for the 1940 season and Coach Trautwein is faced with the prospects of completely rebuilding his varsity to face a tough 19-game schedule that started the first week in January and closes the first week in March.

The Cadet mentor will continue to rely upon his Allentown trio of veterans, Al Boandl, Inny Biasiotto and Willie Piff with Larry Miller, George Burton, Tommy Merendino and Bill Butts carrying the remainder of the burden.

resent this country in the Olympics at Amsterdam. At this time Ray was only 17 years old, and he went all the way to the finals of the 126 lb. division.

On his return from Europe, Ray turned professional and, as already mentioned, after a successful career quit to get an education. As Ray expresses it, "I never had any intention of boxing for a living. It was only a means to an end."

Scholarship Offer

He was offered a scholarship to Temple high school by Earl Yeomans, present head of athletics at Temple University. Afterwards he went to Radnor high. During this time he held down the position of trainer for the German-American soccer team—1934-'35. Also in '34 through his friend Elmer A. Schroeder, president of the U. S. Football Association, he made his second trip to Europe as trainer of the All-American soccer team.

Our Main Line institution first laid eyes on Ray in 1936 when he came as boxing coach and athletic trainer. For a while he went to Villanova night school and then past three years he has turned out boxing teams of which the "Wildcats" may always be proud. He has been partly responsible for the success of such men as Tony Sala, Intercollegiate light - heavyweight champ three successive years, and Jonny Nojunas who last year fought in the Lithuanian Olympics. Ray also gives credit for the boxing successes to Bill Duffy, 145 pounder who has lost only one bout in three years, Eddie Kirk, and Bob Metzinger. Another job he has held for the past three years is that of trainer for the Eastern All-Star football team sponsored by the Philadelphia Inquirer.

No Plans

Ray has no definite plans for the future. He has received various offers from schools, clubs, and friends in business. One thing he will always have to fall back on besides his vast store of all-around knowledge and ability to fill many jobs is the coaching and teaching profession.

Ray has a particular hobby. It is people. This may seem strange to some, but when we consider the great number of people he has met through his many jobs and various travels we can easily see that it is a hobby well worth cultivating. Ray numbers among his friends many well known athletes and scholars. He says, "People have done so much for me and helped me in so many ways to achieve my ambition. That is why they are my hobby. I am grateful to these people and would like to do something for them and for others."

'WOODS HOLE' LAB SHOWN IN PICTURES

Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D., assistant professor of biology in the School of Science, showed the science students films connected with biological research taken at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., by him in collaboration with Rev. Francis W. Ludwig, O. S. A., M. A., at the last gathering of the Science Forum, held on Thursday, January 11.

Fr. Donnellon spoke to the group upon subjects of general interest concerning the laboratory that Villanova has established at Woods Hole, and other facts concerning the general nature of Woods Hole.

"Woods Hole is unique in that it is run by a group of biologists from the leading universities of the country for the purpose of fostering original research along biological lines." Fr. Donnellon states that the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole is the leading biological center of the world for original research. Two or three students have already expressed to Fr. Donnellon their desire to go there this summer.

The first of the films shown dealt with the life of the frog. The moving picture depicted the various stages of the frog's life and its habitat. Shown were the egg, the tadpole, and the adult stages, depicting perfectly the gradual transition from the egg to adult condition of the frog. The manner in which the frog ingests food was portrayed. The other film portrayed the life of the beetle. In this film, as in the first, all stages of the beetle, larva, pupa and adult, were indicated.

More than fifty pledges for Phi-Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, were initiated last night and then received into the fraternity at a banquet held in the college dining hall.

The ceremonies of the initiation started at 7:00 P. M. and continued for three hours, until the pledges had satisfied the fraternity of their deserving of membership.

EPSILON PHI THETA BEGINS SEASON

Arts Fraternity Receives Sophomore Pledges at Smoker January 19

Epsilon Phi Theta, revived fraternity of the combined School of Arts and Education, inaugurated its social activities for the ensuing year with a smoker in the Blue Room of the Field House on Friday evening, Jan. 19. On this occasion new members were received into the organization.

Initiation of the sophomore pledges, various forms of entertainment, and speeches constituted the program for the evening. Those received into the fraternity were: John P. Fullam, Gerard F. Belz, William E. Schubert, Philip Feenan, David F. Daly, John P. Maher, William J. Giel, Howard A. McCall, of the School of Arts; Thomas Harford, Arthur Connor, Thomas J. McKimmey, John J. Burke, of the education school.

Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the School of Arts, was the principal speaker of the evening. Following his discourse, he was received into the fraternity as an honorary member. Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Ph. D., moderator of the organization, and Mr. Fitzpatrick, superintendent of mails in the Philadelphia post office and father of Frank, pledge co-chairman, were the other speakers.

Following the initiation and speeches, the members retired to the boxing room, where William Duffy and Edward Kirk performed in a three-round exhibition bout. Next attraction on the bill was a wrestling match between "Ace" Parker, member of the freshman football team, and Ben Danik. Refreshments were served in the Blue Room at the termination of these contests, and this was the grand finale to the society's initial activity.

A program for the remainder of the year is being outlined, but as yet no definite information has been released.

President's Dinner Held February 25

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, will give his fifth annual dinner in honor of the leaders of the various student organizations Sunday, February 25, at 6:30 P. M., in his office.

The student leaders who are to be present are the chairman of the Student Council, J. Bradley McManus; the editor of the Belle Air, Edward L. Jonik; both the past editor of the VILLANOVAN, John J. Harrington, and the present editor, James P. Collins; Peter E. Hanlon, president of the senior class; Daniel J. Keating, president of the junior class; and Thomas J. McKimmey, president of the sophomore class.

This annual formal dinner gives to both president and students an opportunity to discuss problems common to both, and to offer mutual suggestions. The viewpoints of both the administration and the undergraduate are presented at the affair. In general, it promotes better understanding between faculty and student.

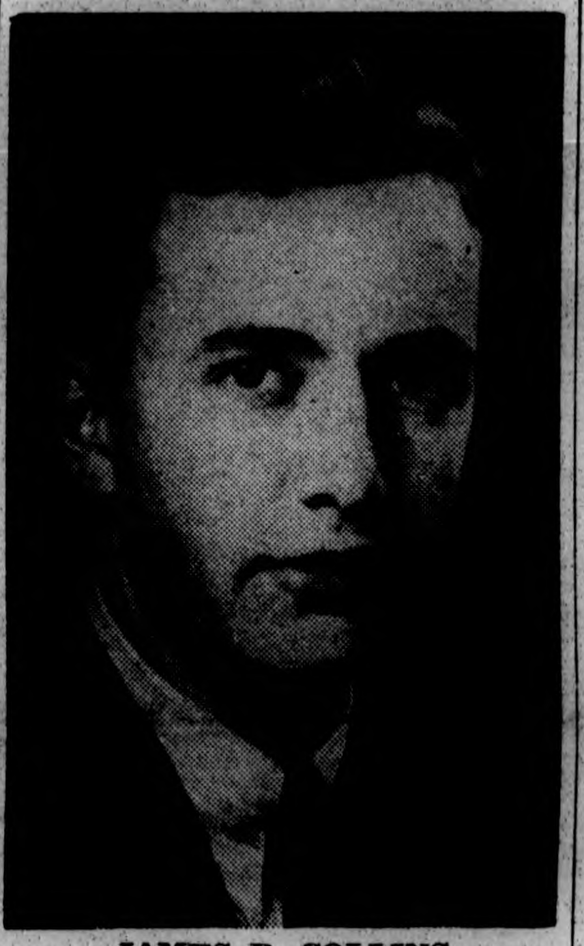
COLLINS NAMED AS DIRECTOR OF CLASS' ANNUAL FESTIVITIES

President Keating Chooses Artsman to Preside Over Traditional Junior Activities

OTHERS TO BE APPOINTED

By HOWARD A. McCALL

James P. Collins, Junior artsman, yesterday received the appointment of Chairman of Junior Week, according to an announcement made to the VILLANOVAN by Daniel J. Keating, president of the Class of 1941.



JAMES P. COLLINS

The chairmanship of Junior Week covers the supervision of all the activities of Junior Week. It is a position of advisory capacity and does not constitute any set commission. The chairman of Junior Week acts as a unifying agent to bring about harmony and avoidance of duplication in all the activities planned for this week of celebration.

Collins has been a popular figure on the campus for the past three years, and is well qualified to assume the position to which he has been appointed. He has been active in many extra-curricular activities and has held prominent posts in a number of them.

At present, he is the editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN, having received this position after three years of active service, one of which included his work as college editor of the publication. In his sophomore year he was a member of the Orientation Committee and a member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee. He commenced the same year to write for the Belle Air, and has continued his work on this staff this year. As a member of the Orientation Committee and a member of the Sophmittee and a member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee. As a member of the International Relations Club, Collins has represented Villanova College at Peace Conferences in New York

DRAMA SEMINAR STARTED

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., M. A. has announced that beginning this week he will direct a Belle Masque seminar to be held in Simpson Hall. Weekly meetings are scheduled to take place throughout the second semester.

The purpose of the Belle Masque seminar is to acquaint members with the dramas of the past and present by means of student readings.

TRIP ARRANGEMENTS

Harold F. Hartman, Ph. D., journeyed to Washington last week-end to arrange for a projected trip by his students in American Government and Constitutional Law to the Capital.

While there, Dr. Hartman made arrangements to have the group meet some high officials in the federal government.

DPE FRAT CHARTER FOUND BY ALUMNUS

Missing Document of C and F Organization and Minute Book Recovered

Found! A copy of the long sought constitution of Delta Pi Epsilon, fraternity of the School of Commerce and Finance.

George J. Flannery, Jr., junior commerce student, has found the missing document in the possession of Morris J. Doyle, '31. Doyle also gave him an excellent ledger with the name of the fraternity engraved in gold letters on the cover for the keeping of minutes. The alumnus purchased it himself several years ago for this purpose, but it was never used.

When agitation began this year for the revival of the organization, which had been inactive for eight years, it was pointed out by the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, vice-president, and moderator of the student council, that the old constitution should be found as a basis for maintaining the character of the fraternity. The constitution has been given to him for his approval.

At the meeting last Thursday, the following expressed their interest in the formation of a definite group to act in its revival: Seniors—Edward L. Jonik, J. Bradley McManus, Charles J. Volz, J. Beatty Schermerhorn, Gerald J. Lynam, Frank A. Pimpinella, John H. Lind, Victor I. Cook, Francix X. Connors, and Joseph J. York, Jr. Juniors — Frank J. Lombardo, George J. Flannery, Joseph A. Barnes, James T. McMenamin, Gordon J. Brosmer, Arthur S. Somers, Edward A. Eichman, and Paul D. Nugent. Sophomores — Robert J. McIntyre, William B. Carey, Walter J. Fox, and Raymond F. Garraty.

Their names have been presented to Fr. Albers for approval as charter members.

When the constitution and members have been officially approved, the fraternity will begin to plan its future activities.

Research Seminar To View Lab Film

First meeting of the Research Seminar of the new semester will be held tomorrow, February 7, at 4 o'clock, in Simpson Hall.

The program to be presented at the seminar will be led by Rev. Francis W. Ludwig, O. S. A., M. A., and will show motion pictures of the Marine Biological Laboratory at Wood's Hole, Massachusetts. Pictures of both the laboratories themselves and the type of work undertaken will be included.

Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D., moderator of the seminar, will endeavor to inaugurate a new program this semester. He will suggest a series of projects to the members interested in doing some research work. Ample opportunity will be afforded to all, and many lines of endeavor will be included in the projects.

All science students interested in the work are requested to attend the meeting.

MEETING TODAY

There will be a meeting of the VILLANOVAN news staff in room 119, Mendel Hall, today. The purpose of the meeting is to reorganize the news staff.

DRAMATIC DIRECTOR PICKS COHAN PLAY FOR BELLE MASQUE

"The Tavern" Selected for Annual Production; Candidates to Meet Today

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., director of the Belle Masque society, announced last Friday, February 2, that the society has selected "The Tavern," by George M. Cohan, as its annual production. The play, a mystery comedy, will be presented on April 17, 19 and 21.

First meeting of those who wish to take part in the drama will be held today at 3:00 P. M., in room 110, in Mendel hall. All candidates may attend the meeting. At this time an effort will be made by Mr. Frayne to acquaint the hopefuls with the theme and action of the play.

There are quite a few experienced men in the society to form a nucleus for the production. Joseph M. McNamara had a leading role in "Journey's End" and played in "Winterset." J. Bradley McManus had the leading role of "Captain Stanhope" in "Journey's End"; Robert B. O'Brien, Robert G. Wilderotter, and Murray P. Zealor will be remembered for their outstanding performances in the very dramatic play, "Winterset"; O'Brien, along with Joseph V. McCabe, also had a major role in last year's laugh sensation, "Room Service."

However, it is to be stressed that, in spite of any and all previous experience, all roles in "The Tavern" are wide open to all who wish to try for them.

The officers of the Belle Masque are rapidly getting things in shape for the annual play and are smoothing over the preliminary difficulties.

These directors are: Joseph M. McNamara, student director; business manager, Bradley McManus; stage manager, John T. Gallagher, and chief electrician, Robert Dooley.

Color, Design, Life Feature Belle Air

Jonik Announces That Work on Senior Section Is Almost Completed

"Work on the senior section of the Belle Air, college annual, is nearing completion, and this portion of the book gives all indications of being outstanding in color, design, and life," according to Edward Jonik, editor-in-chief of the book.

"Proofs are beginning to flow into the Belle Air office from the engraving company, and all received so far are of excellent caliber. Many innovations are being made in order to produce a book that will surpass even last year's fine edition.

"Students who did not pay for their Belle Air through their matriculation fee and those who desire to obtain special copies for parents and friends are again advised to place their orders at the Belle Air office before March 1, so that they may benefit by the special price of $5.00 per copy."

In addition to the fact that most of the work on the senior section has been completed, other sections of the annual are also shaping up quite well. Pictures of the varsity swimming and basketball teams and of the various intramural squads were taken last week. Most of the write-ups have been turned in, but the tedious task of revising this material still remains.

TO PHILOSOPHERS

John J. Cleary, Junior artsman, will be the speaker at the meeting of the philosophy seminar tomorrow at 1:15 P. M.

Read Catholic

FOR a number of years February has been utilized as "Catholic Press Month", and during this month, a nation-wide effort is exerted to extend the circulation and increase the influence of American Catholic periodicals. This classification includes reviews, newspapers, magazines, books, and pamphlets whose contents coincide with the objectives of our holy religion in seeking the salvation of souls and the advancement of the mission of Holy Mother Church, namely, the Christianization of society.

In 1921 the first National Catholic Press Month was observed, emphasiznig the power of the Catholic press as a potent instrument for the teaching of Christian ideals and calling upon Catholic men and women to join in the campaign to promote an interest and patronage in the Catholic press.

If the nation stressed the reception of the Catholic message of Christian fortitude and spiritual consolation then, surely we should embrace and cling to that same champion of Christian truth—the Catholic press—in a moment of dire need.

Today, propaganda, bigotry, scandal, and obscene literature are flooding our nation. Our countrymen need enlightenment, truth, and news that is free from the scourge of "yellow journalism."

Our secular press has increased its dispatches concerning religion and church, but their obvious lack of knowledge and sympathy in questions regarding Catholic background, history, and teachings leaves only distorted views. There is, it seems, a sole source for unbiased, complete, and concise records of events that effect the Catholic Church and Catholic thought. This source is the Catholic press.

In view of its importance upon our Catholic outlook, let us strive during this month to support and further its cause. Our support, however, must not be a mere expression of approval. It must be practical. The Catholic press requires the aid of a large reading public above all. We, as Catholic college students, have an opportunity to meet and alleviate this need—the Catholic press deserves and is entitled to this support. And, while it is true that the Catholic press needs our support, it is also evident that we need the support of the Catholic press.

Tomorrow — Ash Wednesday

LENT, the period of anticipation of the all-redeeming Crucifixion of the Saviour and of His glorious Resurrection, has been established by the Church as a period in which fitting preparation can be made for the events of Holy Week and Easter Sunday. During these forty days, all Catholics are expected to practice such self-denial as will indicate their sorrow for causing Christ's death on the Cross.

We Villanova students, having just concluded the inspiring exercise of the Annual Retreat, are particularly receptive to the spirit of the penitential season. The Sacraments, the conferences, and the religious atmosphere in general have combined to produce in all of us an effect that is truly heartening. The spiritual reawakening kindled in us puts us in the proper frame of mind and spirit for this all-important season of Lent.

So carry this fire of love for God over into Lent. Let all our thoughts, words, and actions be a preparation for the Redemption of mankind. Practice self-denial in a number of ways. Make good resolutions and keep them. In this way, the spirit of the Retreat will not die and Christ's sacrifice will be fittingly commemorated.

"Ambitious Caesar"

NO one will dispute the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has been one of our most individualistic presidents, and now it seems that, to make this individualism even more pronounced, he and his supporters are favoring his reelection for a third term contrary to a precedent which has been respected as unwritten law by his predecessors. Our present executive in some instances has implied that he is the only logical man for the White House in these troubled times, while many of his adherents express the opinion that it would be detrimental to the nation's welfare to change presidents, while actually they fear a collapse of New Deal policies.

We believe that if a democracy is not capable of producing more than one man for the position of chief executive of the land and that, if it must resort to keeping the same man in office for twelve years, it is not really functioning according to the real democratic principles protected by our constitution. There would result the possibility of placing unwarranted powers in the hands of an individual, possibly leading to the adoption of dictatorial measures if the occasion demanded.

If only to eliminate this possibility were the sole argument of the contra-third-term faction, it is a weighty one and demands much consideraion.

Support Needed To Cull Fruits of Catholic Press

Diocesan Weekly Supplements Work of Daily Newspaper

By REV. THOMAS A. KILEY, O. S. A., M. A.
Associate Professor, Classics

THE CATHOLIC bishops of this country have set aside the month of February for an urgent appeal to their people on behalf of the Catholic papers that are published in their dioceses. There is nothing more discouraging than the attitude of Catholic people toward their weekly Catholic papers. Only a very small number of Catholics read the diocesan paper. This is not due to the fact that the larger number are careless and lukewarm in religious matters and do not relish Catholic reading, but to the fact that they have a wrong conception of the purposes of a Catholic paper.

Value of Daily Paper

The purpose of the Catholic paper is not to supplant the daily paper. The daily paper has many valued features that provide us with important information on government, science, education, literature, protection of property, fire prevention, social welfare, care of children, shopping, fashion, and sports.

The Church recognizes the daily paper as a reliable source of useful information that contributes much to the material happiness and prosperity of the community, but it likewise recognizes the fact that this same newspaper is often unreliable and misinformed, if not in fact a biased reporter, of Catholic belief and practice.

Again, the daily paper gives a wrong impression of the teachings of the Church, particularly in regard to the sanctity of the married state, birth control, divorce, and teaching sex matters to the young. By over-emphasizing the conjugal infidelities of prominent people of the stage and screen and by dramatizing the criminal activities of lawbreakers in screaming headlines and sensational picturization, the daily paper likewise contributes largely to our wholesale and unrestrained violation of the law of God and man.

Used to Supplement

The purpose of the Catholic paper, then, is to supplement the work of the daily newspaper. It must furnish information that is not available to the daily papers, viz., information dealing with the establishment of new parishes, new legislation on the administration of the sacraments, particularly the sacrament of matrimony, conditions for making new indulgences, and pontifical documents from the Holy Father.

The first function of the Catholic paper is to explain the doctrines of the Church, to condemn the teaching and writings of all those who attack these doctrines, and to answer all objections proposed by the enemies of the Church. It must ever be on the watch for any misstatement of the Church's doctrines in the daily papers and take immediate steps to correct it. It must also exercise a strict censorship over all best-sellers to see that they do not contain any suggestive passages and dangerous situations that may prove occasions of sin to the young and innocent. It must likewise keep a vigilant eye on all stage and screen shows for any scenes that make a mockery of religion, scandalize the young, ridicule Catholic devotion, and attack the sanctity of the home. It must, too, study most carefully all legislation in Congress and state legislatures that no law be passed that threatens the life of our schools and institutions of charity, that no law be passed that makes legal the distribution of literature for the advance of birth control, that no law be enacted to make our young children subject to a bureau of education as proposed by a number of states, and that no legislation be enacted into law that destroys the sanctity of the Catholic home and the indissoluble nature of Christian marriage.

Graduated from Villanova College in 1906 with degree of Bachelor of Arts; received M. A. at Villanova in 1908. Has been stationed here from 1914-1921 and from 1932 onward.

Catholic Paper Successes

During the past 25 years, various organizations and legislative bodies have attacked the Catholic parochial schools. These attacks, principally those in Oregon and Michigan, were defeated by an ever-alert and resourceful Catholic press. The Child Labor Amendment was defeated largely by Catholic opposition organized and strengthened by a uniform and effective press. The recent successful campaign of the Legion of Decency to purify the movies of indecent and suggestive films was made possible by the crusade launched against all indecent shows by the bishops of the country through the columns of the Catholic papers.

Besides reforming the movies, this campaign of the Legion of Decency has aroused in the minds of

SINCE the last appearance of this "mouth organ," examinations have been taken, but not forgotten, and the Annual Retreat has once again set us on the right course for the coming year. As a result, there is a decided dearth of "dirt," which is remarkable but, none the less, a sign that when serious things are in order the boys actually do get down to business. However. . . .

"BUD" CONNOLLY is creating quite a bit of excitement with his latest dance fashion. It appears to be a mixture of several known steps, shaken well and served anywhere there happens to be the sound of music. So original is the terpsichore (dancing to youse guys) that one of his partners just stood in the middle of the floor watching while he put on a "solo."

* * *

The latest edition of the Rosemont "Rambler" contains in the column headed "The Magpie" this little note which is worthy of repetition; I quote: "Everything appears just too "lovely" for words to a certain young lady whose initials are M. K."—Could it be that they were making reference to our own Jack Gallagher ? ? ?

The following interview is one that should interest many— Question: Now, as I understand it, Mr. Grunmp, you are what is called a cigarette moocher.

Answer: Yeah! I don't never buy any.

Question: How do you operate Mr. Grump? Do you just ask people for cigarettes?

Answer: Nope, that's just bumming. I mooch 'em. I use psychology. Suppose I see a guy take out a pack. I say, "Boy, that reminds me, I'm fresh out of cigarettes." The other guy nearly always says, "Won't you have one of mine?"

Question: But suppose he doesn't?

Answer: Well, if the guy is tough I work the decoy package trick on him. As soon as he lights up, I pull out an empty package and look surprised when I see nothing in it after feeling around with my finger. Then I say, "Well, by golly, I thought I had one, but I guess somebody else got it before I did."

Question: And if that doesn't work?

Answer: Then I give him the works. I take out a cigarette of my own and drop it on the floor.

Question: You mean you actually have a cigarette of your own?

Answer: Yes, but I only have to carry one and I can use that plenty of times. I never smoke it. I just drop it on the floor and say, "Doggone it there goes my last cigarette." Then the other guy offers me one of his and, when he ain't looking, I pick up mine to use on the next guy!

The sartorial perfection found in Joe Connors is reaching newer and greater heights. The mighty mite of gas is appearing in class dressed to "kill" in skating cap with ear muffs attached. Really very cute.

Doleur D'Amour

By Joseph M. Gambescia

The heart that's torn asunder,
By blows dealt out by love,
Such heart is ever blest,
By He who rules above.

The heart that bears its scars,
In silent agony,
And hides its painful wounds,
Garnered by tragedy;

The heart that sheds a bitter tear,
The heart that's steeped in woe,
The heart that cries in silent anguish,
Ensnared by love's sorrow.

The heart that carries wounds,
Inflicted there by love,
Each wound is then a token,
A medallion of love.

Each wound tells its story,
Of love's vicissitude,
Each scar bears testimony,
Of the love that it pursued.

Though this life may furnish not,
A balm to ease its pain,
Such heart will find, in world to come,
It has not loved in vain.

John A. Heck Rounds Out SeniorEngineer's Busy Life; Sports, Fraternities, Et Al, Help To Pass Spare Time

By FRANK MAMBRETTI

"Listen, kid, get me at least 15 inches on this guy and make sure it's good stuff—or else. . .". These charming words came from the College Editor of this local campus sheet.

So, with shivering thoughts of that threatening "or else" lingering in mind, yours truly hopped the trusty typewriter carriage and went in search of the man of this edition. With a hop, skip, and a trip. My trusty steed and I slid down the corridors and stairs of Mendel Hall till we came to those mysterious rooms where the future engineers of the country learn which end of a machine bites.

Victim Discovered

There entrenched behind a lathe, we find six feet, one hundred and seventy-five pounds of curly headed engineer, the VILLANOVAN'S "Man of the Week."

As we stand there, seeking an opportunity to speak, the scene gradually dissolves. We are taken back to the night of June 11, 1918, to a home in the eastern part of Philadelphia. . .

The door bell rang furiously, "brring, brring." The gentleman stirred uneasily in his easy chair. He mumbled something which sounded vaguely like, "doggone, I wonder who is ringing the bell at this time of the night?" He arose to answer the summons of the bell which continued to ring until the door was opened.

Package Delivered

Standing outside was a tall long-legged, long-nosed individual who greeted him politely. The fellow had on a uniform, the cap of which indicated that he was a special delivery messenger.

Reaching into an inner pocket, the chap withdrew a delivery book. He thumbed through it until he reached the page for which he was searching and handed it to the gentleman, requesting the latter to sign on the dotted line. Not having ordered anything from Sears, Roebuck and Co. naturally the gentleman was a bit puzzled and read over the delivery slip.

Scene Changes

This is what he saw: "One bundle from heaven for delivery at 958 N. 5th St., Phila., Pa." Signing the slip and returning the book to the messenger, he promptly received the package which, by this time, was raising an awful rumpus.

Hurrying inside again, the gentleman called the members of his family together. After much fumbling the package was finally opened to reveal the noisemaker, a pink-toed, rosy-cheeked, young fellow who was mighty displeased with being started at.

The scene fades. Builds into a shot of a school building.

It is St. Peter's Grammar School in Philly. And lo! there is the pink-cheeked lad whom we saw in the previous scene, entering the building.

Again the scene fades. It builds to a picture of the "bundle from heaven" going to St. Joseph's Prep in Philly.

Enters Villanova

Another fade-out. This time we focus on Villanova College. There we see our young hero, rapidly approaching manhood, entering the School of Engineering in the fall of 1936.

There, due to the tremendous amount of time which all engineers are noted as having, he joins Phi Kappa Pi and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Elected A.S.M.E. President

Besides playing basketball and engaging in the fine art of bowling for PKP, he also tok time off to become secretary of the local chapter of the A.S.M.E. in his junior year. Deciding, however, that that did not consume enough of his time, he became president of the A.S.M.E. in his senior year, besides showing that engineers can compete with politicians by assuming the vice-presidency of the senior class.

The final fadeout.

We find our tongue and begin to speak, asking question after question, that we may be able to humbly introduce to you—the VILLANOVAN'S "Man of the Week"—John A. Heck, vice-president of the senior class, president of the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and everybody's friend.

Secretary Of Athletics, Bob Whelan, Manages Equipment, Maps All Trips

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

ONE of the important personages in the college athletic activities is Robert Whelan, Secretary of Athletics, more familiarly known as just plain "Bob."

Bob is one of the most amiable and friendly men, as well as one of the busiest, to be found around the Villanova campus. No sooner is one in his presence than he instantly feels at ease and senses the friendly atmosphere that is such an intimate part of Bob. The fact that he is not a Villanova alumnus does not detract in the least from the fact that, from top to bottom, Bob is Villanovan and all that being Villanovan implies.

Diversified Duties

Bob's position as Secretary of Athletics calls for diversified duties, not the least among which is the planning of trips for the various teams. He is the man responsible for the fine accommodations afforded the teams in hotels. He is the person who keeps watch on the time tables. Another all-important duty of his is that of keeping an eagle eye on the menus served to the players in the hotels, for football team, similar to an army, travels to a great extent, on its stomach. As a side line, Bob takes care of the team's luggage.

According to him, "My most memorable trip with the team was the California trip of '37, when the undefeated Wildcats clawed a spunky Loyola team to the tune of 25-7."

Here at Villanova, in addition to his regular routine office duties, he takes care of all ticket sales. His pet peeve is the "screwball" who comes around the day before, or the morning of, the Temple-Villanova game and expects to get seats on the 50 yard line. And, speaking of Temple games, his biggest thrill came when the 'Cats of '35 pulled the "Merriwell" stunt and beat Temple 21-14 in the waning minutes of play.

"Up From the Banks"

I suppose we'll all agree that this comprises a pretty hectic life, but it wasn't always this way, for some ten years ago he was whiling away his time as a teller in a bank. He had more times than not to devote to his hobbies of reading and music. He reads no particular type of literature, but "steers clear of that two-gun stuff about cowboys and injuns." Tschaikowsky's first symphony is his favorite composition, although he gets a big kick out of watching the jitterbugs "in the groove." He admits, however, that the latter doesn't speak too highly of the mental capacity of the younger generation.

In addition to these duties, sports, of a necessity, hold his attention to a considerable extent, and he is particularly pleased with the Villanova football schedule for '40. He is certain that this year the team will again show the country that they are "the real McCoy."

Still a Bachelor

By fair or foul means, Bob has been able to avoid the wiles and beguiling charms of the opposite sex; thus he remains an eligible bachelor—very eligible. However, his nonchalant attitude towards the matter may soon be disrupted since this is leap year.

Well, reams and reams could be written about Bob, and, in all that, the essential points, points which one can only discern and appreciate when they came in actual contact with him, would still be missed. So listen! To anyone who, if possible, hasn't met him! Next time you're down the Field House way, just drop in and say "hello." He'll be glad to see you and he'll give you the Villanova "hello" — you'll like him a lot. Don't say we didn't tell you.

KELLY PLANS DISCUSSIONS BY JUNIOR AIEE MEMBERS

Schedule of Field Trips for Second Semester Released by Raney

Walter E. Kelly, president of the local branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, has announced his plans to have each junior in the society give a talk at the meeting on some current topic in the engineering field.

John J. Raney has announced a schedule of educational trips for the second semester, among which are included visits to the following: Automatic Telephone Exchange; Pennsylvania R. R. sub-station; W. C. A. U. transmitter and studio; Leeds and Northrup Co., and Philadelphia Electric Co. power station.

EDITORIAL COMMENT—This is not original, but it certainly seems to deserve publicity—Fraternities seem to be playing a moreprominent part in the extra curricular program here at Villanova these days and we hope that they will continue to prosper. But the time seem to be ripe for some inter-fraternity competition. How about having a definite schedule of inter-frat contests in such sports as basketball, softball, etc.? There have been a number of intra-fraternity activities of this sort (plans for a bowling league are underway now) going on for some time, but these do not stir up the keen spirit of competition or do they merit the publicity which contests between the various frats should demand. It seems to us that fraternities have a definite place in the college program, provided that they don't overstep their bounds, and that the spirit of fraternalism should be boosted whenever pôssible.

Gone but not forgotten—the mid year exams have probably caused more than one nightmare during the past few weeks (assuming that some lucky students were able to sleep at all) and, from a recent issue of the Acquinas, we quote this reverie:

A "B" whose soft round form

Upon the records of the blest;
A "D" comes easily, and yet
It's not so easy to forget

Efficiency on the job—Engineering students at the University of Michigan have a plan which they think will simplify the telling of jokes in class by the various professors concerned; the plan is to prepare a list classifying and numbering all wise-cracks and jokes used by the various professors in their efforts to add humor to their classes. One of the principal advantages to this arrangement would be the time saved by having a prof just refer his class to the page and number of a particular joke when the proper moment arrives.

Prosperity apparently has returned to some people, as shown by the receipts of the University of Michigan during the last fiscal year; they amounted to approximately $12,000,000. Who said education doesn't pay?

From the Auburn Plainsmen we take the following very interesting (to Villanovans) quotation—"Negotiations are under way to add an 11th game to Auburn's already tough schedule next fall. ALFRED BONGIOVANNI

A question he asked me,
I knew not the answer,
I stood there and thought but in vain.
I stared at him sadly,
He paid no attention,
But asked me the question again.

With full concentration,
I sought the solution,
Confusedly heaving a sigh,
With pleading grimaces,
I gazed at my neighbors,
But they knew no more than did I.

I now was quite frantic,
For truly I'd studied,
I thought that I knew it quite well,
Then, hail, to the rescue!
At that very instant,
A sound pierced the air, 'twas the bell.

'ENGINEER' APPEARS; PHOTOGRAMMETRY A HIGHLIGHT OF ISSUE

Articles on Plastic Industry and Welding Also Feature December Number

Featured by articles on plastics, aerial photography, and welding, the December issue of the "Villanova Engineer" was distributed last week.

C. Eric Storms, of the class of '34, writes on photogrammetry, the science of measurement from photographs, in his article on "Aerial Photography." Mr. Storms gives in detail the process of changing photographs from a comic projection to an orthographic projection. He also explains the method of determining the different elevations from photographs and drawing the respective contours.

An article entitled "The Plastic Industry," by Daniel J. Troy, senior chemical engineer, deals with the development of the plastic industry from its birth in the Civil War period to the present day. The author, coming out with an astonishing statement, claims "competent authority states that in the not-too-distant future all-plastic automobile bodies may be produced in less than eight minutes."

Mr. William M. Gorman, Instructor in the School of Engineering, has written an article on the principles and application of oxy-acetylene welding. Besides a few hints on the welding of steel, cast-iron, aluminum, and bronze, he gives the history and new developments of the modern "blacksmithing."

In answer to the demand of his mathematically-minded friends, Emil Ameloti, M. S. begins a mathematical "teaser" column. Each months, problems of varied interest will be printed. The best solution to the problems will be published in the following issue; a prize is offered for the one who has the most solutions thus published.

Commenting on the principle of safety in his column, the editor of the "Engineer" suggests that the engineers discuss a hazard on our own campus. This menace to safety, the highway crossing at the entrance to the grounds opposite the P. and W. Railway station, can be eliminated by "just an ordinary traffic light." The editor says that "the time to think of these safety measures is before any serious accident occurs and not after, when the damage has been done.

Catholics an awakening of their social consciousness and has created a strong Catholic public opinion in this country. If our Catholic people are to have a prominent part in the making of this country, they must realize that they are not merely American citizens, but Catholic American citizens, and, as such, have a loftier philosophy of life and a higher conception of the duties of citizenship than the large majority of American citizens who do not belong to the Church of Christ. This more noble view of life that the wonderful gift of faith has implanted in our souls must be visibly reflected in our home life, in our business and social life, and in the fulfillment of our duties of citizenship.

Catholics Are Citizens

All our fellow-citizens must recognize that we are citizens who perform our duties of citizens not only for the enjoyment of the privileges of citizenship, but also because our religion demands that we be good citizens. They must understand that we recognize religion as the most important factor in our daily lives, that it is the underlying motive of our dealings in business, society, marriage, politics, and education; that we are, by the dictates of our conscience, the first defenders of the integrity of the nation, because respect for all civil authority is the cornerstone of all our relations with God and man.

The greatness of our faith places upon us heavy and solemn responsibilities that must be borne with faith and courage. Life means something more to us than a successful marriage, a prosperous business, and social advantage. We must fulfill all the duties of this life that we may save our souls — that we may have a home in heaven, not made by hands, eternal with God.

To accomplish this, we must be ever alive to the responsibilities of this life and never allow our faith to be tarnished by indifference and disobedience to the laws of God and man. The most effective means of performing all that our faith requires is the Catholic paper, which will bring to our door every weekend the consciousness that we belong to the household of the faith and that we must ever be ready to give a reason for the faith that is in us.

Alumni Secretary Lauds Local Club

Commends Philadelphia Organization on Dinner Tendered Football Team

Commenting on the 18th Annual Football Dinner sponsored by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia on Jan. 17, William G. Slaughter, secretary-treasurer of the National Alumni Association, was very complimentary in his remarks on the spirit with which the local club feted the college team and coaches.

He went on further to state, "It is through vigorous local units that our national organization derives its strength. In as much as the hard workers for our alumni receive little enough recognition, the practice inaugurated by the Philadelphia club of awarding a trophy annually to the alumnus considered to have done the most for Villanova during the last year is a particularly thoughtful gesture, one that reflects credit on alumni of the Philadelphia area."

The award referred to is the Loyalty Trophy, the recipient of which must have been an alumnus for at least 15 years. The selection is made by a committee of former winners, the man who has received the honor the preceding year being chairman. This year's award went to Cyril J. Burke, '17, of Detroit.

Washington Branch Holds Celebration

Severance and Slaughter Address Group on Athletics and Alumni Loyalty

The Washington Club of the Villanova Alumni Association held a dinner at the Hayes-Adams Hotel in Washington on the night of January 31. The principal speakers at the affair were Al Severance, basketball coach at Villanova College, and Mr. William G. Slaughter, Secretary of the Alumni Association.

Mr. Severance spoke to the gathering of approximately thirty-five members on the topic "Athletics and the Alumni," making particular reference to, and using examples from, basketball. Mr. Slaughter followed this speech by discussing the question of Alumni loyalty.

At the conclusion of the speeches, the chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, Mr. John Kelly, '30, expressed the desire of the club to begin action on a scholarship fund similar to that which the New York Club is establishing.

Other members of the Committee on Arrangements include: Charles Nowel, '35, former varsity center, William Ritter, '32, Joseph McHenry, '27, and Joseph McMenamin, '30.

Requiem Mass For Deceased Alumnus

A Pontifical Mass of requiem for the Rev. William Howard, pastor of St. Peter's Church, Elizabethtown, Pa., and a Villanova College alumnus, who died on Dec. 27, 1939, was attended by the Very Rev. W. Deacy, O. S. A., Prior of St. Mary's Hall, and Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the School of Science, Saturday, Dec. 30. The Mass was held at his own parish and burial was at Bryn Mawr.

Father Howard was a native of Haverford; he died at Bryn Mawr, where he was spending the holidays with his sister.

Upon his graduation from Villanova at the turn of the century Fr. Howard entered Niagara Seminary. Following his ordination in 1904, he served at parishes in Mt. Carmel, Middletown, Midway, Paradise, Fairfield, Hanover, York, Lancaster, and Orrtanna. Through his efforts, the rectory and hall at Orrtanna, and a parochial school at Hanover were built

SCHOLARSHIP FUND BEGUN BY NEW YORK CITY GROUP

A fashion show and card party was recently held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City by the New York branch of the Villanova Alumni Association for the purpose of establishing a scholarship fund.

The proceeds of scholarship fund, which is to amount to one thousand dollars, will be awarded to a boy from New York City who meets the four basic qualifications. He must: have an "A" scholastic standing; be a scholar; be an athlete; and, lastly, be a gentleman.

Personnel Bureau Begins Registration

Mr. William G. Slaughter, director of the Villanova Personnel Bureau, has announced that those seniors who wish to register with the Bureau will find application forms available in Room 120, Mendel Hall, at any time after today.

Mr. Slaughter has also announced that several companies have already requested the opportunity to interview seniors. Among these, representatives of the Proctor and Gamble Distributing Company and the Burroughs Business Machine Company have announced that they will probably be here to hold these interviews in about a month.

For this reason, he has requested that all seniors who wish to register do so as soon as possible.

HONOR ROLLS

Honor rolls for the four schools of Villanova have not yet been compiled, due to the fact that many of the marks are not yet in the deans' possession. As soon as these ratings have been made up, they will be released.

Fr. Suarez Talks On Augustinians' Importance In Philippine Islands

Address Before Spanish Club Stresses Society's Erecting Foundations of Educational and Evangelical Work Among Natives

By THOMAS A. SULLIVAN

"We could hardly understand the history of the Philippine Islands without knowing the history of the Spanish Augustinian priests," the Rev. Restituto Suarez, O. S. A., told the members of the Spanish Club during his address, in Spanish, on "The Philippine Islands" at the last meeting of the club in Mendel hall.

The Philippine Islands were first discovered by Magellan in 1521. Several years later Philip II. of Spain sent out an expedition to conquer and colonize the Islands. This was accomplished in 1565 by a group under the leadership of Miguel de Legazpi and the Spanish Augustinian, Father Andres Urdaneta, O. S. A. Father Urdaneta, one of the greatest navigators, mathematicians, and astronomers of his era, was accompanied on this expedition by four other Augustinian priests, according to Father Suarez. These priests immediately began to sow the seed of their educational and evangelical work among the natives and, since that time, the great influence of the Augustinians on the civilization of the Philippines has never been interrupted.

"Although Spain has been reduced to a small country, territorially speaking, she is, nevertheless, the mother of twenty-two nations where the Spanish language is still spoken. It is because the spirit of the mother country is still alive that Spain is great and the traces of its civilization and culture cannot perish from the soul of these nations," Father Suarez stated.

He continued by pointing out that the Philippines are an enduring example of this Spanish heritage.

He also stressed the panoramic aspect of the Islands and described the Philippines as a beautiful and rich country. He spoke at length of Manila, which has been called "The Oriental Jewel," because of its enchanting location.

Father Suarez added that "even though the Philippines are wealthy in all kinds of minerals and are abundant in raw materials, the Islands are still greatly in need of industrialization. An attempt is now being made to overcome this great handicap to their progress.

"It is because of this problem that I am glad to tell you that, in response to popular demand, our College of Floilo has already announced a new course in Industrial Chemistry, which is to start next June."

Rev. Restituto Suarez, O. S. A., concluded his illuminating speech on the Philippines by congratulating all the members of the Spanish Club for their great interest in the culture and literature of Spain and the Spanish speaking countries.

Chaplain Pleased Both With Religious Exercise and Revived Annual Survey

At the conclusion of the Annual Retreat last Friday morning, February 2, with Mass, Communion, the Papal Blessing, and breakfast, Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., Chaplain, commented upon its success.

"Throughout my experience, it has been the best retreat ever held at Villanova, cooperatively speaking. Everyone appeared to be in the spirit of the purpose of the retreat and all the students seemed to be mindful of the spiritual benefits that could be derived from their promptness and attention.

"Particularly encouraging was the collective response to the Religious Survey, revived this year. Although the majority have complied with the purpose of the questionnaire, those who have not as yet filled them out are kindly asked to do so and return the same to the Chaplain's office, room 221, Mendel hall.

"All that remains is the compiling of the results of the survey in order to discover ways of improving the religious program at Villanova for the benefit of the students.

In the names of Rev. Joseph E. Heney, O. S. A., and Rev. Charles J. McCarron, O. S. A., retreat-masters, I wish to thank the students and all who contributed to the success of the retreat."

SHARPSHOOTERS

The VILLANOVAN basketball squad, temporarily inactive due to examinations and the Annual Retreat, will resume practice this week. The first game for the staff members will probably be a game between the college staff and the sports staff. Because of their superior numbers, the former are favored to win.

MAHER, EWELL TO RENEW RIVALRY IN 50 - YARD DASH

Record - Breakers Matched Again in Convention Hall Pre-Olympic Meet

RELAY TEAM TO COMPETE

By BILL CAREY

Renewing his duel with Barney Ewell, Johnny Maher leads the Villanova entry list in the Third Annual Penn A. C. indoor track meet at Convention Hall (Philadelphia), this Friday night.

It was in this meet last year that Johnny pushed the Penn State flash to a new world's record in the 50-yard dash. Accompanying Maher will be his teammate Whitey Urbellis.

MANY THREATS

But Ewell is only one of the threats that these two men will have to worry about. A brilliant field is made up of such men as Eddie Junghans, sensational U. of P. sophomore; Eulace Peacock, former Temple star who seems to be running in his 1937 form, and George Kroupa, another Penn luminary.

Entered also for Villanova are the veterans Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew with Pete Yankauskas, Jimmy Brady, Legs Shedlosky, Charley Jones, Bill Garey and Stan Nazian.

RELAY TEST

The mile relay team will face a real test in the competition offered them by Temple, Seton Hall, and Penn State. Running on this quartet will be Bellew, Guiteras, and Yankauskas with Shedlosky or Brady. The latter two have been waging a dog fight for this fourth position and plan to keep this up in order to get that all inviting position.

Coming into the hurdles we find Bill Carey and Stan Nazian who will line up against a top notch field. They will buck such men as Don Kinzel, formerly of Duke, Miller Frazier, last year's captain of Penn State, Jimmy Smith, College record-holder at Temple and Thatcher Longstreth of Princeton.

The Wildcats will probably be represented in the high jump by Charley Jones and John Parsons who will match leaps with Ed Gordon, Jim Coughlin, Dick Smith and Dick Alexander. Alexander inci-

DIAMOND SCHEDULE RELEASED

UPSALA COLLEGIANS TO TEST BLUE FIVE IN VILLANOVA GYM

Western Maryland Cat Foe Saturday Night at Westminster

By JOCK MAUCH

On Thursday night the "Wildcat" five will play host to the Upsala College quintet from East Orange, N. J., and then on Saturday they will trip over the Mason-Dixon Line for a return engagement with the "Green Terrors" of Western Maryland.

Little is known of the Upsala quintet but their schedule shows that they will have their hands full during the whole season. One of the numerous powerful small college outfits, the Upsala five will undoubtedly give Severance's five something to worry about.

The Western Maryland team, its ranks depleted by graduation, that age-old enemy of collegiate sports, and with only two seniors on the whole squad, has had to rely on new and inexperienced men; but during the season these men have tasted much competition in skirmishes with such quintets as Georgetown, Loyola, and Baltimore U.

Since their defeat at the hands of the "Wildcats" earlier in the season, a 6 ft. 2 in. freshman has crashed the line-up at center, moving Bob Faw, former center, into a forward position. This adds height to the line-up. Faw pairs off with speedy Don Honeman, a Junior like himself.

The biggest threat on the squad is Captain Bob Stropp, six foot, one inch senior guard, who was also football captain last fall. He is a crack shot from any angle and was high scorer last season. Holding down the other guard position is Irv Biasi, sophomore, a fine outside shot.

The reserves include Knepp, six foot junior, and a pair of sophomores, Evans and Bricker, star of last year's freshman team.

Cat Surge Beats Friar Quintet

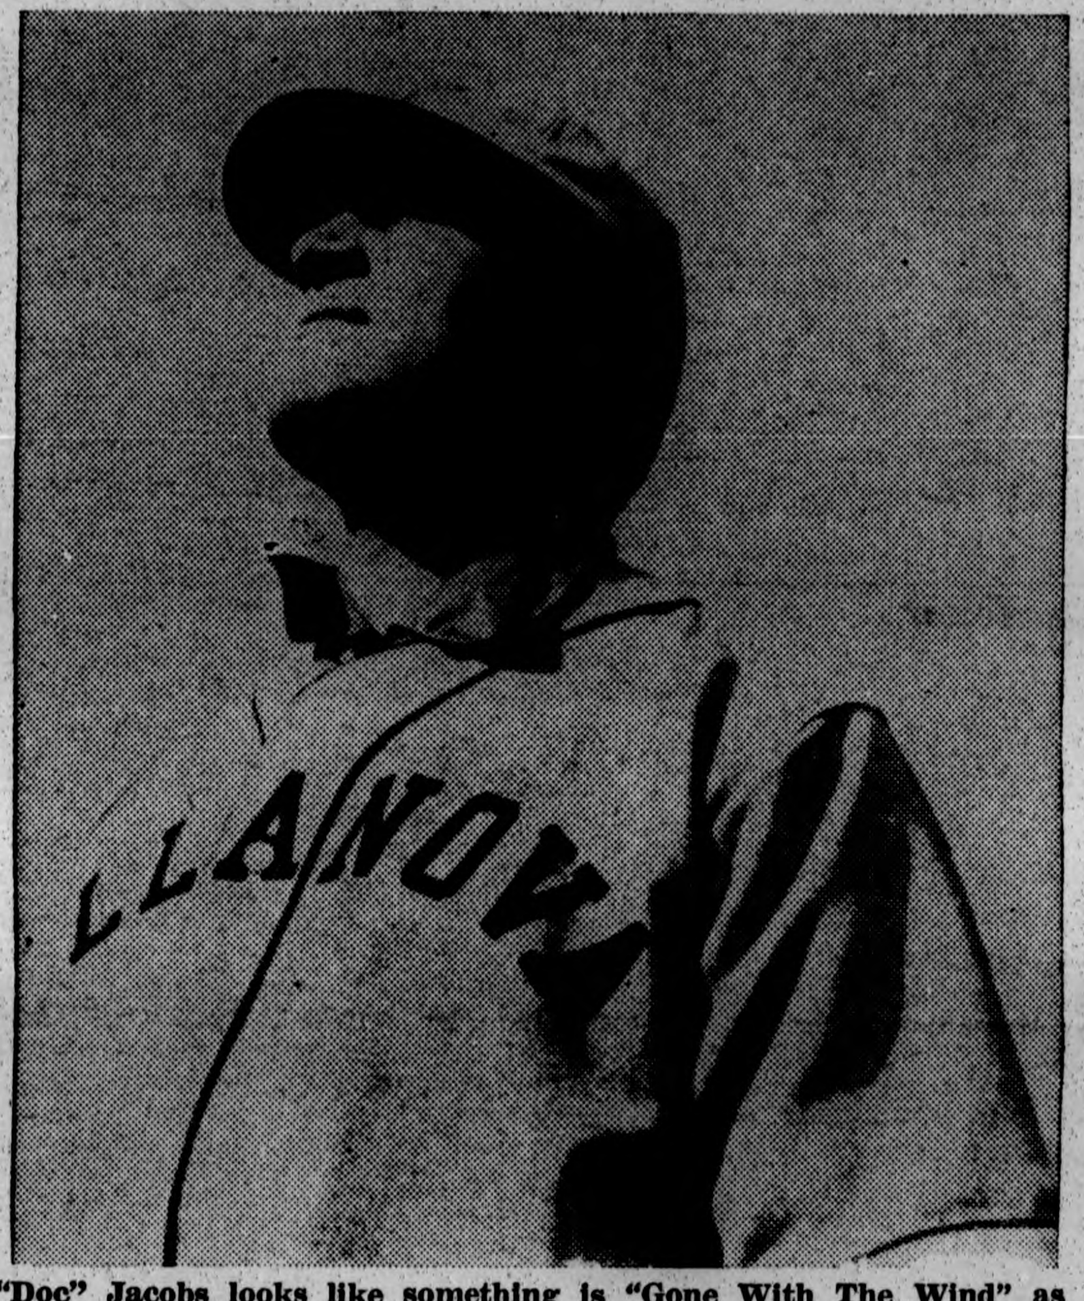
Starting the second half of their schedule with a rush, the Blue and White basketeers romped over a hapless Providence five last Friday evening in the Field House by the score of 49 to 18.

After building up a sizeable lead in the first quarter, Coach Al Severence inserted his second team whose offensive strength was weak, being able to tally but one field goal. The play of the Wildcats was very ragged in this first half, the score being 11 to 2 at half-time. However the second half found Paul Nugent, Duke Duzminski and Lloyd Rice leading the barrage of field goals that literally buried the New England Friars.

NUGENT STARS

Nugents eight field goals boosted him to third place in the Philadelphia District scoring, right behind his teammates Duzminski and Lazorchak in that order. This victory was the eleventh of the season against one defeat. The two teams will meet again in a return game at Providence, Rhode Island on February 16.

"Looking For Desmond, 'Doc'?"



"Doc" Jacobs looks like something is "Gone With The Wind" as he gazes at the sky. "Doc" embarked on another year as mentor of the Villanova baseball team, which started practice last week.

SPORTORIAL

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

DOC JACOB'S baseball schedule, released last week, brought good news in that our old pals from Broad St., Temple University, are again on the list. We missed the lack of a meeting in basketball. It's always nice to have one game in every sport that you are sure to win. Temple always had the happy faculty of providing that game in most sports, although the number of meetings have dwindled down in the past few years.

Time was when Owl and Wildcat met in football, twice in basketball, and in swimming, boxing, golf, tennis, and the rest.

Lately however the Owl seems to be hesitant about meeting the 'Cat, especially in the minor sports, despite the fact that we are assured that official relations between the two are most agreeable. We don't know what the hitch is, but we are certain that it isn't with Villanova. Knowing most of the varsity managers personally we know that every one of them tries his best to arrange Temple meeting in all the minor sports. Saul Wallach's Tennists seem to be the only successful matchmakers.

All we want to know is whether it is possible that the "wise old" Owl has a deadly fear of the "ferocious" Wildcat. If so we must send a tch, tch to the Templars. Perhaps if an arrangement could be made whereby our swimmers would carry lead weights on their backs and our golfers use matchsticks instead of clubs the Temple boys could be persuaded to come over and play with us!

But getting serious about the matter it does seem a shame that regular meetings cannot be arranged between the two schools in all sports, and that goes for Penn teams also. Out in Pittsburgh there is an ideal athletic set-up among Pitt, Carnegie, and Duquesne. Annually round-robin city championships are played in all sports. Philadelphia would profit by such meetings between its "big three," Temple, Penn, and Villanova.

Villanova's student managers and athletic coaches assure us that they will willingly schedule Penn and Temple in any and all sports. The rest seems to be up to those two schools. Imagine for instance, a Penn-Villanova or Penn-Temple football game. Why, it would pack any stadium in the city. But more important, such meetings would instigate a better spirit of comradeship among Philly's best colleges. What say you?

DOC JACOBS BEGINS DAILY DRILLS FOR 'CAT BASEBALLERS

Temple, Fordham, Boston College Head Tough Card; Veterans Gone

Villanova's baseball team got the jump on the rest of the nation, including the "big-leaguers" last week and embarked upon their 1940 diamond campaign.

First "big news" of the year came in the release of the official schedule which includes nineteen games with some of the leading nines in the East. The Wildcats will open on April 6 with the Ursinus College club at Collegeville, Pa.' and will close with the Penn Athletic Club of Philadelphia on June 8 at the Villanova stadium field.

Last year's schedule included twenty-two games but with a little weather-luck this year's club may be able to play more games than last year when the elements cancelled several matches.

OLD RIVALS MET

Old diamond rivals to be met again include, Pennsylvania, Temple, Fordham, Boston College, St. John's, Williams, and Manhattan. Temple will be met in a two-game series, the first meeting being on April 12 at the spacious Owl field adjoining the Temple football stadium. The Owls will repay the visit on May 22 when the two etams will meet on Villanova terrain.

The Temple-Villanova and the Penn-Villanova games give pretty conclusive proof of a Philadelphia diamond champion each year although Penn and Temple have never been able to establish agreeable athletic relations with each other.

Western Maryland University, to be met on May 8, is the only newcomer to the schedule this year. The Green Terrors are renowned for excellent baseball teams and should provide as stiff opposition

Penn, Villanova Meet In Tank

Bill Leahys' mermen face their stiffest assignment of the current season next Saturday when they engage the University of Pennsylvania tankmen in Hutchinson Pool on the Penn campus.

The Quakers boast a twenty-three man squad headed by Captain Sam Tator, distance swimmer from New Haven, Conn. They are coached by Bill Merriam who took charge of the Red and Blue in 1927 and is now in his fourteenth coaching season. A great swimmer himself Merriam has developed numerous individual stars and has always turned out top-notch Penn aggregations.

BEAT PENN STATE

Thus far this season the Quakers have won from Penn State College and Lehigh University but have struck a snag in their last three meets and lost to Columbia, Yale, and Navy. All three of the latter are among the nation's best in the water sport. After meeting Villanova the Red and Blue will engage Princeton, Harvard, Rutgers, Cornell, and Dartmout's in dual meets.

'Gunners' Decried; Teamwork Should Be Stressed Above All

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

With the basketball season coming into the last lap of the 1939-40 season statistical records are finding their way into the local columns each Monday morning, portraying the so-called leading scorers of the local contingents. Top positions in this race has its laudable side but it does not put the stamp of a great player on any man.

AL SEVERANCE

A close student of this game of basketball readily understands that those scores are only possible because someone is in there carrying out the fundamentals and rudiments of the game of basketball, which makes possible the opportunities and situations which leads to those buckets.

It is well for the team to pause at this point in the season and to take stock of the situation. The recent games indicate clearly that the Villanova team has descended from the peak that was so evident in the start of the season and that now the points are coming the hard way, when they should follow as a natural result of teamplay.

There are two men who although their names do not appear in the so called glory headlines, nevertheless have stamped their personality on this team with definite results—Lloyd Rice and "Chuck" Yund. Both boys are of sterling value to a team. Steady and of the plugging type, digging for free balls, taking punishment under both banking boards with telling effect, never complaining when the going gets tough, their work has been largely responsible for that bulge in the win column, as well as for their teammates "handles" being set up in that 30 point printers ink.

It is only with a serious understanding of these facts can any team hope to carry their work well done to date to a final and successful termination.

Record Holder

Charley McGuckin, who attended Villanova in 1916, '16, '17 is the holder of numerous intercollegiate football records. All were set in McGuckin's greatest season, 1915. He holds the mark for college games won by individual plays (three by dropkick) and also the record for successful field goals by dropkick in a season, nine. He is also coholder with two others for the most field goals by dropkick in a single game. His mark was three successful against Swarthmore College in 1915.

Kelley Stars But Tankmen Lose Rider Meet, 38-37

By BILL EPIFANIO

With great performances by Goodman, once of Abraham Lincoln High and Oxenburg, one-time Erasmus High School star, the Rider College natators nosed out the Villanova mermen by the score of 38 to 37 last Friday.

Villanova's dependable Walt Kelley came through with a new pool record in the 100 yd. freestyle, having been clocked at 55:6, clipping the old record held by Tomilson of Rider by .2 of a second.

RELAY WIN

The initial race found that dependable troi of Maher, FitzMaurice and Lyons who came through in the three hundred yard medley relay. Time, 3.34.4. FitzMaurice reported feeling plenty "Chipper" before the race and proved it when he drew well ahead of his rival; then Lyons put the finishing touch on the event. The pool being very choppy accounted for the poor time.

A photo finish involving the first three men was necessary to determine the winner of the 220 yard freestyle. The shot proved Oxenburg to be first, Coleman of Rider second and Hooper of Villanova third.

KELLEY WINNER

Walt Kelly took the 50 yard freestyle by a body length. He was trailed by Dakidowski of Rider and Barrett of Villanova.

The diving feature was taken by Horyak of Rider with 86.5 points, who was in a class by himself. McStravog and Moore, both of Villanova, placed second third respectively.

The pool record was broken by Kelley in the 100 yard freestyle. Trailing far behind was Oxenburg and Dakidowski, both of Rider.

Goodman, one of the stars of the rider tankmen, took the 150 yard backstroke. Maher and Leahy of the Wildcats, followed respectively.

FITZMAURICE TRAILS

The 200 yard breast stroke saw Brio of Rider first. He just nosed out FitzMaurice, who placed second. Third place was taken by Moore of Villanova.

The two-man team of Goodman and Oxenburg of Rider took the 440 yard freestyle. Hooper, the potential star of Villanova, was third. This incidentally was the event that spelled defeat for Villanova.

Barrett, Pholeric, Koness and Kelley took the 400 yard freestyle relay. The quartet won decisively. Pholeric fared well doing his 100 yards; he was without any doubt in the best condition that he has ever been in.

Summary

300-Yd. Medley Relay — 1, Villanova (Maher, Fitzmaurice, Lyons). Time 3.34.4.

DUZMINSKI HOLDS LEAD OVER SCORERS

Villanova's "Big Three" of the basketball court — "Duke" Duzminski, Mike Lazorchak, and Paul Nugent jumped back into one, two, three position in Philadelphia district basketball scoring last week after Larry Kenney, St. Joseph's star had broken up the monopoly for a few days by ousting Paul Nugent while the latter was idle.

Duzminski's lead, which looks as safe as the Chase National Bank, was increased in the Providence game when the "Duke" cut the cords for eleven points to runner-up Lazorchak's six. Nugents' 16 points brought him a few steps closer to second place. Lazorchak holds a three point lead over Paul and a two-tenths of a point lead in average-points-per-game.

The statistics:

Player	Ga.	F.G.	F.	Pts.	Avg.
Duzminski	12	57	28	143	11.9
Lazorchak	12	48	23	119	9.9

Woods Leads Frosh

Bill Woods, former Brown Prep (Philadelphia) star leads the freshman basketball team in scoring. Up to, but not including, the game with Palmer School Friday night Woods had an average of 12.2 points per game. He is closely followed by his prep school teammate Art Spector, whose average approximates eleven points per game since his 13 points Friday night.

By WALT BROWN

After a three-week rest, the intramural teams will swing back into action today and tonight, and we should see some good games. The games to be played this week, will be those originally scheduled for the week of January 14.

Today's games are those supposed to have been played Tuesday, January 16, while Thursday's games were originally scheduled for Thursday, January 18. The schedule will be continued on from there.

C. & F., which has been leading since the opening of the second half, will meet the second place Alumni team this afternoon. Tonight in the first game Fedigan will encounter the Mendel Day Students while Austin will wind-up the night with the Mendel Residents.

C. & F. — If they win, they will remain in first place. If they lose and the Mendel Residents lose, they will drop to second, but should the Mendel Residents win, C. & F. will fall into third place.

ALUMNI — Should Alumni win, they will move into first. If they lose, they will be tie for second, providing the Mendel Residents and Fedigan lose. However, if either Fedigan or the Mendel Residents win, Alumni will fall to third place. If both Fedigan and the Mendel Residents win, then Alumni will drop to fourth.

MENDEL RESIDENTS — If the residents win, they will at least be tied for first place should C. & F. lose. But a victory by C. & F. would limit the Residents to second place. Should the Residents lose, they would drop to fourth if both Alumni and Fedigan won. If either of these teams lost. the Residents would take third place. Should both teams lose, then the residents would still occupy second place.

MENDEL DAY — A win would move the commuters to second place if both the Mendel Residents and Alumni lost. If either of these teams win, the Mendel Day Students would drop to third, but if

Phi Kappas Plan Bowling League

The bowling league planned by the Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering fraternity, last year, is about to materialize.

Last year interest lagged and the whole thing was dropped, but now under the capable guidence of Clem Dinon, senior civil engineer, interest has been revived and ideas and plans for formation are already underway.

At present the alleys in the gymnasium are being scraped and refinished, but in about two weeks time the league should be able to get started. Two new sets of pins are being provided for the alleys.

SEVENTY MEMBERS

The league will be composed of seventy members of the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, and will be called "The Intra-fraternity Bowling League." Fourteen 5 man teams will be formed. Any five men may form a team. In all probability there will be two divisions in the League, one composed of eight teams and the other of six teams. The teams within the division will play one another and at the end of the season the winners of the two divisions will play off. It has not yet been decided as to whether or not there will be prizes.

The games are to be held in the afternoon and probably Saturday afternoon will be the definite time.

Clem Dinon has contacted Swarthmore College and negotiations are underway for a meet in which a team composed of Villanova Civil Engineers will meet a team composed of Swarthmore Engineers, a team of Mechanical Engineers will meet their team of Mechanical Engineers, etc.

In the plans and carrying out of the league Dinon is being aided chiefly by Hal Murphy, Walt Kelley, John Seelaus, and Joch Heck.

Frosh Defeat Palmer Quint

Still hungering after a real test of their power the "Wildcat" yearlings scored an overwhelming 62-22 victory over the Palmer School five last Friday night to hang up their eleventh straight win of the season.

Goals by Dean and Jones in the opening minutes gave Palmer a short-lived lead which the "Kittens" paced by Bob Kelty soon overcame. Kelty piled up 17 points on eight goals and one free throw. "Big Mike" Purzycki took second honors with 14 markers on 7 goals.

LITTLE TROUBLE

The "Kittens" had little trouble with the business lads and except on a few occasions when the Palmer guards managed to stick with the fast breaking yearling forwards they scored almost at will. Outstanding all evening was Art Spector, brilliant center of the frosh squad. Art played a bang-up game both on defense and on iffence. He handed out innumerable passes to teammates from his pivot position while collecting 13 points for himself, and with Kelty always seemed to be on the spot when the ball came bounding from the backboard. The rest of the team gave their usual steady support.

The losers boasted Jones, a slim individual, who was the only Palmer man that could do anything against the frosh. He scored twelve points on four goals and the same number of fouls.

Interscholastic Meet On February 22nd

The sixth annual Villanova National Catholic Interscholastic Swimming Championships will be held at the Field House pool on Washington's Birthday, February 22nd.

Invitations are being sent out to the cream of the interscholastic swimming crop and a representative group is assured as in past years.

PREPPERS EXPECTED

St. Francis Prep of Brooklyn is again expected to compete. The Preppers have copped the championship in each of the last three years with West Catholic High of Philadelphia the perennial runner-up.

both the Mendel Residents and Alumni won, the commuters would go all the way to fourth. If the Day Students lose, they will fall to fifth providing Austin loses; but if Austin wins, they will be tied for last place.

FEDIGAN — If Fedigan wins, they will at least be tie for second place. If they lose, they will then occupy fifth place, if Mendel commuters win. But if the Mendel Day Students should lose also, then Fedigan would drop only to fourth.

AUSTIN — Win, lose, or draw, Austin will still remain in the cellar.

Other games to be played this week will see C. & F. face the Mendel Residents, Thursday afternoon, and Fedigan and Austin face Alumni and Mendel Day Students, respectively.

as the Blue will meet all year.

71ST SEASON

Prospects for this, the seventy-first Villanova baseball season, are not exactly dazzling but the Wildcats can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves as usual. Losses by graduation last June were terrific and included such men as Joe Desmond, three-year star pitcher and the only twirler to beat Fordham's renowned Hank Bowry in the latter's school and college hurling career. Othmer losses, just as hard to replace, include Bobby Bond, first baseman, "Cowboy" Crawley, hard-hitting second baseman, Lou Wannemacher, leading hitter and ballhawk deluxe in centerfield, and Art Vigilante, catcher.

Johnny "Reds" Murphy, junior, seems capabel of filling Art Vigilante's spot quite adequately and will probably be behind the bat against Ursinus. Twirlers include veterans Cliff Choquette, Connie O'Leary, and others, plus the possibility of good men from last year's frosh seem to indicate strength in the box but still the loss of Desmond is bound to be felt.

REITMEIR PROMISING

Tex Conners, an inexperienced senior, is the favorite to pull down Bob Bond's job at first base while second base will be securely filled by Woody Reitmeir, the most promising prospect up from the freshman team in years. Shortstop and third base still have the services of Bob Pash and Mike Lazorchak, eliminating any worrk at either spot.

Outfield slots are taken care of despite the loss of Lou Wannemacher. John Donaghue seems to have a three year unbreakable lease on left field and unless some unheralded youth comes forth with an offer of a higher batting average to pay the rent Al is quite secure.

George Balmore, junior, seems destined to fill the shoes of Wannemacher at center field. Balmore, while not the hard-hitting player that Wannemacher was, is a better fielder and produces short hits with astonishing regularity.

BASCA SECURE

Nick Basca, of football fame, has laid a claim on the right field prospecting grounds and campus opinion has it that Nick has struck gold and will refuse to budge.

Last but not least the Wildcats again have "Doc" Jacobs on the bench as head mentor and where "Doc" is you almost invariably find a winning ball club. Perhaps all those diplomas handed out last year won't be felt so much after all!

dentally was last year's Middle Atlantic A. A. U. champion.

SECOND LAST YEAR

Last year the Wildcat relay quartet placed second to Georgetown after a thrilling race. This same cat team will be running again with the exception of Bill Dobbins who was lost by graduation. This loss is a great handicap to overcome and it depends on that fourth position being capably filled to bring a Villanova victory.

Getting back to the fifty yard dash, it is a certainty that Maher will have to be at his peak ot defeat this classy field. Too much can not be said about his rivals. Take Eddie Junghans for instance, last year in this race he turned in exceptionally fast time in his heat but turned his ankle as he left the board track which prevented him from competing in the finals.

George Kroupa, Junghan's teammate finished second in last year's IC4A meet in Madison Square Garden, And with Peacock and Ewell already with brilliant performances behind them, this race should prove to be one of the fastest of the current season.

Haughton Meets Duffy In Stirring 10-Round Confab

By JIM HAUGHTON

To the man in the composing room this copy may lok a bit pugnacious. It is. Both in text and typing. For we've just been visiting with that little sports coterie that holds sway at the western end of Austin. And the results have been uncommonly pleasing, to say the least.

For that erudite group of Duffy, Pash, Murphy and Donaghue have been enlightening us on a bit of sports headlines, old and new. Many a charming bon mot has been thrown around the photo bedecked room. But most interesting has been our little discussion with Bill Duffy and his collegiate and amateur ring memoirs.

Jim Haughton

We might say to our utter surprise, and to most of yours too, Bill admitted to some two hundred odd encounters in the squared circle. Looking at him now as he does battle in the 147 lb. division one would never think that this same lad began his fistic career as a flyweight when a Frosh at Hartford's Frog Hollow High. His first season in the ring he notched his belt with the title; put on some weight and moved into the championship class in both the featherweight and lightweight divisions.

For the past several weeks there have been sneaking into the Quaker Town journals slight mentions of Bill's success in the current Inquirer A. A. U. Diamond Belt eliminations and we at Villanova have been showing increasing interest in it. At this stage of the affair Duffy is now preparing for the final bout of the elimination to what he hopes will take him into the finals at the Arena late in February.

In moving up this ladder of ring history Bill has been gathering a bit of publicity for both himself and the school. You might say, he's representing a school which doesn't claim a boxing team, but should. Only two weeks ago he applied the finishing touches to a lad named Eddie Brickler who had emblazoned on his showy robe "Champ of Hawaii." Straight out of Uncle Sam's Army and carrying a musketful of wins didn't seem to phase the Hartford ringman.

With sagacious Eddie Kirk in his corner, Duffy moved out in the first round, felt Brickler out, then tangled up a bit with him. Kirk, ring master that he is, took hold of the situation and advised Bill to merely use a one-two on the soldier boy, "but stay away." Each time his rival prepared to attack Duffy, would send out a sharp left and enabled Bill to hurdle one of the counter with a stinging right. Keeping this up for the last two rounds tournament's biggest hurdles.

Like all ring men Bill nurtures the hope of some day showing his wares in "The Garden." For success in the big town brings with it fame and new laurels. As he put it: "With a name like mine, a good Irish audience and a classy performance on my part how can I fail."

As to amateur boxing itself, Duffy admits that those youngsters don't wear gloves merely to keep their hands warm. Gone are the gauche novices who swung with hopes of landing. Today clubs sponsor ring work, provide instructors and have created new interest in fistiana. The results of these interests have been a classy field of amateurs who fight for enjoyment, exercise and sometimes a bit of expense money. For today, the only compensation legally permitted by the A. A. U. is in the form of store checks which entitle the holder to goods in several of the city's department stores.

Compared to college boxing, "The Fight for Glory" affairs are not what we call sedate. The crowds get raucous, the fighters themselves will take any thread with hope of winning and the results meet with lusty receptions. Duffy, himself, is anxious to move on into the inter-city competition and we know he carries the wishes of all on the local campus for success in the squared circle.

Eight Meets Scheduled For Indoor Trackmen

Villanova's indoor track schedule as recently released by Coach Jim Elliot includes eight meets, the first two of which have already been completed. The season will end March 9th with the annual Knights of Columbus Meet held in New York City.

John A. Heck, senior mechanical engineer and president of the local branch of the A. S. M. E., was chairman of the committee in charge of the banquet and intiation. He was assisted by F. This was the thirty-third initiation of the fraternity, which has the longest active record of all the college fraternities. Its history is almost as long as that of the engineering school itself, and, at this annual banquet, many of the alumni of the school return to renew old ties.

RELATIONS CLUB TO MEET

The International Relations club will hold its reorganization meeting tomorrow at 3:15 P. M. in room 111 Mendel hall.

One of the problems to be decided is whether or not officers should be elected. Since 1937 the club has been run as a seminar, but prior to that time officers were elected. From a general consensus of opinion of the members, it seems that the majority prefer to have officers elected.

ARTS PERCENTAGES RELEASED BY DEAN; D'ANGELO GETS 4.00

Honor Roll Reveals Twenty-two Students With Ratings Over 3.00

Andrea J. D'Angela, education junior and literary editor of the VILLANOVAN, has acheived the distinction of being the only student in the School Arts of to receive a percent-credit hour rating of 4.00, the highest possible rating, according to the honor roll released last Friday by Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the School of Arts.

Those in the arts division of the school who obtained an average of 3.00 or better are: seniors, Joseph Bongiovanni, 3.71; Joseph M. McNamara, 3.69, and John J. Harrington, 3.61; juniors, James F. Donovan, 3.52; James P. Collins, 3.41; and Francis S. Vogel, 3.33.

Sophomore artsmen: William E. Schubert, 3.67; David F. Daly, 3.29; and Howard A. McCall, 3.06 of the freshmen, Thomas F. Devine, 3.91; and Joseph F. Mahoney, 3.61.

The others in the education department of the school to receive general average of 3.00 or more for the first semester are: seniors, John A. Gogolinski, 3.46; Henry A. Mazzei, 3.40; and Arthur E. Fanning, 3.29; juniors, Thomas J. Moore, 3.85; and Ralph J. Bracken, 3.59; sophomores, John P. Fullam, 3.73; Thomas J. McKimmey, 3.63; and Arthur Connor, 3.16; and freshmen, John J. Hopkins, 3.29, and Victor M. Anido, 3.05.

The ranking for the first semester finds that eleven of the total of thirty-four arts students and eleven of the forty members of the education school have acheived an average sufficiently high to merit honor distinction.

LIBRARY SHOWS SPIRIT OF AMERICA

Cooperating with the national literary movement to utilize February as "American Book Month," the college library has planned a book festival which will commence this week.

The purpose of this movement is to foster an appreciation of the stories of our states and the biographies of our great men. In conjunction with this objective, a literary panorama representing great Americans and the story of America's making will be on display in the library.

American-spirited books which depict the struggles of Americans for growth and freedom throughout the changing phases of our history will constitute this exhibition. Students will have an excellent opportunity to read stories of American heroes and events which took place during this period. It is for them that this dramatization of American development has been arranged.

A compiled list of books to be presented will serve as an illustration of what is to be displayed. The following are classified as fiction: "Trail Makers of the Middle Border," by Hamlin Garland; "Vein of Iron," by Ellen Glasgow; Churchill's, "The Crisis"; "Hugh Wynne," by Silas W. Mitchell; "Uncle Tom's Cabin," by H. B. Stowe; and Margaret Mitchell's, "Gone With the Wind."

The biography selections include: "The Raven," by Marquis James; "Abe Lincoln," by Carl Sandburg; Michael I. Pupin's, "From Immigrant to Inventor"; and "Benjamin Franklin," by Carl L. Van Doren.

James T. Adam's, "Epic of America" and Charles Beard's, "Rise of American Civilization" are the most popular of the history section, and "John Brown's Body," by Stephen V. Benet, is the foremost poetic work on this list.

Pacemakers

TALKS OPEN DAILY SPEAKERS' PROGRAM

'Town Meeting' Begins With Speeches by Engineers and Artsmen Yesterday

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., speech arts head, yesterday inaugurated a series of talks to be known as "Town Meetings."

Daily, three-minute speeches will be delivered by students in the public speaking classes. These talks will be held in the Mendel Amphitheatre at 1:00 P. M. and will continue for a half-hour.

The subjects of the speeches will be optional and should include topics of wide-spread student interest. Following the talks, the subject will be thrown open to discussion by the audience. The entire student body is invited to attend.

Yesterday's speakers included Bee, Petrella, and Bader from the engineering school, and Anido and Belz from the arts school. The following men will speak for the remainder of the week:

Today, Feb. 13, Cashin, Shaumann, Phelan, students in of the engineering school, and Basca and Daly, members of the arts school.

Wednesday, Feb. 14, Coughlin, Aceto, and J. Dorsey, of the engineering school, and Devine and Gray, members of the arts school.

Thursday, Feb 15, Dooley, Caplan, and Donnes, members of the engineering school, and Esposito and McCall, of the arts school.

Friday, Feb. 16, McMahon, Carroll, and DeSipin, all of the engineering school, and Fitzgerald and Shubert, artsmen.

NEW RECORDING MACHINE PURCHASED BY VILLANOVA

Students of Villanova college will be able to correct deficiencies in their speech through the use of the "Presto" recording equipment which has recently been purchased.

Climaxing the efforts of Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., M. A., and other members of the faculty interested in the improvement of voice and diction, the purchase of this equipment, which may be brought into use in several classes next Fall, has already been given a practical test. The Rosemont-Villanova Chorus, which presented its annual concert on December 5, 1939, used this equipment to improve their presentations.

Plans are being made to incorporate the recorder in the psychology laboratory, as well as in the public speaking courses and in the engineering acoustics laboratory for testing purposes.

Fr. Vrana also plans to make recordings of the various school songs as played by the "Villanovans" and sung by the Glee Club.

GEORGE M. COHAN'S MASQUE OFFERING A REVIVAL OF HUMOR

"The Tavern" Dispenses With Usual Comedy Plot of Modern Stage

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., director of the Belle Masque, local dramatic society, recently revealed the plot of the 1940 production, George M. Cohan's, "The Tavern", one of his earliest plays.

Dispensing with the typical boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl type of drama that the modern stage presents, "The Tavern" reaches back for the humor of the colonial period and brings into reality a scene along the Baltimore Pike.

The director chose this play in preference to the countless other plays abounding in the college play repertoire, because it is a return to the drama, less theatrical, and pure humour.

There is a madness of characters, for they are many and of great variety. The leading role is that of a vagabond, originally played by George M. Cohan. Taking every incident in life to be part of a great drama, the series of events across the stage prove of great amusement to him. He considers everything as pre-arranged, though it is a series of dramatic incidents.

The play revolves about a tavern on the Baltimore Pike on the typically dramatic stormy night when all mystery plays have their setting. "However, "The Tavern" is not thoroughly a mystery play, nor does it pretend to be. It is en-

Group to Divide Discussion Under Six Headings at Meeting Tomorrow

"War" will be discussed at the meeting of the International Relations Club tomorrow at 3:15 P. M. in room 111, Mendel hall.

The discussion will be divided as follows: General Comparison of Wars in Earlier Times and Today, Unjustifiability of Modern Warfare, Conscientious Objectors, Conditions of a Just War, Heritage of the World War, and finally, "Sore Spots" on the face of the world. The discussion will be conducted by the Rev. William J. Lunney, O.S.A., moderator of the club.

Five books from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace were recently added to the club's library, They are: "Democracy, Today and Tomorrow," Benes; "Dictatorship in the Modern World," edited by Guy Stanton Ford; "Toward an Understanding of the U. S. S. R.," Florinsky; "Can America Stay Neutral?" Dulles and Armstrong; and, finally, "Economic Bases of Peace," Patterson.

The principle topic discussed at the meeting of the club last Wednesday was "International Ethics." This discussion was divided into four principle parts, namely: Moral Law in Relations to States, Precepts of Justice and Charity, the Morality of War, and the Obligation to Promote Peace.

As yet, the question of whether or not officers should be chosen has not been decided upon. A decision is expected tomorrow.

PAUL LAYNG INTERRED

Paul W. Layng, a senior in St. Mary's Seminary, was interred in the St. Thomas of Villanova cemetery on Monday, February 12, after solemn requiem mass in the College Chapel.

Layng, who came from Carthage, New York, was in his fourth year at Villanova. The mass was celebrated by the Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O. S. A., Provincial. The Very Rev. Daniel A. Herron, O. S. A., was deacon; Rev. John J. Anderson, O. S. A., sub-deacon; and the Rev. Lawrence J. Conneen, O. S. A., Master of Ceremonies.

Class Leaders

DIRECTOR RELEASES SEMINAR SCHEDULE

Music Group to Feature Sound Films, Lecture-Recitals During Term

Sound films and lecture-recitals will highlight the programs of the Music Seminar for the second semester, according to an announcement recently released by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., M. A., director of the seminar.

As in the first semester, the members of the seminar will meet in Simpson Hall for the spring series to hear and discuss the music of the masters.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D., head of the chemistry department of Villanova, made so great an impression upon the seminar members when he appeared before them on December 6, 1939, that he has been invited to presnt two piano-recitals and lectures. The first of these will be presented on March 6 on "Operatic Highlights from Faust and Carmen"; the second will be on April 24 on the "Musical Terminology of Symphonies."

Other highlights will be the lecture recitals of Rev. Paul Healy, O. S. A., on "Poetry and Poets," and of Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., on "The Piano and What It Can Do." These recitals will be given

STUDENT COUNCIL PLANS TO CURB FUTURE FROSH

Next year's freshmen who persist in ignoring the rules and regulations laid down for them by the Orientation Committee will find themselves given the cold shoulder by all campus organizations—this was the decision arrived at by the Student Council at their meeting last week.

A plan whereby all first year men who refuse to wear "regs" and to carry out orders of the Orientation Committee, will be prohibited from entering any campus club or activity was the idea presented at the meeting. Through this action, the Council hopes to exercise better control over the activities of the "yearlings."

All Student Council representatives of campus organizations were instructed to sound out their respective groups as to their willingness to cooperate with the idea. One hundred percent cooperation is hoped to be forthcoming, as the Council feels that only through the combined agreement of all campus clubs and activities can a recurrence of this year's orientation program be prevented.

ALUMNI GOVERNORS CONSIDER PLAN OF 'VILLANOVA NIGHT'

Spring Events Would be Nationally Broadcast; Centennial Program Discussed

Plans for a radio network broadcast of a program to be participated in by alumni clubs throughout the country have been brought before the Alumni Board of Governors by John P. Keffer, chairman of the Alumni Relations Committee.

It is hoped to have some such broadcast this Spring, but efforts are being made to interest the Special Features Division of one of the national networks in a nation-wide broadcast as part of the centennial program in 1942-'43.

During the centennial program, the president of the college and prominent alumni would speak at a banquet attended by graduates and students, and this would be picked up at club meetings throughout the country.

For this March or April, it is planned to interest a "name" orchestra in playing the "Alma Mater," to the accompaniment of the simultaneous singing of it by the student body and the alumni in the twenty-odd cities now represented by the clubs, as part of "Villanova Night."

Mr. Keffer has contacted each club to get their reaction to the plan, and upon the results of this inquiry depends whether or not the idea will be carried out.

The program suggested corresponds to the "Founder's Day" broadcast of Northwestern University and to the Notre Dame "Night."

The former is made from Evanston, Illinois, each year and is participated in by both the alumni and students of the University.

On Notre Dame "Night," the

ASCE HEARS BAUN TALK ON HIGHWAY

At their meeting yesterday afternoon, the members of the local chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers heard a talk by Vincent H. Baun, senior civil engineer, on the New York City's West Side Elevated Highway.

Baun's talk was illustrated by slides furnished by the Philadelphia Society of Civil Engineers.

The next such illustrated talk will be given by Edward J. Kirk, also a senior, at their meeting of March 11. His subject will be the Miami Flood Control.

"Our chapter of the A. S. C. E. is planning several interesting trips in the near future," Melchor W. Gaston, president of the group announced last week.

"Among these are trips to the Valley Forge Cement plant and the Bethlehem Roller Mills plant. The society also hopes to have the opportunity to motor to Cape May, N. J., to study the process of laying concrete under water."

The semester exams brought about the termination of one of the most interesting subjects in the civil engineering curriculum, astronomy. Some of the projects or experiments that were conducted were to determine the latitude by observing the sun at noon by a sextant, and find the azimuth of a line by observing the sun with a solar attachment, and directly with a transit.

The night work consisted of determining the azimuth of a line by observing on the polaris elongation, and the polaris at any angle, and finding time by observing on a star at its meridian transit.

SEMINAR CHANGE

Due to the new semester schedules, the Philosophy Seminar time will be changed. Members are requested to suggest a suitable time to the moderator.

Internal Cooperation

WITH the applications for memberships and the nominations of officers of Delta Pi Episilon, revived fraternity of the School of Commerce and Finance, held yesterday, Villanova witnesses the addition of another organization on the campus.

The revival of DPE follows that of the arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta, by a few months. As both organizations have been distinguished in the past, the former because it was the most powerful fraternity on the campus from 1921 until its disintegration in 1932 and the latter because it is the oldest fraternity at Villanova, it appears that activities here are becoming more extensive than ever before.

It is to be hoped that the new fraternity will be as successful as those active during the past few years and will assume the high ranking that is its due. For this to be accomplished, internal, as well as external, friction must be avoided.

So, to the members of Delta Pi Epsilon who will soon hold elections, we extend best wishes and a hope that cooperation between residents and non-resident students will be applied towards the best interests of the fraternity as a whole.

Happy Birthday To —

BOTH the staff of the VILLANOVAN and the entire student body wish to express the heartiest congratulations to Fr. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the College, on the occasion of his forty-third birthday tomorrow, Feb. 14.

Cost of History

TWENTY years from now, hundreds of volumes will have been written in Germany concerning the exploits of Adolf Hitler but unprejudiced American publishers will have economically compressed his biography to the length of two pages in a history of modern Europe. One hundred years from now, Herr Hitler will be a semi-legendary figure whose eccentricities will have supplanted those of Napoleon in the favor of asylum inmates.

To those persons who endeavour to retain a broad view of world history, the present foreign war represents an exemplification of the theory that recurrent warfare is the fate of Europe.

This theory expresses the idea that each war does nothing but plunge the world into a deeper economic depression and engender more wars. The majority of public opinion has it, however, that this present war will either end all wars or end the world. Hitler, it seems, is the greatest menace to civilization since the flood, and modern warfare is so destructive that nothing can stand before it.

Does no one remember the mighty war machines of Alexander, he who wept because he had no more worlds to conquer? the might of Rome? the slaughter of Napoleon's enemies? To those of us who remember and think, the current hostilities fill but another futile chapter in the history of the advance and retreat of world civilization.

To My Valentine —

IT has long been customary on St. Valentine's day to salute loved ones by sending them whimsical messages attesting the fidelity of the sender's devotion.

A holy analogy might be built on this purely human tradition. Men might well draw unto themselves untold benefits by specially addressing a spiritual Valentine to Jesus Christ. He not only is the Prince of Peace but also is the Prince of Love.

This prayerful Valentine primarily would petition Christ to increase man's love for God and secondly to transform man's inimical instincts to Christian charity for all.

Mankind, staggering badly beneath the crushing blows of Mars, certainly should drink deep this divine well of love.

Jealous hate, chronic ailment and the chief deterrents of humanity reside in man's heart, the same place where the heavenly virtue of love and charity should dwell.

In proportion as the one gains so the other loses its place in the human heart. The existencce of one prohibits the simultaneous existence of the other. With God's help men could make sure that love dwelt there.

—W. N. W.

Think

THINK, student of Villanova. Think back to those Thursday and Sunday mornings when you have been present at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass in the Villanova College Chapel.

A stream of 'dignified' college students comes running out of the chapel as if they were pursued by the devil himself. Pushing, shoving, fighting their way forward that they may be the first to enter the dining hall.

Think, students of Villanova, THINK. Not only does this reflect on your characters as grown-up college gentlemen, but it may also result in injury — either to yourself or to another. If you wish to break a leg or an arm, keep it up; if you wish to act like college men and preserve your limbs, then walk from the Chapel to the dining hall.

Index of Prohibited Books Protects Faith And Morals

Church Regulation, Natural Law, Both Necessary For Catholics

By REV. JOHN R. DUNNE, O. S. A., M. A.
Instructor, Social Sciences

FOR many persons, the words "Index" and "Inquisition" convey or connote a sense of horror and oppression. For many Catholics, there exists in connection with these words a sense of shame. A false shame, it is true, because it arises from either misinformation or misconception. Nevertheless, these individuals are content to avoid any discussion of these topics, for they are obsessed with a vague fear of something or other being introduced about "things not being as they should" back in the Middle Ages.

As far as the Inquisition is concerned, historical truth has cleared up many of the misconceptions about it and it is usually dismissed as a thing of the far-distant past.

This is not the case in reference to the Index, and timorous individuals are quite troubled when they as Catholics are censured about a prohibition of their liberty and intelligence in regard to their reading.

The Index simply means that there are books listed that Catholics are not permitted to read without special permission. There is, then, an Index of Prohibited Books. That is a fact. But why is ther a prohibition for Catholics in regard to their reading?

Reasons for an Index

In view of the fact, there must be some basis for such prohibitive legislation on the part of Holy Mother Church. If we Catholics would realize that there is other legislation at the foundation of the ecclesiastical legislation, then we could give a simple, yet satisfactory, answer to inquiries as to the necessity, scope, and purpose of the Index.

Everyone, ethically speaking, is limited in doing whatsoever might not corrupt his morals. Such limitation is set by the natural moral law. Limitation on our reading then is determined not only by Church prohibition but also by the natural moral law.

The Church, to protect her subjects in faith and morals, does no more in her prohibition than to point out the danger lurking for them in works subversive to their faith and morals. She, in her age-old, vast experience, knows the majority of her subjects would not recognize this danger, owing to their unfamiliarity in general with unbelief, superstition, and immorality.

This is not to be considered something strange, odd, or an impairment of the Catholic's freedom. Any reasonable individual would certainly admit of the State's right to a prevntive censorship in regard to literature dealing with fraudulent practices, or pornographic in nature. Federal censorship at times may prohibit the publication or distribution of seditious works, and that same reasonable individual would not consider such an act an impairment of the freedom of the press.

Necessity for Censorship

Historical fact has always and amply testified to and confirmed the necessity of preventive censorship. Likewise, it has verified the right of the State to enjoy and enforce this function. The Church, then, which by Divine right is the guardian and teacher of the faith and morals of her subjects, like the State, enjoys the right to point out whatever is dangerous or subversive to the good of society. Surely then, she may indicate the poisonous weeds to be found among the flower of world literature.

An objection may be raised at this point. That is all very well for Catholics. The faithful are subject to the authority of the Church, hence their publications are likewise subject to it. Being subject to the Church, all Catholics owe obedience in whatever refers to their salvation. By what right, however, may the Church legislate regarding the works of non-Catholics?

The Law Defined

Canon law (Canon 1384) answers this by distinguishing between previous and preventive censorship. It states "that the Church has the right to demand that the Faithful shall not publish books which she has not previously approved by her judgment.. She also has the right to forbid for a just reason books published by 'anyone'."

The first part of the law refers specifically to Catholics alone; the second part vindicates the right of the Church to prohibit any or all books which she holds to be objectionable.

Catholics should not, however,

THE WEEK'S WASH—

The snow is gone and, if the present weather keeps up, spring can't be far away; sure signs of this change of scene are the excursions which the boys are beginning to make hither and yon . . ARTIE SOMERS showing deep interest in the "wares" of a little girl dressed in a blue uniform giving away samples of "Life Savers" while strolling in Bryn Mawr. . BILL KELLY making daily trips to a certain institution located in the nearby vicinity to escort a certain young lady home.

movements in world history that have from time to time injured the faith or the morals of different people in world history or are works that in general teach ignorant or superstitious practices.

The Moral Law

The natural moral law governs our reading in regard to all books not specically mentioned in the Index if these books would undermine faith or morals. The natural moral law is far more extensive, naturally, but more flexible insofar as it permits conscience to guide according to circumstances and conditions, since the reading of a particular book might be harmful for one person and harmless for another.

This does not mean that books professedly evil or obscene can be read with impunity, but that the index indicates for Catholics those books listed out of the millions published, which. for. the majority would certainly be dangerous and feel that if a book is not on the index they are therefore free to read it. Books on the Index, generally speaking, are works of a philosophic nature dealing with harmful because of the false doctrines taught in them.

Holy Mother Church in putting books on the Index does not have the intention of repressing literature and literary activity, but of repressing moral evil. Always and ever has the Church been a patron of literary art and has encouraged letters, but never has she failed to censure pagan sensuality, nor to denounce sin disguised as Fine Art.

Clement Dinon, Former Co-Editor of "Engineer", Aims At Success In Stone Contracting Business

Versatile "Plugger" Counts Four Committee Positions Among Achievements

By THOMAS A SULLIVAN

'Tis said that music hath charms, and no better proof of this is found than in the fact that, sooner or later, all day hops are attracted to the Pie-Shop's recording machine. If you are searching for a certain day-hop, the best method of finding said student is to keep an eagle eye on this mercenary music box during the lunch hour.

In accord with this rule, your reporter ambled down to the Pie-Shop last Wednesday at noon, ensconced himself in one of the better booths, and trained his optic on the aforementioned machine with the hope of seeing the subject of this column, one Clement F. Dinon, senior civil engineer.

Appears on the Scene

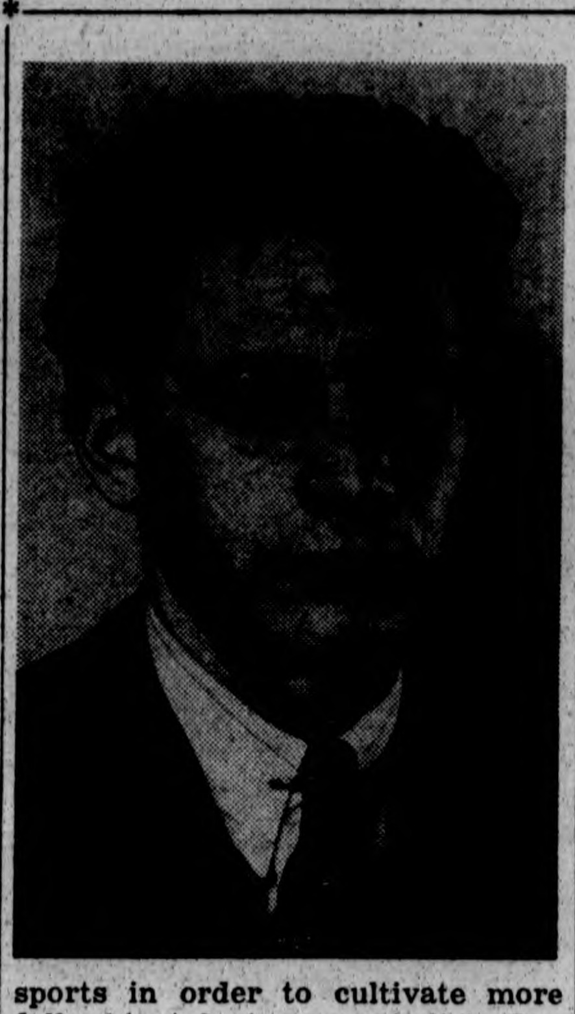
Luck was with us on that particular day, for, before too many moments had gone by, the object of our search, a tall, bespectacled, wavy-haired fellow, came into view. Having drawn this Dinon fellow, together with his pipe and slide rule, away from the musical siren, we led him to a side table. After explaining the purpose of our mission, we began a lengthy interrogation that resulted in the following revelations.

On Dec. 17, 1917, a day when most of the world was steeped in gloom because of the Great War, a bit of happiness entered into the home of the Dinon family in South Philadelphia with the birth of Clem Dinon, who was destined to be the only offspring.

Early History

After a few years of "growing up," Clem enrolled at the Notre Dame Academy, located at 19th and Lucas Sts. (Still in Phila.) While there, he was a member of both the basketball and football squads and developed a love for sports that still holds.

Upon leaving Notre Dame, Clem entered Upper Darby High, the family having moved out to Drexel Park. While in attendance at this school, he decided to give up his participation in interscholastic sports in order to cultivate more fully his talent as a pianist. Our hero's prowess on this instrument led him to attend the Delaware School of Music and Comb's Conservatory of Music during his years at U. D.



After graduation from high school, because of the fame of Villanova's engineering school, and on the recommendations of several adult friends, our Mr. Dinon turned his footsteps toward the portals of Mendel hall.

Very Busy Man

In his initial year on the campus, Clem became a member of both Phi Kappa Pi and A. S. C. E. and also joined the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN. During his soph year he assumed no new duties but in his junior year he really began to roll.

During that year, Clem was a member of the P. K. P. Dinner-Dance committee, the Blazer Ball committee, and was chairman of the A. S. C. E. trip committee and the P. K. P. bowling committee. He climaxed these activities by being appointed co-editor of the Villanova "Engineer" with Joe Gallagher. In his senior year, he has also become a Student Council member.

During his summer vacations, our versatile "interviewee" works for his father, who is a draftsman, estimator and a partner in the United Marble Company.

A Real Plugger

Clem admits that he never made an honor roll or won prizes for scholastic endeavour, saying, "I'm not the intellectual type, but I work hard." Which statement reminded your reporter that pluggers usually have a habit of getting ahead.

After graduation next June, Clem hopes to become connected with a large engineering firm, in order to get training so that he may some day enter the marble and terazzo contracting business for himself.

Not a Woman Chaser, But—

With a little coaxing, we brought to the surface the fact that C. F. Dinon has "one girl," whom he escorts to all the campus socials. The miss in question formerly lived in Upper Darby but recently moved to Rochester, N. Y. (By some odd coincidence, Clem spends his vacations in the same city.)

Knowing that our subject was interested in music, we popped the time-worn question concerning favorite orchestras before making our exit and found that Clem, who like swing music when played correctly, favors the works of Tommy Dorsey and Hal Kemp. In the classical field, he prefers Beethoven, Schubert, and Mendelssohn.

After thus drawing him out, we permitted our victim to go back to the company of his fellow engineers, Eddie Kirk, Matt Basow, and Len Pompa (whom Clem "likes to ride"), and made our way back to teh VILLANOVAN office in order to pound out this biography of a man who seems headed for success —Clement F. (for Francis) Dinon.

PKP Initiation Effects Linger On; Pledges Describe Eventful Night

Comments of New Members Reveal Methods of Anticipation and Actuality

By THOMAS C. MURASKI

In an interview with several newly initiated freshmen members of the Phi Kappa Pi, fraternity, I found that even though the soreness acquired during the initiation has worn off during the lapse of a week, the memories still linger.

Not all of the pledges seemed to agree on what was the most memorable event of the evening, for that query brought a variety of answers.

It seems that the first course of their entertainment was a trip down the length of one of the halls, with the angle assumed, and amid a barrage of encouragement (it was not all in the form of words either). Joe Tobin thought this was the worst of his experiences. He said that he "did not like crawling the length of the hall on my belly."

Confused Stories

The stories of what happened after this were rather confused, but the majority agreed that the effects of the electric storm were more disastrous than those of the spring rains. Jim Farley said, "Those fellows must have thought I was a electric cell. They certainly tried to build up my voltage." Frank Regan remarked that he felt like one of Professor Haenilsch's electrons. Steve Gasparovic plans to hire himself out as a power station "after a most schocking experience." Arnold Roberts did not seem to mind the shocks, but he said, "I would not wan to pay the electric bill."

It seems that most of these shocks were received from an electrified president's hand, and an electrified chair and wrestling mat. Ed Manderfield could not decide which one was the worst. On the other hand Ed Elman, refering to the spring rains, said, "It was a most Democratic gathering —all Wet."

Traditional Paddling

Of course, no initiation would be complete without a few paddles to remind one of just what has happening. Tom Dolam was speaking of these reminders when he said, "they must have thought I was a canoe from the paddling I got." Joseph Krzyzosiak had the solution all figured out when it was over. he said, "I would not want to pay turned pink."

Art Lyness said, "It was the most fun I've had in a long time, even though it was the biggest shock in my life. I consider the Phi Kappa Pi the "tail" blazers of fraternities. We're not saying who the fellow was that wore four pairs of pants, but Denis Boyle reports "I found out 'honesty is the best policy' much to the chargin of my posterior anatomy."

This was Reno White's first initiation, and he said, "It was fun, but not as much fun as next year's will be. I hope!" Louis Schappert thought that the initiation could be defined "as two hours of suspense and anticipation." Alfred Gelling agreed with him, for he said, "from the weird tales circulating around the school, I expected the worst to happen. Some fellows even reserved beds in the infirmary."

Paul Gallagher would like to know "what blood relation was following me around and giving me a beating?"

X9 Fails To Enjoy It

All the fellows said that it was the most fun they've had in a long time, and, by the time everything was down and digested (yes, they had a sumptuous banquet), they were all enjoying it. Dick Heckler said, "not all enjoyed it, especially not 'X9'."

It seems that "X9" is a certain sophomore who missed his initiation until Tuesday afternoon when several freshmen furnished the entertainment. Bert Collins thought highly of the fellows. He said, "the fellows were very generous; they were willing to give you everything they had."

"A Wish"

Joseph M. Gambescia

Sometimes I sit and wonder
Of things that might have been—
How the dreams of men have crumbled—
And I hope it's not a sin

To wish that my dreams won't tumble
As they've reached their very height
And that where others have seen darkness
Through that darkness I'll see light.

The light of hope, the light of cheer,
That comes of dreams fulfilled,
The light of hope, the light of
cheer,
That nothing else can chill.

And when I've gone to the great beyond
And I'm laid to eternal rest,
I'll go with a smile and a feeling
That here I've done my best.

NO WONDER students have so much trouble when exams come around! THE PIONEER, WHITMAN COLLEGE PUBLICATION, informs us that even the words of scriptures are against us; for example:

"Thou shalt not pass" (we're licked before we start).

"Suffer not a man to pass" (another break for the women).

"The wicked shall no more pass" (the wages of sin is "flunks").

'None shall pass" (what's the use of trying?)

"Beware thou that pass not" (he's not just saying that).

"Neither any son of man pass" (seems that we poor men don't have a chance — who said it's a man's world?)

"No man may pass through because of the beasts" (can this mean the teachers?)

"Though they roar, yet they cannot pass" (there doesn't seem to be any use of complaining).

I wonder how convincing this would appear to questioning parents?—(ACP)

PROPOSAL — every year there are a number of athletes on the so-called minor teams here at Villanova who get practically no recognition for their efforts. These fellows are not here on a scholarship. Nevertheless they do their part to uphold the Wildcat's reputation in the world of athletics and receive comparatively little reward.

This department begs to propose that we hold some kind of a rally or, better still, a dinner sometime during the year (to which would be invited all recipients of varsity letters) and that this occasion be taken to present them with their awards.

It is most unfortunate that at the present time athletes frequently do not receive their letters until the end of the summer or the beginning of the following year and then only by calling for them personally. Why not make the wearing of a V something to be proud of?

PREDICTION — We learn from the AUBURN PLAINSMAN that the chances of Villanova meeting Auburn next year are rather slim at the present time because the business men who are sponsoring the affair are reluctant to put up the necessary guarantee ($18,000) for a game so late in the season.

MATH CLUB MEETS

A meeting of the Mathematics Club will be held today at one o'clock, at which time a program for the second semester will be arranged. Professor Emil Amelioti, moderator of the society, will appoint a committee to draw up a charter for the society.

A number of students, both freshmen and upperclassmen, who are eligible for membership in the society will be asked to join within the next week or so.

Internal Cooperation

WITH the applications for memberships and the nominations of officers of Delta Pi Episilon, revived fraternity of the School of Commerce and Finance, held yesterday, Villanova witnesses the addition of another organization on the campus.

The revival of DPE follows that of the arts fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta, by a few months. As both organizations have been distinguished in the past, the former because it was the most powerful fraternity on the campus from 1921 until its disintegration in 1932 and the latter because it is the oldest fraternity at Villanova, it appears that activities here are becoming more extensive than ever before.

It is to be hoped that the new fraternity will be as successful as those active during the past few years and will assume the high ranking that is its due. For this to be accomplished, internal, as well as external, friction must be avoided.

So, to the members of Delta Pi Epsilon who will soon hold elections, we extend best wishes and a hope that cooperation between residents and non-resident students will be applied towards the best interests of the fraternity as a whole.

Happy Birthday To —

BOTH the staff of the VILLANOVAN and the entire student body wish to express the heartiest congratulations to Fr. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the College, on the occasion of his forty-third birthday tomorrow, Feb. 14.

Cost of History

TWENTY years from now, hundreds of volumes will have been written in Germany concerning the exploits of Adolf Hitler but unprejudiced American publishers will have economically compressed his biography to the length of two pages in a history of modern Europe. One hundred years from now, Herr Hitler will be a semi-legendary figure whose eccentricities will have supplanted those of Napoleon in the favor of asylum inmates.

To those persons who endeavour to retain a broad view of world history, the present foreign war represents an exemplification of the theory that recurrent warfare is the fate of Europe.

This theory expresses the idea that each war does nothing but plunge the world into a deeper economic depression and engender more wars. The majority of public opinion has it, however, that this present war will either end all wars or end the world. Hitler, it seems, is the greatest menace to civilization since the flood, and modern warfare is so destructive that nothing can stand before it.

Does no one remember the mighty war machines of Alexander, he who wept because he had no more worlds to conquer? the might of Rome? the slaughter of Napoleon's enemies? To those of us who remember and think, the current hostilities fill but another futile chapter in the history of the advance and retreat of world civilization.

—M. P. Z.

To My Valentine —

IT has long been customary on St. Valentine's day to salute loved ones by sending them whimsical messages attesting the fidelity of the sender's devotion.

A holy analogy might be built on this purely human tradition. Men might well draw unto themselves untold benefits by specially addressing a spiritual Valentine to Jesus Christ. He not only is the Prince of Peace but also is the Prince of Love.

This prayerful Valentine primarily would petition Christ to increase man's love for God and secondly to transform man's inimical instincts to Christian charity for all.

Mankind, staggering badly beneath the crushing blows of Mars, certainly should drink deep this divine well of love.

Jealous hate, chronic ailment and the chief deterrents of humanity reside in man's heart, the same place where the heavenly virtue of love and charity should dwell.

In proportion as the one gains so the other loses its place in the human heart. The existencce of one prohibits the simultaneous existence of the other. With God's help men could make sure that love dwelt there.

—W. N. W.

Think

THINK, student of Villanova. Think back to those Thursday and Sunday mornings when you have been present at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass in the Villanova College Chapel.

A stream of 'dignified' college students comes running out of the chapel as if they were pursued by the devil himself. Pushing, shoving, fighting their way forward that they may be the first to enter the dining hall.

Think, students of Villanova, THINK. Not only does this reflect on your characters as grown-up college gentlemen, but it may also result in injury — either to yourself or to another. If you wish to break a leg or an arm, keep it up; if you wish to act like college men and preserve your limbs, then walk from the Chapel to the dining hall.

Index of Prohibited Books Protects Faith And Morals

Church Regulation, Natural Law, Both Necessary For Catholics

By REV. JOHN R. DUNNE, O. S. A., M. A.
Instructor, Social Sciences

FOR many persons, the words "Index" and "Inquisition" convey or connote a sense of horror and oppression. For many Catholics, there exists in connection with these words a sense of shame. A false shame, it is true, because it arises from either misinformation or misconception. Nevertheless, these individuals are content to avoid any discussion of these topics, for they are obsessed with a vague fear of something or other being introduced about "things not being as they should" back in the Middle Ages.

As far as the Inquisition is concerned, historical truth has cleared up many of the misconceptions about it and it is usually dismissed as a thing of the far-distant past.

This is not the case in reference to the Index, and timorous individuals are quite troubled when they as Catholics are censured about a prohibition of their liberty and intelligence in regard to their reading.

The Index simply means that there are books listed that Catholics are not permitted to read without special permission. There is, then, an Index of Prohibited Books. That is a fact. But why is ther a prohibition for Catholics in regard to their reading?

Reasons for an Index

In view of the fact, there must be some basis for such prohibitive legislation on the part of Holy Mother Church. If we Catholics would realize that there is other legislation at the foundation of the ecclesiastical legislation, then we could give a simple, yet satisfactory, answer to inquiries as to the necessity, scope, and purpose of the Index.

Everyone, ethically speaking, is limited in doing whatsoever might not corrupt his morals. Such limitation is set by the natural moral law. Limitation on our reading then is determined not only by Church prohibition but also by the natural moral law.

The Church, to protect her subjects in faith and morals, does no more in her prohibition than to point out the danger lurking for them in works subversive to their faith and morals. She, in her age-old, vast experience, knows the majority of her subjects would not recognize this danger, owing to their unfamiliarity in general with unbelief, superstition, and immorality.

This is not to be considered something strange, odd, or an impairment of the Catholic's freedom. Any reasonable individual would certainly admit of the State's right to a prevntive censorship in regard to Literature dealing with fraudulent practices, or pornographic in nature. Federal censorship at times may prohibit the publication or distribution of seditious works, and that same reasonable individual would not consider such an act an impairment of the freedom of the press.

Necessity for Censorship

Historical fact has always and amply testified to and confirmed the necessity of preventive censorship. Likewise, it has verified the right of the State to enjoy and enforce this function. The Church, then, which by Divine right is the guardian and teacher of the faith and morals of her subjects, like the State, enjoys the right to point out whatever is dangerous or subversive to the good of society. Surely then, she may indicate the poisonous weeds to be found among the flower of world literature.

An objection may be raised at this point. That is all very well for Catholics. The faithful are subject to the authority of the Church, hence their publications are likewise subject to it. Being subject to the Church, all Catholics owe obedience in whatever refers to their salvation. By what right, however, may the Church legislate regarding the works of non-Catholics?

The Law Defined

Canon law (Canon 1384) answers this by distinguishing between previous and preventive censorship. It states "that the Church has the right to demand that the Faithful shall not publish books which she has not previously approved by her judgment. She also has the right to forbid for a just reason books published by 'anyone'."

The first part of the law refers specifically to Catholics alone; the second part vindicates the right of the Church to prohibit any or all books which she holds to be objectionable.

Catholics should not, however,

movements in world history that have from time to time injured the faith or the morals of different people in world history or are works that in general teach ignorant or superstitious practices.

The Moral Law

The natural moral law governs our reading in regard to all books not specically mentioned in the Index if these books would undermine faith or morals. The natural moral law is far more extensive, naturally, but more flexible insofar as it permits conscience to guide according to circumstances and conditions, since the reading of a particular book might be harmful for one person and harmless for another.

This does not mean that books professedly evil or obscene can be read with impunity, but that the Index indicates for Catholics those books listed out of the millions published, which for the majority would certainly be dangerous and feel that if a book is not on the Index they are therefore free to read it. Books on the Index, generally speaking, are works of a philosophic nature dealing with harmful because of the false doctrines taught in them.

Holy Mother Church in putting books on the Index does not have the intention of repressing literature and literary activity, but of repressing moral evil. Always and ever has the Church been a patron of literary art and has encouraged letters, but never has she failed to censure pagan sensuality, nor to denounce sin disguised as Fine Art.

Clement Dinon, Former Co-Editor of "Engineer", Aims At Success In Stone Contracting Business

Versatile "Plugger" Counts Four Committee Positions Among Achievements

By THOMAS A SULLIVAN

'Tis said that music hath charms, and no better proof of this is found than in the fact that, sooner or later, all day hops are attracted to the Pie-Shop's recording machine. If you are searching for a certain day-hop, the best method of finding said student is to keep an eagle eye on this mercenary music box during the lunch hour.

In accord with this rule, your reporter ambled down to the Pie-Shop last Wednesday at noon, ensconced himself in one of the better booths, and trained his optic on the aforementioned machine with the hope of seeing the subject of this column, one Clement F. Dinon, senior civil engineer.

Appears on the Scene

Luck was with us on that particular day, for, before too many moments had gone by, the object of our search, a tall, bespectacled, wavy-haired fellow, came into view. Having drawn this Dinon fellow, together with his pipe and slide rule, away from the musical siren, we led him to a side table. After explaining the purpose of our mission, we began a lengthy interrogation that resulted in the following revelations.

On Dec. 17, 1917, a day when most of the world was steeped in gloom because of the Great War, a bit of happiness entered into the home of the Dinon family in South Philadelphia with the birth of Clem Dinon, who was destined to be the only offspring.

Early History

After a few years of "growing up," Clem enrolled at the Notre Dame Academy, located at 19th and Lucas Sts. (Still in Phila.) While there, he was a member of both the basketball and football squads and developed a love for sports that still holds.

Upon leaving Notre Dame, Clem entered Upper Darby High, the family having moved out to Drexel Park. While in attendance at this school, he decided to give up his participation in interscholastic sports in order to cultivate more fully his talent as a pianist. Our hero's prowess on this instrument led him to attend the Delaware School of Music and Comb's Conservatory of Music during his years at U. D.

After graduation from high school, because of the fame of Villanova's engineering school, and on the recommendations of several adult friends, our Mr. Dinon turned his footsteps toward the portals of Mendel hall.

Very Busy Man

In his initial year on the campus, Clem became a member of both Phi Kappa Pi and A. S. C. E. and also joined the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN. During his soph year he assumed no new duties but in his junior year he really began to roll.

During that year, Clem was a member of the P. K. P. Dinner-Dance committee, the Blazer Ball committee, and was chairman of the A. S. C. E. trip committee and the P. K. P. bowling committee. He climaxed these activities by being appointed co-editor of the Villanova "Engineer" with Joe Gallagher. In his senior year, he has also become a Student Council member.

During his summer vacations, our versatile "interviewee" works for his father, who is a draftsman, estimator and a partner in the United Marble Company.

A Real Plugger

Clem admits that he never made an honor roll or won prizes for scholastic endeavour, saying, "I'm not the intellectual type, but I work hard." Which statement reminded your reporter that pluggers usually have a habit of getting ahead.

After graduation next June, Clem hopes to become connected with a large engineering firm, in order to get training so that he may some day enter the marble and terazzo contracting business for himself.

Not a Woman Chaser, But—

With a little coaxing, we brought to the surface the fact that C. F. Dinon has "one girl," whom he escorts to all the campus socials. The miss in question formerly lived in Upper Darby but recently moved to Rochester, N. Y. (By some odd coincidence, Clem spends his vacations in the same city.)

Knowing that our subject was interested in music, we popped the time-worn question concerning favorite orchestras before making our exit and found that Clem, who like swing music when played correctly, favors the works of Tommy Dorsey and Hal Kemp. In the classical field, he prefers Beethoven, Schubert, and Mendelssohn.

After thus drawing him out, we permitted our victim to go back to the company of his fellow engineers, Eddie Kirk, Matt Basow, and Len Pompa (whom Clem "likes to ride"), and made our way back to teh VILLANOVAN office in order to pound out this biography of a man who seems headed for success —Clement F. (for Francis) Dinon.

PKP Initiation Effects Linger On; Pledges Describe Eventful Night

Comments of New Members Reveal Methods of Anticipation and Actuality

By THOMAS C. MURASKI

In an interview with several newly initiated freshmen members of the Phi Kappa Pi, fraternity, I found that even though the soreness acquired during the initiation has worn off during the lapse of a week, the memories still linger.

Not all of the pledges seemed to agree on what was the most memorable event of the evening, for that query brought a variety of answers.

It seems that the first course of their entertainment was a trip down the length of one of the halls, with the angle assumed, and amid a barrage of encouragement (it was not all in the form of words either). Joe Tobin thought this was the worst of his experiences. He said that he "did not like crawling the length of the hall on my belly."

Confused Stories

The stories of what happened after this were rather confused, but the majority agreed that the effects of the electric storm were more disastrous than those of the spring rains. Jim Farley said, "Those fellows must have thought I was a electric cell. They certainly tried to build up my voltage." Frank Regan remarked that he felt like one of Professor Haenilsch's electrons. Steve Gasparovic plans to hire himself out as a power station "after a most schocking experience." Arnold Roberts did not seem to mind the shocks, but he said, "I would not wan to pay the electric bill."

It seems that most of these shocks were received from an electrified president's hand, and an electrified chair and wrestling mat. Ed Manderfield could not decide which one was the worst. On the other hand Ed Elman, refering to the spring rains, said, "It was a most Democratic gathering —all Wet."

Traditional Paddling

Of course, no initiation would be complete without a few paddles to remind one of just what has happening. Tom Dolam was speaking of these reminders when he said, "they must have thought I was a canoe from the paddling I got." Joseph Krzyzosiak had the solution all figured out when it was over. he said, "I would not want to pay turned pink."

Art Lyness said, "It was the most fun I've had in a long time, even though it was the biggest shock in my life. I consider the Phi Kappa Pi the "tail" blazers of fraternities. We're not saying who the fellow was that wore four pairs of pants, but Denis Boyle reports "I found out 'honesty is the best policy' much to the chargin of my posterior anatomy."

This was Reno White's first initiation, and he said, "It was fun, but not as much fun as next year's will be. I hope!" Louis Schappert thought that the initiation could be defined "as two hours of suspense and anticipation." Alfred Geiling agreed with him, for he said, "from the weird tales circulating around the school, I expected the worst to happen. Some fellows even reserved beds in the infirmary."

Paul Gallagher would like to know "what blood relation was following me around and giving me a beating?"

X9 Fails To Enjoy It

All the fellows said that it was the most fun they've had in a long time, and, by the time everything was down and digested (yes, they had a sumptuous banquet), they were all enjoying it. Dick Heckler said, "not all enjoyed it, especially not 'X9'."

It seems that "X9" is a certain sophomore who missed his initiation until Tuesday afternoon when several freshmen furnished the entertainment. Bert Collins thought highly of the fellows. He said, "the fellows were very generous; they were willing to give you everything they had."

"A Wish"

Joseph M. Gambescia

Sometimes I sit and wonder
Of things that might have been—
How the dreams of men have crumbled—
And I hope it's not a sin

To wish that my dreams won't tumble
As they've reached their very height
And that where others have seen darkness
Through that darkness I'll see light.

The light of hope, the light of cheer,
That comes of dreams fulfilled,
The light of hope, the light of cheer,
That nothing else can chill.

And when I've gone to the great beyond
And I'm laid to eternal rest,
I'll go with a smile and a feeling
That here I've done my best.

A meeting of the Mathematics Club will be held today at one o'clock, at which time a program for the second semester will be arranged. Professor Emil Amelloti, moderator of the society, will appoint a committee to draw up a charter for the society.

A number of students, both freshmen and upperclassmen, who are eligible for membership in the society will be asked to join within the next week or so.

RESEARCH SEMINAR VIEWS INSECT LIFE IN MOTION PICTURES

Careers of Butterfly and Spider Traced in Films Before Group

By JOSEPH GAMBESCIA

Due to the generosity of John Nieman, Jr., who was instrumental in obtaining various moving pictures, and J. Eugene Nelson, whose lecture and the pictures, both sophomore science men, the Research Seminar begins the new semester with a well-attended meeting.

The pictures, which were shown last Wednesday, were on butterflies and spiders.

Lecturing with the movies, Nelson stated that there are about 600 hpecies of butterflies in the United States. There are four cycles in the absorbing life cycle of all butterflies; the first stage is prepared by the adult female butterfly, who lays the egg. This is the egg stage.

The Larvae Stage

After about four days the egg hatches, and the second or larvae stage is reached. In this stage the larvae emerges in the form of a young caterpillar which eats its way out of the shell. The principal food of the caterpillar is the leaves of green plants. After satisfying its hunger it prepares for the third, or pupal stage.

In this stage, the caterpillar spins about itself many thin, silken, threads. It gradually becomes encased and forms what is called the chrysalis. After approximately three days the chrysalis wiggles out of its case. Here the wings and antennae are crumpled up, but the body juices soon enter into them and gives them life. This requires about an hour. Thus the chrysalis becomes a butterfly.

The pictures of spiders included the nursery web spider, the orb web spider, the funnel-webb spider, and the trap-door spider.

The male-nursery-web spider is usually somewhat smaller than the female. In mating the male spider procures a "gift" for the female in the form of an insect wrapped up in silken strands. This he offers to the female.

After mating the female weaves a silk cocoon and fills it with eggs. The latter binds together several leaves to form a platform and upon this platform she straps the cocoon, exposed to the rays of the sun.

After hatching, the spiders remain in the cocoon for some time under the watchful and protecting eye of the mother. About five days later the mother leaves, and the young spiders depart from the cocoon and are on their own.

Nelson and Nieman will continue their presentation at the next meeting of the seminar. The next meeting will be held tomorrow at 4:00 P. M. in Simpson Hall.

To The Winner —

The St. George Cup, pictured, will be awarded to the Victor of the First Catholic Glee Club Contest. This will take place at the St. George Auditorium in Glenolden, Pa., Thursday night, Feb. 22. The participants will be Villanova, La Salle, St. Joseph's, Immaculata, Chestnut Hill and Rosemont Colleges. Dancing to the Villanovans Orchestra will follow the presentation of the cup.

C & F Fraternity Has Nominations; Charter Approved

First Meeting For Reorganization Takes Place After Constitution O.K.

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, Vice-President, sanctioned the reformation of the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity of the School of Commerce and Finance this week when he placed his stamp of approval upon the recently uncovered constitution of the fraternity.

The first meeting for the reorganization of the society was held yesterday in the Mendel amphitheatre at which time the nomination of members was held. All members of the sophomore, junior and senior classes were invited to attend and to make application as charter members of the fraternity. These applications are subject to the approval of Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Dean of the Commerce school, the Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., chaplain, and Fr. Albers.

A program for the future activities of the group is being drawn up and will include scholastic, religious and social undertakings. Tentative plans call for the receiving of members of the Freshman class at the end of the first semester.

Agitation for the rebirth of the C. and F. fraternity has been going on for several years. It reached a climax this year when, mainly through the efforts of George J. Flannery, Jr., junior commerce student, the old constitution was brought to light, and turned over to Fr. Albers for his approval.

"The Tavern"

gagingly unique in the fact that there is an idiot and a mad woman whose crazed antics should steal the show.

It cannot be stated that there is a central plot to the play, for each dramatic incident depends upon others for support. Of the three plots involved, the first one is that of the love of the innkeeper's son for the hired girl. Complications arise here with the father's desire that the son obtain a wife having money. The son retorts "I'll never marry except for love." (They said the same thing in the colonial days.)

The second plot is the entrance of the governor's party to the tavern after having been way-laid by robbers. Here we have another love affair, and the real personality of the vagabound appears, especially to the governor's daughter.In this plot and scene we have one murder and the capture of the robbers, the most exciting part of the play.

The play closes on a conventional note.

ROSEMONT FETES CHORUS

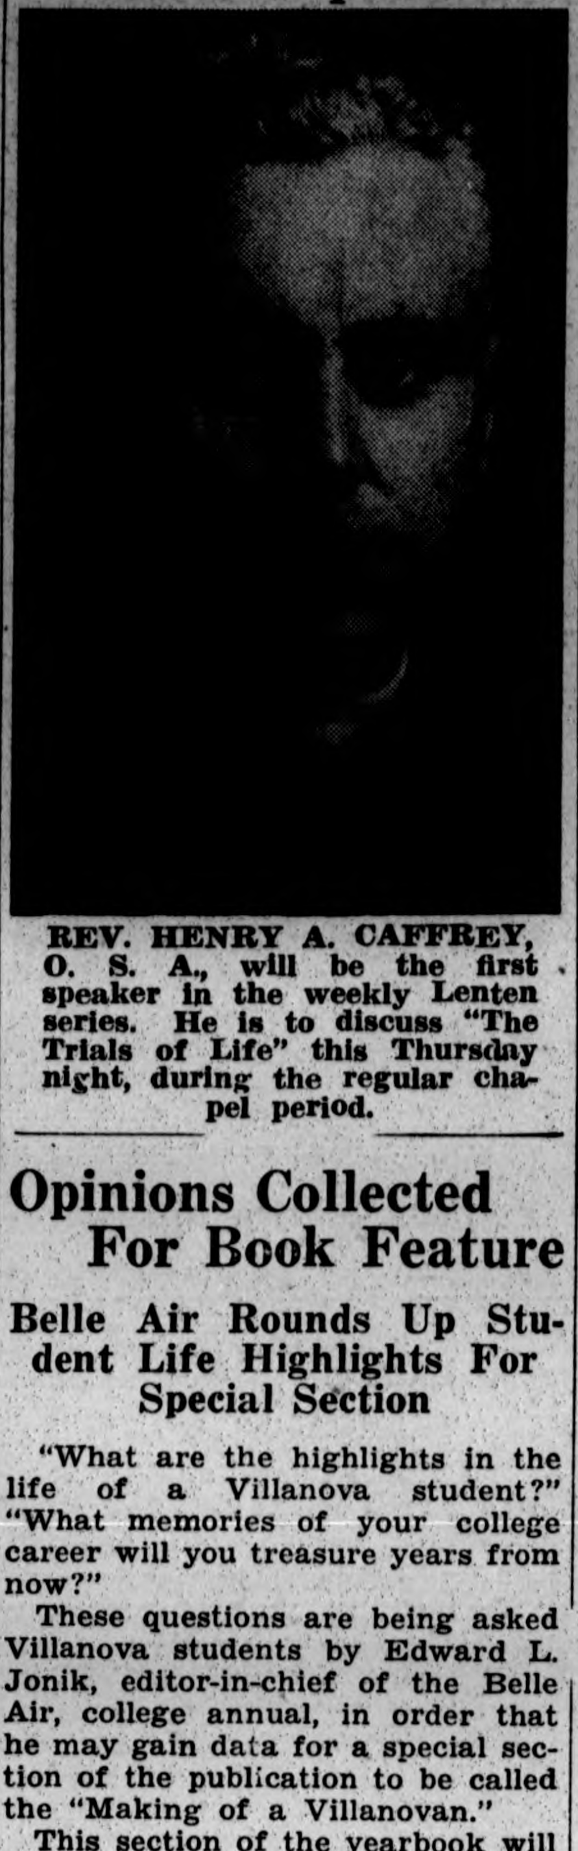
The Villanova-Rosemont Chorus, having completed its activity for the first school term, was entertained at Rosemont College on Monday night, February 5.

Dancing to popular recordings and a buffet lunch were the principal features of the entertainment.

Prominent opera singers were originally scheduled to provide entertainment, but, because of uncontrollable circumstances, they were unable to attend.

This was the first such social gathering of these two clubs and the members hope that its success will further the relations between them.

Lenten Speaker



REV. HENRY A. CAFFREY, O. S. A., will be the first speaker in the weekly Lenten series. He is to discuss "The Trials of Life" this Thursday night, during the regular chapel period.

Belle Air Rounds Up Student Life Highlights For Special Section

"What are the highlights in the life of a Villanova student?" "What memories of your college career will you treasure years from now?"

These questions are being asked Villanova students by Edward L. Jonik, editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, college annual, in order that he may gain data for a special section of the publication to be called the "Making of a Villanovan."

This section of the yearbook will contain a pictorial parade of the events that stand out in the average student's career from the time of his registration as a freshman until graduation four years later.

Pictures have already been snapped of virtually all the phases of Villanova college life in order that this section will be entirely complete. However, lest some important diea be omitted from the "Making of a Villanovan," the Belle Air editor has issued a call to all students for suggestions as to just what this portion of the book should include.

EPT DISCUSSES IDEA OF INTER-FRATERNITY SPORTS

Officers of Epsilon Phi Theta, arts and education fraternity, held an important meeting yesterday at 1 P. M. in room 110, Mendel hall.

Discussion centered around the possibility of arranging inter-fraternity athletic programs for the present season. Basketball and bowling were the principal sports considered, and it was hoped that schedules could be drawn up for these activities.

It was pointed out that inter-fraternity athletics would not only serve as recreation and pleasure, but that it would also foster acquaintances and make for subsequent friendships which would aid in the effort to bind the fraternities in a union of common brotherhood.

Plans for the fraternity's dinner, which is to become an annual affair, weer also disclosed. The society, before adjourning, contemplated the structure and design of the seal which will be engraved on the gifts presented to the senior members on this occasion.

BOOK CLUB MEMBERSHIP WIDENED BY NEW POLICY

The Book Club, recently revived in the effort to arouse interest in current publications, is now extending to literary enthusiasts heretofore excluded from membership an opportunity to join the club.

Due to new extension policy, whereby additional members will be received into the organization, students are invited to apply to Arthur Somers, room 235, Austin hall, for admittance into the society.

The club, formed solely for the interests of the student body, has certain financial requisites which are, in turn, compensated for by the privileges the members enjoy. An admittance fee of fifty cents is required. This sum is utilized to purchase new books and to thus increase the circulation of the books of the club.

Books which the club contemplates ordering are: Gassner's "Twenty Best Plays of the Modern American Stage,"

Jones to Organize Freshman Debaters

Year's Schedule to Hinge on Pending Contacts With Local Colleges

Freshman debaters, under the direction of Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., M. A., met last Thursday to hold their first meeting of the current debating season.

From the 14 students present at the meeting, Loring A. Jones, commerce student, was elected secretary of the team. To him falls the task of forming the 1940 schedule, which will be completed within the next few weeks.

In the interim before the season starts debates will be held weekly between members of the organization. This practice will enable them to obtain experience in debating procedure.

At the next meeting, to be held in Room 110, Mendel, on Thursday, Feb. 15, Jones and Charles Callahan, presenting the affirmative, and Martin Langweiler and Ward Guncheon, supporting the negative, will debate on the Inter-Class Debate Resolution, Resolved: That the United States Should Follow a Policy of Strict (Economic and Military(Isolation Towards All Nations Outside the Western Hemisphere Engaged in Armed International or Civil Conflict.

All interested students unable to be present at last Thursday's meeting are asked to attend this informal debate and to present their names to the secretary for registration.

'APPROVAL' METHOD PROPERLY OUTLINED

There seems to be a lack of familiarity with the proper procedure to be followed in securing official approval of new candidates for offices committees, editorial staffs, and other positions. For that reason, the following information is published anew.

A list of student nominees or prospective appointees should first be typed in triplicate. The signatures of the moderator and the chief student officer of the group must be affixed to each of the three copies of this list. At the top of each sheet, the date of presentation and the title of the organization should appear.

The top sheet is to be taken to the dean to whose school the men pertain and then to the College Chaplain, who will strike off the names of those considered not worthy and will sign the sheet indicating that they approve of the men whose names still are listed.

All three copies of the list thereafter are to be presented to the Dean of Men for the action of the Board of Counsellors. The names of any who have been guilty of serious breach of discipline will be deleted by the Board. The two carbon copies will then be brought into conformity with the top sheet by the Dean of Men, who will then date and sign each sheet.

The three copies of the list of eligible candidates are then distributed. The top sheet is kept in the files of the Dean of Men for the records of the Board.

Yellowjackets Threaten Villanova Court Record

Game With Brown Saturday Night Finale of Three-Game Road Trip Through New England

By JIM HAUGHTON

From out of the wilds of Western Pennsylvania tonight come a pack of Waynesburg College "Yellow Jackets" to catch their first glimpse of the Quaker City area and make life tough for Coach Al Severance's blue quintet which engages in the seasons' busiest week.

After entertaining the Westerners at the local Field house this evening the locals pack their bags and travel on their annual New England swing. Thursday they do battle with Assumption College; Friday they meet with the strong Providence College; and Saturday they renew play with the famed Brown University quintet at Providence.

Sporting a record of eleven wins and two defeats the "Jackets" number among their victims Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh and Westminster. Only the Dukes of Duquesne and Washington and Jefferson were able to put a crimp in the style of Coach Frank Wolf's proteges.

SIMMERS SCORING THREAT

Leading this caravan of giants, three of whom are over six feet, is husky Bob Simmers who thus far has gathered 162 of his club's 528 points. This record leaves him third in the Pittsburgh area with eight more games coming up.

Waynesburg, itself, is a comparatively small college of only 400 students but has been making life plenty rugged for bigger rivals on the wooden way. Last season they tied Duquesne for top honors in th Smoeky City district and this year finds them right on the Dukes' tail.

Among other outstanding men to watch on the Orange and Black quintet are Jack Beisler, another ranking district scorer; George Anthony and Jack Beyer.

MEET PROVIDENCE

Thursday's opening of the duffle bag brings together two rivals after a lapse of one year. Moving on to Providence the Main Liners will meet the Friars for the second time this season, having defeated thm here, 41-18. Having the home court advantage the New Englanders should be a much improved aggregation.

The meeting with Brown brings together two old rivals who did battle in last year's N. C. A. A. Tournament with the locals com-

SCHEDULE, RULES CHANGES LISTED FOR '150' FOOTBALL

Players Must Make Weight; 'Cats to Open With Princeton

Taking cognizance of the dangers inherent in "making weight," the Eastern Intercollegiate Lightweight Football League has revised its regulations governing weights of players in the 150-pound League. The new rule, together with the round robin league schedule for 1940, was announced today by Henry W. Clark, director of athletics at Lafayette College and newly-elected president of the Lightweight League.

League officials, Mr. Clark said, regard the new rule as the final answer to the problem of overweight boys undergoing starvation diets, dehydration and exhausting physical activity in attempting to make weight. Further, he said, it is believed that by thus eliminating heavier boys from competition, the game will attract the lighter boys for whom it was designed originally.

The rule in effect during the past season required that a player weigh 151 pounds following practice two days prior to a game. This rule still remains in effect but has been amplified by another regulation requiring that both teams must weigh in together one hour to one hour and one-half before game time under the supervision of the game umpire. Any player weighing in excess of 154 pounds at this joint weighing in will be declared ineligible for the game and will not be permitted to appear in uniform.

The rule regarding the date when league teams may start formal practice also was clarified. This rule formerly stated that practice could not start until the last Monday in September. It was amended to read that practice shall not start until the third Monday before the opening game. No league contests are played before the second week-end in October.

Elected secretary-treasurer of the league at the same time that Mr. Clark was elected president, was Asa Bushnell, executive secretary of the Central Office for Eastern Intercollegiate Athletics. Mr. Clark succeeded George E. Little of Rutgers as president after having served as secretary-treasurer of the league with Mr. Little for the past four years.

The 1940 Villanova schedule follows:

October 11, Princeton at Villanova; 18, Villanova at Penn; 26, Cornell at Villanova; Nov. 2, Lafayette at Villanova; 8, Rutgers at Villanova; 15, Villanova at Yale.

"CLIPPER" SMITH ...Coasts to Coast

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes
Sports Editor

N re the athletic topic of most interest to Villanova this week we considered it best to forego our own comments in order that you might have the expressions of the main figures of interest involved in the resignation of "Clipper" Smith.

Father Albers' statement, made yesterday afternoon to the VILLANOVAN follows:

"We were suprised at the suddenness and unexpectedness of the resignations of the varsity football coaches. There had been no consultation of the coaches with the college athletic authorities previous to the presentation of the resignations on last Saturday afternoon. The Athletic Board has not as yet formally met to accept the resignations or to consider the applications of those who wish to fill the vacancies in our coaching staff."

Clipper Smith issued the following statement to Villanova students in an interview with the writer:

"My four years at Villanova have been of the happiest in every respect. The high enthusiasm of the authorities and the wonderful spirit of Villanova students coupled with the spirit of the football squad have forced me to love my surroundings. You can be assured that I have quite a bit of pain in the vicinity of the third rib at the thought of leaving Villanova."

"My liking for Villanova men has caused me to turn down numerous offers, many of which were most attractive. I have never wished to leave this section of the country and the many friends which I have in it. I am going to a small young school which is most progressive and I hope to help along in this progress."

"I wish the best of luck to my successor, whomever he may be and I am sure that he will find a grand football squad, which will play as it has in the past—good enough for the best of national recognition."

"For those who think that my leaving was planned in advance at the Los Angeles Coaches' meeting I wish to make it clear that I never saw a soul from Loyola at that time, and I had absolutely no idea of leaving the Villanova which I have grown to love."

"I wish to thank the students of this college for the

Smith's Resignation Stuns Campus by Unexpectedness

Coach Says He Regretted the Surprise Move But Found it Necessary; Hopes to Help Loyola Success on Gridiron

By JOSEPH A. BARNES
Sports Editor

With the final chapter of the year's best seller "Gone with the Clipper" having been written, signed, sealed, and delivered with the suddenness of a Georgia tornado last Saturday afternoon all Villanova has been set back in wonderment at the sudden turn of events.

The resignation, which was given and received with great regret by all concerned, terminated a four-year career for Smith as coach of the highly successful Villanova football team.

Smith expressed sorrow at his departure when speaking with the writer yesterday afternoon. He said that, although his relationship with everyone connected with Villanova was most agreeable, he has found it necessary to make the change. His complete statement appears in column three of this page.

SUDDEN AND UNEXPECTED

The Reverend Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics, whose complete statement also appears on this page, said that he was astounded at the "suddenness and unexpectedness" of the resignations of Smith and McNally, assistant coach who is going with the "Clipper.' According to Father Albers, there was no conference on the matter between Smith and the Athletic Board.

The resignation has not yet been formally acted upon by the Athletic Board, nor have any applications for the position yet been considered. It appears that Smith would be welcome to change his mind even now and withdraw his resignation, if this is done before formal meeting of the Athletic Board.

Meanwhile students are in a maze of wonderment as to who, what, when, and where! In the matter of a successor, although absolutely nothing official has been done, there is much student speculation.

Interesting last Saturday night was the reaction in the residence halls. At 6:15 almost every radio on the campus was tuned onto Kerby Cushing's sport talk. Kerby, former Villanova Publicity Director, seems to be this campus' favorite announcer and students refused to believe the resignation

BLUE BASEBALLERS TUNE UP IN DRILLS AT PRACTICE FIELD

Ten Twirlers Report for Opening Practice; Fielders to Follow Later

By BOB FUNABASHI

Doc Jacob's veteran trio of twirlers, Choquette, O'Leary and Nicholas stepped into their baseball paraphernalia yesterday afternoon, slowly discarded the aches and pains, then toed the mark for a long three-hour workout. Another assemblage of pitchers, numbering seven, also hitched up their pants, reached down for the resin bag and took turns in showing the Doc that the Wildcats will have plenty in the way of a mound staff, in their 71st campaign.

With one hurler gone from last year's ranks, that being Joe Desmond, who subdued Hank Borowy and the Rams in a nine-inning struggle, Doc Jacobs looks happily into his 19 game schedule, knowing there is an ample supply of pitching. Three southpaws and seven righthanders complete the pitching squad who were on hand for the initial meeting and future hopes are bright with only two seniors listed.

The opening game against Ursinus gives the pitchers plenty of time to unloose their fast balls and develop hidden talent which the Doc will bring out.

SQUAD TO REPORT

Next Monday, the rest of the diamond squad will report for indoor and outdoor practice, according to the conditions of the weather. The Freshmen will report after the Easter holidays, and after a lapse of a year a yearling team will be moulded together to face an eight-game schedule.

Probably the biggest worry for the Doc this year is the outfield. Lou Wannemacher, slugging center-fielder, will be missed for his long drives which made him the top slugger of the club. Nick Basca, George Balmore and John Donaghue seem to get the nod in the outfield bracket, which is usually known as a powerhouse trio. In the last meeting, 35 members reported themselves eligible for play, which means that positions are three and four deep. A possibility that second base and shortstop positions will be weaker than last year with Francis Crawley graduated is a notion of the Doc, but Woody Reitmeier and Mike Lazorchak will be undoubtedly a well cooperating pair in an air-tight defense.

The 71st season of baseball here at Villanova will bring out a tougher schedule with the number of home and away games equally divided. Wildcat adherents can fol-

Many Angles To Stardom

Watch For Teamplay in Order to Find the Great

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

IN AN EFFORT to convey information to observers and critics of the individual performer in any sport, it is well for us to pause here and to point out all the factors that are necessary to any sport and then to fit the man to the picture.

During the brief moment at hand, basketball is in the spotlight. In order that the naive and the "drug store coaches" may acquire a better appreciation of the factors involved in the game of the wooden way, we suggest that they scan the following points and forget the tabulated column of individual scorers that occupies such a high place in many minds.

Observe whether that "dead-eye" basketeer is a team player, or whether he is one who has good old "number one" in the front of his mind at all time.

Does our star possess the characteristics of leadership, cooperation, pleasantness, and encouragement?

Is he in there hustling and passing that pumpkin around with precision and accuracy (at the time that it should be passed around), or does he take his shots when men are set for a cut under the basket — and usually miss them? Most spectators miss the "boner" because their eyes are on the ball.

Does he pick up his man on defense, or does he loaf around and just ooze that spirit of indifference and self-centered egotism?

Watch him carefully under fire; does he hold his temper, or is he a hot-head who loses all self-control when the heat is on, with the consequent result of chaos to the team as a whole?

Does he carry out instructions, which are given not for one man but five, or does he make his own observations from his personal perspective and defend his actions with the erroneous philosophy of "the whole world is out of step but me?"

The next time you settle yourself on that balcony seat and light up that "stove" or "weed," focus your eyes on the backboard, take a gander at the boy who's snagging the sphere off the white surface, and find out what he is doing with it in his spare time.

Keep this axiomatic comment in the back of your head when putting the stamp of approval or greatness on a knight of the wooden way: "All is not gold that glitters."

If you make it a point to carry this handbook along with you, there is no doubt that you will qualify for any "hot stove league"; you will find that your observations and predictions will hit the mark pretty well.

Lincoln Beaten

Continuing their winning streak to 12 games, the freshmen basketeers completely dominated their contest with Lincoln Prep here Thursday night.

The Prep has won 12 games and lost six but were not worthy opponents for this excellent freshman aggregation. At half time the Cats were leading by nine points, the score being 19-10. They then added 23 more points to bring the final score to 42-29.

Ten Football Coaches In Twenty-Three Years

Villanova College has employed ten different coaches in the last twenty-three years of her football history. Harry Stuhldreher, who mentored the Wildcats from 1925 to 1935 had the longest term in office. The last five coaches have been Tom Reap (1917 to 1920), Allie Miller (1921-22), Hughie McGeehan (1923), Harry Stuhldreher, and the last, Maurice "Clipper" Smith.

Of the latter five Smith had the best record, 29 wins, four losses, and three ties. During his long span of service Stuhldreher won sixty-five games, lost twenty-four, and tied ten.

To Meet Penn

The frosh swimming schedule is being arranged as opponents' bids are being received. A meet with Penn Frosh is definitly completed for March 2, and one with Valley Forge is about to be completed. Ten or twelve colleges and high schools have been written to for meets but as yet only the above two meets have been completed.

Th freshmen are working out regularly and with a good deal of enthusiasm for a successful season.

Meet St. Francis

On Saturday the varsity swimmers will travel to Brooklyn to meet their old rivals, St. Francis College. For the past few years the "Widcat" swimmers have had one of the most friendly of rivalries with the lads from the "Big City" and the meets have always proved to be one of the best on the schedule.

INDOOR RECORD SET AS EWELL, PEACOCK BEAT MAHER IN '50'

Dash Done in 5 Seconds Flat; Relay Team Second

Suffering defeat, as a world record was set, Johnny Maher followed Barney Ewell and Eulace Peacock to the tape in the feature 50 yard dash at Convention Hall, Phila., last Friday night.

The mile relay team finished second to Seton Hall in the College relay, with Temple far behind in third place.

The new men making their debut in this meet made favorable impressions, but failed to cop any medals. In the high jump, Buddie Jones dropped out at 5'11". This man shows plenty of promise and will be heard from before this current board season comes to an end. The same also goes for sophomore Bill Carey and frosh Stan Nazian. Both these hurdlers looked good even in defeat and it's just a matter of seasoning before they start to go places.

In the 50, Maher suffered bitter disappointment when he failed to get a decent start. The race was too short for him to make up the footage lost as the gun went off.

Anchored by Johnny Maher, the mile relay remained in second place from the second leg on. Barney Bellew handed the baton to Pete Yankauskas in third place but with a terrific drive on his last lap, Pete breezed ahead of the second man and gave way to Bill Guiteras who held this position while making up a few yards on the leader. When Johnny got the baton he set out with a sensational burst of speed, and kept moving with the cheers of the crowd ringing in his ears. Maher did valiant work in making up at least half the deficit, but he just couldn't catch the Seton Hall pacemaker.

This Saturday night, Maher will again match his speed with his rivals at Madison Square Garden, while the Mile Relay takes on some noteworthy competitors in the College Mile Relay there.

With spring approaching, which means warm weather, the candidates will have more possibilities of practicing outdoors which the Doc prefers. The Freshman squad will be jointly handled by Coach Jacobs and will engage in practice sessions with the varsity, since there is no Freshman coach.

Swimmers Lose To Penn

Despite the starring performance of Walt Kelley, ace "Wildcat" sprinter, the Villanova natators lost a keenly contested meet to the University of Pennsylvania swimmers by a score of 45-30.

Kelley won the 50 yd. and 100 yd. freestyles in easy fashion, negotiating the distances in the fast times of 24.2 seconds and 54.6 seconds respectively. Not content with this, Walt later came back and swam a thrilling anchor leg on the 400 yd. freestyle relay team. In this event he started about four yards behind Penn's Jim Fiedler and finished the same distance ahead of him.

Another outstanding performance was given by sophomore Bill Hooper who captured the 220 yd. freestyle from Captain Sam Tator, veteran Penn tankman, and was just beaten out by this same Mr. Tator in the 440 yd. distance. In the 220 Hooper got out to a lead of several yards at the start, set a stiff pace, and maintained the lead to the finish. The dark-haired Hooper essayed the same feat in the 440 but Tator challenged him on the last two lengths. They both sprinted, and amid the shouts of the excited fans the Penn captain put on a little more pressure and crossed the line first.

Penn cleaned up in the breast-stroke and back-stroke events taking first and second in both. Frank DeLone covered the 200 yd. distance for the breast-stroke in 2.54.2 seconds and his teammate Tyson followed close behind, while Levick Tolan took the back-stroke honors for the 150 yd. distance.

Their other victories came in the 300 yd. medeley relay and in the diving event in which they got first and third places. Charles Timmins from Villanova took second.

In the matter of first places Penn led five to two. It was their all around strenght that spelled defeat for the "Wildcats."

Dayhop Loss Moves Fedigan Into First-Place Tie

By WALT BROWN

As was expected, the three-week rest did some of the mural clubs good, since four of last week's five games were decisive victories. Tuesday afternoon Alumni defeated C. & F., but C. & F. turned around on Thursday and trounced the Mendel Residents.

The Gigolos from Fedigan won two decisive victories last week over the Mendel Day Students on Tuesday and Alumni on Wednesday night. The other game of the week was a close one in which Austin eked out a victory over the Mendel Residents in a very rough game.

The sixth game scheduled between Austin and the Mendel commuters was won by Austin on a forfeit. However, this was the first time that the commuters have forfeit a game in over two years.

C. & F. LOSES

In the first game of the week, C. & F., the former league leaders, dropped a tough game to second-place Alumni team, 42-32. The score at the half was 21 all, but the second half was all Alumni when they outscored the commuters 21-11. J. Brown led the winners with 15 points on seven field goals and a foul while Don McGurk paced the losers with four field goals and a foul.

In the first game Tuesday evening, Fedigan jumped away to a good lead of 18-5 in the first half and merely coasted through the second half to win the game by the score of 40-23. Bochetto and Depersio each scored ten points for the winners and losers respectively. The wind-up game on Tuesday evening was the thriller of the week. After trailing at the half 17-14, Austin turned the tables in the second half and defeated the Mendel Residents, 37-34. It was a rough game, each team committing ten fouls. The game could easily have been won by the Mendel Residents on fouls, since they converted four in 13 tries; while Austin got five out of eleven. Keating won scoring honors in the game with 13 points, eight coming in the hectic second half.

The games originally scheduled for Thursday evening were moved up to Wednesday, because of the varsity basketball game on Thursday. In the first game, Fedigan trounced Alumni, 36-21. Fedigan lead, at the half, 22-6, and just matched Alumni point for point in the second half. The second game was won by Austin from the Mendel Day Students, on forfeit.

On Thursday the C. & F. returned to the winning column by trouncing the Mendel Residents, 47-24. They, likewise, needed only to coast through the second half after leading 30-11 at the half. It was "sweet revenge" for the defeat they took on Tuesday.

This week's games were the ones originally scheduled for October 6 and 8. Tuesday will see C. & F. meet the Mendel Day Students, Austin face Fedigan, and Alumni battle the Mendel Residents. If C. & F. win, they will retain first place. A loss can drop them no lower than third. This is likewise true of Alumni, which is now tied with C. & F. for first. Should Fedigan win, it would be possible for them to move to first if all the teams above them lose. If they lose, they will drop no lower than third. If Austin or Mendel Residents win, they can move to second, but if they lose, it is impossible that they drop any lower than a tie for fifth place. A win or loss would not move Mendel Day Students out or last or a tie for last place.

Other games this week will be between Austin and C. & F. on Thursday afternoon and Fedigan and Mendel Residents and Alumni and the Mendel Day Students Thursday evening.

Gadsby To Judge Bouts In Navy-Syracuse Meet

Ray Gadsby, present trainer, and former boxing mentor, has been invited by the U. S. Naval Academy to act as judge in a boxing meet between the Naval Academy and Syracuse University to be held next Saturday night at Annapolis.

With the idea in mind of maintaining the tone of the audience at intercollegiate boxing meets above that of the crowds at professional fights, the Superintendent of the Naval Academy has directed that officers attached to the station, midshipmen, and civilian instructors wear evening clothes.

Ray officiated at a similar meet at Annapolis about a month ago.

I-M Boxers

The response to the call for intramural boxers has not been sufficient, according to Father McKee. More pugilists are required if an interesting tournament is to be presented.

The previous date of the contest was changed so that more time could be devoted to training but a definite date has been established for March 4.

There is still enough time to enter the training classes held daily by Ray Gadsby and the Varsity team at the gymnasium.

The event was won by Alumni Hall last year with 11 points while Mendel followed with seven and Austin and Fedigan with six each.

The defending champions in their classes are Nat Di Petrillo, Frank Melograna, Charles Lozowski and Ted Galysh who fought a draw, Bill Piscione, Bill Mowen and John Brennan.

Fenske Says Cunningham Is 'Far From Being Through'

By JIM HAUGHTON

We're not claiming to be clairvoyant and we haven't been engaging in a seance with Thurston. But regardless of what the experts say don't believe them when they insist "Glenn Cunningham is through."

For take it from Chuck Fenske, "Any man who can run a mile in 4.07.4 is far from through. Glenn's still able to give the best of us lessons and while he may be slowing down, he isn't through.

Jim Haughton

These and other interesting facts were related to us by the Wisconsin graduate student shortly after he added the Pennac mile to his list of victories, but only by again fighting it out with Glenn.

"But to what do you account your recent success in nosing out Cunnigham these few month," we queried?

"Well, I believe I'm improving in my work. Especially within the past year. Last season I was much slower but now I'm satisfied with myself. Maybe it's because I'm getting older and am gaining more strength that I'm able to catch him at the tape.

"You see I'm only twenty four but I've been running since 1933. I've met Glenn about 25 times and won seven of these. So you see I'm still far behind.

"But don't you believe it that he's through. We may beat him on last second spurts but his timing is still the best any American runner has perfected.

After reflecting on the Pennac mile and reminiscing a bit on the other times we've viewed the Kansan run we still offer the inexpert opinion that within a few months the "master" will politely set the sports fraternity agog with a record breaking mile—and winning. When—we won't say. But late in June when the Princeton invitation mile has wandered off into the horizon of memories Mr. Glenn will have left a silent, but unbeatable attainment for all to match the peer who made track history in his last time at the post.

Among other interesting track visitors we managed to corral was Gregory Rice, former Notre Dame star. A quiet, unassuming lad the barrel chested Greg articulately related that his five feet, four inches of stature forces him into some extra duty.

"I guess my height and short legs give me an incentive to always keep ahead. Therefore it's necessary for me to get an extra stride which the taller men don't need.

"It takes me quite a while to warm up and the stuffy air has its effect too. You see I work for a South Bend electric firm and don't get much chance to train. But with a five day week I'm able to come east quite often and give Lash and Deckard a run.

As we viewed the two mile event that fact became apparent. Taking an early lead and keeping it for 22 of the 24 laps Greg's short strides caught up with him. As the taller men moved past him we began to think that if the little lad had been gifted with a few more inches it might have been "Greg Rice—instead of Tommy Deckard—winner of the two mile race."

Turning to the local side of the issue we find that Jumbo Elliot's lads didn't fare as badly as some would have you believe. Johnny Maher's 5.3 in the heat matched Ewell's heat time. Yet the final was a different story. To watch the slim Negro in action was a pleasure in itself and we all must admit he beat Maher decisively. Not being cynical, but when that 5 second flat record reaches the discussion room of the National Ass'n. it will probably bog down. Those solons are a bit cynical themselves and last years' Ewell-Maher record breaking affair was never officially recognized.

Few know it but the Jimmy DiCarlo who made up the fourth in the dash is the same youngster who'll carry the baton for the locals this Spring. Only a frosh, Jimmy was a Penn A. C. entrant. J. Nazian, another frosh, handled the high hurdle duties for the Rittenhouse Square club. With such youngsters still in the grooming stage the ancient Greek sport would move to new heights in the coming seasons.

Only one team, Army, has even come close to giving George Allen's lads any sort of battle. Numbered among their victims are Harvard, Boston University, Tufts and Connecticut.

Star and mainstay of the Brown quintet for the past two years is Captain Harry Platt, All-New England forward. In his sophomore year he ranked third to Hank Luisetti in national scoring with a total of 405 points. Last year he moved to defensive duties but still managed to chalk 207 points on the debit side of the scoring ledger. Assisting him in keeping the scorer busy is Jack Padden, a guard, who in his first season last year grabbed 179 counters.

BENEFITS OF STUDY SHOWN TO SEMINAR

Fr. Dougherty Tells Science Group of Success in Medical Schools

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the School of Science, urged the students of the science school to apply themselves to study, at the recent Science Seminar meeting conducted in Simpson hall.

Fr. Dougherty reminded the students that, though the spirit of Villanova and the Augustinian fathers is one of humility, it would not be in a spirit of "boastfulness or braggadocio to cite the accomplishments of Villanovans.

Quoting from a recent report of the American Medical Association, he pointed out that of "600 premedical schools in the country, only 80 have succeeded in sending more than 15 students to medical schools. In the past ten years Villanova has placed an average of 40 students in those schools."

In closing, Fr. Dougherty again urged the students to apply themselves to their studies because of the "honor to their parents and to Villanova."

It is planned to arrange any Villanova broadcast that is made so that the students, as well as the alumni, can take part in it, according to Mr. Keffer, the originator of the idea. This is desired both because it is felt that it will aid in making the students loyal alumni and because it is believed that the students have a right to take part in such a program.

Students Sought For Oratoricals

Murtaugh Gold Medal To Be Awarded Winner at Commencement Exercises

All students interested in partaking in the Annual Oratorical Contest for the Gold Medal for Excellence in Public Speaking presented by the Very Reverend E. J. Murtaugh, O. S. A., are requested to make their application to Mr. Frayne, Director, room 62 Mendel hall.

Applications are to be typewritten on index cards and are to include the student's name and class.

Instead of allowing the student to choose his own topic as was the rule last year, the theme has been definitely assigned. "The Catholic Church in American Democracy" will be the speakers' formal subject.

Immediate application for entrance is necessary as the beginning trial is scheduled for Wednesday, February 28, and the semifinals for Wednesday, March 13. The former will consist of three minute speeches and the latter of five minute speeches. All trials will be held in the Mendel Amphitheater. The present date for the final contest is Sunday, March 17, in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

GILLIGAN ANALYZES LABOR

Mr. William J. Gilligan, general superintendent of the Franklin Sugar Company, spoke to the members of the Sociology Seminar at their meeting held last night in Simpson hall on the topic: "Employer and Employee Relationships in Modern Business."

As general superintendent of one of the nation's largest sugar companies, Mr. Gilligan has traveled extensively, and, in his official capacity, he deals daily with labor and its related problems.

Mr. Gilligan is the father of the late William J. Gilligan, of the class of 1940, and firmly believes in Villanova although he obtained his degree in engineering from Lehigh University.

THREE HONOR ROLLS OF FIRST SEMESTER RELEASED BY DEANS

C & F, Science, Engineering Ratings All Based on Weighted Average System

Honor rolls for the School of Commerce and Finance, the School Finance of Science have been released by the Dean of each school. Following the release of the ratings in the School of Arts and Education, made known last week, they complete the college honor rolls for the first semester of the school year 1939-1940.

C and F

With the relase of the second quarter honor roll, the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., Dean of the School of Commerce and Finance, has announced that a new rating system has been adopted by the school.

The new system, which is already in use in the arts, science and engineering schools, is based upon averages in which students' grades in their subjects are weighted in proportion to the credit hours assigned to each. Under this plan, an A is worth 4 points; B, 3; C, 2; D, 1; N, E, and F, 0.

The number of points a student receives in each subject is multiplied by the semester credits that the subject is worth. The total of the points thus computed for all subjects is then divided by the number of credit hours that the student is carrying.

The ratings were computed quite differently under the former system used in the commerce school. An A counted 4 points; B, 1; C, 0; D, —1; E, —2; F, —4. The standings were then determined according to the total number of points

Freshmen Conduct First Trial Debate

Jones, Callahan Defend Negative; Longweiler, Ward Uphold Affirmative

Frosh debaters, under the direction of Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., M. A., held their first practice debate between the members of the organization last week.

The affirmative of the resolution, "Resolved: That the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation towards all nations outside the Western Hemisphere engaged in armed international or civil conflict," was upheld by Loring A. Jones and Charles J. Callahan, while the negative was defended by Martin M. Langweiler and Ward Guncheon.

No decision was given, but Fr. Sullivan expressed his satisfaction with the efforts of the speakers.

Jones, chairman of the debating organization, announced that negotiations had been made with Haverford College, St. John's of Brooklyn, and the University of Pennsylvania. Letters sent by the secretary to other colleges and universities are still unanswered, however.

RESEARCH SEMINAR HELD

Because of the postponement of last Wednesday's meeting, the Research Seminar will present tomorrow the same program that was to be presented last week.

The program will include motion pictures concerning beetles and the development of plant roots.

Discusion will be led by J. Eugene Nelson, sophomore science man; the pictures will be shown by John Nieman, 3d, also a sophomore science man. The meeting is scheduled for 4:00 P. M. and will be held in Simpson hall.

AUGUSTINIANS PLAN ANNUAL CARD PARTY

On February 5, the Augustinian priests, with Rev. Michael O.Donnell, O. S. The Priests in charge of committees were chosen and assurance given them that all could expect wholehearted support from others present.

The committees and those in charge were chosen as follows: Tickets—Rev. William Deacy, O. S. A., and Rev. Francis Diehl, O. S. A; Donation Books—Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A.

Tomorrow Gordon, Kelly and King of the engineering school will discuss matters of importance, along with Healy and Forkin of the school of arts.

There will be no meeting on Thursday because of the holiday, but "Town Meeting" will continue again on Friday, February 23, to hear Hushen, LaPorte, and Lynch, engineers, and Kopkins and Vogel of the School of Arts.

Science Fraternity Holds Initiation In Alumni Hall Gym

L. K. D. to Accept New Members; Pledges Asked to Report Promptly

Lambda Kappa Delta, fraternity of the School of Science, will hold its annual initiation of new applicants for membership tomorrow night at 7.30, in the Alumni hall gymnasium.

Those applicants who have been accepted for initiation are asked to report on time, so that the initiation can begin promptly. They are asked to bring with them pajamas, handkerchiefs, and a pair of sneakers, standard equipment for the fraternity's initiations.

The exact ritual of the initiation of the candidates has not been revealed, as the officers feel that it would only spoil the pleasure for the pledges if the period of anticipation were made less rigorous.

The initiation will be conducted by the present members of the fraternity, men who have had the pleasure of being on the other side of the paddle in former years.

Alfred Bongiovanni and Richard Martin, senior members of the fraternity, have been appointed by Charles Martin, L. K. D. president, to make the necessary arrangements for the initiation of the accepted applicants.

Martin will have the list of accepted applicants posted today.

SUMMER JOBS

Applications may now be filed for positions in summer camps. A personal interview is required before acceptance of the application is formally made. For application and further information see Mr. Slaughter in room 120, Mendel.

PROJECTOR AVAILABLE

A new motion-picture projector for the showing of sound films has recently been procured by the college. This projector is equipped with a high-powered amplifier which can be used in any of the classrooms or auditoriums on the campus.

Any college organization may obtain the use of this projector on application to Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., prefect in Simpson Hall.

LIBRARY TO EXPAND TO C & F BASEMENT

Approximately three thousand feet of shelving will be installed in the north room of the basement of the School of Commerce and Finance to make space for the excess books which the library has in its possession.

The books which are now in the college library and which the circulation list reveals have not been used by the students will be removed to this room, which will serve as an annex to the present building. Gifts and donations, plus the books which the library has purchased, necessitate this extension.

The shelves in the library are overcrowded and sagging, leaving no space for new books. It is to remedy this deficiency that the room in the commerce school was selected to house the twenty thousand books intended to be placed there. This additional space will provide for the current literary growth of the library for a duration of three years.

These books will be catalogued in the library, and, insofar as the room will be closed to the public use of the students, patrons desiring to consult these books will present the call number, author, and title to the attendant at the desk. He, in turn, will obtain the book from the stacks for them.

In the years to come, these stacks can be removed and installed in any new library building built. This move which the library has been forced to make, it was brought out, resulted solely from the insufficient space to quarter additional books.

ENGINEERING GRADUATES FILL OUT QUESTIONNAIRE

Quiz Is Based On Statistical Report On Alumni Since 1909

A statistical report on the number of graduates in the chemical, civil and electrical divisions of the School of Engineering since its establishment in 1909, has been completed.

From the data thus obtained, a questionnaire has been made up, and a copy sent to each graduate to fill out.

The results of the returns are expected to give a cross-section of the professions, occupations, and graduate work in which the majority of graduates are now engaged and are expected to be of benefit to present students of the engineering school as well as of interest to the alumni.

The results of the questionnaire are not expected to be in for a few weeks. The time consumed while the alumni fill out their blanks, as well as the time needed to compile the answers, will make this necessary.

CLIFFORD RANDOLPH NAMED TO POST OF BLAZER CHAIRMAN

Junior Commerce Student Will Supervise Traditional Sport-Coat Disposal

Clifford F. Randolph, junior commerce and finance student, has been appointed Blazer Chairman, according to an announcement released by Daniel J. Keating, president of the class of 1941.

This position entrusts him and his committee with the selection of the firm which will represent the college for the blazer contracts. The purchase of blazers, which is optional with each junior, will be made through the chairman in preparation for the Blazer Ball, held during Junior Week.

The style and model of the blazers will, in all probability, be the same as they have been in preceding years, a blue coat with a white seal or a white blazer with a blue seal, but as yet nothing definite has been determined.

Randolph has been quite a prominent figure during his three years at Villanova and has participated in many extra-curricular activities. He is at present a member of the Student Council, a post which he also held last year. He served on the Orientation and Sophomore Cotillion committees during his second year here.

For three years Randolph has been a member of the varsity golf team,and this season he is captain-elect.

The president of the junior class, Daniel J. Keating, urges all third year men to cooperate with the spirit of Junior Week and to meet their assessments. The back dues are needed if a first class name band isto be obtained for the Junior promenade.

Yearbook Samples To Be Exhibited

Bulletin Boards Will Show Pictures From Belle Air This Week

Sample pages of the Belle Air, college yearbook, will be posted on the bulletin boards this week, according to an announcement made yesterday by Robert G. Wilderotter, photography editor of the publication.

"The purpose of this exhibition is to give the students a preview of the work they can expect when the book is printed and to act as a reminder to those who wish to order copies," stated Wilderotter.

He continued, revealing that, "Among the pages which will be posted will be ones picturing such events of college life as Amateur Night and last year's Junior Promenade. By depicting on these large posters as many as twelve different aspects and scenes from these affairs, the Belle Air will capture the spirit of each and serve as a lasting reminder of the memorable events of college life."

James B. Scott, business manager of the yearbook, said, "I wish to impress upon the students the fact that there is but a short time left to take advantage of the special price of $5.00 per copy. Orders placed after March 1 will be taken only at the rate of $7.50 for each book."

EPT DISCUSSES PROGRAM

A meeting of Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity, will be held tomorrow at 1:00 P. M. in room 110, Mendel hall, in order to continue last week's discussion on the possibilities of arranging an inter-fraternity sports program.

The general informal opinion of the group sceemed to favor the Student Council proposed idea. However, there were suggestions made by attending members that the program of inter-fraternity athletics be limited to a specific few sports at first in order to permit of a more certain control by officiating chairmen.

Objection Overruled!

TO THE thinking American public events in Europe present a confusing picture. The latest move on the part of England only adds to this confusion. No one doubts that part of the British people are in sympathy with Finland's plight, and for that matter so is the average American citizen, but technically England is still on neutral terms with Soviet Russia although she is at war with Germany, her ally. It does seem a breach of this neutrality for the British to officially encourage Englishmen to enlist as volunteers to aid little Finland.

England will rightly claim that Stalin has no right to complain of this action since Red troops were fighting in the Spanish Civil War. That point rests.

England seems to be consistent in her policy of disregarding the rights of neutral policies when it repeats some of the activities preceding the War of 1812 in searching our unarmed merchant ships for contraband goods even though their destination may be a non-belligerent port.

This is a violation of international law, but, since during this second World War all principles of international law seem to have been waived aside "for the duration of the war", what action can our government take and to what can it appeal for precedent?

—A. J. D'A.

Respect For Tradition

THE evident neglect and refusal of this year's "centennial" class to comply with and abide by the regulations of the Orientation Committee with regard to the wearing of "regs" is responsible for the drastic action recently initiated by the student council.

The plan adopted would, in the future, exclude from campus organizations all freshmen who failed to fulfill this obligation. The "regs" are honored at Villanova, the wearing of them is a privilege. When a privilege is abused, it is natural that penalties be inflicated upon the guilty party. Exemption from participation in all local activities, it is felt, will curb this radical disrespect for tradition in future Frosh.

Another Enigma . . .

LAST Friday the general press issued an outline of the Roosevelt-Hull Peace Plan, which in the opinion of the chief executive, will insure the integrity of world peace in the future if adopted. The four points in the program are commendable, but the course of events followed by Congress, also within the last week, makes one provision seem absurd.

This provision provides for the freedom from the fear of aggression for small nations through the reduction of armaments. The Naval appropriation alloted by Congress to that department is for an increase in the maritime defensive program, although the sum asked for was cut down to a considerable extent.

The argument for this move insists that our country needs a strong navy to defend its shores . . . against a vague and theoretical possibility. Still another logical argument affecting the taxpayers' pockets tends to show the uselessness of arming further if the United States in showing her good will must at a future time also comply with this reduction of armaments and scrap millions of dollars of the people's money.

This brings to mind the thought that war-torn Europe would welcome a peace program sponsored by the United States, but it seems a contradiction of policies for our government to state the disarmament would ostracize war and at the same time allow its navy to expand in peacetime when most military experts agree that the possibility of aggression against this nation is most impossible.

Then, too, with what good faith can the belligerent nations accept such a proposal when they see that while the plan fosters peace, at the same time our Congress makes allotments of funds for military uses, no matter what the purpose may be?

—A. J. D'A.

Model For Presidents

NEXT Thursday the entire nation will celebrate the birthday of our first president, and inevitably with this event there are brought to mind the virtues and wisdom connected with George Washington. One of the most prominent qualities associated with him is that of the dignity he attached to the office of chief executive and the sacredness with which he held his position.

Because of the contrast, we are forced to think of the indiscreet action perpetuated by Mr. Roosevelt and the First Lady, whose activity last week concerning their relation with the American Youth Congress, which is admittedly an organization of doubtful purposes and which includes among its constituents Communistic groups, might be construed by some people as open support for the movement. Most probably it wasn't, but the fact that they deigned to recognize it as a representative group might lead to false conclusions.

At any rate it would do well for Mr. Roosevelt to emulate the qualities of Washington, with regard to the relative behavior of a president, by refraining from placing himself in circumstances, which, wrongly interpreted, might bring disrespect and contempt upon the presidency.

The N.O.D.L.—What It Is, Why You Should Support It

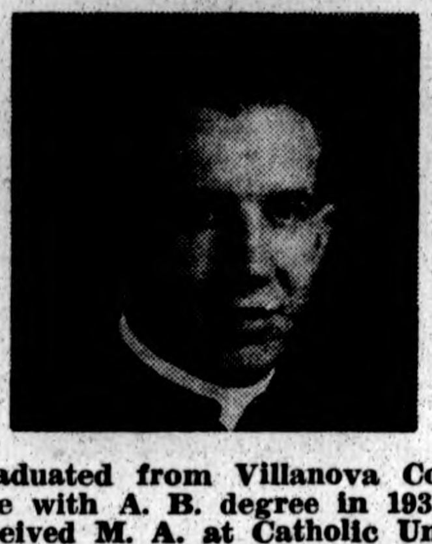
Lewd Literature, Printed Trash Has To Be Outlawed

By REV. JOSEPH I. BOYLE, O. S. A., M. A.
Chaplain

"THE N. O. D. L., what is it, Father?" was a query handed yours truly at the close of class the other day. Have you heard of it? Some months ago, the Catholic bishops of the United States began a concerted crusade against LEWD LITERATURE. The drive took form under the NATIONAL ORGANIZATION FOR DECENT LITERATURE. The movement has gained support with each week, not only from Catholics but from Jews and Protestants as well.

The Legion of Decency did its job some years ago on one battlefront—the Moving Picture. Now the old trouble has broken out on another line—the magazine counter. The condition is alarming. Today, our country leads the world in the publication and distribution of every sort of smutty reading matter.

Fr. Boyle



Graduated from Villanova College with A. B. degree in 1933; received M. A. at Catholic University in 1937; began teaching at Villanova in 1937; appointed chaplain of Villanova in 1938.

Growth of Indecency

More than four hundred magazines of the lewd type are on the American market. Three-fourths of them have appeared since 1930. As a matter of record, one hundred of the magazines printed here are banned in Canada. Badly beaten at the movie house, the unscrupulous dollar-chasers have cleverly turned to the magazine counter.

Dare but a glance at the array of reading selections on any drug store rack, railroad news-counter, or street corner stand, and you can catch a fair idea of the poison at hand for the minds of American youth. A recent U. S. Government pamphlet speaks plainly on the evil of obscene literature and pictures:

"If a boy or man frequently permits himself to look at suggestive pictures, to listen to vulgar stories, and to indulge in lewd thoughts, he brings about a mental condition which may lead him later into serious sin. Furthermore, such indulgence develops a low attitude toward sex, which ought to be associated with the finest and most beautiful friendship in life. The mind should not be made a cesspool, but a reservoir." Three cheers for a Government publication that does not hesitate to mention the word SIN.

"The Greatest Danger"

Edward A. Hayes, past National Commander of the American Legion, recently flayed the dirty stream of literature which is sweeping over the country as "the greatest danger to the morals of youth and the undermining of the American system."

Hayes charged, "the destructive force of obscene literature" had its most effective start in the hands of the Communist Party a quarter of a century ago. He warned that obscene literature is destroying not only the religious but the patriotic and moral stamina of youth, adding that it is the largest contributing factor to crime.

The N. O. D. L. is attacking its job in a systematic and practical way through House Bill No. 5757. The purpose of this bill is to identify the publishers of lewd literature. Most of these publishers try to conceal their identity and even the actual place of publication of their magazine. Says Bishop Noll, Chairman of the N. O. D. L.: "If they were forced to reveal themselves they would be too much ashamed to lend themselves to the production of filth."

This Bill, sponsored by the N. O. D. L. and introduced by Congressman George W. Gillie of Indiana, would make it a criminal offense for any publication to conceal the identity of its publishers, editors and owners, or place of publication. Violation would carry with it a maximum fine of $2,500 and imprisonment for not more than one year. Better known as the Gillie Bill, the bill has already unanimously passed the House of Representatives and is now before the Senate.

Non-Catholic Action

Non-Catholics as well as Catholics are behind the Gillie Bill. Professor Theodore Grabbner, of Concordia Lutheran Seminary in St. Louis, pledged support by the Civic Union of St. Louis when he wrote to Representative Gillie:

The worst fiction obtainable today in America is being distributed in publications which cannot be traced by any indication on title page or wrapper. In every case, the names and addresses are fictitious. As you well know, this material is being distributed by trucks, so as to avoid indictment under the federal law. Our organization represents some forty religious and civic bodies of St. Louis, and we are certainly with you in this fight."

From Our Fans—'To My Valenti—' Wow! This Hurts!

Anonoymous Author "Apes" Burns' Couplet in Sending Staff Timely "Greetings"

By THOMAS DOYLE, JR.

"VALENTINE, n., Something as an ornamental greeting of a sentimental, or by extention, comic character, sent, usually anonymously, on St. Valentine's Day," authoritatively states Noah Webster on one of the 1274 pages of his "Collegiate" edition.

From the Villanova viewpoint, Noah, you are absolutely correct. Greetings of "a sentimental . . . character" were both sent and, though in a much lesser extent, received by local lovers. Greetings of a "comic character" were also featured last Wednesday on the campus. It is in reference to this latter category of greetings, that we wish to comment; in particular, we wish to speak about a "greeting" received by the staff of this publication.

Comic (?) Insults

Quite a number of the ordinary run of comic valentines (standard price, one cent) were received on the campus. A notable collection was even posted in the Pie Shoppe, gently pointing out to students, indicated by name, such tendencies as striking tastes in the matter of selection of clothing, etc. But no "greeting," as far as we have been able to ascertain, was quite up to, or as low as, according to your viewpoint, the standard of the one smuggled into the desk of our head man, entitled "To the Staff."

Though the stated policy of the VILLANOVAN has been to refuse to print unsigned letters, this shall be given space because, as you say, Noah, a valentine is "sent usually anonymously."

The greeting in point was obviously one on which the writer spent a little effort, but one that could have been brought up to the standard of a masterpiece by much more thought and labor on the subject.

Punk Poetry

For poetry, as it may loosely be called, takes effort and inspiration to write; the composer of the following valentine may have had the latter, but he certainly did not spend the former:

"If I couldn't spell or write,
If I couldn't pen a line,
I'd be a newspaperman,
Like you, my valentines."

TO MY VALENTINE
"...as ithers see us"

So began the "poison-pen's" greeting. The poem, written on the back of the impertinent picture (reduced from the size of one and one-half feet by two and one-quarter feet), was scrawled in a musty red ink and suffered greatly from the writer's lack of Palmer Method lessons.

The next two lines, obviously an Irishman's translation from memory of Bobby Burn's couplet, were doubtlessly intended to harmonize with the subject of the picture:

"Sure, and if some wan the gift could gie us
To see owrsilves as ithers see us. . . ."

Even if the time were spent to have the rest of the long epic translated into words, it probably would be both a boring, uninteresing piece and a prejudiced one as well.

The only purpose of this apparently pointless article is to make a reference to St. Valentine's Day activities here and to ask the unknown author of "To the Staff," whoever he may be, to stop in the VILLANOVAN office so that he may be awarded the perhaps-to-be-established medal of "Villanova's Poet Laureate of the Year" with fitting ceremonies (!!!??!!!).

AS a result of the unexpected severe snowstorm last week, a number of day students found themselves stranded at Villanova, but, due to the courteous and friendly assistance of the college authorities and some of the resident students, all were provided with rooms in which to spend the night. There are probably many to whom this cold weather has an appeal, but they may take some consolation from the fact that it has been said "many are cold but few are frozen."

Work has begun on The Barry College for Women at Miami, Florida. This institution is named for Bishop Patrick Barry of Florida, and will be operated by Sisters of the Order of St. Dominic. It will be the first Catholic institution of its kind in Florida.

It may or may not be new, but this bit of humor, extracted from an issue of the Notre Dame Scholastic," expresses a thought which on more than one occasion has provoked an argument:

A man seeing another man swimming off the Folrida coast, yelled: "Hey, aren't you afraid of the sharks?"

Swimmer: "Heck, no, I'm tattooed."

Observer: "What's that got to do with sharks?"

Swimmer: "I've got 'Penn is the best college in Pennsylvania' tattatooed on my chest, and even a shark wouldn't swallow that."

COMMENT:

In a recent issue of "The Dartmouth," the one which dealt so extensively on the Winter Carnival, an editorial entitled "God and President Hopkins" struck this department's attention. Written satirically, the editorial, in story form, tells of a visit God made to Dartmouth's President Hopkins in an attempt to censure the licentious practices connected with the social week-end activities of various fraternities and loose students.

Although conscious of the intrinsic wrong of these doings, the president is represented as being unable to prohibit them, because of tradition, and, since it is impossible for God to condone them, "the college has gone to hell" for the week-end, no longer under the guidance of God.

This seems to indicate a tendency in education on the part of some American educators to be lax where the morals of their students are concerned, a condition which is most deplorable since its doesn't portend well for the future integrity of morals if undo tolerance on the part of those in responsible positions is shown to this so-called ultra-modern, sophisticated, irresponsible youth.

The Dreamer

WHEN I beside a fire am left to while
Away the slowly pacing steps of time,
And I, alone, discard the cloak of guile
Which blinds us mortals to this earthly clime;
When I can seek surcease from trivial things
In pipe and warmth and richness of old wine,
And thoughts elusively fantastic fly on wings
Of smoke, thin wisps of clouds so near divine,
I gaze into my glass and see therein
Dim visions long forgot . . . of deeds once done,
A face, a smile, a love that might have been,
A snatch of song that she was wont to hum,
These things bring comfort to a weary soul
Who shuns reality in dreamer's role.

Introducing 'Fitz' Philly Jitterbug In His Spare Time

Senior Artsman Relaxes Through Modern Terpsichore

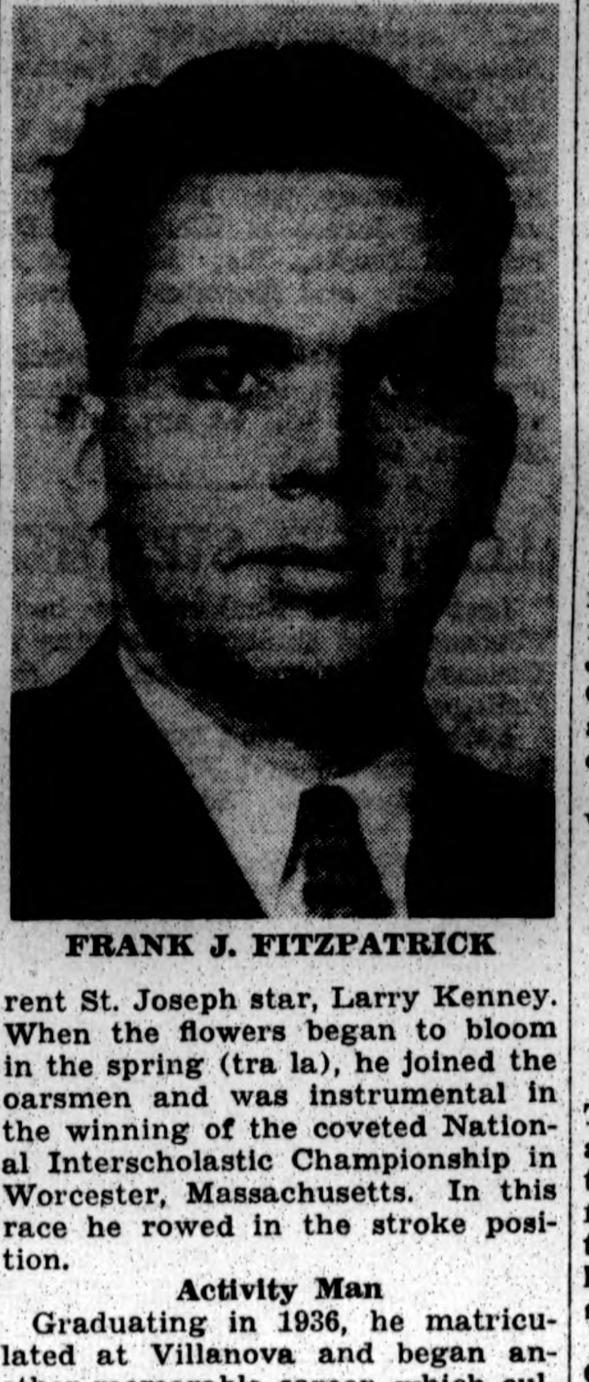
By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to introduce to you the man of the hour, the man of the week: presenting Francis Michael Fitzpatrick, senior in the School of Arts. This amiable, affable, fun-loving man-about-town first arrived on this mortal soil the night of December 10, 1918. His younger childhood days are hidden under the veil of obscurity. When we do find him again, it is 1932, and he has just completed his first eight years at the Academy of Mercy at Broad St. and Columbia Ave. in the city of Brotherly Love.

Football Hero

From here he entered North Catholic High School where he became an athlete of note and in his senior year he was made regular left guard on the varsity football team. This was the team that was captained by John "Buzz" Howlett, who at that time played quarterback. "Fitz" must have been good, too, for not only did his team walk off with the Catholic League Championship but their left guard also received honorable mention on the mythical All-Catholic eleven.

Not confining his activities to fotball he also participated in basketball and played against the current St. Joseph star, Larry Kenney. When the flowers began to bloom in the spring (tra la), he joined the oarsmen and was instrumental in the winning of the coveted National Interscholastic Championship in Worcester, Massachusetts. In this race he rowed in the stroke position.



FRANK J. FITZPATRICK

Activity Man

Graduating in 1936, he matriculated at Villanova and began another memorable career, which culminated in his appointment as Chairman of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee. This year he was appointed Co-Chairman of the Pledge Committee of the newly reorganized Arts Fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta. For three years he was a member of the VILLANOVAN staff and a feature writer.

Unleashing his thespian qualities he played a major role in "They Never Learn" which was produced one year ago by the Belle Masque society. In amateur night of the same year he "rolled them in the aisles" when he and Bill Guiteras went through a jitterbug routine.

A $ $ $ Jitterbug

Speaking of jitterbugging, we should mention that he has made it quite profitable for he has danced in most of the jitterbug contests held locally, and, dancing with Lydia Bingham, he walked away with some $500 all told. Peculiarly enough, however, Fitz prefers straight dancing to jitterbugging, and he claim the distinction of being the first person in Villanova to write his graduation thesis on Music.

Together with Barney ("the wind blew") Bellew and Bill Guiteras he has been a member of a triumvirate which has been in existence since grammar school days.

With graduation in the offing, Fitz has his eye on Temple and Penn Law Schools as possible places for continuing his education. Wherever you go, Fitz, you take along a choice section of the affections of all of us.

GETTING away from the role of "informer" to that of spectator," I would like to take this opportunity to publicly acclaim the members of the varsity basketball team for their victory over Waynesburg last Tuesday night. Facing a near-rout at the half, they did an about face and exhibited a brand of spirit and superb basketball seldom, if ever, seen here before. All those who packed the gym for the game had nothing but praise for Duzminski, Nugent, Yund, Sinnott, Lazorchak, Gray, Gerland and Co.. . . orchids, this week, to Coach Severance and his truly championship team! ! !

ITEMS HERE AND THERE:

Who said that spring was here? Enough snow has fallen to last for two winters, but it will probably lay on the ground for only another month. . . The makeshift "snow outfits" being sported on the campus during the past week are surefire competition for "Esquire" . . . "Tony" Anderson and Andy Melton leading the vanguard of snow removers last Thursday, followed by everyone who had a yen for the great outdoors and a few extra "pennies" . . . BARRET, SOMERS and REILLY frolicking in the snow at Rosemont with a few of the girl last Wednesday night (after seeing to it that their dates were safely "tucked away") . . .

The excitement caused by the appearance of one of the local "fire horses" on the campus one afternon recently—for a while it looked as though Alumni were on the way out but it was only a broken chain . . . BILL GARRITY having third strike called on him by the lady over the tracks and Johnnie Burke stepping in where he left off. . . "Rick" Frey hustling around trying to find the weather conditions existing in New Hampshire, no less, fearful lest he mightn't be able to make the "snow party" at Colby Junior College . . . Ed Bennis and Charlene Mork, the "goldust twins" at the recent Rosemont supper dance, are still going strong.

Why is it that I always meet

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

What has happened to the relations between the students of Villanova and the students of Immaculata and Chestnut Hill? It appears that the boys are a bit reluctant to travel any great distance for feminine charm.

They Who Eat In Dining Hall Fatten Figures

Statistics on "Vittles" Consumed Enough to Stagger Any Student's Imagination

By HOWARD A. McCALL

Gather around all you residential gourmets and hear my fantastic tale. You partake of victuals fit for a king, yet how often do you consider the source of these sumptuous feasts while musing over your luscious platter. Join me on a journey backstage; let us wander amid the devices behind the scene and visit the cafeteria kitchen.

Your delicious soups and stews are made in three steam kettles, called stock pots, which resemble inverted liberty bells and are capable of holding forty, fifty and eighty gallons respectively—sounds like enough "Mulligan" for a regiment.

Pastry Department

Probably the most popular utensil in this cuisine sanctuary is the oven. This impliment is responsible for the tasty pies and cakes which you relish so much. The three new ovens recently installed bake thirty-six pies and two-hundred cakes at one setting—quite a productive increase over the old ones which made exactly one-half this number.

A mechanical mixer, "Hobart" to you technicians, plays a leading role in the preparation of your meals. The cake batters are mixed here. A meat grinder attachment provides the initial site for those juicy brown hamburgers which are always a favorite. Your coleslaw, cabbage salads, and other such dishes are the work of a vegetable shredder attachment.

"We All Scream For ”

Hold everything! We almost forgot those two storage cabinets which house your ice cream. Forgive me; I can not understand how we neglected them. Gentlemen, if you accomplish nothing else while at Villanova, you at least have the unique distinction of consuming 120 quarts of cream per diem.

Breakfast must be quite a meal in your every day life at the college. Approximately 850 doughnuts enter hungry stomachs at this time. The two electric toasters turn out 1440 slices each hour, and the egg boiler, which is in use constantly during this period, cooks 36 eggs at a time. Incidently, this apparatus is automatically controlled and can be regulated for any cooking time between one-half and six minutes.

We presume from the information above that you resident students eat to live, but we assert upon the statistics revealed below that you also live to eat. A survey of the food consumed between September of last year and February 1 of this year indicates that you make eating a royal festival.

It is as follows: 117,800 cups of coffee; 10,350 pounds of sugar; 45,540 quarts of milk; 10,057 quarts of ice cream; 19,150 pounds of bread (we all realize that it is the staff of life, but. . .); 5,986 pounds of butter (quite exact, "aren't I"); 7,307 dozens of fresh eggs; 61,500 pounds of potatoes (what men we mortals

Looking deceptively ordinary and temperate on paper, the above location — stretching between the chapel and Lancaster Pike — is termed "Sub-Zero Lane" by many. This provision provides for the freedom from the fear of aggression for small nations through the reduction of armaments. The Naval appropriation alloted by Congress to that department is for an increase in the maritime defensive program, although the sum asked for was cut down to a considerable extent.

The argument for this move insists that our country needs a strong navy to defend its shores . . . against a vague and theoretical possibility. Still another logical argument affecting the taxpayers' pockets tends to show the uselessness of arming further if the United States in showing her good will must at a future time also comply with this reduction of armaments and scrap millions of dollars of the people's money.

This brings to mind the thought that war-torn Europe would welcome a peace program sponsored by the United States, but it seems a contradiction of policies for our government to state the disarmament would ostracize war and at the same time allow its navy to expand in peacetime when most military experts agree that the possibility of aggression against this nation is most impossible.

Then, too, with what good faith can the belligerent nations accept such a proposal when they see that while the plan fosters peace, at the same time our Congress makes allotments of funds for military uses, no matter what the purpose may be?

Model For Presidents

NEXT Thursday the entire nation will celebrate the birthday of our first president, and inevitably with this event there are brought to mind the virtues and wisdom connected with George Washington. One of the most prominent qualities associated with him is that of the dignity he attached to the office of chief executive and the sacredness with which he held his position.

Because of the contrast, we are forced to think of the indiscreet action perpetuated by Mr. Roosevelt and the First Lady, whose activity last week concerning their relation with the American Youth Congress, which is admittedly an organization of doubtful purposes and which includes among its constituents Communistic groups, might be construed by some people as open support for the movement. Most probably it wasn't, but the fact that they deigned to recognize it as a representative group might lead to false conclusions.

At any rate it would do well for Mr. Roosevelt to emulate the qualities of Washington, with regard to the relative behavior of a president, by refraining from placing himself in circumstances, which, wrongly interpreted, might bring disrespect and contempt upon the presidency.

The N.O.D.L.—What It Is, Why You Should Support It

Lewd Literature, Printed Trash Has To Be Outlawed

By REV. JOSEPH I. BOYLE, O. S. A., M. A.
Chaplain

"THE N. O. D. L., what is it, Father?" was a query handed yours truly at the close of class the other day. Have you heard of it? Some months ago, the Catholic bishops of the United States began a concerted crusade against LEWD LITERATURE. The drive took form under the NATIONAL ORGANIZATION FOR DECENT LITERATURE. The movement has gained support with each week, not only from Catholics but from Jews and Protestants as well.

The Legion of Decency did its job some years ago on one battle-front—the Moving Picture. Now the old trouble has broken out on another line—the magazine counter. The condition is alarming. Today, our country leads the world in the publication and distribution of every sort of smutty reading matter.

Fr. Boyle

Graduated from Villanova College with A. B. degree in 1933; received M. A. at Catholic University in 1937; began teaching at Villanova in 1937; appointed chaplain of Villanova in 1938.

Growth of Indecency

More than four hundred magazines of the lewd type are on the American market. Three-fourths of them have appeared since 1930. As a matter of record, one hundred of the magazines printed here are banned in Canada. Badly beaten at the movie house, the unscrupulous dollar-chasers have cleverly turned to the magazine counter.

Dare but a glance at the array of reading selections on any drug store rack, railroad news-counter, or street corner stand, and you can catch a fair idea of the poison at hand for the minds of American youth. A recent U. S. Government pamphlet speaks plainly on the evil of obscene literature and pictures:

"If a boy or man frequently permits himself to look at suggestive pictures, to listen to vulgar stories, and to indulge in lewd thoughts, he brings about a mental condition which may lead him later into serious sin. Furthermore, such indulgence develops a low attitude toward sex, which ought to be associated with the finest and most beautiful friendship in life. The mind should not be made a cesspool, but a reservoir." Three cheers for a Government publication that does not hesitate to mention the word SIN.

"The Greatest Danger"

Edward A. Hayes, past National Commander of the American Legion, recently flayed the dirty stream of literature which is sweeping over the country as "the greatest danger to the morals of youth and the undermining of the American system."

Hayes charged, "the destructive force of obscene literature" had its most effective start in the hands of the Communist Party a quarter of a century ago. He warned that obscene literature is destroying not only the religious but the patriotic and moral stamina of youth, adding that it is the largest contributing factor to crime.

The N. O. D. L. is attacking its job in a systematic and practical way through House Bill No. 5757. The purpose of this bill is to identify the publishers of lewd literature. Most of these publishers try to conceal their identity and even the actual place of publication of their magazine. Says Bishop Noll, Chairman of the N. O. D. L.: "If they were forced to reveal themselves they would be too much ashamed to lend themselves to the production of filth."

This Bill, sponsored by the N. O. D. L. and introduced by Congressman George W. Gillie of Indiana, would make it a criminal offense for any publication to conceal the identity of its publishers, editors and owners, or place of publication. Violation would carry with it a maximum fine of $2,500 and imprisonment for not more than one year. Better known as the Gillie Bill, the bill has already unanimously passed the House of Representatives and is now before the Senate.

Non-Catholic Action

Non-Catholics as well as Catholics are behind the Gillie Bill. Professor Theodore Grabbner, of Concordia Lutheran Seminary in St. Louis, pledged support by the Civic Union of St. Louis when he wrote to Representative Gillie:

The worst fiction obtainable today in America is being distributed in publications which cannot be traced by any indication on title page or wrapper. In every case, the names and addresses are fictitious. As you well know, this material is being distributed by trucks, so as to avoid indictment under the federal law. Our organization represents some forty religious and civic bodies of St. Louis, and we are certainly with you in this fight."

From Our Fans—'To My Valenti—' Wow! This Hurts!

Anonoymous Author "Apes" Burns' Couplet in Sending Staff Timely "Greetings"

By THOMAS DOYLE, JR.

"VALENTINE, n., Something as an ornamental greeting of a sentimental, or by extention, comic character, sent, usually anonymously, on St. Valentine's Day," authoritatively states Noah Webster on one of the 1274 pages of his "Collegiate" edition.

From the Villanova viewpoint, Noah, you are absolutely correct. Greetings of "a sentimental . . . character" were both sent and, though in a much lesser extent, received by local lovers. Greetings of a "comic character" were also featured last Wednesday on the campus. It is in reference to this latter category of greetings, that we wish to comment; in particular, we wish to speak about a "greeting" received by the staff of this publication.

Comic (?) Insults

Quite a number of the ordinary run of comic valentines (standard price, one cent) were received on the campus. A notable collection was even posted in the Pie Shoppe, gently pointing out to students, indicated by name, such tendencies as striking tastes in the matter of selection of clothing, etc. But no "greeting," as far as we have been able to ascertain, was quite up to, or as low as, according to your viewpoint, the standard of the one smuggled into the desk of our head man, entitled "To the Staff."

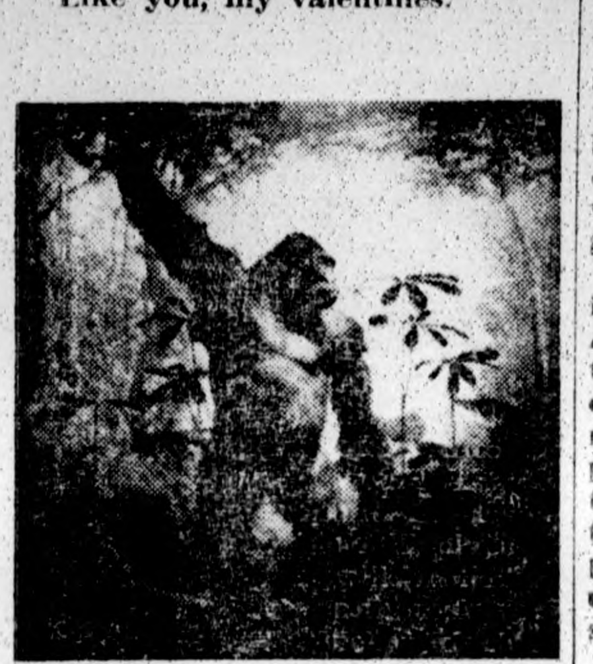
Though the stated policy of the VILLANOVAN has been to refuse to print unsigned letters, this shall be given space because, as you say, Noah, a valentine is "sent usually anonymously."

The greeting in point was obviously one on which the writer spent a little effort, but one that could have been brought up to the standard of a masterpiece by much more thought and labor on the subject.

Punk Poetry

For poetry, as it may loosely be called, takes effort and inspiration to write; the composer of the following valentine may have had the latter, but he certainly did not spend the former:

"If I couldn't spell or write,
If I couldn't pen a line,
I'd be a newspaperman,
Like you, my valenilnes."



TO MY VALENTINE
"...as ithers see us"

So began the "poison-pen's" greeting. The poem, written on the back of the impertinent picture (reduced from the size of one and one-half feet by two and one-quarter feet), was scrawled in a musty red ink and suffered greatly from the writer's lack of Palmer Method lessons.

The next two lines, obviously an Irishman's translation from memory of Bobby Burn's couplet, were doubtlessly intended to harmonize with the subject of the picture:

"Sure, and if some wan the gift could gie us
To see owrselves as ithers see us. . . ."

Even if the time were spent to have the rest of the long epic translated into words, it probably would be both a boring, unintereseing piece and a prejudiced one as well.

The only purpose of this apparently pointless article is to make a reference to St. Valentine's Day activities here and to ask the unknown author of "To the Staff," whoever he may be, to stop in the VILLANOVAN office so that he may be awarded the perhaps-to-be-established medal of "Villanova's Poet Laureate of the Year" with fitting ceremonies (!!!??!!!).

the 'CATS' MEOW!

By Tom Moore

AS a result of the unexpected severe snowstorm last week, a number of day students found themselves stranded at Villanova, but, due to the courteous and friendly assistance of the college authorities and some of the resident students, all were provided with rooms in which to spend the night. There are probably many to whom this cold weather has an appeal, but they may take some consolation from the fact that it has been said "many are cold but few are frozen."

Work has begun on The Barry College for Women at Miami, Florida. This institution is named for Bishop Patrick Barry of Florida, and will be operated by Sisters of the Order of St. Dominic. It will be the first Catholic institution of its kind in Florida.

It may or may not be new, but this bit of humor, extracted from an issue of the Notre Dame Scholastic," expresses a thought which on more than one occasion has provoked an argument:

A man seeing another man swimming off the Folrida coast, yelled: "Hey, aren't you afraid of the sharks?"

Swimmer: "Heck, no, I'm tattooed."

Observer: "What's that got to do with sharks?"

Swimmer: "I've got 'Penn is the best college in Pennsylvania' tattooed on my chest, and even a shark wouldn't swallow that."

COMMENT:

In a recent issue of "The Dartmouth," the one which dealt so extensively on the Winter Carnival, an editorial entitled "God and President Hopkins" struck this department's attention. Written satirically, the editorial, in story form, tells of a visit God made to Dartmouth's President Hopkins in an attempt to censure the licentious practices connected with the social week-end activities of various fraternities and loose students.

Although conscious of the intrinsic wrong of these doings, the president is represented as being unable to prohibit them, because of tradition, and, since it is impossible for God to condone them, "the college has gone to hell" for the week-end, no longer under the guidance of God.

This seems to indicate a tendency in education on the part of some American educators to be lax where the morals of their students are concerned, a condition which is most deplorable since its doesn't portend well for the future integrity of morals if undo tolerance on the part of those in responsible positions is shown to this so-called ultra-modern, sophisticated, irresponsible youth.

The Dreamer

WHEN I beside a fire am left to while
Away the slowly pacing steps of time,
And I, alone, discard the cloak of guile
Which blinds us mortals to this earthly clime;
When I can seek surcease from trivial things
In pipe and warmth and richness of old wine,
And thoughts elusively fantastic fly on wings
Of smoke, thin wisps of clouds so near divine,
I gaze into my glass and see therein
Dim visions long forgot . . . of deeds once done,
A face, a smile, a love that might have been,
A snatch of song that she was wont to hum,
These things bring comfort to a weary soul
Who shuns reality in dreamer's role.

Introducing 'Fitz' Philly Jitterbug In His Spare Time

Senior Artsman Relaxes Through Modern Terpsichore

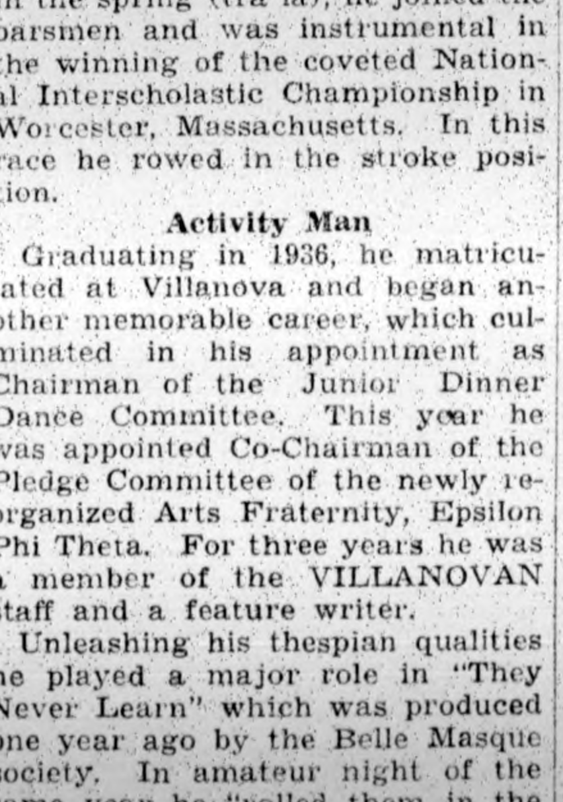
By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to introduce to you the man of the hour, the man of the week: presenting Francis Michael Fitzpatrick, senior in the School of Arts. This amiable, affable, fun-loving man-about-town first arrived on this mortal soil the night of December 10, 1918. His younger childhood days are hidden under the veil of obscurity. When we do find him again, it is 1932, and he has just completed his first eight years at the Academy of Mercy at Broad St. and Columbia Ave. in the city of Brotherly Love.

Football Hero

From here he entered North Catholic High School where he became an athlete of note and in his senior year he was made regular left guard on the varsity football team. This was the team that was captained by John "Buzz" Howlett, who at that time played quarterback. "Fitz" must have been good, too, for not only did his team walk off with the Catholic League Championship but their left guard also received honorable mention on the mythical All-Catholic eleven.

Not confining his activities to fotball he also participated in basketball and played against the current St. Joseph star, Larry Kenney. When the flowers began to bloom in the spring (tra la), he joined the oarsmen and was instrumental in the winning of the coveted National Interscholastic Championship in Worcester, Massachusetts. In this race he rowed in the stroke position.



FRANK J. FITZPATRICK

Activity Man

Graduating in 1936, he matriculated at Villanova and began another memorable career, which culminated in his appointment as Chairman of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee. This year he was appointed Co-Chairman of the Pledge Committee of the newly reorganized Arts Fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta. For three years he was a member of the VILLANOVAN staff and a feature writer.

Unleashing his thespian qualities he played a major role in "They Never Learn" which was produced one year ago by the Belle Masque society. In amateur night of the same year he "rolled them in the aisles" when he and Bill Guiteras went through a jitterbug routine.

A $ $ $ Jitterbug

Speaking of jitterbugging, we should mention that he has made it quite profitable for he has danced in most of the jitterbug contests held locally, and, dancing with Lydia Bingham, he walked away with some $500 all told. Peculiarly enough, however, Fitz prefers straight dancing to jitterbugging, and he claim the distinction of being the first person in Villanova to write his graduation thesis on Music.

Together with Barney ("the wind blew") Bellew and Bill Guiteras he has been a member of a triumvirate which has been in existence since grammar school days.

With graduation in the offing, Fitz has his eye on Temple and Penn Law Schools as possible places for continuing his education. Wherever you go, Fitz, you take along a choice section of the affections of all of us.

College Chatter

By Joe McCabe

GETTING away from the role of "informer" to that of spectator," I would like to take this opportunity to publicly acclaim the members of the varsity basketball team for their victory over Waynesburg last Tuesday night. Facing a near-rout at the half, they did an about face and exhibited a brand of spirit and superb basketball seldom, if ever, seen here before. All those who packed the gym for the game had nothing but praise for Duzminski, Nugent, Yund, Sinnott, Lazorchak, Gray, Gerland and Co. . . . orchids, this week, to Coach Severance and his truly championship team! ! !

ITEMS HERE AND THERE:

Who said that spring was here? Enough snow has fallen to last for two winters, but it will probably lay on the ground for only another month. . . The makeshift "snow outfits" being sported on the campus during the past week are sure-fire competition for "Esquire" . . . "Tony" Anderson and Andy Melton leading the vanguard of snow removers last Thursday, followed by everyone who had a yen for the great outdoors and a few extra "pennies" . . . BARRET, SOMERS and REILLY frolicking in the snow at Rosemont with a few of the girl last Wednesday night (after seeing to it that their dates were safely "tucked away") . . .

The excitement caused by the appearance of one of the local "fire horses" on the campus one afternoon recently—for a while it looked as though Alumni were on the way out but it was only a broken chain . . . BILL GARRITY having third strike called on him by the lady over the tracks and Johnnie Burke stepping in where he left off . . . "Rick" Frey hustling around trying to find the weather conditions existing in New Hampshire, no less, fearful lest he mightn't be able to make the "snow party" at Colby Junior College . . . Ed Bennis and Charlene Mork, the "goldust twins" at the recent Rosemont supper dance, are still going strong.

VERSE OF THE WEEK:

My social life is in retreat,
Abused and badly beaten:
Why is it that I always meet
A girl who hasn't eaten?

Don't say it's rotten—I know it!

Word has come that BOB McINTYRE has been seen recently with a babe bearing the same name as that seen on the nation's greatest five-and-ten cent chain. Could it be that Bob has found "a million-dollar baby in a five-and-ten cent store"?

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

What has happened to the relations between the students of Villanova and the students of Immaculata and Chestnut Hill? It appears that the boys are a bit reluctant to travel any great distance for feminine charm.

They Who Eat In Dining Hall Fatten Figures

Statistics on "Vittles" Consumed Enough to Stagger Any Student's Imagination

By HOWARD A. McCALL

Gather around all you residential gourmets and hear my fantastic tale. You partake of victuals fit for a king, yet how often do you consider the source of these sumptuous feasts while musing over your luscious platter. Join me on a journey backstage; let us wander amid the devices behind the scene and visit the cafeteria kitchen.

Your delicious soups and stews are made in three steam kettles, called stock pots, which resemble inverted liberty bells and are capable of holding forty, fifty and eighty gallons respectively—sounds like enough "Mulligan" for a regiment.

Pastry Department

Probably the most popular utensil in this cuisine sanctuary is the oven. This impliment is responsible for the tasty pies and cakes which you relish so much. The three new ovens recently installed bake thirty-six pies and two-hundred cakes at one setting—quite a productive increase over the old ones which made exactly one-half this number.

A mechanical mixer, "Hobart" to you technicians, plays a leading role in the preparation of your meals. The cake batters are mixed here. A meat grinder attachment provides the initial site for those juicy brown hamburgers which are always a favorite. Your coleslaw, cabbage salads, and other such dishes are the work of a vegetable shredder attachment.

"We All Scream For "

Hold everything! We almost forgot those two storage cabinets which house your ice cream. Forgive me; I can not understand how we neglected them. Gentlemen, if you accomplish nothing else while at Villanova, you at least have the unique distinction of consuming 120 quarts of cream per diem.

Breakfast must be quite a meal in your every day life at the college. Approximately 850 doughnuts enter hungry stomachs at this time. The two electric toasters turn out 1440 slices each hour, and the egg boiler, which is in use constantly during this period, cooks 36 eggs at a time. Incidently, this apparatus is automatically controlled and can be regulated for any cooking time between one-half and six minutes.

We presume from the information above that you resident students eat to live, but we assert upon the statistics revealed below that you also live to eat. A survey of the food consumed between September of last year and February 1 of this year indicates that you make eating a royal festival.

It is as follows: 117,800 cups of coffee; 10,350 pounds of sugar; 45,540 quarts of milk; 10,057 quarts of ice cream; 19,150 pounds of bread (we all realize that it is the staff of life, but. . . .); 5,986 pounds of butter (quite exact, "aren't I"); 7,397 dozens of fresh eggs; 61,500 pounds of potatoes (what men we mortals

Looking deceptively ordinary and temperate on paper, the above location — stretching between the chapel and Lancaster Pike — is termed "Sub-Zero Lane" by many. Allegedly, it is the coldest spot on the campus. Do you agree? Where do you experience your greatest chills? Are your "Goose Pimples" allergic to this path? Thaw out, write your answer in not more than half a syllable on an iceberg, and take it to Florida with you for the winter.

GROUP TO SING IN GLEE CLUB CONTEST THURSDAY EVENING

St. George Cup To Be Awarded to Best Catholic College Combine

By GERALD F. BELZ

The glee club will travel to Glenolden to participate in the first annual Catholic Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest for the St. George Cup.

St. Joseph's, La Salle, Rosemont, Immaculata, and Chestnut Hill colleges will furnish the competition.

The St. George cup, which will be presented to the victorious club, is a beautiful 30-inch silver loving cup, surmounted by a symbolic lyre, and bears the following inscription: "The St. George Cup—Catholic Intercollegiate Glee Club Championship."

The college winning the contest will have its name inscribed on the back of the cup and will have possession of it for one year.

The donators of the cup are the Rev. Francis H. McKernan and the Rev. Joseph D. Shallow, the rector and assistant rector of St. George's parish.

An elaborate program has been arranged and will proceed in the following manner. The glee clubs will assemble at St. George's, form a procession and march to the auditorium. Leading the procession will be the Heralds, of West Catholic Girls' High School, whose trumpeting abilities are well known to Philadelphia audiences. After the procession, the leaders of the various glee clubs will draw for position on the evening's program. The Heralds will introduce the glee clubs by playing their respective college songs.

Judging, upon intonation, tone, ensemble, use of voice, interpretation, rhythm, diction, selection, stage presence, and general effect, the judges will grade the clubs on a point basis, allowing ten points for each category. The club obtaining the highest rating will be proclaimed the 1940 champion. Each college will be permitted to sing not more than fifteen minutes and not more than three numbers.

Villanova's glee club will render three numbers: "Lo! How A Rose," "Passing By," and "Fight," a rousing Finnish song.

St. George's auditorium, in which the contest will be held, is easily accessible from Philadelphia and suburbs. Trains will leave the 30th St. Station of the P. R. R. at 7:14 and 8:21., arriving at Folcroft Station at 7:24 and 8:32 P. M. Cars leave the 69th St. Station of the P. & W. R. R. at 7:49 and 8:04, arriving at Sharon Hill Station at 8:10 and 8:25. By automobile, the route is one and one-half miles beyond Darby on the Chester Pike.

PRIZE COMPETITIONS INVITE ESSAY WORK

A prize of a round trip to Japan with expenses paid for three months and a prize of one hundred fifty dollars are offered to the winners of two essay contests in which Villanova students have been invited to participate.

One of the contests, sponsored by the Society for International Cultural Relations of Japan, is open to the citizens or subjects of any country except Japan, dividing the world into five zones for five separate competitions.

The other contest, which is being conducted by the Committee for Cultural Freedom and the "North American Review," is limited to American college students under the age of twenty-five.

The Japanese contest offers three subjects as topic of the essays: "The Cultural Intercourse Between Japan and Foreign Countries," "The Characteristics of Japanese Culture," and "The Position of Culture in the World." Manuscripts are limited to eight thousand words.

"The Challenge to Cultural Freedom" has been selected as the subject of the contest conducted by the Committee for Cultural Freedom and the "North American Review."

Further particulars, such as the judges of the contests, methods of entering, and sending of manuscripts, may be obtained by all interested students at the VILLANOVAN office.

(2) Those whose contents are largely sexy. (3) Those whose illustrations and pictures border on the nude and suggestive.. (4). Those which habitually carry articles on illicit love. (5) Those which carry disreputable advertising.

What To Do About It

Then we asked a question: "Now that you know something of the N. O. D. L., Jim, what are you going to do about it all?" "I'm going to talk up the Clean Literature Campaign among the fellows, Father."

ALUMNI TO ARRANGE REUNION WEEK END

Committee Discusses Program of Varied Activities; Annual Banquet To Be Held

Plans for a reunion week-end, June 7 and 8, were discussed at the second meeting of the reunion committee on Sunday, February 4.

Under the leadership of J. P. Keffer, '25, chairman the general committee, a program of activities for the week-end was arranged. On Friday morning, June 7, there will be a golfing party at the Main Line Country Club. In the evening there will be movies of past football games, contests in billiards and bowling, an amateur night, and refreshment service.

Saturday morning will see a hole-in-one- contest, a tug-of-war, and a softball game. Penn A. C. will play the Villanova "Wildcats" in a regulation baseball game in the afternoon. In the evening, all of the alumni will return to the colleg dining hall for their annual banquet.

This will probably be the last year that the banquet will be held in the dining hall. Last year's banquet drew nearly one hundred and seventy members, which total is close to the capacity of the hall.

Also at this banquet prizes, for the winners of the various activities of the reunion will be awarded. These prizes will consist of sets of hand-blown, fourteen-ounce glasses, having the seal of the college etched on them.

Members of the general reunion committee include W. G. Slaughter, '37, secretary-treasurer of the Alumni Association, P. F. Banmiller, '35; Jeffery Dougherty, '12; Walter Alessandroni, '35; John W. Jones, '20; William Ward, '39; Bruce Murray, '30; Edward Sullivan, '25; James R. Kelly, '15; Dr. Edward Burke, '23; Matthew A. Lynch, '23; and Norman N. Jones, '23.

Sub-committees to handle details, arrange sports events, the dinner and speakers will be appointed in the near future.

RELATIONS CLUB TO HEAR 'CAUSES OF WAR' TALKS

Collins, Harrington, Schubert to Speak on Different Phases of Subject

At a meeting of the International Relations Club tomorrow at 3:15 P. M. in room 111, Mendel Hall, the "Causes of War" will be discussed.

The discussion will be divided into three principal parts, namely: Moral Causes, Political Causes, and Economic Causes. Each part was voluntarily accepted by a student who will discuss it. The first was accepted by James P. Collins, John J. Harrington and William E. Schubert taking the other two, respectively.

The meeting last Wednesday, which was attended by a small group, was characterized by animated discussions and expressions of opinions by the members.

CUBS BECKONED

A prominent newspaperman will speak today at the regular meeting of the journalism class sponsored by the VILLANOVAN.

The class, which will be held in room 106 Mendel hall at 1:00 P. M., is run under the direction of John J. Harrington, former editor-in-chief of the publication.

Harrington has invited even more of the staff writers of the newspaper to come to the classes than have been attending in the past. He expects his instruction to prove of benefit to anyone who attends.

His 3.59 Leads

Francis S. Vogel, above, Junior in the School of Arts, displaced James F. Donovan for the class leadership honors recently, when computation of late grades changed his 3.33 rating to 3.59. Donovan was announced the leader last week by reason of his 3.52.

On the same honor list, the final delineation of John M. Bader's class status makes his quality point rating of 3.43 among the highest in the Junior Arts Group.

CRUMB TO ENLARGE PRESS APOSTOLATE

President of Group Issues Call for Members Interested in Work

Bernard C. Crumb, sophomore commerce student, president of the local Catholic Press Apostolate, has issued a call for all students who are interested in the work of the group to contact him as soon as possible.

Crumb states that the membership of this organization is limited to fifty students who are interested in encouraging Villanova students to read current Catholic literature but that, at the present time, there are only a few members interested and active.

"Besides this, the members of the Apostolate," stated Crumb, "take charge of the religious posters and notices, they collect all new and interesting pamphlets, periodicals, and magazines, and supervise the remailing of all such literature to home and foreign missions.

"Moreover, they are the custodians of the pamphlet racks in the back of the Chapel."

The Catholic Press Apostolate, which, under the moderatorship of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., systematically arranges the distribution of about 14,000 copies of current Catholic publications to students during an average college year, is best nored for the immense collection of all forms of Catholic literature which is displayed at the Villanova College Open House in 1939.

Seminar Lecture On "String Choir"

"The String Choir of the Symphony Orchestra" will be the title of the first of a series of lecture-recitals presented to the members of the Music Seminar.

The subject will be discussed at their first meeting of the second semester, held tomorrow at 7:30 P. M., in Simpson hall.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar, has obtained the use of the new sixteen millimeter sound film projector to show movies demonstrating the techniques and sounds of the string section of a symphony orchestra.

These movies, together with the recorded music of the masters, will be used throughout the second semester to point out to all students interested in music the purpose, sound, and techniques of the various sections of a symphony orchestra.

SEMINAR DISCUSSES PLAY

At a meeting of the Drama Seminar yesterday at 3:30 P. M. in Simpson Hall, Act I, Scene II and Act II, Scene I of "Both Your Houses" by Maxwell Anderson were read by the members. This play is contained in the "Lumas and Clarke Anthology" which is now being used by the Engineers.

The Drama Seminar was organized at the beginning of the year by the Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Numerous Entries Received For Swim Meet

NOTHING OFFICIAL DONE CONCERNING GRID COACH AS YET

Rumors Eliminating Jacobs False; Board to Meet in Near Future

MANY APPLY FOR POST

All rumors to the contrary, absolutely nothing has been done as yet concerning the football coaching situation as yet at Villanova.

The VILLANOVAN learned yesterday afternoon that, although numerous applications for the position open have been received by the college athletic authorities, no application has been considered one way or the other as yet.

The Board of Athletic Control, which will pick "Clipper" Smith's successor, has not met as yet and has not set any definite date for a meeting. Members of the board are the Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O. S. A., chairman; the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics; the Rev. John A. Sparrow, O. S. A., the Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., and the Rev. James S. Reilly, O. S. A.

Incidentally, the report that George "Doc" Jacobs is "out" of the running for the head coach position is entirely false. No discussion of Doc's, or anyone else's chances, has been made. All other rumors appearing at the present time are also without official foundation.

According to Father Albers, spokesman for the board, every applicant on file will be given careful consideration before the final choice is made. The Board of Athletics intends to make just as wise a choice as was made four years ago when Smith was appointed to succeed Harry Stuhldreher. At that time Smith was not recognized as a leading coach but his later work showed the board's choice to be a wise one. Whether the new coach to be appointed will be one of the "name" variety is not known. The important thing is that the appointee be a good coach, known or unknown.

Olivari To Coach At St. Rita's High

Jordan Olivari, former Villanova gridder, has been appointed head coach and director of athletics at St. Rita's High School in Chicago, Ill.

Olivari coached at Radnor High following his graduation from Villanova in 1938. Last year he mentored the Paulsboro (New Jersey) High School team to a successful season.

The new St. Rita mentor played tackle on one of the greatest Villanova teams in history (1937) and is renowned for his "football brains." He called plays and signals from the tackle slot while at Villanova, one of the few linemen ever to do this. In "Clipper" Smith's famous football quizzes Olivari usually ranked at the top.

Before his appointment Olivari was rumored as a possible assistant coach at Villanova.

St. Rita's is one of the most powerful teams in Chicago and is usually to be found at the top of the city scholastic heap. It is an Augustinian institution, run by many fathers who formerly served at Villanova.

Lead Athletic Board

Left, the Rev. Henry A. Caffery, O. S. A., chairman of the Board of Athletic Control, and right, the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics. Fathers Caffery and Albers will meet with the other members of the board in the near future to appoint a successor to "Clipper" Smith.

SPORTORIAL

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

A BASKETBALL team was born last Tuesday night. It is a healthy broth of a boy and weighed in heavy on the Field House scales. We refer of course to those men in Blue who played in the second half of that hectic and now historic battle against Waynesburg.

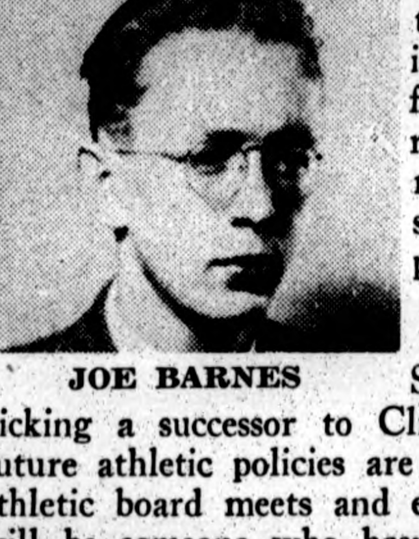
We don't know what it takes to make a great team, but whatever it is the men in Blue certainly found it in large doses at half-time Tuesday. All the basketball that lay pent up since before mid-season exploded in one big, mad, twenty minutes of action. Five great individuals became a TEAM. That is the secret of success.

—V—

Lost in the wonderful varsity exhibition was the work of the freshman team in downing Brown Prep of Philadelphia for the Preppers' second defeat of a rather lengthy season and by far their most decisive licking. Villanova's Kittens still remain undefeated, making it look pretty fair for next year.

—V—

All those gentlemen in the Philly Hot Stove League who are busily engaged in picking a successor to Clipper Smith and in deciding Villanova's future athletic policies are probably in for a big surprise when the athletic board meets and elects. It is our guess that the selection will be someone who hasn't found himself mentioned in the Hot Stove sessions just as it was four years ago when the board met and elected Smith. The choice proved a wise one, it probably will this time also.



JOE BARNES

—V—

The name of one man put forth by the rumorists has struck our liking. He is Ank Scanlon, coach of the city champion St. Joseph's Prep team in Philadelphia. Scanlon is just about the foremost high school coach in America and we feel quite sure that he could carry on his success at a leading college. In twelve years of coaching Scanlon has produced six city championships at one of the city's smallest private schools. (St. Joe's student body usually averages about five hundred.) His teams are flashy and smart. Power football is taboo as far as Scanlon is concerned. The picking of such a man to coach Villanova would not be unwise.

Prospects Are Bright For Frosh Trackmen

Judging from past records and daily workouts, the freshman track men promise to give the college its greatest first-year team in history.

With such men as the two former West Catholic stars, John DiCarlo and Harry Keefrider, Stan Nazian of North Catholic, and Jimmy Brown of Palmyra High, forming the nucleus, Coach "Jumbo" Elliott has the highest hopes for the spring season.

DiCarlo, sprint champion, and Keefrider, quarter-mile titleholder of the Philadelphia Catholic League, were members of the mile quartet of West Catholic which won the American High School Championship, beating the former champions, Altoona High School, in a race that saw them miss the world's schoolboy record by .5 of a second.

St. Francis Prep, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to Defend Crown in Sixth Annual Villanova National Catholic Interscholatics

By JOCK MAUCH

Outstanding schoolboy swimmers from the leading high and prep schools of several states will vie for honors in the Sixth Annual Villanova Catholic Interscholastic Swimming Meet to be held in the Main Line pool on Thursday.

All the invitations have been sent out and many replies have been received during the past week-end.

The present champions, St. Francis Prep of Brooklyn, will defend their title for the third time in as many years. Last year the "Frannies" superior all around strength enabled them to win with plenty to spare. They triumphed in six of the eight events, amassing 61 points while West Catholic High of Philadelphia, perennial runner-up, tabbed 23½. St. John's of Brooklyn was third with 20 points. Incidentally, St. John's looms as the "dark horse" this year if they accept the invitation.

RECORD BROKEN

In last year's meet one record was broken and another tied. A quartet from St. Francis splashed to a new mark of 1.44.8 in the 200 yd. freestyle relay, while "Hank" Donahue from St. John's equaled the meet record of 55.8 seconds for the 100 yd. freestyle set by Henry Steingass of La Salle the preceding year.

The list of entries so far includes: St. Francis, Seton Hall Prep of South Orange, N. J., Brooklyn Prep, and the Philadelphia teams of West Catholic High, Roman Catholic High, La Salle High, and St. Joseph's Prep.

Others expected to compete include: St. John's of Brooklyn, Allentown Catholic, and North Catholic, St. Thomas More, and South Catholic of Philadelphia.

While St. Francis Prep is the overwhelming favorite to annex honors again this year they will find plenty of competition from West Catholic and St. Joseph's who are putting on a stiff battle for the Philadelphia Catholic League title. Joe Nice of the Prep tank team is one of Philly's leading sprinters and should place well in the Villanova sprint events.

CATHOLIC U. FIVE TO MEET WILDCATS HERE SAT. NIGHT

After completing a successful tour of New England the "Wildcats" have returned to their home floor to tackle Catholic University this Saturday, and Baltimore University the following Monday.

The "Flying Cardinals" from Catholic University are slated to give the Wildcats as good a battle as you will want to see. Up to the present time the "flying Cardinals" came in contact with a few top ranking teams in the east, and they found themselves to be rather unfortunate; because of their misfortunes, however, do not sell them short.

Under the capable guidance of coach Forrest G. "Fod" Cotton, once of Notre Dame, they have won their share of ball games. He has found it rather difficult to replace Wayne Ambrose who was the leading scorer in the District of Columbia for two years, John Matukaitis, and various other letter men. This year he found himself trying to bring about a top-notch club, with the young and green material that he has.

When the quintet is on the hardwood, they are directed by their captain and center Carmen Pirro, who, incidentally, is also a member of their football team.

Baltimore University moves in on Monday night to shoot their shots through the loops at the "Wildcats" field house. The "Bee's without any doubt have a good ball club; they, however, were defeated by Stanford University in an extra period battle by two points. Their game with Oregon one of the top notch teams in the country, found themselves on the short end of the score by three points; they, however, defeated Wake Forest, and many others.

Relay Team Fourth In N. Y. A. C. Meet

With a fourth place for the relay team in the New York A. C. games, and Johnny Maher star sprinter eliminated in the semi-finals, the Wildcat trackman returned a none too happy bunch.

But this is not as bad as it sounds, as it has been a terrific job for "Jumbo" Elliot to whip the men into shape. This inclement weather that has become a habit around these parts has offered the greatest obstacle to the Wildcats. Practicing outdoors in this weather has been a very ticklish job. Going easy at times to prevent leg injuries has proved almost disastrous.

The mile quartet finished behind Rhode Island State, Boston College, and Colgate. Maher turning in fast time, barely missed out in the semi-finals. Ellerbe and Thompson led him to the tape, by a fraction of a foot.

Withholding from competition until March 2d, when they travel to Washington to enter the Catholic University Invitation Meet, the men expect that these two weeks will give them a real opportunity to get some real work in, and to start breaking a few tapes themselves.

ALUMNI BASKETEERS THREATEN LEAGUE LEADERS SECURITY

By WALT BROWN

With the second half a little more than half over, it appears that there is goingto be a fight to the finish among C. & F., Fedigan, and Alumni for the I-M court championship.

Fedigan, first half champs, who gained a tie for first place last week when C. & F. received their first defeat in the second half, retained that position, when they defeated Austin last Thursday evening.

C. & F., pace-setters in the second half, downed Austin Thursday afternoon in possibly the best game of the season. Alumni, by topping the Mendel Residents, retained third place and remained in this "do or die" battle which will be waged in these next couple weeks.

Now for the game between C. & F. and Austin on Thursday afternoon. From the very start it proved to be a well played, hard fought game in which the lead changed hands may times. Austin, trailing 21-19 at the half, did a little better than match the C. & F. point for point in the second half and appeared to have the game tucked away until Buxedo dropped a field goal for the commuters in the last two seconds, for a Frank Merriwell finish. It was a tough game for Austin to lose, but a prize for C. & F. to remember. Robinson and Hines each got twelve points for the losers, but Coupe had top scoring honors in the game with thirteen points — five field goals and three fouls.

FEDIGAN WINNER

So much for that game, now for the two games played Thursday evening. In the first game between those traditional rivals, Austin and Fedigan, Austin started off strong, but failed to hold the pace because of their weariness from that afternoon game with C. & F. Fedigan trailed 18-16 at the half, but in the second half, found the weary Austinites easy when they outscored them twenty-one points to eight. Connors and Fioritti shared scoring honors for the winners with thirteen points, while Keating topped the losers with nine.

In the wind-up, Alumni outplayed the Mendel Residents in the second half and came out on the winning end of a 33-26 score. Although his boys trailed 15-14 at half time, Father Dunne coaved a victory out of them by his constant pleadings to "get on the ball."

This week something should be settled since C. & F. meets both Fedigan and Alumni. This afternoon C. & F. and Fedigan will decide which one will occupy first place since they have both occupied it now for almost two weeks. The loser may drop to third should Alumni beat the Austin team, tonight. Alumni could not possibly move into first place, but a win would assure them of second. If Alumni loses, it will still occupy third place. Win or lose, Austin will probably remain in fifth place although they could drop to the cellar if the Mendel Day Students win. In the other game tonight, the Menudel Residents will face the Mendel Day Students. This game will decide little except by winning, the Mendel Residents may be a long shot for the title.

Thursday afternoon will see C. & F. pitted against Alumni, while in the evening Fedigan will battle the Mendel Day Students and Austin will try their luck with the Mendel Residents.

Kitten Quintet Tops Brown Prep

The Villanova freshman basketball team added another victory to its previous twelve when it downed the hard fighting Brown Prep team last Thursday evening. The contest was a see-saw affair during the first half with the score being 27-24 at the mid-way point in favor of the Wildcats.

Determined not to break their winning streak the Cats rung up 26 more points to Brown's 18 in the second half which gave the frosh a 53-42 win.

A bit of rivalry added more color to the game since Art Spector and Woods were both former stars of Brown Prep, and to top it off Spector tallied 17 points. Not to be outdone by their former teammates, Suiter and Drezen of Brown each scored 13 and the team held the high scoring Woods to 4 counters.

The box score was as follows:

BASEBALLERS KEPT INDOORS BY SNOW

Practice Sessions Indoors Limited to "Limbering-Up" Process

The low mark on the theremometer and the acres of snow covering the campus has put a damper on Villanova's baseball practice but the hardy men of the diamond have managed to brave the elements to some degree and are carrying on their daily practice, though confined to the Field House.

"Doc" Jacobs has confined his charges to a limbering up process thus far and has not yet settled down to any real work.

The opening game, scheduled for April 6 with Ursinus College, is approximately six weeks away but Jacobs does not wish to delay practice sessions any more than absolutely necessary. Last year's Villanova team met with great success and it is the hope of the '40 squad to follow in their predecessors' footsteps.

Candidates who have not as yet signed up are to do so immediately.

Wildcat Courtmen Ranked Seventh By Statistician

According to the announcer at a recent SPHAS professional basketball game Earle Brown, nationally known sports statistician, ranks Villanova seventh in his list of the nations best college basketball teams.

Holding down the eight leading spots are N. Y. U., ranked as the country's best. Southern California Oklahoma A. & M., Indiana, Duquesne, Long Island University, Villanova, and Kansas University.

PKP FRAT BOWLERS OPEN LEAGUE WITH SIX ALLEY MATCHES

John Muench, Soph C. E., Tops Scorers With '220' High Game

With the exception of one team the attendance at the opening games of the Intra-fraternity Bowling League was a hundred percent. The league got off to a good start and all the members are filled with a fine spirit of optimism. Even those partictpants who had never experienced the thrill of swinging a ball down the alley and watching it knock pins right and left were happy about the whole thing.

Best showing of the afternoon was made by John Muench, Sophomore Civil Eng., who bowled a 220 for high single and ended with 572 for high rating for three games. His score helped the Shamrocks rack up the highest total for the day, 893.

'BIG THREE' HOLDS DISTRICT SCORING LEAD AS END NEARS

Duzminski Boosts Total To 189 Points; Nugent Close Second

With the ribbed-court season rapidly growing to its finish and individual scoring records likewise moving upward, the local point-making race is securely bound by the Villanova trio, Duzminski, Nugent and Lazorchak, who have monopolized the honors for a tidy length of time.

Duzminski, never relinquishing his lead has kept a steady toll of baskets and leads the competitive field with 189 points. Second to the "Duke" is Paul Nugent who has completed seventeen games and is only eight points behind with 181 points. Mike Lazorchak holds down the third place with a total of 173 points.

With three contests remaining on the Wildcat schedule, Catholic University, Baltimore U. and St. Johns, there is a possibility that the trio will surpass the double-century mark and no doubt hold the three commanding leads.

Chuck Yund with an average of almost 7 points per encounter has tallied 101 points. Loyd Rice in fourteen games is fifth in Wildcat scoring with 80 points. Down another ten paces is Fred Gerland who has yielded 51 points for the good. Dick Gray, who has seen bits of action in sixteen contests has a total of 27 points.

Support of Students Big Factor in Win Over Waynesburg

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

The past week of current basketball activity at Villanova has brought to mind many expressions which are indicative of courageous teams but none in my mind typify the spirit and courage of the present edition of the Villanova basketball team better than "A team that won't be beat can't be beat."

It took stout hearts and was a real treat of loyalty and spirit of the real Villanovan to hold fast last Tuesday night when the highly heralded "Yellow-Jackets" of Waynesburg College hit a new high and virtually blasted our hopes in the first half of as hectic a game as has been witnessed on the Main Line court in many seasons. With the exception of a few whose loyalty is retained only when the going is easy and victory is apparent, the students stood firmly behind the team lending it the fulness of support and encouragement when victory seemed destined to rest on the banners of the Pittsburgh school.

Make no mistake in this latter respect for the moral courage which our students and friends so graciously extended to the team when things looked none too pleasant helped to give that necessary spark which brought out the latent ability and team play which saw the locals hold the invaders to four points while they gathered thirty markers and the well deserved victory.

It was encouraging to win but far more gratifying was the fact that here was a team that was battling against tremendous odds but still kept pitching and digging in when the task appeared almost hopeless. In addition the true tempo and feelings of the real Villanova followers demonstrated itself in no uncertain terms and this not when victory was apparent but when the chances were very slim for it was at the start of the second period that this spontaneous outburst of loyalty confidence and support became a reality to leave the "Drug Store coaches" and "small fry" little opportunity to gloat over a condition that may make its appearance on the scene of any athletic contest.

With this demonstration of loyalty indelibly stamped on our minds may I take this opportunity and also for the team to extend our deep appreciation of your efforts, to the student body as a whole and to the faculty for their spirit and cooperation for to you goes to a large degree the success of the team. May I add that both the team and myself are aware that there are always a few that cannot arise above the little and mean things of human nature for them we will pitch a little harder and hope that they too will sometime see the light and will at some time take to heart the words of a local sports announcer, who is doing a swell job. "If you can't take part in a sport be one anyway."

Swimmers Sink St. Francis In Snowbound Meet

Kelley Wins "40" and "100" Dashes and Anchors Winning Relay Team as Blue Natators Even Up Season Record

By JOCK MAUCH

Pushing into the Big City last Friday night amid all the ice and snow, the "Wildcat" merman dunked the St. Francis College matators in the waters of their own tank by a score of 41-25.

The "Wildcat" had an edge of two first places over the Brooklyn boys winning five out of eight events. They scored heavily in the sprints and in the baskstroke, Dependable Walt Kelley took the 40 yd. and 100 yd. freestyles with his teammate Charlie Barrett placing second in the former and third in the latter event. Zegers from St. Francis was second in the 100. Kelley's times were 19 seconds flat and 57 seconds flat respectively.

In the 140 yd. backstroke Captain Ed Leahy splashed home first with Jack Maher, another Villanovan, pulling in close behind.

Most thrilling race of the day was the 220 yd. freestyle. From the start it was obvious that it was strictly a contest between "Wildcat" Bill Hooper and Franciscan Dick Greco. In a gruelling finish Hooper just touched out Greco in the fast time of 2.25.4.

Greco was the outstanding performer for the Brooklyn team. Besides his second in the 220 he won the 440 from Villanova's John Pholeric, and then swam anchor on the free style relay although in the latter event the Main Line quartet of Koness, Lyons, Hooper, and Kelley, finished first. Hooper swam a fine leg on this relay making up a deficit of almost half a pool length.

Other St. Francis victories came in the medley relay in which the team of Diamond, Mullin, and Ruckowski beat out the Villanova trio of Leahy, Fitzmaurice, and Koness, in 3.24 and in the 200 yd. breaststroke won by "Emmy" Mullin in 3.10. Fitzmaurice and Moore of the "Cats" were second and third respectively.

There was no diving event because the board was broken.

HERE and THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

AN ironic note was struck the evening when Clipper decided he wanted the sun, instead of the snow, to bleach his hair. An Austin wiseacre politely scribbled on the evening permission list: "Clipper Smith—Gone to Loyola.—Late Permission."

* * *

Seldom does one find sentiment in the makeup of a metropolitan sports scrivner. But when Kerby Cushing regretfully announced Clipper's trek to the coast it was apparent to campus listeners that there was a little something in the throat that just wouldn't let him say what he wanted. We imagine he did not use a script, for no man can put on paper what he feels in his heart. And we know we speak for the entire student body when we join in regret with Kirby.

Jim Haughton

Then to have Tommy Lovett come along and in his preparatory remarks to the Ballett Master of the Gridiron's farewell via the airplanes and express the same feelings was just a bit too much. Tommy in his coverage of Wildcat sports came mighty close to Clipper and only a man speaking from the heart could say the things he did.

As one metropolitan columnist said: "There's something about the makeup of a man that just gets you. Babe Ruth had it; Jack Dempsey had it and Clipper Smith has it."

With the Boswells having run the gauntlet of rumor in sending a few more supposedly available gents. Some claim Tom Lieb will be the man; others say Hughie Devore, former Notre Dame end, is showing a keen interest in the job while another rumor brings in the name of Jordan Olivar, Captain of the '37 wonder team.

Jimmy Collins, editor of this journal, had a dream that other evening that Doc Jacobs was the man named to the job. And the VILLANOVAN didn't have first chance at the story.

With the aid of the Philly sheets the name of Jacobs has been flying hither and yon about the local acreage. And being well received. From those we've queried the majority are in favor of Doc moving into the driver's seat.

Some may insist that while he has proven himself one of the nation's greatest scouts his coaching ability hasn't been tried. For those we say take a close perusal of the Frosh record for the past decade and find out how many defeats they've incurred.

In our three years here we don't recall their being on the wrong end of the score. What makes this more remarkable is that each year brings a new crop which to develop. Granted that they're developed players, but still it's quite a job making a high and prep school star realize he's playing with a whole teamful of such men. And the calibre of the opposition has been plenty strong.

(Editor's Note—A "Doc" Jacob's coached Frosh team hasn't lost a game in so many years that our research can't find record of the last Frosh defeat).

As to his outside affiliations holding him back, we're willing to wager that Doc would be satisfied to give these up in favor of the head mentor position.

But who'll coach baseball if "Doc" gets the football job?

To several of the gridmen this coaching quandry is mighty pleasant because it gives them the benefit of some nice rest—instead of spring training.

Johnny Polich, forward with the Philly Ramblers ice hockeyists, who was a member of the Loyola team of'37 that met Villanova predicted two weeks before it happened that Clipper would pack his gladstone. And he told several campus lads this fact. (Ed. Note—Isn't it marvelous how so many guys knew about it ahead of time when the Clipper didn't.)

* * *

Bobby Pash is scheduled to try his wares on the pitching mound this season. Bob formerly handled these duties in high school and has all the boys amazed with his prospective prowess on the knoll.

"Information Please" John Donaghue, the 'quiet' New Englander is insistent that he's going to hit 300 this year. Donnie claims the season here is too short for him to do his best with the willow.

Last Tuesday's hectic affair with Waynesburg now among the book of pleasant memories it brings to mind the work of Bill Sinnott back in his sophomore year against Temple. Meeting one of the nation's best teams Bill with his great relief work steadied the lads on to a great victory. Just as he did last week.

ALUMNI BASKETEERS THREATEN LEAGUE LEADERS SECURITY

By WALT BROWN

With the second half a little more than half over, it appears that there is goingto be a fight to the finish among C. & F., Fedigan, and Alumni for the I-M court championship.

Fedigan, first half champs, who gained a tie for first place last week when C. & F. received their first defeat in the second half, retained that position, when they defeated Austin last Thursday evening.

C. & F., pace-setters in the second half, downed Austin Thursday afternoon in possibly the best game of the season. Alumni, by topping the Mendel Residents, retained third place and remained in this "do or die" battle which will be waged in these next couple weeks.

Now for the game between C. & F. and Austin on Thursday afternoon. From the very start it proved to be a well played, hard fought game in which the lead changed hands may times. Austin, trailing 21-19 at the half, did a little better than match the C. & F. point for point in the second half and appeared to have the game tucked away until Buxedo dropped a field goal for the commuters in the last two seconds, for a Frank Merriwell finish. It was a tough game for Austin to lose, but a prize for C. & F. to remember. Robinson and Hines each got twelve points for the losers, but Coupe had top scoring honors in the game with thirteen points — five field goals and three fouls.

FEDIGAN WINNER

So much for that game, now for the two games played Thursday evening. In the first game between those traditional rivals, Austin and Fedigan, Austin started off strong, but failed to hold the pace because of their weariness from that afternoon game with C & F. Fedigan trailed 18-16 at the half, but in the second half, found the weary Austinites easy when they outscored them twenty-one points to eight. Conmy and Fioritti shared scoring honors for the winners with thirteen points, while Keating topped the losers with nine.

In the wind-up, Alumni outplayed the Mendel Residents in the second half and came out on the winning end of a 33-26 score. Although his boys trailed 15-11 at half time, Father Dunne coaxed a victory out of them by his constant pleadings to [illegible] the ball."

This week something should be settled since C. & F. meets both Fedigan and Alumni. This afternoon C. & F. and Fedigan will decide which one will occupy first place since they have both occupied it now for almost two weeks. The loser may drop to third should Alumni beat the Austin team tomorrow. Alumni could not possibly gain sole first place, but a win would assure them of second. If [illegible] will still occupy [illegible] place. [illegible] Austin will probably remain in fifth place although they could drop to the cellar should the Mendel Day Students win. In the other game tonight, the Mendel Residents will face the Mendel Day Students. This game will decide little except by winning the Mendel Residents may be a long shot for the title.

Thursday afternoon will see C. & F. pitted against Alumni, while in the evening Fedigan will battle the Mendel Day Students and Austin will try their luck with the Mendel Residents.

Kitten Quintet Tops Brown Prep

The Villanova freshman basketball team added another victory to its previous twelve when it downed the hard fighting Brown Prep team last Thursday evening. The contest was a see saw affair during the first half with the score being 27-24 at the mid-way point in favor of the Wildcats.

Determined not to break their winning streak the Cats rung up 26 more points to Brown's 18 in the second half which gave the frosh a 53-42 win.

A bit of rivalry added more color to the game since Art Spector and Woods were both former stars of Brown Prep, and to top it off Spector tallied 17 points. Not to be outdone by their former teammates, Suiter and Drezen of Brown each scored 13 and the team held the high scoring Woods to 4 counters.

The box score was as follows:

BASEBALLERS KEPT INDOORS BY SNOW

Practice Sessions Indoors Limited to "Limbering-Up" Process

The low mark on the theremometer and the acres of snow covering the campus has put a damper on Villanova's baseball practice but the hardy men of the diamond have managed to brave the elements to some degree and are carrying on their daily practice, though confined to the Field House.

"Doc" Jacobs has confined his charges to a limbering up process thus far and has not yet settled down to any real work.

The opening game, scheduled for April 6 with Ursinus College, is approximately six weeks away but Jacobs does not wish to delay practice sessions any more than absolutely necessary. Last year's Villanova team met with great success and it is the hope of the '40 squad to follow in their predecessors' footsteps.

Candidates who have not as yet signed up are to do so immediately.

Wildcat Courtmen Ranked Seventh By Statistician

According to the announcer at a recent SPHAS professional basketball game Earle Brown, nationally known sports statistician, ranks Villanova seventh in his list of the nations best college basketball teams.

Holding down the eight leading spots are N. Y. U., ranked as the country's best, Southern California Oklahoma A. & M., Indiana, Duquesne, Long Island University, Villanova, and Kansas University.

PKP FRAT BOWLERS OPEN LEAGUE WITH SIX ALLEY MATCHES

John Muench, Soph C. E., Tops Scorers With '220' High Game

With the exception of one team the attendance at the opening games of the Intra-fraternity Bowling League was a hundred percent. The league got off to a good start and all the members are filled with a fine spirit of optimism. Even those partictpants who had never experienced the thrill of swinging a ball down the alley and watching it knock pins right and left were happy about the whole thing.

Best showing of the afternoon was made by John Muench, Sophomore Civil Eng., who bowled a 220 for high single and ended with 572 for high rating for three games. His score helped the Shamrocks rack up the highest total for the day, 893.

'BIG THREE' HOLDS DISTRICT SCORING LEAD AS END NEARS

Duzminski Boosts Total To 189 Points; Nugent Close Second

With the ribbed-court season rapidly growing to its finish and individual scoring records likewise moving upward, the local point-making race is securely bound by the Villanova trio, Duzminski, Nugent and Lazorchak, who have monopolized the honors for a tidy length of time.

Duzminski, never relinquishing his lead has kept a steady toll of baskets and leads the competitive field with 189 points. Second to the "Duke" is Paul Nugent who has completed seventeen games and is only eight points behind with 181 points. Mike Lazorchak holds down the third place with a total of 173 points.

With three contests remaining on the Wildcat schedule, Catholic University, Baltimore U. and St. Johns, there is a possibility that the trio will surpass the double-century mark and no doubt hold the three commanding leads.

Chuck Yund with an average of almost 7 points per encounter has tallied 101 points. Loyd Rice in fourteen games is fifth in Wildcat scoring with 80 points. Down another ten paces is Fred Gerland who has yielded 51 points for the good. Dick Gray, who has seen bits of action in sixteen contests has a total of 27 points.

Loyal Fans Helped Team

Support of Students Big Factor in Win Over Waynesburg

By AL SEVERANCE
(Varsity Basketball Coach)

The past week of current basketball activity at Villanova has brought to mind many expressions which are indicative of courageous teams but none in my mind typify the spirit and courage of the present edition of the Villanova basketball team better than "A team that won't be beat can't be beat."

It took stout hearts and was a real treat of loyalty and spirit of the real Villanovan to hold fast last Tuesday night when the highly heralded "Yellow-Jackets" of Waynesburg College hit a new high and virtually blasted our hopes in the first half of as hectic a game as has been witnessed on the Main Line court in many seasons. With the exception of a few whose loyalty is retained only when the going is easy and victory is apparent, the students stood firmly behind the team lending it the fulness of support and encouragement when victory seemed destined to rest on the banners of the Pittsburgh school.

Make no mistake in this latter respect for the moral courage which our students and friends so graciously extended to the team when things looked none too pleasant helped to give that necessary spark which brought out the latent ability and team play which saw the locals hold the invaders to four points while they gathered thirty markers and the well deserved victory.

It was encouraging to win but far more gratifying was the fact that here was a team that was battling against tremendous odds but still kept pitching and digging in when the task appeared almost hopeless. In addition the true tempo and feelings of the real Villanova followers demonstrated itself in no uncertain terms and this not when victory was apparent but when the chances were very slim for it was at the start of the second period that this spontaneous outburst of loyalty confidence and support became a reality to leave the "Drug Store coaches" and "small fry" little opportunity to gloat over a condition that may make its appearance on the scene of any athletic contest.

With this demonstration of loyalty indelibly stamped on our minds may I take this opportunity and also for the team to extend our deep appreciation of your efforts, to the student body as a whole and to the faculty for their spirit and cooperation for to you goes to a large degree the success of the team. May I add that both the team and myself are aware that there are always a few that cannot arise above the little and mean things of human nature for them we will pitch a little harder and hope that they too will sometime see the light and will at some time take to heart the words of a local sports announcer, who is doing a swell job. "If you can't take part in a sport be one anyway."

Swimmers Sink St. Francis In Snowbound Meet

Kelley Wins "40" and "100" Dashes and Anchors Winning Relay Team as Blue Natators Even Up Season Record

By JOCK MAUCH

Pushing into the Big City last Friday night amid all the ice and snow, the "Wildcat" merman dunked the St. Francis College natators in the waters of their own tank by a score of 41-25.

The "Wildcat" had an edge of two first places over the Brooklyn boys winning five out of eight events. They scored heavily in the sprints and in the baskstroke, Dependable Walt Kelley took the 40 yd. and 100 yd. freestyles with his teammate Charlie Barrett placing second in the former and third in the latter event. Zegers from St. Francis was second in the 100. Kelley's times were 19 seconds flat and 57 seconds flat respectively.

In the 140 yd. backstroke Captain Ed Leahy splashed home first with Jack Maher, another Villanovan, pulling in close behind.

Most thrilling race of the day was the 220 yd. freestyle. From the start it was obvious that it was strictly a contest between "Wildcat" Bill Hooper and Franciscan Dick Greco. In a gruelling finish Hooper just touched out Greco in the fast time of 2.25.4.

Greco was the outstanding performer for the Brooklyn team. Besides his second in the 220 he won the 440 from Villanova's John Pholeric, and then swam anchor on the free style relay although in the latter event the Main Line quartet of Koness, Lyons, Hooper, and Kelley, finished first. Hooper swam a fine leg on this relay making up a deficit of almost half a pool length.

Other St. Francis victories came in the medley relay in which the team of Diamond, Mullin, and Ruckowski beat out the Villanova trio of Leahy, Fitzmaurice, and Koness, in 3.24 and in the 200 yd. breaststroke won by "Emmy" Mullin in 3.10. Fitzmaurice and Moore of the "Cats" were second and third respectively.

There was no diving event because the board was broken.

An ironic note was struck the evening when Clipper decided he wanted the sun, instead of the snow, to bleach his hair. An Austin wiseacre politely scribbled on the evening permission list: "Clipper Smith—Gone to Loyola.—Late Permission."

Seldom does one find sentiment in the makeup of a metropolitan sports scrivner, But when Kerby Cushing regretfully announced Clipper's trek to the coast it was apparent to campus listeners that there was a little something in the throat that just wouldn't let him say what he wanted. We imagine he did not use a script, for no man can put on paper what he feels in his heart. And we know we speak for the entire student body when we join in regret with Kirby.

Jim Haughton

Then to have Tommy Lovett come along and in his preparatory remarks to the Ballett Master of the Gridiron's farewell via the airplanes and express the same feelings was just a bit too much. Tommy in his coverage of Wildcat sports came mighty close to Clipper and only a man speaking from the heart could say the things he did.

As one metropolitan columnist said: "There's something about the makeup of a man that just gets you. Babe Ruth had it; Jack Dempsey had it and Clipper Smith has it."

With the Boswells having run the gauntlet of rumor in sending a few more supposedly available gents, Some claim Tom Lieb will be the man; others say Hughie Devore, former Notre Dame end, is showing a keen interest in the job while another rumor brings in the name of Jordan Olivar, Captain of the '37 wonder team.

Jimmy Collins, editor of this journal, had a dream that other evening that Doc Jacobs was the man named to the job. And the VILLANOVAN didn't have first chance at the story.

With the aid of the Philly sheets the name of Jacobs has been flying hither and yon about the local acreage. And being well received. From those we've queried the majority are in favor of Doc moving into the driver's seat.

Some may insist that while he has proven himself one of the nation's greatest scouts his coaching ability hasn't been tried. For those we say take a close perusal of the Frosh record for the past decade and find out how many defeats they've incurred.

In our three years here we don't recall their being on the wrong end of the score. What makes this more remarkable is that each year brings a new crop which to develop. Granted that they're developed players, but still it's quite a job making a high and prep school star realize he's playing with a whole teamful of such men. And the calibre of the opposition has been plenty strong.

(Editor's Note—A "Doc" Jacob's coached Frosh team hasn't lost a game in so many years that our research can't find record of the last Frosh defeat).

As to his outside affiliations holding him back, we're willing to wager that Doc would be satisfied to give these up in favor of the head mentor position.

But who'll coach baseball if "Doc" gets the football job?

To several of the gridmen this coaching quandry is mighty pleasant because it gives them the benefit of some nice rest—instead of spring training.

Johnny Polich, forward with the Philly Ramblers ice hockeyists, who was a member of the Loyola team of'37 that met Villanova predicted two weeks before it happened that Clipper would pack his gladstone. And he told several campus lads this fact. (Ed. Note—Isn't it marvelous how so many guys knew about it ahead of time when the Clipper didn't.)

* * *

Bobby Pash is scheduled to try his wares on the pitching mound this season. Bob formerly handled these duties in high school and has all the boys amazed with his prospective prowess on the knoll.

"Information Please" John Donaghue, the 'quiet' New Englander is insistent that he's going to hit 300 this year. Donnie claims the season here is too short for him to do his best with the willow.

Last Tuesday's hectic affair with Waynesburg now among the book of pleasant memories it brings to mind the work of Bill Sinnott back in his sophomore year against Temple. Meeting one of the nation's best teams Bill with his great relief work steadied the lads on to a great victory. Just as he did last week.

Last, But Not Least
From Tip To Tradition

By JOHN J. HARRINGTON
Former Editor-in-Chief

This is the story of the route VILLANOVAN copy travels from its genesis in the mind of an editor, an alert reporter, or a friend of the paper to its being filed as history in the office archives.

As far as the routine week-to-week relations between editors and other members are concerned, the most important transactions are the giving out and the getting in of assignments. These functions are fulfilled by the sports and college editors.

Assignments are made as follow-ups of stories in preceding issues or as of things to come. Looking at the calendar, at the handbook, and at issues of the paper for previous years, one can tell some things to be prepared for. An interview with the president of the college every issue; inquiries of the deans, the registrar, the alumni secretary, placement and vocational directors, and such officials of the college, not to mention gossip with the faculty and students result in much copy. Exchanges and professional papers are culled for ideas that can be applied here. Copies of such publications as the "Belle Air", "Villanova Engineer", "Mendel Bulletin", "Alumnus", "Tagastan", and the catalog are gone over for suggestions as to assignments.

A system of regular news-gathering from various clubs on the campus is being built up with provision of reporters known by the clubs. The faculty adviser suggests assignments, too. Tips to be found in columns, bulletin boards, and publicity releases are not overlooked.

A test to be stood by copy is its Villanova College interest. If such a relationship is not shown, it does not come within the strict scope of the VILLANOVAN. Another point kept in mind in making assignments is timeliness. Besides assignments for the next week some are given that will take several weeks and some that will be filed for future use when the need arises. This precaution avoids wasting time and money when an expected story does not come through.

When making out assignments the editor has assignment sheets from previous issues to remind him of stories that may be assigned again and of those staff writers familiar with certain kinds of assignments. Assignment sheets are filed as a record of the coverage of the various college activities and the amount of copy being turned in by each staff writer.

Friday presents a scene of busy activity in the VILLANOVAN office. During the morning reporters and editors come in during free periods. With the afternoon there is a rush of rewriting, headline writing, copy reading, phone calls for further information, make-up, picture captioning, etc.

If a story is not quite satisfactory, the college or sports editor points out corrections to be made and explains why the changes are necessary. Among the more frequent offenses are incoherent organization, poor leads, and editorial comment. Sometimes, too, a reporter turns in a story with incomplete information.

After these things are tended to, it is given to the copy editor for technical marking. This done, it is passed to the editor-in-chief who marks on it the kind of headline it is to get according to its content and his make-up plans. Back it goes then to the copy editor who is in charge of headline writing.

With the release of the engineering honor roll it has been found that twenty two freshman succeeded in attaining the coveted 3.00 point quality rating and eight members each of the sophomore, junior and senior classes also rated 3.00 or better.

The first eight freshman are Herman C. Behnke (3.83); James J. Donnelly (3.83); Donald R. Klein (3.81); Carlos A. Martinez (3.67); James J. Rodgers (3.67); Edward L. Mandenfield (3.61); Robert P. Koob (3.59); Samuel J. Buaranno (3.56).

In the sophomore class Bernard Clarke was first with a 3.95 rating, while close behind are Joseph Dorsey (3.72); Vincent Gordon (3.50); John Madison (3.50); Robert Ayerle (3.37); Thomas DeSipin (3.22); John Kirchner (3.00); and Charles Schaumann (3.00).

Anyone interested in obtaining a photograph of the Villanovans should see Fred Kull. Those desirous of obtaining the services of this orchestra are requested to contact the business manager.

SEASON'S END

Concluding their season with an undefeated record, the VILLANOVAN basketball team has disbanded. During their brief 1939-1940 journey to the court warfare, many players that show promise for next year's season were uncovered.

HOLIDAY

In celebration of George Washington's Birthday, no classes will be held on Thursday, February 22. No chapel services will be held in the evening.

STAFF MEETING

A meeting of the VILLANOVAN staff will be held today in room 119 Mendel hall, at 1.00 P. M. At the meeting, a discussion of future assignments will take place and a reorganization of the news staff will, in all probability be made. It is urgent that all reporters be present, as both old and new staff members will be given their assignments for the next issue.

LENTEN SERVICES

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., Chaplain, has announced that the following services will be held on the campus during Lent. There will be daily Mass at 7:15 A. M. for the residents and at 8:15 A. M. for the non-residents. Every Thursday evening a member of the clerical faculty will address the resident student body at 6:30 P. M. in the College Chapel.

Confessions will be held tomorrow evening, instead of during the regular Thursday night service, at the usual time.

MODERATORS PRAISE STUDENTS' INTEREST IN HISTORY SEMINAR

Members Commended on N. L. R. B. Discussions; Choquette Explains Case

By DAVID N. REARDON

Recent meetings of the History Seminar have proved quite interesting and popular, according to the faculty moderators, Dr. Harold F. Hartman, Ph.D., Professor of Political Science and Rev. John R. Dunne O. S. A., M. A., instructor of Social Sciences.

These meetings, which convene on Tuesdays at 4:30 P. M. in Simpson Hall, have recently been concerned with practical discussions of cases brought before the National Labor Relations Board; the discussions follow the reading of a paper prepared by one of the members.

Choquette Presents Paper

At the last meeting, Clifford J. Choquette, senior in the School of Education, read a case between the N. L. R. B. and the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation and presented the decision of the Supreme Court, along with his own conclusions. This led to an analyzation of the Wagner Labor Relations Act; its constitutionality and practicability were questioned.

According to Choquette: "In 1935, Congress passed the Wagner Labor Relations Act to lessen labor disputes burdening interstate commerce, to establish a National Labor Relations Board, and for other purposes. The act first states its policy to eliminate the burdening of the free flow of commerce and secondly it defines such important terms as 'commerce', 'labor disputes', and 'employee.' The all important part of the act is the creation of a new N. L. R. B.

Powers of the Board

"The board, as it is called, has the power to describe 'unfair labor practices'; it may petition the courts to enforce its orders; it has broad powers of investigation and

"Engineer" Appears; Staff Is Enlarged

Charles J. Schafer, '41, editor-in-chief of the Villanova "Engineer," announced yesterday that the next issue of the publication will be distributed at the end of this week or at the beginning of next week.

Commenting on the forthcoming issue, Schafer said, "It features an article on Fr. Stanford's election to the presidency of the Association of American Colleges, along with articles by Edmond Hagan, '42, and Paul Farnsworth, '41. 'Cross Section,' the humor and gossip column written by Frank Hiney and John Hallinan, is back again in this issue."

Professor Emil Amelotti's mathematical "teaser" column will be contained again, but as yet there are no solutions to be published to the problem in last month's issue.

The editor also announced the appointment of several new members to the staff. They are: Bernard Kelley, '42, Joseph Schlotterback, '43, and Joseph Tobin, '43.

Physics Club Inaugurated; Activities Start Tomorrow

It has been officially announced that a new organization which will devote itself to the discussion of physics and allied subjects will be formed.

The group consists of some 15 freshman premedical students and is under the direction of Rev. John H. Crawford, O. S. A., M. S., of the Department of Physics.

The name of the organization has not as yet been decided upon, but in all probability the name will be selected from one of two suggestions, namely, the Compton Club or the Kappa Gamma Sigma.

The Compton Society was suggested by Fr. Crawford in honor of a truly great physicist who is now at the University of Chicago and has made tremendous strides in the field of X-Rays and Cosmic Rays.

The aim of the club is to make those connected with it more familiar with the intriguing study of physics and to learn more of its applications not only in daily life but also in the varied professions.

No Conflict

Problems that will be discussed will in no way conflict with classroom work, nor will they necessarily coincide with subjects studied in classes. Moreover everyone interested in the subject is cordially invited to attend the meetings.

"The entire group," says Fr. Crawford, "is enthusiastic about the proposition and I am quite pleased that such a movement has been begun, for I have been looking forward to such an organization for some time. The entire movement has been due to the initiative of the students concerned and, because of that, I am looking forward to an enjoyable sojourn with them."

Nominations Due

Permission for the organization has been granted by Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., although as yet no charter has been drawn up. Nomination of officers will be held at a meeting tomorrow at 3:15 P. M. in Room 215, Mendel Hall.

A paper will be presented tomorrow, by Joseph M. Gambescia entitled "The Spectrum."

Programs for several weeks in advance have been arranged and papers will be presented on "The Atom," "The Relationship of Physics and Medicine," and "The History of Modern Physics."

Member Comments

Joseph M. Gambescia, one of the group members states that "It is peculiar that the science of physics has for such a long time remained unrepresented in the extra-curricular activities of Villanova. Physics, as well as biology, bacteriology and anatomy, has its place in medicine and dentistry and the allied professions and, thus, it only seems fitting and proper that the science should also have its place outside of the regular roster.

"This group will undoubtedly meet that need. It will not only prove to be one of the most active groups on the campus, but it will also soon be recognized as one of the important cogs in the extracurricular machine of Villanova.

"The members of the club plan to conduct such research in the writing of their papers that it will be of material benefit and add to their knowledge of the science of physics; the papers presented to the group will be entertaining, however, as well as instructive. We hope not only thus to derive actual educational benefit from this extracurricular activity, but we also intend to enjoy ourselves while doing it."

Philadelphia Club Invites Engineers To "College Night"

Seniors Will Attend Meeting on March 5 to Hear Job Analyst Burk

The Engineers' Club of Philadelphia has invited all senior members of the engineering school to attend the club's "College Night" meeting on March 5, to hear a talk by S. L. H. Burk, chief job analyst of the Atlantic Refining Company.

The topic of the talk will be "Putting Your Knowledge to Work For You." Mr. Burk has stated that: "Jobs of all classifications in many of the larger companies today are being scientifically coordinated and evaluated. Such an analysis determines rather precisely what each job is worth in terms of wages on a fair and impartial basis. Advancement will depend to a large degree on conformity to a definite pattern of promotion."

Mr. Burk, from his wide experience in this field covering several companies, has been able to reduce the factors of importance in any job to a set of concise facts susceptible to technical analysis. These facts will be presented and supplemented by charts and diagrams and promises to be an interesting talk.

The engineering societies and clubs plan to attend the meeting in a body.

SINGERS FAIL TO ENTER GLEE CLUB COMPETITION

Immaculata Group Wins St. George Cup; Chestnut Hill, La Salle Follow

Due to unavoidable circumstances, the Glee Club did not participate in the first Catholic Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest, which was held last Thursday.

The contest was won by the glee club of Immaculata College which, therefore, claims the honor of being the first to possess the St. George Cup. Runners-up were Chestnut Hill College and La Salle College.

Although slightly depressed because of its withdrawal from the contest the glee club will begin practice immediately for the band-glee club concert to be given in March.

Alumni Board Proposes Officers For 1940-41

Nomination of officers for the 1940-1941 year will be the order of business at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Villanova Alumni Association to be held in room 119, Mendel hall, at 2:30 P. M. on Sunday afternoon, March 3.

Preceding this meeting, the members of the Alumni Reunion Committee under the leadership of J. P. Keffer, '25, chairman, will discuss tentative plans for the Reunion Week-end of June 7 and 8 at a luncheon meeting in the college dining hall.

John J. McGuire Heads Dinner-Dance Committee

C. & F. Student Selected by President Keating to Direct Annual Class Celebration on May 12; Committees To Be Named Soon

By FRANCIS J. MAMBRETTI

John J. McGuire, junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, will assume the chairmanship of the Junior Dinner-Dance, to be held on Sunday, May 12, 1940, according to an announcement released last Saturday by Daniel J. Keating, president of the junior class.

During his three years at Villanova, McGuire has been active in the extra-curricular branches of college life, although this is the first time he has assumed the actual chairman post of an affair. He has engaged in intramural basketball and baseball, besides being an active member of the Sanctuary Society and the Holy Name Society since he first entered Villanova in 1937.

Committee Appointments

McGuire's appointment practically completes the list of chairmen who will direct the varied and traditional activities of Junior Week Committees for the dinner-dance will be appointed in the near future.

The Junior Dinner-Dance, which traditionally closes the many activities of Junior Week, occupies a high position in the annual festivities. Second only to the Junior Prom in importance, the Dinner-Dance marks the end to the social celebrations of the men of the junior class and puts a fitting climax to the entire program of the week.

Pending the appointment of the various sub-committees, no plans have been made as to the locale of this years' affair. The Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia, however, which was the site of last year's event, was quite satisfactory to the class of '40, and it is probable that it will receive special consideration this year.

Then again, the Senior Dinner-Dance, which was held at the Aronimink Country Club on January 13, 1940, was quite a success and it is possible that this site will also receive consideration.

"To insure the success of this dinner-dance, it is necessary to have the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire class. Suggestions as to where this social function should be held and ideas relating to the entertainment will be cheerfully received. In this way we hope to be able to serve the majority of the class," stated McGuire on receiving news of his appointment.

'POETRY AND POETS' SUBJECT OF SPEECH AT MUSIC SEMINAR

Rev. Paul Healy, O. S. A., to Explain Literary Topic Tomorrow Evening

Rev. Paul Healy, O. S. A., will be the speaker at the lecture-recital of the Music Seminar tomorrow evening in Simpson Hall. His subject will be "Poetry and Poets."

Fr. Healy will point out the essential characteristics of poetry, showing that poetry suggests the true and adds beauty to it, but that it takes philosophy and science to guarantee the truth.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the seminar, in announcing the meeting commented, "When we read poetry I'm sure that all will be interested in knowing whether it is good or bad."

Last Seminar

"You seem to be hungry to learn more about the technical side of music." With these words Fr. Vrana, opened the first of a series of lecture-recitals last Wednesday, Feb. 21, on the various sections of the symphony orchestra and the music of the masters.

Highlighting the program was the presentation of a one-reel sound film on the symphony orchestra. The film was produced by the Erpi Classroom Films Corporation and the orchestra was directed by Howard Barlow.

The meeting of the seminar opened with Fr. Vrana explaining the various parts of the Symphony orchestra. He then went into a discussion of the stringed instruments found in the orchestra, their importance and qualities, the effects which they can produce either in unison or solo, and their correspondence to the different divisions of the voice.

Following this, the various instruments were taken singly and explained and illustrated. The characteristics and uses of the violin, the viola, the violin-cello, and the contra-bass were explained and illustrated.

During this explanation the various instruments were demonstrated by the use of records which contained solo passages on the instrument. They were further illustrated by the film, which not only pointed out the appearance of the instrument, but also showed where they were usually placed in the orchestra.

Annual Card Party Plans In Progress

Preparations for the Augustinian Annual Card Party continued to progress with a second meeting which was held February 19 in the lounge room of the Field house.

The attendance was, in spite of unfavorable weather, rather large. Those present were the committee heads and the lay people who are assisting. The discussion was chiefly concerned with the various problems that invariably appear in plans for every card party and many definite decisions were made.

The most important decision reached was that whereby the next few meetings of the workers for the affair will be held in different sections of the city and suburbs, such as West Phila., North Phila., South Phila., Bryn Mawr, Ardmore, Villanova, Chestnut Hill, Germantown, and Oak Lane.

As previously announced, the card party will be held in the Villanova Field House on Tuesday, April 2.

Murphy Speaks On Rectification

Yesterday, at the regular meeting of the local branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Harold F. Murphy delivered a talk entitled, "New Developments in Rectification."

This talk was followed by the principal discussion, "Steel Alkaline Storage Batteries," delivered by Eugene Mozier, a member of the junior class. Mr. Mozier answered questions relative to his topic.

On March 5, the senior members of the branch will attend the annual "College Night" held by the Engineers' Club, at their meeting place in Philadelphia. The main speech at this time will be delivered by S. L. H. Burk, chief job analyst of the Atlantic Refining Company.

At a later date, the members of the group will visit the transmitter of radio station WCAU, located at Newtown Square, Pa.

NO PHILOSOPHY SEMINAR

There will be no meeting of the Philosophy Seminar this week. Because of the different times of dismissal of the various students, no agreeable date has been reached as yet. As soon as this difficulty has been straightened out, the seminar will resume its weekly meetings.

Birth Of A Club

CONGRATULATIONS to the centennial class are now in order. They have already begun to leave their footprints in the sand of time; footprints which wind nor storm can erase; footprints which will remain long after all of us have gone to our judgment.

It is with great pride that we view the formation of the Compton Society, for, indeed, the science of Physics should be aptly represented among Villanova societies along with the Biology, Philosophy and other seminars. It is evident that Physics is far more than a student's nightmare and the conglomeration of seemingly meaningless numbers and formulae. The science of Physics is one which enters into our daily lives along with the other sciences.

The formation of the Compton Club will be a standing monument to the versatility of the Class of '43. Yet don't stop here. Keep that spirit of progress and endeavor bright within you. This is the true Villanova spirit; the spirit of firm resolution and strength of purpose.

Menace To Education

SERIOUS curtailment of budgets, shortened semesters, consolidation of classes, lowered salaries, narrower curricula, reduction in funds for equipment, and even the introduction of tuition in certain cities are among the changes made by school boards at the opening of the second semester this year because of the lack of money to keep up their former expenditures. One report even went as far as to advocate that the state should cease to support public education when literacy had been reached.

There is a maxim that states: "The more education the more democracy, and the more democracy the more education." It would do well if the officials in charge of such drastic measures would ponder this, for it is evident that they do not realize the serious injury they are inflicting upon our future stability when they curtail the intellectual advancement of the masses.

Why not start curtailing the high salaries of the political drones who infest the city halls of our nation, get rid of nepotism in high places, and political graft and greed upon which fat-belleid parasites nourish? The monies thus saved could be used to help along the inadequate funds the educational systems have at their command. It is time the citizen woke up, and began to realize that in the future he should vote for the man and not the party . . . the honest man and not the machine. Otherwise all that we hold sacred will in time crumble to oblivion because the schools, where they should be fostered, will have been crippled to the point of uselessness.

—A. J. D'A.

A Literary Clean-Up

WITHIN the past decade more than three hundred magazines exploiting and glorifying crime, sex, and illicit love have made their appearance on the American market. Our people have suddenly succumbed to the cry of the money mongrels who capitalize on whatever borders the "sensational," and as a result our nation has become the dumping ground for a great percentage of lewd literature published.

Merely glance at any of the magazine racks spread throughout the city, and note some of the filthy publications displayed. Because the American people have cultivated a market for this type of literature, the numerous distributors, realizing that obscene and indecent magazines are a "sure thing," exhibit and handle them on an immense scale. . . . .

That an enterprise of this nature has in the past preyed and prospered on the frailities of human nature is no reason why it should continue to do so. We have within ourselves the power to combat this menace which warps and undermines the minds of those who solicit and support its cause.

A clean literature campaign under the auspices of the National Organization for Decent Literature has commenced. Lend your aid. Destroy all smutty publications that you see. Inform your local news dealer to clear his stand of all licentious articles if he wants your trade.

Obliviate "the sensational," and the magazine publications will soon be clean.

"Neath The Spires"

THIS scholastic year, Villanova's bulletin boards have been graced by copies of the practicable, readable series known as "'Neath the Spires."

In general this series aims at reminding Villanova students of the spiritual good manners which might reasonably be expected from them as Catholic College men. The publication is the worthy attempt of its anonymous author to bolster the sometimes negligent attitude of college boys in this respect.

Now it is quite possible that the student body is not giving its entire support to this enterprise both by reading its message and then carrying out these suggestions in practice.

There is no excuse for students not reading them. Little difficulty is entailed by pausing to peruse the paper — about one minute to be exact. Likewise, there is no excuse for the fellows who, after reading them, fail to respond to their hints.

Bacteriology—A Study Of Great Cultural Value

Many Subjects Better Interpreted By Knowledge of This Science

By REV. JOSEPH M. DOUGHERTY, O. S. A., Ph. D.
Dean of the School of Science

AMONG the biological sciences, the study of bacteriology is quite often regarded as a subject whose major relationships are restricted to the field of purely professional education. While it is quite true that the dominating application of this comparatively youthful science is to be found in the relationships of micro-organisms to health, yet the varied associations of bacteria in nature, their small size and prodigious rate of increase, are calculated to arouse anl sustain the attention of even the casual observer of natural phenomona.

Opportunities Afforded

Even granting the dominant concern of the professional bacteriologist is with problems of public health, it is quite apparent that, from this viewpoint alone, the study of bacteria affords many opportunities for advancing the cultural education of the college student.

It was Alexander Pope who stated, ". . .The proper study of mankind is man." Surely, then, the philosophy of this great poet finds an adequate vehicle in the study of bacteria, concerned as they are with human well-being.

The scope of economics, the organization and the battle of great armies, the fears of nations, and the mysterious and intangible condition usually termed "zeitgeist"—all these important and far-reaching relationships can be more thoroughly evaluated by a fundamental knowledge of the unseen denizens of the microscopic world.

Allied With History

The history of bacteriology can be correlated very well with the important developments in human affairs. Anton von Leeuwenhoek, in 1680, was elected to a fellowship in the Royal Society in recognition of the first observed description of bacteria. To this man of rare industry is accredited the discovery of bacteria, which he viewed through his primitive lenses. In 1681, William Penn founded Philadelphia.

The bloodiest battle of modern times, previous to the World War, was Gettysburg, a battle fought without the benefit of the researches and discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. Students of bacteriology can readily appreciate Meade's failure to pursue the broken Confederate column after the victory at Gettysburg.

In 1876, at the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, Alexander Graham Bell demonstrated his toy-like telephone and, during the same year, Robert Koch, the German scientist, established the study of bacteria on a scientific basis.

Bacteriology Aided Industry

The progress of the Industrial Revolution which began with the nineteenth century, wherein sanitary problems incident to large concentrations of populations were involved, would have been severely hampered were it not for the concomitant development of bacteriology.

Innumerable instances, such as those pointed out above, can be cited to portray the important and dramatic role assigned to the lusty infant science of the late nineteenth century.

Pasteur, the Genius

Perhaps one of the most intriguing episodes associated with the development of bacteriology is entwined with that outstanding personality, Louis Pasteur and the siege of Paris by Bismarck in 1870. Students of history are aware that this period was destined to be far-reaching, and unquestionably has a direct bearing on the Franco-German animosity of the present day.

When Bismarck humiliated the French with a staggering indemnity after the fall of Paris, Pasteur's patriotism reached the point of clairvoyance when he deplored the lack of scientific research on the part of the French.

Recalling the intense suffering of the besieged from famine and pestilence, Pasteur was stimulated to press his studies on fermentation. He stated that the brewing industry, a very practical application of fermentation, was one industry wherein the Germans excelled the French.

In the preface of his work on fermentation, he made this prophetic statement, ". . .The etiology of contagious diseases may receive unexpected light from these studies. . ."

This is a very commendable practice, for it affords all the girls an opportunity to go out. However, it appears that Dan is playing with fire; after all, you can't burn the candle at both ends and in the middle too! !

any other science, is closely associated with great characters. The students of Bacteriology, in tracing the development of this science, are afforded an excellent opportunity to correlate the industry, patriotism, and religious devotion of the outstanding genius, Louis Pasteur.

The great nineteenth century, revealing so much material progress, affords no more arresting picture than that of the death-bed of Pasteur, wherein we view one of the greatest scientists passing to his eternal reward, clasping to his heart the crucified image of Jesus Christ.

A Leap Year Proposal . . . . .

By WILLIAM J. TOY

Attention, males! If you see anyone following you down the street with a far away look in her eye, or if someone jumps out from around the corner, don't be alarmed. We'll assure you there have been no recent breaks from insane asylums and the like; what you see is merely the effect of leap year on the fair sex.

During this year when February does some overtime work and takes on another day, there is a marked difference in the attitude of the sexes. At many dances we may note the girls awaking from their usual reticence and taking the aggressive side in the requesting of dances.

As a part of the ancient custom in this country, it is within the girls' rights to suggest marriage during this time. If the recipient of the offer can't see his way clear to make this drastic step, he must pay a forfeit such as the buying of new clothes. This writer can sympathize with their point of view, but would like to know why the girls shouldn't have to pay the same penalty in ordinary years when they refuse the same offer.

In a delicate situation like this, Confucius would probably say, "Leap Year means girl proposes, boy disposes."

Then again, since the wordy Chinese philosopher has exerted his talents in commenting on so many other things, we feel that his opinion on the Leap Year question may have only been uttered at the end of a long, hard day of doing nothing but dropping gems of wisdom from his ruby lips. Forget what "he say".

Follow These Rules

After having to create all the openings with members of the opposite sex, it is hard for the average fellow to acclimate himself to this gay new world where a girl is just as likely to ask you for a date as not. In this new state of affairs, your writer has found several rules which should be followed by any male:

1. Don't be surprised at anything; assume that anything-can-happen attitude.
2. Don't be afraid to say "No"; never be talked into something.
3. Watch out for a Dutch treat —something may lurk behind it.
4. Sweetness is a fine thing — in candy.
5. Don't bother to read these rules — you won't follow them anyhow.

A Suggestion

Changing from the ridiculous to the sensible, we would like to suggest a rather revolutionary innovation here at Villanova. In some of our colleges we find leap year dances sponsored. In these dances a girl is required to ask for a certain boy's company for the evening. This change of prerogative seems to meet with student approval at these institutions where it has already been tried, and your writer wonders if some social function of this type couldn't be arranged between our local schools under the supervision of the proper authorities. If the consent of the administration could be obtained, perhaps Villanova could sponsor a dance on these or abridged lines.

DRAMA SEMINAR STUDIES TRAGEDY BY J. M. SYNGE

Next Meeting to Feature Garrity and Guncheon in Play Excerpts

Featured at next Monday's meeting of the Belle Masque Seminar, under the direction of the Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., to be held in Simpson Hall at 3:30 P. M., will be the reading of a three-act play and the interpretation of two monologues by members of the organization.

Raymond Garrity, a commerce and finance student, will present a monologue from Noel Coward's "Balaine." He will be followed by a selection from "June Moon" by Ring Lardiner and George Kaufman. This will be given by Ward Guncheon, also of the commerce and finance school.

The balance of the program will be devoted to the reading and general discussion of Oscar Wilde's three-act play, "The Importance of Being Earnest," entered into by the entire group.

At yesterday's meeting the famous Irish one-act play, "Riders to the Sea," by John Millington Synge, was read by the seminar. After the reading, Fr. Sullivan discussed the merits of this tragedy.

It should be made known that anyone interested in this work, who has not yet become a member of the seminar, may still do so. The organization is ever open to new members.

In a recent poll conducted by the Student Opinion Surveys of America, it was found that 81% of the students voted against compulsory military training. Youngest Senior Arts Student Has Fifth Birthday Thursday

Introducing Joe Bongiovanni, a Learned Philosopher

By HOWARD A. McCALL

HAS anyone seen a chubby little rascal toddling along the corridors of Mendel lately? He has been rambling through these halls for four years now, but I dare say there are few students who realize what a genius he is.

Page Mr. Ripley if you will, but the fact still remains that there is a senior matriculated at Villanova who has not yet celebrated his fifth birthday.

Introducing

This distinguished character is none other than Joseph N. Bongiovanni, senior arts student, who arrived in this world on one Feb. 29, 1920. Born in the renowned "City of Brotherly Love," Joe is the oldest of his clan registered here at Villanova (we wonder what the tender ages of the others are).

JOSEPH N. BONGIOVANNI

Little is known of his cradle days, despite the efforts of your correspondent to wrangle some information from our subject's loyal friends. However, Joe came to the rescue and compromised to commence his life history with his initial school days.

Like all good children do, he began his search for knowledge at grammar school—John Hay Public School being his first site of conquest. We may presume that these earlier years were spent in enthusiastic study, if his achievements to date are any indication.

Enters Southern

Following his graduation from the elementary grades, Joe entered South Philadelphia High School for Boys. It was here that his talents gradually became evident. The Literary and Debating Club found him enrolled among its members and, in acknowledgement of his efforts, elected him president of that society. His ability as an actor found expression through the activities of the dramatic society.

The German Club, in view of Joe's love for languages, accepted and appreciated his membership. His interest in science carried him to the Chemistry Club.

Joe labored on the "Southron," the school newspaper, for four years and was appointed associate editor in reward for his work on the staff. Add to the aforementioned activities the fact that Joe was a consistent honor man, and we conclude this sketch with his graduation.

Gets the Spirit

Upon his matriculation here in 1936, Joe entered into the spirit of the institution immediately and commenced to participate in various extra-curricular activities.

The Study Club, the International Relations Club, debating, and writing for the VILLANOVAN comprised his yearling pursuits. Joe continued each of these activities during his sophomore year and joined the German Club as well.

In his third year, he participated in one new activity, the Philosophy Seminar, and dropped the German Club and debating activities. His senior year finds him active in the same organization as he was during his third term.

A Villanovan Editor

In recognition of his work on the VILLANOVAN, Joe was appointed copy editor during his junior year and, as a result, was the center of that noisy, organized confusion seen any Friday in this office. Again, we commend Joe on his scholastic standing, for he has invariably led his class throughout his four years.

One could scarcely imagine from this mass of wordage what Joe's primary interest is, and, just to relieve the suspense, we'll divulge this little secret.

Philosophy (which someone has defined as "looking in a dark room for a black hat which isn't there") is the principle object of his study.

Avid Philosopher

Philosophy is Joe's hobby, and he certainly pursues it. Anything which possesses a philosophical aspect of any sort attracts his interest. Joe even intends to write this thesis on the relation between substance and accident. He is particularly interested in Saint Thomas Acquinas and spends much time in the college library browsing among the works of this ancient philosopher.

Joe intends to employ the knowledge gained from the study of languages to advantage by reading philosophy books written in foreign tongues. It is his desire at some later date to present a theological and philosophical interpretation of Dante's "Divine Comedy."

Joe is also a music enthusiast and quite a musician in his own right—this much I did manage to learn from his close friends. In time past, he used to tinkle the ivories and play the viola. Now he confines his musical talent to the violin. Classical compositions are the sole recipients of his master touch, and, on various occasions, he has rendered these pieces on a concert platform.

Girls?

Unfortunately, Joe would not commit himself on the feminine situation, and we must leave this question unsolved.

Having submitted this final question, we take leave of a scholar, a gentleman, and a regular fellow and wish him the best of luck in whatever field he selects.

To A Nurse

By JOSEPH M. GAMBESCIA

She's dressed in white —
Not one dark spot to mar
That symbol of alban purity.

An omnipresent smile
That halts for yet a while
Death's cold eternity.

With skill akin
To God's own mighty power
She eases human suffering.

Small matter, race —
And creed means little here
With cheer and hope abiding.

With true love
For all mankind — her hand
Upon a fevered brow

Lends courage still
That once seemed ever gone,
Returns with blessed vow.

And as each river
Of emotion mingles
In the sea of eternal kindness.

Give thanks to God
Who found fit to give
To us who trod his blessed ground,
A nurse.

Real Leaders

John J. Seelaus, left, and George M. Wengryniuk, above right, proved the final scholastic co-leaders of the senior class in the Engineering School when final grades were submitted to the Dean. With their quality point rating of 3.95 each, they displace Fred Rappleyea and his 3.90 for first place honors. Both leaders are formerly of Northeast Catholic High School.

COLLEGE PROGRAM HEARD OVER WCKY

Villanova Featured in Broadcast Last Night On Cincinnati Radio Station

Through the medium of electrical transcription, a Villanova program was broadcast over radio station WCKY, Cincinnati, Ohio, last night at 10:30 P. M., Eastern Standard Time.

The broadcast, one of a series of programs dedicated to the universities and colleges of the nation, was prepared under the direction of John J. Harrington, former editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN.

A phonograph record made by Harrington, James P. Collins, present editor-in-chief of the publication, and James F. Haughton, assistant sports editor, gave general information about the college, the studies, activities, and sports program.

The program opened with a salute from WCKY to Villanova College and to the VILLANOVAN. Records of the Glee Club singing the favorite college songs preceded the transcription of the discussion by the publication heads. The program closed with a message of appreciation to the sponsors of the program by Harrington, Collins and Haughton.

Throughout the course of the broadcast, Al Bland, master-of-ceremonies of the "College Program" series, presented material prepared for him by the VILLANOVAN.

Each broadcast in the series is under the sponsorship of the official newspaper of the college in question and is comprised of material compiled by the publication.

may establish agents and inferior boards. It has its limitations; nothing in the act is to be construed to interfere with the right to strike.

"The right of labor to unionize, to select representatives, and to bargain collectively is fundamental and is so recognized within the act. Employees have not a chance to resist unfair treatment; hence Congress has the power to enact such a bill that will see to this protection.

Theory vs. Practice

"In theory, the act believes that free opportunity to negotiate is more likely to promote industrial peace and may bring about consequent agreements. Under a corporation's right to hire and fire, however, this right may be used to cover up intimidation of employees with respect to their organization.

"Some say that the act heavily favors the employee and exerts a heavy blow against the employer. But the question is whether the legislature has exceeded the constitutional limits. The court held that the power is within legal rights and the act is valid as applied."

At the conclusion of ensuing debate, the members unanimously agreed to continue the argumentation upon the topic at the next meeting, to be held today. At the same time, the moderators announced that, at the meeting, a noted authority will speak upon the subject.

Anyone interested in current political topics is extended an invitation to attend.

Dick Gray Honored By Trenton Alumni At Game Yesterday

Kelty Similarly Feted by Club at Freshman Game Last Week

Last night's basketball game with Baltimore U. was known as "Trenton Night."

Members of the Villanova Club of Trenton journeyed in a body to see the game. Before the game, Dick Gray, member of the varsity team and a native of Trenton was honored by the alumni.

The Trenton Club is the second local club to attend a home game in a body. The Philadelphia Club attended the game with Waynesburg. It is hoped by the alumni that this policy of the clubs of attending one of the home games and honoring one of the team members will become a permanent one, to be repeated from year to year.

Bob Kelty, of the Frosh basketball team, was honored by the members of the same Trenton Club with a "Bob Kelty Night" at the basketball game played between the Frosh and Trenton Catholic High on the night of February 21.

Joseph Caulfield, '35, presented Kelty with a gift from the club as a token of their appreciation for the manner in which he is upholding the tradition of Trentonites at Villanova.

Belle Air Preview Posted On Boards

Friday, Deadline to Take Advantage of $5.00 Per Copy Price

A preview of the 1940 Belle Air college annual, was offered to the students during the past week when samples of the plates that will appear in the yearbook were posted on the bulletin boards. Of particular interest were the shots taken on Amateur Night, which were displayed on the main bulletin board of Mendel hall.

Those who did not pay for their copies of the Belle Air through their matriculation fees and all who wish to order additional copies are warned for the last time that they may obtain the special price of $5.00 per copy only by making a deposit of $1.00 by Friday of this week. Copies purchased after this deadline will cost $7.50.

The following are the agents from whom copies of the Belle Air may be ordered: James Scott, arts dayhop; Frank McKay, 238 Austin; Robert Wilderotter, 220 Fedigan; Walter Fox, 327 Austin; Edward Jonik, C. & F. dayhop; and John Maucieri, dayhop in the engineering school.

Fr. Stanford Gives Dinner To Leaders

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, gave his fifth annual dinner in honor of student leaders last Sunday, February 25, at 6:30 P. M., in his Mendel hall office.

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, vice-president, was in attendance.

After the dinner, informal speeches were made by the students and a round-table discussion was held. Problems common to both the president and the students were discussed and suggestions were offered to solve them.

PERSONNEL MEN TO COME

Mr. William G. Slaughter, head of the local Placement Bureau, has announced that plans have been made to have the personnel managers of various firms to visit the college at any date of their own selection after March 1.

Mr. Slaughter requests all seniors who have not yet registered with the bureau to do so at once, since all names must be in by March 1, at the latest, in order to have them ready for the visiting personnel managers.

FOR THE BIRDIE

Members of the VILLANOVAN staff are to meet on the main floor of the Field house today at 12:50 P. M. for the taking of the publication's Belle Air photograph. The picture will be taken promptly at 1:00, as the photographer must take another picture in Mendel hall five minutes later.

Third Speaker

REV. JOHN H. CRAWFORD, O. S. A., M. A., will deliver the third of the regular Lenten sermons on Thursday evening in the College Chapel. His address is entitled "The Bar Sinister."

BOARD MEETS TO SELECT HONOR FRAT MEMBERSHIP

Final Decision on Chi Epsilon Mu Candidates Reserved Until Later

Under the guidance of John A. Oakey, M. S., moderator of Chi Epsilon Mu, the advisory board of the honorary engineering fraternity, held a meeting yesterday to decide on the selection of new members from the junior and senior honor students.

The board's final decision will not be made until a future date. The candidates will be chosen by the standards they have set in their studies.

Besides Professor Oakey, the board is comprised of J. Stanley Morehouse, M. E., Dean of the Schol of Engineering, and Edward L. Haenisch, Ph. D. and Harry S. Bueche, M. S. E. E., members of the engineering faculty.

POSTPONED SEMINAR HELD

Due to the postponement of the last two scheduled meetings, the Research Seminar will present tomorrow the same program that was scheduled for February 14.

The program will include motion picture concerning beetles and the development of plant roots.

Discussion will be led by J. Eugene Nelson and the pictures will be shown by John Nieman, 3d. Both principals are sophomore science students.

The meeting, scheduled for 4:00 P. M., will be held in the seminar room of Simpson hall.

SPANISH CLUB

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator, has announced that there will be a meeting of the members of the Spanish club on Wednesday evening immediately following Chapel in room 106, Mendel hall.

(Conclusion)

WHEN finishing up on Friday the editor-in-chief goes through a box of copy, sees the identifying labels on the copy, headlines, make-up diagrams and copy record correspond; he looks for errors that might have been made in the heat of preparation; and he leaves this material, along with cuts, mats, and pictures, in a box for the agent from the printers. When cuts come in from being before 9 A. M.

On Monday afternoon, the editor-in-chief, the college editor, and the sports editor betake themselves to the Main Line "Times," where copy is being set in type. The rest of the dummies are given to the shop foreman; the sports and college editors read proofs pulled from the trays of column type and the editor-in-chief ses to it that the type is set in form according to make-up schedule and offers further explanation as need be to the printers. hen cuts come in from being engraved they are identified so that they will be put in their proper space.

When the make-up is completed and the forms locked, page proofs are taken. One set of these is to be taken back to the faculty advisor and given to him on Monday night; the other is checked over by the editor and corrections are made.

When the paper is delivered on Tuesday morning the circulation manager and his staff see that it is distributed, placing copies on tables outside the office for students, depositing them in pigeon holes for faculty members, mailing about 1500 copies and saving enough for future reference, binding, and for sending to contests.

This is a good time for the editors to see their staff, talk over the work, its good points and places for improvement, the meaning and handling of new assignments.

Everyone starts out in quest of more copy, more interesting news, features, and editorials to present in a sprightly edition of the VILLANOVAN to be published the following Tuesday.

DUFFY TO FIGHT IN FEATURE OF MURAL BOXING SHOW MON.

Sixteen Mural Boxing and Wrestling Matches Carded Plus Features

By WALT BROWN

In less than a week, one of the most exciting and interesting events on the intramural schedule will take place. Next Monday evening, March 4, the intramural boxing matches will be held. Father McKee, with the cooperation of Bill Duffy and Bob Mentzinger, has worked hard to insure success.

There will be sixteen bouts in all, including three main features.

Because of the fact that the fellows have to be in good physical condition and have to have training, the eligible contestants will be paired off and the list announced that evening. It is posible to receive this training every afternoon including Saturday, from three to five o'clock under the direction of Bill Duffy and Bob Mentzinger, veteran boxers of last year's boxing team. This training consists of sparring a few rounds under the critical eyes of the two trainers who will give pointers on the boxer's faults; then a few rounds on the big punching bag, and speed bag, a litle rope skipping, and finally a few limbering-up exercises. New equipment has been purchased to give the fellows a chance to be in good shape.

DUFFY IN ACTION

In the main feature of the evening, Bill Duffy will box Ciabatonti, the fighter who beat him in the Diamond Belt tournament in Philadelphia, and Bill will have a chance to revenge the close decision made against him. Another

ST. FRANCIS PREP WINS SWIM CROWN

The crack band of natators from Brooklyn representing St. Francis Prep did it again last Tuesday. They won the National Catholic Interscholastic crown for the fourth straight year in the Sixth Annual event of that series, but this time had trouble from several contenders.

They placed in six of the eight events, scoring a total of 32 points. They tok firsts in the 50 yd. freestyle, the diving, and the freestyle relay.

The Brooklyn mermen were far too classy for the field of 10 contenders and finished far ahead of Northeast Catholic. The Falcons came through with the day's surprise, however, when they took second place with 25 points.

St. Thomas Tied for Third

Another Brooklyn representative, Brooklyn Poly, was third, scoring 21 points, while fourth place was divided between Seton Hall and St. Thomas More with 17 points each.

St. Francis had winners home in the 50-yard freestyle, diving and freestyle relay, and only a disqualification in the medley relay event prevented it from getting another first place. The Brooklyn team finished first, but was ruled out when officials claimed Charles Harbeck, backstroker, made an illegal touch.

Withdrawal of Resignations Ends Coaching Problem

By JOE BARNES, Sports Editor

Congratulations are the order of the week at this institution.

Congratulations to the athletic board for a fine piece of work.

Congratulations to Coaches Clipper Smith and Vince McNally upon their decision to remain at Villanova despite their recent resignations.

All this, of course, is occasioned by Saturday's announcement of the rescinding of the resignations of Villanova's varsity football coaches, Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith and Vincent McNally.

The announcement, as much of a pleasant surprise as the resignations had been a shock, was not a spur of the moment affair by any means. It was the natural aftermath of one of the oddest situations imaginable.

Clipper and Vince handed in their resignations a little over two weeks ago to the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Faculty Moderator of Athletics, and with no other course open the latter received them. Official acceptance was the power and duty of the Athletic Board of Control.

Silence of the Board mystified many, and all hope of Smith remaining was lost by the students. Nothing seemed to make sense in the whole matter. Villanova's athletic heads expressed sincere regret at the resignation. "Clipper" himself was evidently heartbroken at the idea of leaving. When speaking with a representative of the VILLANOVAN following his resignation Smith's voice broke several times and he repeatedly expressed his sorrow at leaving. It was all very perplexing — until last Saturday afternoon, when the real story broke.

On Friday night the Board of Athletics—Fathers Caffrey, Albers, Sparrow, Reilly, and Dougherty—met, presumably to elect a successor to "Clipper" and his aide, McNally. When they emerged from their meeting they had accepted . . . not the resignations, but rather Smith and McNally's request that they be permitted to withdraw their resignations.

The Friday night session was the first meeting of the athletic board on the subject other than the one at which the Moderator had informed the Board of the fact that the Coaches had submitted their resignations. Smith's resignation had never been officially accepted and none of the many applicants for the supposedly open positions were ever officially acted upon.

Father Albers' statement follows: "The athletic board never actually accepted the resignation, hoping Mr. Smith would change his mind," he said. "The board's hopes have now been realized. Vincent McNally, Mr. Smith's inseparable co-worker, will, of course, also remain."

The joint statement of Smith and McNally follows:

"There had been a misunderstanding on our contract obligations with Villanova," Smith said. "But after the meeting Friday

Cats' Rally Fails As Southerners Deal Out Season's Second Loss

Villanova's basketball team bowed out last night. The men in Blue, ranked as Villanova's greatest team in her history, lost a heartbreaker to Baltimore University, 47-42.

The Wildcats, paced by Paul Nugent and "Duke" Duzminski, put on a thrilling second half show after trailing 27-18 at halftime but time was too short to pull the ball game out of the fire as the southern set-shot artists kept a steady beat on the baskets.

Baltimore had emerged the winner in twelve of fifteen games prior to last night. They have met and defeated some of the nation's leading court fives but it was evident that they had the "game of their lives" on their hands last night, for fighting, slick Wildcats refused to acknowledge defeat until the final gun.

It was Villanova's second defeat of the season, the only previous loss having been to a top-notch Big Ten leader, Indiana University.

Saddest part of the whole affair was the realization of the fact that four of Villanova's finest were playing the last game of their home careers. For "Duke" Duzminski, Mike Lazorchak, Lloyd Rice and Bill Sinnott it was the end of a long and glory-ridden trail. "Duke"—the shooting artist, Mike—the fighter, Lloyd—the sensation of the season, Bill—team inspiration. All finished as far as home showings go—they still have one more away game — and one

TRACKMEN ENTERED IN CATHOLIC MEET

With a two weeks' rest behind them, the Wildcat Trackmen travel to Washington this Saturday night to enter with full force in the Catholic University Indoor Meet, to be held in the Cardinals' Gym.

Appearing to be in the best shape of the current board season, the runners hope to repeat last year's brilliant performance in this same meet.

Defending his "Abbey" 50-yard invitation crown will be stocky Johnny Maher, who last year nosed out Chabot of Navy in a photo finish. Aside from this burden, Johnny will be kept busy either leading off, or anchoring the mile relay team. Running with Maher in the 50 also will be Whitey Urbellis who is rapidly losing his football legs. This will prove a great help to Urbellis who is expected to be more than a threat to Maher.

The mile quartet is anxious to avenge the close defeat handed them last year by Maryland University. Besides Maher, the team will run with the same men who have carried it thus far, Barney Bellew, Pete Yankauskas, and Bill Guiteras. Bellew and Guiteras have shown definite improvement in the past few weeks and on this does mentor Elliot base his enthusiasm

DAN KEATING PACES I-M SCORING RACE

Austin Ace Has Averaged 10.2 Points Per Game in Loop

Dan Keating, Austin ace and Junior class president, is pacing the intramural basketeers in the total of points scored and average per game so far this season. Participating in thirteen games Dan has scored sixty-three field goals and six fouls for a total of 132 points and an average of 10.2 points per game. Martin, freshman star of the Mendel Residents, is second with 121 points and an average of 8.6 points per game in his fourteen games.

King, of Alumni, is third with 109 points while the two Mendel Day Students, Depersio and Dalina, are fourth and fifth respectively. The schedule will be resumed this afternoon after a weeks lapse. Following is a summary of the first ten leading scorers:

more chance to bow out in the glory they deserve.

Last night the fast-stepping southern five shot off to the lead at the beginning of the ball game and were never headed, nor was their lead ever any too secure.

Mike Pellino was the Baltimore scoring leader with thirteen counters on six field shots and one foul, but Villanova's Paul Nugent took game honors with seven field goals.

Jack Olend, with eleven Baltimore points, was the chief thorn in Villanova's side as his shots always seemed to score when they hurt most — when Villanova was creeping up on the Bee's lead. Johnny Ross, Bee guard, stole the show in the first half but found himself well tied up in the finals.

For Villanova Duzminski's thirteen points took second place and safeguarded his district individual scoring lead. Lloyd Rice was third high with ten points.

Missed fouls, seven out of seventeen, hurt the Wildcats severely and is one facto in their defeat.

Seton Hall's trio, which finished behind the Brooklyn team, was awarded first place.

Foster Victor

Johnny Foster, St. Francis crack freestyler, didn't leave any room for argument in winning the 50-yard freestyle. Foster set a hot pace from the start, and touched the finish wharf a foot in front of Joe Nice, St. Joseph's High. The Hawklet entrant was almost shoulder to shoulder with his rival, but couldn't match the last-minute burst of speed Foster unleashed. Foster's time was 26.1.

Jim Kelly Wins

William Hurley carried St. Francis' colors to its other victory. Hurley captured first place in the diving with a rating of 62.1. Hurley didn't rate much higher than West Catholic's Billy Steiret, who was awarded second place.

William Madden, from Brooklyn Poly Prep, came through with a dazzling exhibition to take first place in the century freestyle. Madden had a hard battle to nose out another Brooklyn youngster, Larry Schultz, St. Francis Prep. Madden was timed in 1.02.4.

Jimmy Kelly, Roman Catholic, reeled off one of the day's fastest times in winning the 220-yard freestyle decided on time. Kelly cruised over the route in 2.28.2. This was a shade better than Jim Mathis, St. Thomas More, who collared second place.

50-yard freestyle—Won by John Foster, St. Francis Prep; second, Joseph Nice, St. Joseph's; third, James Ferguson, Seton Hall; fourth, William Madden, Brooklyn Prep; fifth, tie, Felix White, West Catholic, and Henry Furlong, Northeast Catholic. Time, .26.1.

Frosh Beat Mural All-Star Team

Another notch in the form of victory was cut out last night by the Villanova freshman quintet as they preyed easily upon a squad of superlative All-intramurals, 53-25, to annex title to the claims of an undefeated season.

The yearlings always on the go in their systematic maneuvers, held a fast lead on the All-stars and never loosened their commanding lead. Pacing the Freshmen, in so-annual a struggle that out-rivals others in color and fight was Joe Purcyki who topped the night's scoring with eleven points. Following were Art Spector and Bob Kelty who were tied with nine points apiece. For the Intramural stars Bochetto, Keating and Brown made a three way tie with six tallies apiece.

Jumping off to an early lead the Freshman quintet with Spector and Purcyki alternating with a round of baskets managed to sneak an 8-3 advantage. The Intramural basketeers rebounded into the scoring but the kittens outscored their rivals after a rather slow half. Known as a second-half team the Severance sharpshooters found their marks and then the rivalry became a run-away. In the last session, the kittens launched a swift counter-attack and added twenty points to sew up the encounter.

Penn Evening Trounced

Once again the Villanova freshman scored an easy victory, this time over the Penn Evening school And once again the Brown Prep graduates, Bill Woods and Art Spector, starred in the scoring roles, tallying 37 points between them.

Woods accounted for 20 on 9 buckets and two free throws while Spector garnered 6 field goals and 5 fouls. Howard and Bye got 10 and 9 respectively for the visitors. This marks the sixteenth victory for the Wildcats.

BILL WOODS LEADS FROSH B. B. SCORING

Former Brown Prepper Has Tallied 187 Points; Art Spector Second

Leading the freshman team in scoring is the sharp shooting Bill Woods, former Brown Prep star, with 187 points. Bill is a set-shot artist, who seldom misses, but is also a great floor man and sets up many plays.

He is also outstanding in the foul-shooting department. In one game he was fouled thirteen times and completed ten of the thirteen throws. In another game he sank 9 out of 9 from the 30-foot line. Besides the foul shooting record Bill also holds the individual scoring record with 22 points in a game.

In second place is another former Brown Prepper, Art Spector, who has amassed 146 points from 61 baskets and 24 fouls.

Third is Bob Kelty from Trenton Catholic with 54 field goals and 13 fouls for 125 points. The Kittens have piled up 726 counters to their opponents 458.

Golfers, Netmen Prep for Seasons

Preparations for the golf and tennis schedules are already underway on the campus.

Tennis enthusiasts are working out indoors to get in shape for an expected tough campaign, while the golfing activity has been confined thus far to preparation of the 1940 schedule.

Saul Wallach and his tennis team held a meeting in the VILLANOVAN office yesterday and decided upon many plans for the coming campaign. There will be another meeting in the near future to elect a team captain.

Cliff Randolph, commerce junior and playing-manager-captain of the golfers has his schedule well into the formation process and will release it at an early date. No definite games have been announced yet but Randolph is sure that the card will be of the same high calibre as of former years.

Duzminski, Lazorchak, Nugent Fight for Top Three Positions in District

George "Duke" Duzminski, Villanova's sensational high-scoring player, who alternates at guard and forward and who is playing his last season of basketball, hit the 200-mark Saturday when he scored 11 points against Catholic U. in 11 games played, Duke has collected 81 field goals and 38 foul goals to remain in first position in the local college individual race. His game average is 11.1.

Trailing the leader by three points is the speedy, fast-breaking junior, Paul Nugent. Paul, who is rated by Coach Al Severance as his most promising player, has amassed five more field goals than Duzminski but 13 fewer charity markers. Nugent's total is 86 and 25 for 197 points.

This does not include last night's game with Baltimore University.

Basketball Team To Enjoy Rest

Villanova's basketball team, one of the most active combines in the east, finally gets a week's rest. Due to a lull in the schedule the Wildcats will not play again until March 9th when they close the 1939-40 season at Brooklyn with St. John's University.

Numbered among the Redmen's victories this year have been such teams as Temple University and Loyola of Chicago. They have three veterans from last year's team which won seventeen out of nineteen games.

The Brooklyn five had a "hot night" against Villanova last year and won 57-37.

SWIMMERS SET FOR FINAL MEET

Seton Hall College Visitor Here Tomorrow Afternoon At Field House

The "Wildcat" swimmers enter the last lap of their season when they engage the Seton Hall tankmen here, to-morrow afternoon.

The "Wildcats" have had only a mediocre season winning meets from Delaware University and St. Francis College, and dropping three contests to F. & M., Rider, and the well-balanced Penn aggregation. They are pointing for this meet for a victory over the Seton Hall team would balance the ledger of wins and losses.

Things look pretty bright and the Blue and White swimmers expect an easy victory. There are however two men who will bear watching. Johnny Meich, backstroker is expected to give Captain Ed Leahy and John Maher trouble, and Al Gallo, diver who from his previous demonstrations proves to be a good man on the spring-board.

Seton Hall lost to St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, recently by a top-heavy score.

Blue Nine Awaits Outdoor Workouts

Due to lingering of winter's grip on the campus the Wildcat baseball team is having difficulty in getting actual practice underway.

"Doc" Jacobs, varsity mentor, is anxious to test his charges in outdoor scrimmage but has been unable to do so thus far. Practice is still being confined to informal workouts at the gym, with the pitchers doing most of the work.

Cliff Choquette, Connie O'Leary, and their colleagues are rapidly approaching top-notch physical condition and with a few breaks from whoever controls the sun should be ready when the chant "Play Ball" is heard on April 6th.

Sportorial

By Joe Barnes
Sports Editor

LAST night rang the curtain on Villanova's home basketball season for 1939-40. The season, viewed from an angle, must be considered one of the most successful ones since the sport was instituted here. The only damper has been the lack of worthy competition in the great majority of the Wildcat contests.

One remedy for this lies in the adoption of an idea nursed by many fans in the east . . . the formulation of an intercollegiate league.

For basketball however the idea of a league in the east strikes home. Besides insuring real and worthy interest year after year a league would give a good college team something additional to fight for, instead of a mere won and lost record.

Our idea of a league is an eastern "Big Ten" composed of Villanova, Temple, Duquesne, Carnegie Tech, Fordham, N. Y. U., Boston College, Boston University, Penn State and Syracuse. You will notice that this grouping of ten eastern colleges includes five natural, bitter athletic rivalries. How could such a league fail to attract high interest?

The financial return of the basketball games would also be enhanced by such a league. Naturally more fans would be interested, for instance, in a meeting between Syracuse and Penn State than between either of these and some "foreign" team such as Stanford, Texas, and the like, despite the brand of opposition furnished by the latter teams.

From any angle a court and diamond loop seems feasible. All that is needed is someone to start the ball rolling.

Debut of Villanova's freshman track team is scheduled for this week at the Catholic University Meet. The frosh will enter a mile relay team composed of Johnny DiCarlo and Harry Keefrider from West Catholic Stan Nazian from North Catholic, and Jimmy Brown. Although the latter is unknwon to the writer the first three can be depended upon for a creditible performance. All three have won championships in the Philadelphia Catholic League and seem ripe for collegiate laurels. Here's hoping!

—V—

Johnny Maher, Blue sprinter, will defend his crown won last year in the "Abbey" 50-yard dash. Beset by ill luck so far this year John seems to be ready at last to threaten the dominance of others in the indoor sprint events: Let's go Johnny!

Lukens Beaten

Paced by Bill Woods, the Villanova frosh downed the Luken's Steel team, from Coatesville by a 57-34 margin. Woods tallied six buckets and ten fouls for twenty-two points to set a new high in individual scoring for the year. Art Spector followed close with eleven and Kelty with ten. Garawski of Luden's sunk five baskets and five fouls for fifteen. The game was a rough one all the way through as is evidenced by the forty fouls called during the contest. Twenty-three were against Luken's and seventeen on Villanova.

HERE and THERE

By JIM HAUGHTON

EMILY POST may insist we're encroaching upon her private stock and hail us into court but we can always blame it on the Cooking and Etiquette Editor. If he had not, in his obdurate manner, politely socked the deaf to our suggestions we might not have been forced to take this alternative. Even the usually charming Sports Editor said it had no place on the sports page. But having reasons of our own and a bit of Irish stubborness in the bargain we thought this might be nicely labeled "Tips to Night Lifers."

The National Association of Donut Dunking has approved these rules and with enough practice you may fool the old man by coming home with an extra degree of B. D. (Bachelor of Dunking). We hope that with a little patience and practice you may master the intricacies of the art because someday they may be quite as common as the rules the Marquis of Queensbury set up for legalized mayhem via the squared circle.

Jim Haughton

Debutantes in their blase actions are just ga-ga about the fad; doctors, senators, educators and actors have forced Elsa Maxwell to sponsor contests in it. So that you lads, if you take heed of the advice my columing colleagues and date up some of these nearby collegiate gals, may also introduce them to the game we have drawn through the aid of the research department and the home town journal a set of rules on the correct manner of Donut Dunking.

Don't laugh. It's an American custom and you didn't know it. Many the night after a bit of frivolity you engage in the custom of spending the last dime for a bit of sugared dough and a cup of coffee. Thus we have the genesis of an American social art.

A professional dunker possesses a stroke which only long practice and many dimes can bring. He claims a keen sense of timing and combines it with grace and skill to nicely keep his elbow out of the adjoining trucker's eye.

Thus with these thoughts in mind to aid you in your securing a rounded education we offer the following approved rules.

1—Make sure you have the price of the equipment.

2—Tuck a big napkin under your chin cause the splashes may leave a spot on your father's slacks.

3—Approach the plate with a look of reconnaissance with elbows well into the side. Then daintily pick up the donut, break it in half and prepare. Dunking a whole donut is definitely shocking.

4—Sighing in rapturous anticipation proceed to rhythmically swish in the beverage with a free and easy movement of the arm. Keep the wrist and elbow relaxed thus giving a leisurely touch.

5—The immersion should take exactly two-and-one-half seconds. Just long enough to soak completely because otherwise you'll need a spoon.

6—Remove the donut and hold it above the cup permitting all the excess drops to drip, drip, drip back.

7—Then comes the sweet climax. Your gastronomic senses have been aroused to new heights. You swerve the donut in a graceful curve toward your mouth and close your teeth tenderly over the dunked portion.

8—Repeat the above procedure until all the donuts are safely consumed among the land of fond memories. If you care for more just ask the gal friend for another dime cause we hear they get quite an allowance. But be sure they'd be willing to pay an extra dime to number among their acquaintances a Villanova gourmet. Fool them and make them tack back those remarks about a lack of etiquette here.

Now that you've ben kind enough or maybe sucker enough to linger with us you may wonder how such blarney finds its way to the sports page. Chum, did you ever have to met a deadline and couldn't think of a possible target. This was one of those occasions. So be it.

(Editor's Note—We are still in a daze after reading the above bit of literary (and culinary) work. What has dear old Villanova come to that "Donut Dunking" finds its way to our sports pages? Does it rate a major "V" or what—?)

on the teams' chances. Entered in the 45-yard High hurdles, and High jump respectively are sophomores Bill Carey and Charlie Jones. These two men were recently in the Penn A. C. meet and showed plenty of promise, and are now entered in their second meet of the year. Elliot feels that they both have come along in fine fashion and is expecting them to crash into the list of point winners.

Making their debut for the Wildcats will be the highly touted freshman mile relay team who will meet enough competition to bring out some fancy running from the Kittens.

The first year men will have Johnny DiCarlo, Stan Nazian, Harry Keefrider, and little Jimmy Brown carrying the colors of Villanova.

Intramural Basketball Games Postponed

The postponement of all intramural basketball games last week will lengthen the court season a week longer than was originally planned. At the beginning of the year it was expected that the season would close on March 1st.

Commerce and Finance Dayhops and Fedigan Hall are currently battling for the crown with the former favored to win. If this happens they will meet Fedigan, first half champions in the playoffs at the close of the regular season.

Games will be played as scheduled this week.

Last, But Not Least
How The Belle Air Ticks

By EDWARD L. JONIK
Editor-in-Chief of the Belle Air

None but the inner circle of the Belle Air Staff can fully appreciate the extent of the many duties that must be performed before the Belle Air is distributed in the Spring. If we can borrow a little space in your favorite paper, we should like to show you some of the things that happen from the time the "dummy," the general layout of the book, is made up until the time the dummy, who helps to run the show, is washed up.

After a visit to the photographers' and the engraving and printing companies during the summer has been made by a newly-appointed editor, he is asked to draw up a plan outline of the entire book, page by page. This preliminary space allotment affords an opportunity to incorporate new ideas and make a better arrangement of subjects which constitute a yearbook. This means making provision for everything, except a possible invasion scare, that may happen on the campus. Then come the conferences, discussions, changes, rejection, finally approvals, and the "dummy" is ready, but still subject to revision.

Come the Pics

School opens and the Photography Editor, Bob Wilderotter, joins the fun and soon learns the trick of being in twelve places at one time. Somehow, all the necessary, and six times that many unnecessary, pictures were taken, and we survive the opening week with a complete photography record of registration, class groups, distribution of regs and other activities.

It already seems as if we have been working a long time before we even have a staff. So presto, and the bulletin boards are flooded with announcements. Forty-five candidates show up. Boy, this job will be a cinch! Bob Wilderotter and his photography staff have been flying around incessantly. Now, Joe York, the College Editor, steps in. The first batch of assignments is distributed to an eager staff and the copy begins to dribble in. All the Seniors are asked to fill out a questionaire about about activities and other details. Soon the Belle Air Office, the famous room 51, Mendel hall, is swamped with copy, good and bad, mostly bad.

Ready Staff Aids

The Copy Editor, Bill Garrity, can write fast and well, but he cannot perform miracles. York, Bader, Moore, Schermerhorn, Lind, the Editor and all others who can spare a little time pitch in and help to mow down the mountain. Often a page of copy had been re-written seven or eight times before it passes the inspection of all concerned. But that's all right, it is one way of getting good copy with a punch. There is still much to write and more to re-write, but there will come an end.

Wow! The football season is almost over. Where's the sports staff? Father Falvey, our Moderator, would have to remind us just when we thought we had everything under control. What a relief it was to find the Sports Editor, John Maucierei and his assistant, Joe Barnes, have been quietly producing splendid results. The sports staff with such stellar writers as Wallach and Canning has saved the day.

"Look at this, Father. Don't you think it is a swell idea? This will surely make the '40 edition another All-Catholic and All-American," we hopefully solicit approval of a layout which will necessarily inflate the budget.

"Mmmmm," says Father Falvey.

"Ad" It Up!

"Don't worry, Father," chimes in James Barnett Scott, Business Manager. "I will get that ad." And out the door he flies—the layout stays.

And so it goes on and on. Checking details, getting pictures, writing and re-writing copy, examining proofs, pasting up the dummy, keeping up with class work.

Needless to say, it is work. But it is also fun and good experience. The realization that we have assisted in embodying a year at Villanova into a book, preserving its traditions, perhaps increasing its glory is enough for us. We know, the Belle Air will not be discarded like an old best-seller, but will be treasured by the Class of 1940 until it becomes a memory.

Fred C. Steller Appointed Chairman Of Open House

Prominent Junior Named to Direct Revamped Exhibit in Field House; Program Will Feature Contributions of Arts Groups

By HOWARD A. McCALL

Fred C. Steller, junior science student, has been appointed student chairman of the open house program to be presented in the field house this year in conjunction with Mother's Day activities. It is to be held during Junior Week, Daniel J. Keating, president of the class of 1941, announced.

This affair will officially inaugurate Junior Week activities, celebrated annually under the auspices of the third year men. Open house, formerly held in Mendel Hall, has been moved to this new site for the convenience of the mothers, who are afforded an opportunity at this time to observe the progress of the college.

Steller has been a prominent figure on the campus during the past three years and has participated in many extra-curricular activities. He has served on the Orientation and Sophomore Cotillion committees. Intramurals have also attracted his attention. He has been a college cheerleader for three years and is captain-elect for next year.

The program is still in a process of formation, but it will, in all probability, comprise a combination of exhibits and entertainment. The field house stage will furnish the setting for renditions of the symphonic orchestra, band and glee club. This same platform will also be the scene of the Belle Masque, Beta Gamma, and language department demonstrations.

The adjoining rooms in the gymnasium will supply the space for the various exhibits planned. The dressing room, the poolroom, the bowling alleys, and the Blue Room will all be used to house these displays. The diverse publications on the campus, the library, and the history, sociology, and religion departments will each have their own exhibit. In addition to these, a psychological and speech clinic will be installed. Exhibits of the activities of the various seminars will be combined into one display.

The faculty chairmen who will assist Steller are Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, and Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A. Efforts to insure the success of this affair are already under way, and those in charge hope to make this year's open house the finest ever displayed at the college.

April 22, Date Set For Dinner; Essay, Poetry Contests, Play Sponsored

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, moderator of the Spanish Club, delivered a short address to the organization when it met last Wednesday, February 28; Father discussed various projects for the club to sponsor.

After some discussion the members decided to hold a dinner on April 22. This date was selected because it is the day set aside to honor memory of Miguel de Cervantes, the author of Don Quixote.

At the dinner two prizes consisting of a medal and a diploma each will be presented to the two persons writing the compositions on Cervantes. These prizes have been received from Columbia University. In addition to these, Father Lozano also will award a prize to the person composing the best poem on Cervantes.

The club also decided to stage a Spanish play as its contribution to Open House.

FR. McQUADE LECTURES

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Ph. D., spoke at the Annual La Salle College Catholic Press Exhibit and Conference on Saturday, March 2, at 20th St. and Olney Ave., Philadelphia,

His topic was "Propaganda in the Catholic Press." The talk was one of a series of speeches on various aspects of Catholic press problems held in conjunction with exhibits of a wide variety of Catholic publications.

LIBRARY INCREASES SELECTION OF BOOKS

Numerous Rented Volumes on Current Catholic Liteurature To Be Procured

Commencing last Saturday the library, in conjunction with the modern move in collegiate circles, took upon itself an additional burden and incorporated a collection of rented volumes. This movement, in view of the labor and effort required on the part of the library, is an added service extended to all students.

This rental callection is not new in college. Practically all the leading colleges and universities throughout the country have adopted this means of presenting current popular works. In the past it has enjoyed immense success, and it is in keeping with the activities of other college libraries that Villanova has announced its intention to adopt this nation-wide trend.

Current Catholic literature will constitute this collections. It is to be understood that Catholic literature does not mean that the books must be written by Catholic authors or that they must be biographies of saints, but rather that they concur with the Catholic Ideal and that they do not glorify vice at the expense of virtue.

The members of the Book Club will be entitled to use these books free of charge. Students who do not belong to this organization will be charged the usual feet required among the various libraries in the nation, three cents for the first five days and a nickel per day after that.

This movements was undertaken solely for the interest of the entire student body, and it is hoped — that the students will express their appreciation by using the books displayed in the rental collection.

PRESIDENT TRAVELS

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, president of Villanova College, will attend a meeting of the Pittsburgh branch of the Villanova College Alumni Association on Saturday, March 9.

Fr. Stanford will also be the principal speaker at the Communion breakfast of the Pittsburgh Club which is under the directorship of James Van Horn.

The Show IS Going On!

Three departments of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society are pictured in action on the stage of the Field House. In the foreground are the student members of the Masque and the faculty director, Professor Anthony J. Frayne, rehearsing lines. In the background, which is their customary locale, the dependable backstage crew, headed by Father Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., industriously work on the set.

Seminar Members Attend Lecture By Rev. Francis Diehl

Scientific Psychology, Medicine Discussed By Science Group

Psychology and Medicine was the topic presented by the Rev. Francis A. Diehl, O. S. A.; S. T. L.; M. A. at the last meeting of the Science Seminar conducted on Thursday, February 29.

Father Diehl spoke of the growth of Modern scientific psychology and its use in the medical field. Modern scientific psychology started about 1865, and in its beginning great and often extravagant promises of its powers were offered. Many of these extravagant promises were not fulfilled and the result is that the popular mind has come to look askance at psychology. This is not due to the failings of the science itself but to the many charlatans who always follow in the wake of true science.

Modern scientific psychology began in the field of science or medicine when it was discovered that there were many sicknesses which were of a mental nature and had no organic or physiological basis, and it was thus seen that there is a close connection between the mental or spiritual and the organic or physiological. At the present time the trend is toward a careful training of the mind or soul and this has a high curative effect on the body.

We can learn much of psychology by introspection or reflective thinking. This is encouraged, as Fr. Diehl stated, in Catholic colleges, such as Villanova, by means of retreats, prayer, use of the Chapel, etc. This is all especially important to the student who intends to follow the medical profession, for to be successful a doctor must know his own mind or soul if he is to help others who are in pain.

New Officers Edit Alumnus

Paetrus. F. Banmiller, registrar of the college, and former graduate of the class of '35, has been appointed editor-in-chief of the 1940-41 staff of the Villanova "Alumnus."

The other publication appointments are as follows: Associate editod: Edward P. Reiley, '35, former VILLANOVAN editor and past editor of the "Alumnus," and now a member of the Evening Bulletin staff; Business Manager: Charles O'Connor, '38, editor of the Belle Air; Sports editor: Merton Nason, '35, formerly of the VILLANOVAN staff; Special features: John Stell, '35, and John Harrington, '40, former managing editor and editor-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN, respectively.

"The Tavern" Sets Almost Complete

Crew Erects Colonial Scenes For Annual Dramatic Production

Work on the construction of the stage set for "The Tavern," annual Belle Masque production, is progressing rapidly. Individual props must be assembled and painted to conform with the Colonial tavern setting specified in the famous play by George M. Cohan.

John T. Gallagher, general stage manager is supervising the work being ably assisted by a group of stage crewmen.

Robert Dooley is head electrician, while Robert Tyrell, Neil O'Mahoney and Waly Mason are contributing much of their time to the construction of the set. The latter has previously worked on this set in Prep school, and his suggestions have proven invaluable. John J. Burke has been appointed costume and property manager.

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., and Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, faculty moderators, are pleased with the progress to date and have expressed their satisfaction over the many hours of labor the stage crew has already devoted to the project.

SEMINARY CHOIR WILL GIVE LITURGICAL PROGRAM

Wednesday Night Chapel Period Time of Presentation; Gregorian Chant Featured

Monday night, the St. Mary's Hall choir of thirty-five seminarian voices will present a program of liturgical music. This will be given during the regular chapel period.

Indicative of the sorrow and penitence of Holy Week, the choir's selections will include Palestrina's "O Vos Omnes," and the selection of Gregorian Chant, "Seputus Est."

The essence of the program will be the breviary responses, the Tenebrae. The group is under the direction of Fr. Ralph J. Handran, O. S. A., M. Mus.

BULLETIN ON ITS WAY

The second issue of the Mendel Bulletin, the publication of the School of Science, will be distributed sometime next week.

A notice giving the exact date will be posted on the Science Bulletin Board. The students can receive it by calling at the office of the Mendel Bulletin.

This issue will have a very unusual frontispiece which was photographed by Edmond Malcolm, the staff photographer. It is a picture of a diatome showing very rare details.

The number of copies ordered this time is greater than ever before because of the great demand for the December issue. This issue promises to be a most interesting one.

Daily Lenten Mass

ATTENDANCE at the 8:15 Mass, celebrated every morning during the Holy season of Lent in the college chapel for the spiritual benefit of the day students, has recently fallen below the mark established at the commencement of this sacrifice. Obviously the students who petitioned that this exercise be celebrated at this time have forgotten the provisions embodied in the granting of this request.

The chaplain of the college answered their plea on the condition that the students express their intentions by assisting at this Holy Sacrifice. That was the only requirement demanded by the authorities, and it is evident that the day students are not fulfilling their part of the contract.

If the attendance does not in the future retain the standard that it set in the beginning of the season, the practice may be discontinued. The students have been granted their request, but they are certainly not living up to the conditions implied, and in the past few weeks they have done nothing to warrant the maintenance of a daily celebration of Mass.

It is your power to prevent the occurrence of such a drastic move. If you are really in earnest about the whole thing, come to the Mass and come on time. This practice should not be terminated at the end of the lenten season, but continued for the remainder of the year. Show your willingness to cooperate by attending Mass, and insure the preservation of this custom throughout the scholastic year.

"Not Cricket"

LAST week the British Government made a statement to the effect that in the future no more lands in Palestine could be purchased from Arabs by Jews or anybody else. On the surface this might not show signs of racial discrimination, but in a practical sense this prohibition will affect, for the greater part, the Jewish element in Palestine. Definitely it will put a stop to the further colonization of refugee Hebrews who might foster a desire to settle in that area.

The fact that the move was motivated by international political strategy on the part of England in an effort to placate the troublesome Arabs cannot be questioned. This in itself might be considered commendable, but in trying to do right the English have committed a wrong against a minority group, after the fashion of the totalitarian policies.

This again brings to mind the confusing inconsistency of England's views and sympathies, especially during the last few years. Indeed, it makes us doubt her sincerity in world affairs, and should dampen somewhat the effects of her cleverly conceived and widely publicized propaganda.

England was one of the strongest and loudest condemnors of the racial persecutions perpetrated by the Nazis and the Fascists, yet here is an example showing almost conclusively that Great Britain dos not practice what it advocates in the way of democratic toleration where the rights of minorities are concerned. This isn't an isolated example . . . The Irish and the Indian questions also might be cited to bolster this opinion.

All this should go to show that in the present European conflict, the Allies aren't fighting with clean hands and clear consciences. This should be a further warning to American citizens that to take sides, even morally, would be unwise, because those concerned are evidently waging a war for selfish rather than humanitarian causes.

—A. J. D'A.

Farsightedness

EX-PRESIDENT HOOVER has been been associated with many humanitarian movements especially those directed towards alleviating the sufferings of war-plagued peoples. At present he is soliciting aid for the Finns.

Undoubtedly the purpose of these organizations is grand and above reproach, conceived and fostered as they are by an unadulterated charity for the downtrodden. But aren't they conceived, too, by those with far-sighted eyes which fail to see distress right under their very noses?

The theory that guides these movements is that we, the United States, the 'land of plenty' can well afford, if we are not downright obligated, to give to afflicted peoples. This would be true if it were not for some inescapable effects concerning this 'land of plenty.'

For instance, there is the perennial share-cropper in the South, perennial because his lot has never been alleviated. Then there is the migratory worker, so recently popularized in a best seller, and whose standard of living is uncommonly low. Also, there is the dreadful inadequacy of the living wage the Government tries to give to our army of unemployed by relief, W. P. A., and similar agencies.

In these acute conditions just cited there is just as much inspiration for charity as there is in the plight of afflicted foreigners.

Give to the poor suffering Finns? Unqualifiedly yes. But only after we have given to poor suffering AMERICANS.

What Is Literary Criticism? What Is A Good Critic?

Negative Pitfalls, Positive Aids Presented For Him Who Would Be a Critic

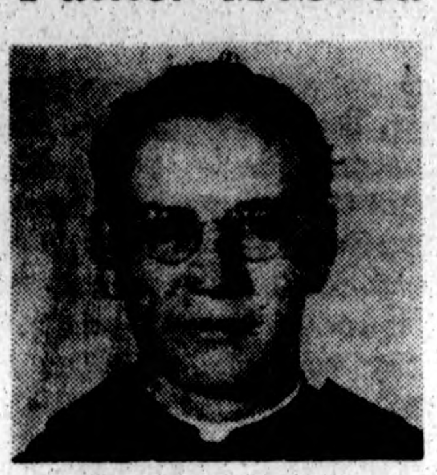
By REV. JOHN J. McSHEA, O. S. A., M. A.
Assistant Professor, English

THE publication of an unusual book is normally a matter of interest and amusement not related in any way to the book's intrinsic merit. Booksellers, reviewers, and merely disinterested enthusiasts remind us of a solemn obligation to buy and read. The critic supplements this real or synthetic hysteria by urging reasons for the book's singular qualities. Now, this activity on the part of critics can be even more interesting than the book itself; and frequently it is.

Literary Criticism

Should a new book differ radically from most of the author's earlier works, there will be a very profound tendency to avoid passing judgment with a finality which cannot later be modified. "Prodigal Parents," by Sinclair Lewis, offered the most recent and most pointed instance of this sorry kind of confusion. Critics were, of course, familiar with the mannerisms and attitudes of the man from Minnesota, but they were quite unprepared for the change in his thesis. Most critics were merely surprised. Some approved of the unexpecetd sanity in the novelist's viewpoint; others, recognizing the anti-Marxist tone of the book, damned it robustly. Only a few, and these the genuine critics, retained a sense of objectivity; they found inferior workmanship and unconvincing characterization. They were not distracted either to a doubtful optimism or to a professional anger about unimportant side-isues. Analyzing the book impartially, they judged it as a literary item.

Father McShea



Received Bachelor of Arts degree at Villanova in 1930; M. A. in 1933 from the Catholic University of America. Studied at Oxford from 1935 to 1937; B. A. (ibid) in 1937. Expects M. A. from Oxford in 1942 in accordance with the Oxford system of automatic bestowal of the Master degree.

Warmth of Viewpoint

It is not our contention that intellectual aloofness alone constitutes the critic, yet, if tempered, it can be an asset. We rather like a warmth of viewpoint which is honorable and wholesome. We feel, however, that the critical function has frequently been cheapened by propagandists and noisy, second-rate writers whose omniscience is just a trifle trying. Isn't it insolence rather than criticism to offer successively contradictory judgment on a novelist such as John Dos Passos simply because his admiration for the Kremlin has disappeared in Adventures of a Young Man"? Is a book to be regarded for its methods and ingenuity, or for that vague thing called liberalism?

While these examples illustrate aspects of criticism, our primary concern here lies with something deeper. This purpose may be summarized in two queries: What is criticism? What is a good critic?

Not Bald Disapproval

As we are not attempting a detailed study of criticism, there is some advantage in examining the negative factors first. Thus, criticism is not bald disapproval of principles held by other people. This seemingly trivial factor is not the absurdity it might appear. Eugene Lyons has just explained how thoroughly a pink bias long dominated the usual media of critical expression.

Secondly, criticism is not a superficial search for comparison with recognized classics. This kind of thing might be promptly dismissed as beneath serious attention were it not for the uniform paragraph which suggests comparison with Tolstoy, Thackeray, and Hardy. In such a crescendo-like burst of enthusiasm, the writer reaches what he intends to be his critical climax.

Faded Fadiman.

Equally objectionable are those glib and complacently delivered comments like the following by Clifton Fedamin. Writing of "Grapes of Wrath," he notes: "I feel this book may possibly do for our time what 'Les Miserables' did for it. . . 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' for its. . . ." That, we think, is solemn pedantry, but scarcely criticism. (A friend of ours, a Kipling specialist, calls Fadiman "the man who would be like Mencken.")

Thirdly, criticism is not an opportunity to unloose adjectives in the superlative degree. Is there anything more pointless and wearying than the indiscriminate use of "greatest," "epoch-making," "epical," and, recently, "unforgettable"? Writers in this class make honest words cheap and suspect. One thinks inevitably of Disraeli's remark: "You know who critics are?

ANOTHER week another column and more news about doings here, there and everywhere. This week, however, there appears to be a lack of that old life which is found at other times, but then it could be the snow. However. . .

Jim Walsh, the Freshman "man about town" should be more particular where he choses to impart sweet nothings to the fairer sex. After all there's a time and place for everything and surely a better time could be found than broad daylight and a more quieter spot than right in front of the dorms.

* * *

It appears that Jimmy Donovan has seen "A Yank at Oxford" more than once, for he's being tagged with a new monicker—"old man." It seems that every time he approaches someone his first greeting is "Old man, how are you?" or something to that effect. The habit has become so pronounced that many of the boys are running to the mirror to see if what he says is true. However, we think the "brain" is anticipating old age even before his hair-line recedes any further.

* * *

Verse of the week:

The gum chewing girl and the cud chewing cow
Are somewhat alike, yet different somehow
What is the difference? Oh yes, I see now
'Tis the thoughtful expression on the face of the cow.

It is interesting to note that among the members of the Senior Class there are many who are leaders in the various campus organizations. A few of the more popular deserve mention—

Brad McManus, who as president of the Student Council holds down the number one position in student achievements.

Ed Jonik, the present editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, is continually on the move looking for ways and means of improving the college annual.

From The Mail Bag

February 29, 1940.

Dear Mr. Editor,

We have been members of your reading public over a period of time, and feel that we have benefited thereby. We point with pride to the honors that have crowned your journalistic efforts, but we also view with alarm a certain biased tendency that has crept in of late. To this prejudiced tendency, which is becoming more painfully apparent, we respectfully draw your attention.

We relish occasional tidbits from the school across the tracks, but is it necessary to give us indigestion with the platter of social hash, week in and week out?

Thus it becomes our duty to remind your otherwise splendid sheet that there are other nearby girls' schools worthy of his journalistic endeavors. One of these schools, for example, is Immaculata. This verdant field for material would provide sources of news more compatible with the activities of the students. Besides, this would be a token of our appreciation for the reams of copy concerning Villanovans in the "Immaculatan."

Respectfully yours,
Three Hopefuls.

(Ed. Note: Three Hopefuls, you will have to adopt a new second name, for your cause of grief, mentioned above, will be taken care of in the future. We certainly did not intentionally slight any of the neighboring girls' colleges. While we certainly do not intend to exclude "the college across the tracks" from our comment, we shall endeavor to maintain an equilibrium in the space allotted to each.

(Thank you very much for your letter of constructive criticism. We have always a column open for the solution of any such problems should they really exist.)

A.I.E.E. Chairman, P.K.P. Representative Enjoys Frat Athletics And Vocalizing

By DAVID N. REARDON

A few decades ago, in an old-fashioned homestead at 313 E. Penn Street in Norristown, a proud bundle of wailing joy in the person of Walter E. Kelly was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Kelly by a wise old physician who predicted great things for the squirming little lad.

After collaring Walt, he declined all this publicity but after a lengthy interrogation, we did manage to combine his admissions into a brief life story.

His grandfather was known as Capt. Kelly, a pleasant old Civil War veteran who fought for the Unuion Forces. Back in 1867, shortly after the war, Cap, as he was known, established Kelley's Old Fashioned Tavern and to this day it is operated by the Kelley family. Incidentally Walt insisted that he detested beer despite the fact that he used to drain the empty beer glasses as a little tyke.

Well to return to our man of the hour. Walt waxed strong in wisdom and strength and before long entered St. Patrick's Parochial School in Norristown, that busy little principality nestled in a valley on the Schuylkill river. Graduating from here, he decided to matricuate at La Salle High School in Olney, Philadelphia. His Junior year found him in Norristown High, the commuting distance to Philadelphia being too long. Here Walt actively participated in the Glee Club and was a member of a quartet within the club. The Student Council also claimed him as a member.

The Second Kelly

His selection of Villanova as his Alma Mater for the next four years was prompted by a brother who attended here previously and recommended it for its high scholastic standing. Its proximity also influenced his seelction. Upon matriculating, he enrolled in the school of Electrical Engineering where he had consistently maintained a good scholastic record.

To enumerate his many extra-curricular activities: His freshman year found him splitting the cords for the Phi Kappa Pi basketball team and pelting the pellet for his frat's softball aggregation. Physical prowess was not to be his sole activity. In his Junior year he was named to the Open House Committee and also joined the A. I. E. E., an engineer's society.

His Senior year has found Walt more active than ever. He has been elected Chairman of the A. I. E. E. and is the P. K. P. representative in the Student Council. Last October 29 found him representing Villanova at the Eastern Regional District Convention of the engineering society held in Scranton. The many successful undertakings of his society are indicative of his capabilities. Numerous trips to industrial plants have been arranged under his guidance.

High Scorer

At present, he is manager of the Shamrocks, a senior engineer's bowling team which is leading the newly formed tenpin league. His average of 150 points per game has greatly aided his team and is the high score in the league.

Each summer finds Walt laboriously engaged in some occupation at the family seashore resort, Ocean City, New Jersey. Turning from this wet business, he labored with an ice company by day and as a soda dispenser by night. Quite an ambitious lad; not to mention his postoffice job at Norristown during the Christmas Holidays.

Bath Room Baritone

Hobbies? Well, Walt enjoys singing and operatice performances tremendously. Had he not been stricken with acute laryngitis, he would have been a member of our Glee Club. This has not dimmed his liking for singing, and he never misses a concert or recital if he can help it.

On the lighter side he likes to dance to sweet swing. As for girls, he gives them all a break but can't understand why they will not go out with him more than twice. However, he insists that he has never been serious with any of them and perhaps that explains it.

After a few words with this sandy-haired Senior, it is evident that his sincerity, combined with his understanding and sense of humor, will enable him to proceed far in his future undertakings.

Interested In The Air Corps? Meet Cadet Tom Carbine, '39

By MURRAY P. ZEALOR

VILLANOVA graduates, as are graduates from every major college and university, are receiving communications from the war department concerning our government's development of its air corps.

To give Villanova students a clearer view of this new field that has been opened for them by the war department, I have gone through the correspondence of one of our former students, Tom Carbine, a member of last year's class who entered the air corps last August and will graduate this May.

The beginning of his nine months' course was his trip to Tulsa, Oklahoma, where he spent three months in preliminary training, gaining a total of sixty-five hours of flying. Just how and where they lived is as important a question as what they did. He states: "We are living in barracks which are divided into seven sections, the center one being used as a wash room. The buildings are new, one-story, frame affairs; the floor is light, natural wood and the walls are of knotty pine. The quarters are clean and comfortable and everyone seems satisfied."

Is Work Play?

Classes for the man who goes in for aviation do not end with the final exams prior to graduation here at Villanova. One of the hardest parts of the course, and Tom calls it the only bad part of the whole set-up, is the school work. They have four hours of classes a day, and the subjects include Navigation, Theory of Flight, Theory of Engines, Engine Lab. Work, Airplane Structure and Maintenance, and Meterology.

The exams at Tulsa are not limited to the class rooms. Every so often the school or the army gives the student a progress ride, to see how he is getting along. If the student is good enough he will go back to his instructor and proceed as he has been.

After several weeks of careful instruction in the rudiments of flying during which time half of your flying has been dual and the other half solo, you are on your solo stage. This means that your work is graded on the basis of take-off, climb, turn, 90 degree side approach with the "gun cut" and landing with accuracy.

It is necessary to pass this work three days in succession. If you can do this you are eligible to take out a solo ship on your own responsibility so that you can practice such maneuvers as stalls, with both power on and power off, and tail spins under the same conditions.

The Second Stage

Randolph Field is the next stop after Tulsa and the Spartan Field. Here is yhere the student is "ruffled up a bit." He forgets that he may have been a cadet corporal at Tulsa. Here the army life steps in. You hear officers commanding attention. "You, Mister, attention! Such in that gut! Get some wrinkles in your chin! Move! Push your neck back! Move your head down! Roll your shoulders back! Roll your butts under you. Is that a parachute you're packing around, Mister?"

Once at Randolph you commence

—the men who have failed in literature and art."

Criticism Independent

Applied to authentic critics, however, this definition is a libel. Why? Because criticism is an independent branch of literature; it requires creative ability; and the first-class critic is as rare as the exceptional poet or novelist.

There are many definitions of criticism formulated from the time of Aristotle to the present of T. S. Eliot. Yet, basically, criticism is the art of segregating the essential quality of merit of a literary work, of a movement, even of a fad. Poe wrote criticisms when he stated that the amorphous, aimless sketch was deficient for want of conscious direction. Wordsworth was critical in the highest sense when he indicated that artificial diction was the neo-classical weakness. Monsignor Sheen uttered a real criticism when, some ten years ago, he pointed out the incompleteness and the semi-Christian tone of American Humanism.

In a more modest way, William McFee spoke genuine criticism when he described Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake" as unintelligible and, therefore, hardly a masterpiece. Courage and sincerity should be observed here, for a less honest critic would have undertaken a frantic search to "discover" merit. After all, James Joyce is a "name" and already something of a legend. On the other hand, George Jean Nathan was only partly critical when he insisted that the plays of Noel Coward lack substance. Perhaps they do, but Nathan overlooked the dramatic asset of Coward's witty dialogue. Coward is in the Restoration tradition, not the Shakespearian.

Real Criticism

Criticism, then, is a form of analysis which concentrates upon the fundamental quality of a piece of writing. It seeks out the central element, the core of a work; it transcends "smart" and casual commentary.

Finally, a few general observations may be made with profit. Sound criticism is always constructive. It is gentlemanly and civilized. It perceives that the attacks on human dignity by Dreiser and Faulkner are inherently false. Seconly, good criticism fosters a thoughtful attitude. Like the careful study of Burke's orations, it is an exercise on logic, for consistent thinking is the foundation of valid criticism. (If the critic be P. E. More or W. C. Brownell, we have excellent specimens of pure, careful English.) Thirdly, able criticism sharpens our appreciation of literature.. This is no remote afterthought. If a work is valuable, criticism will tell us why. Is some novel, for example, only an average narrative, or is it a fairly comprehensive investigation of life? Standards learned from criticism will answer that and kindred questions satisfactorily.

LEAP YEAR is celebrated in real style at Louisiana State University—they had a party at which the girls dressed as boys and vice versa—(skirts). Corsages consisted of bunches of onions (the cheap skates) and the most divine man was awarded a tin loving-cup.—Cincinnati News.

TRUE TO HIS WORD—

According to a recent A. P. dispatch an instructor at a high school in Santa Maria, Calif., offered to eat his hat if the students got the high school paper out on time. The students won and the prof, being a chemistry teacher, reduced his straw hat to sandwich spread consistancy, spread it on crackers, and ate it.—Sunflower.

Kissing and colds seem to be in the news quite a bit lately. At the University of California recently, health officials declared a sixty-day ban on kissing because of a prevalence of colds. A California doctor investigated and his conclusion was "A good healthy kiss never spread any germs." He continued, "A god healthy kiss generates so much heat it destroys germs; if anything, the University ought to advocate more kissing."

In reply to him Temple University's Dr. Spaulding said, "I never realized kisses were that warm." (All we have to say is that there are kisses and kisses).

Pennsylvania's Dr. Boerner said, "It's a matter of taking a chance. Some kisses may be worth it, others are not." (He must get around).

The other extreme is represented by Young Harris College in Georgia, where students are forbidden to hold hands.

Well, I suppose it's about time I stopped this Stalin around and did some writing. . . .

"War" will be the theme at Lafayette's Junior Prom. (Al Donahue) and the decorations are going to consist of sandbags, airplanes, etc. It's a novel idea, but it seems like they can't wait to get "over there."

Also—this thought which has occurred to every student at some time in his life—

Princeton's Junior Prom chairman has ruled that no corsages will be allowed at the dance.
